Law and Order Must Be Preserved, Bennett Tells Unemployed Councils

Demand Made For Non-Contributory Jobless Insurance

SENTENCES STAND

Canada Does Everything in Its Power to Help Unemployed

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—(CP)—"We are doing everything that this country can stand to assist the needy, which is primarily the duty of the provinces, and maintain our constitutional life," this statement was made by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett today to a delegation from the National Conference of Unemployment Councils.

The spokesman of the deputation, the Prime Minister considered, would not achieve the objectives. Bovetism, he told the delegation presented unfair competition to Canadian labor, and he illustrated this point by referring to the disastrous results brought about by Russia Sovietism to Canadian industries, asbestos and other lines of industry.

Premier's Statement.

While in Canada, the government was doing its utmost in world wide economic conditions, the Premier's position was much worse in other countries such as Canada—less and order must be preserved, Mr. Bennett emphasized.

Privately but firmly, the Prime Minister received representatives from the seven delegates headed by George Windadale, Toronto, on a review of subjects ranging from a demand for noncontributory unemployment insurance and other angles made for Canada to the question of exports to Japan.

Communists Have to Run.

Tim Buck and other jailed Communist leaders would not be released until they had served their terms, Mr. Bennett stated. These men had been found guilty, the Prime Minister said before the Supreme Court of Ontario on their own statements that they had been taking direction from Moscow and had supplied with money from Soviet Russia. They had come to Canada to destroy the state he emphasized.

Sections 98 of the criminal code would not be repealed Mr. Bennett said, "we will continue as far as we can to aid and assist those in need and who honestly want employment," he added. "We expect criticism but we will continue to close on that. We expect the criticism I am not taking any objections. We are doing everything in our power But to those who seek to set at naught and defiance the laws of this country and the whole machinery of justice will be used to sustain the laws."

Laws Represent People.

The laws of the country under democracy represented the will of the people as expressed through their duly elected representatives. But these laws were only was governed, one of the deputies pointed out.

The deputation as a workers economic conference had come to Ottawa meeting before the Imperial Conference had been answered with the "fixed" rule was that the Imperial Conferences did not receive deputations of this kind. They would have to be adhered to at the Ottawa Conference. The spokesman of the deputation was put forward on each subject for "demand," which Prime Minister mildly remarked that perhaps the demand might possibly be changed to "request."

He said that Mr. Bennett said, that the lady member and gentlemen composing the deputation could not help but be aware of the fact that conditions were much worse in other parts of the world than in Canada. The delegation had expressed themselves as being outspoken manner in their demands and criticism personally and otherwise Under Russia's Soviet system and believed the spokesmen of the delegation the same freedom of speech generally. This illustrated the democracy of this country.

N.Y. MARKET IS FATIGUED

Concentration in Copper Group Fails to Attract Following

NEW YORK, August 2. — The stock markets showed signs of fatigue today after three weeks of almost steadily rising prices, and bullish efforts, concentrated in the copper group, failed to attract a following.

The list turned conspicuously weak in the early afternoon, after the red metal group had been subjected to a bombardment since midday. Wall Street was not much disturbed, however, over the weakness of the market, since traders had been inclined to look for a "corrective reaction."

American Telephone, having been up more than a point, showed a loss of a point by early afternoon. Others of one to two included Consolidated Gas, Public Service of N.J., American Can, Atlantic Pe Union Pacific Pennsylvania, Amer. Tel. & Tel., Int. Feathering Oars, Local Oarsman Breaks Both Pivot Swivels on Bay

Dotting the columns of this journal from time to time the past few weeks, have appeared stories of the peculiar nature of denizens of the nearby waters suffering by transgression in their attempts to introduce smaller or larger denizens of the same species to the mysteries of their interior economy, gastronomical speaking. And here is an episode, also nautical, for the business who pursue the gentle art to endeavour to choke down.

One evening last week Archibald Munna, a car inspector of the C.N.R., at the Belleville station, culminating a most successful fishing trip during the Flint closed spell in a skiff The worthy fellower of Izaak Walton and Mr. Merrie England and claims to have, since early childhood, known the deep and her many moods. He has stated that even in babyhood his parents would take him to the wade, and place it in the waves at the water's edge that he might be rocked and lulled by their ebb and flow. In youth and early manhood he was a house in all manner of craft and learned to use his oars as a seaman should. Feathering' his oars became second nature to him whenever he grasped that means of propelling his boat. He had journeyed from the mouth of the coast of England just how much strength and exertion this trick of the wrist served.

On the evening last week (already referred to, before his necessary early history was related) his boat was equipped with straight oars and he was pulling against a heavy head wind. Contemplating the wonders of nature and the C.N.R. station, he had acquired, unconsciously the old habit of feathering, returned to him, and sturdy muscle answering to brain's fervor call, he swung to save the trust with the result that he snapped the fine eighth inch swivel pin of each oar. As others were in craft in the near vicinity, his predicament was not low to the harbour and returned the borrowed boat to the owner. The broken pins however he has, failed to locate, presumably in the water.

And still they claim the spirit of Baron Munchausen is dead.

Berry Picking Party Ends in Long Trail For Missing Woman

Mrs. James McQueen of Kingston, lost for hours in the bush near Kaladar, was found alive and well last night by Provincial Constable Berrett of Napanee, five miles north of Sulphide. She had been wandering for hours. Scores had joined in the search.

Party Exhausted.

A day's motoring trip with his family through the district north of Napanee Monday led to a search for Mrs. Mrs. T. Austin, waterworks manager of this city, to a spot on the shore of the road near Kaladar to be the first to sight the family of Mrs. James McQueen, Kingston, since she became lost in the bush of that district hours before. When he approached the spot the remaining four members of the family were gathered with hours of futile search through the bush, exhausted and discouraged and almost without hope for the recovery of their mother and wife of Mr. McQueen. The party was composed of two daughters, one son and the husband of Mrs. James McQueen, the missing woman who had become lost at ten o'clock this morning. Within then three o'clock in the afternoon. Through the efforts of Mr. Austin, who at once motored to Kaladar to

Right Rev. G. Marshall Arrives Home from Consecration Rites

Right Rererend George Marshall, rector of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church, Belleville, and recently consecrated bishop of the R. E. Church in Canada was welcomed at the Canadian Pacific railway station on Monday afternoon when he arrived at 2.15 o'clock on his return from England where he was consecrated in July to the headship of the church in Canada.

Rev. George S. Buckingham, who has been pastor of the church during the bishop's absence and quite a large number of the members of the congregation were waiting at the depot with Mrs. Marshall the homecoming of the bishop.

Impromptu Welcome.

After handshaking and greetings the bishop and his friends motored to his apartments in St. Agnes Manor and there a brief welcome was given the bishop on his return, honor and responsibility which have been conferred upon him. Bishop Marshall gave an outline of his visit to England, referring particularly to the cordial reception in which the people of that land personified their work. He spoke particularly of the solemnity of the service of consecration. Members of his congregation spoke in a congratulatory strain of his performance of his duties.

Mr. George Dawkins, warden, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. G. S. Buckingham, on his return to Belleville from the absence of Mr. Marshall, the resolution being seconded by Mrs. Reed and Mr. Buckingham modestly responding.

Democratic at Heart

Fresh from the interesting and especially impressive visit to the made to England because of his election to the bishopric of Canada, Bishop Marshall remains democratic to the heart. When a newspaperman asked him today what was the proper term of address to use in speaking to him, and asked "Is the proper form Bishop Marshall?" the bishop replied, "Yes, and it will not hurt me if it is plain Mr. Marshall" The R. E. Church does not address the bishop as "my lord," as in other episcopal churches.

Though he was in England on a holiday, Bishop Marshall had plenty of opportunity to note conditions.

Spirit of Resolve

"How do you find the spirit of the people over there?" he was asked.

"As optimistic as ever can be," was his reply. "I met a number of men who had been out of work in the north ocuntry district for six to eight years and yet they had not lost heart.

Farming Conditions

"Agricultural conditions are not good. There is not much being done on the land. Some English farmers have ceased to grow grain as they cannot compete with other lands, among them Canada. Much of the land has accordingly gone into pasture land and this you know requires few men and so the farm laborer is the sufferer. That is such a thing as depression.

"The explanation is that there is a surplus population that many are not adversely affected by the depression, a great many have large fortunes. A great many, those in high places, have not had reductions in salaries and do not seem greatly affected."

Travel

Speaking of the railway business, Bishop Marshall states that business are making great inroads into the business of motor transport everywhere. He rode from London to Moreton-on-the-Marsh, a distance of between 200 and 300 miles by bus. The new bishop is enough of a traveller to prefer Canadian railway carriages. Bus fares are lower than those on trains. Railway fares are higher than they used to be. While travelling facilities there are fairly good, naturally railway travel here is easy to what it is in the Old Country.

The Dole

"It would not look to describe the dole," said Bishop Marshall. "But it has one notable effect. It tends to make a man, as many people," he said, citing the case of a man who had been on the dole for a while and according to regulations, was off it for a time and joined the army. The boy's father told Mr. Marshall he was

The demonstration was held in the Workers' Economic Conference, now in session here and to which delegates came from all parts of Canada. The delegates to the Conference were forced to run a gauntlet through their arms and singing the Red Flag, gathered in a park near the Conference hall. The police reserves rushed to the scene as speaker after speaker scathed Soviet and exhorted the unemployed to assert their rights.

Police rushed through the crowd, using fists, batons and boots, they dispersed the crowd, arresting many who showed signs of fight.

A crowd of six or seven thousand people milled about the streets. The demonstration originally was scheduled for the market square but police refused permission. From the dull ache from a police billy.

square, the Reds moved toward a park on Sussex street near the Governor General's residence, the crowd moved along too.

Then they stopped their meeting by singing the Red Flag and cheering. The Port Arthur girl then sang "Internationale" and minutes when two police cars roared up the street and the crowd scattered. Another one was holsted up inscribed with "Workers' room fight". It seemed to be a signal.

Charging Crowd

Police poured into the crowd. At first they attempted to move the crowds without force. This failed, so they drew clubs and used them. Reds sank down on the ground and at first refused to budge. Police picked them up bodily and if they let down again, a club was used.

The police turned their attention to the bystanders. They moved along the curbs and also felt the Paul Deschenes is now in hospital at Sweetburg, a bullet wound in the left shoulder and the neck.

Lucien Ralnville was wounded in the face and one hand, but less seriously. He was transferred to the Sweetsburg jail after treatment at the hospital.

Hodge seized a revolver and confronted the two intruders, while his son armed with a .22 calibre revolver went out to the man in the automobile.

Struck on Head

Hodge was struck on the head with a heavy screw driver. He immediately fired, dropped Deschenes with a bullet in the neck and ending the shot, Rainville attempted to enter the house, but Hodge struck him on the head, brought him to a halt.

Search of the automobile later revealed a considerable quantity of cigarettes, tobacco and candy which Hodge claimed were taken from the storeroom before the intruders tried to enter the store.

CIGARETTES LATE HOURS TWO CAUSES

London, Aug. 2—Tuberculosis has taken a heavy toll among the younger womanhood of the country during the past thirty years, which have sent their "emancipation," this is the conclusion of the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. This makers according to Dr. Noel Bardswell, assistant medical officer of the London county council, occurs principally among girls between 15 and 25 years old. Late hours, the spending of money on cinemas and cigarettes, perhaps instead of food, and the generally greater restlessness of young people in search of excitement, are cited by Dr. Bardswell as among the chief contributory factors.

INMATE DIES AT AGE OF 44

Cancer Chief Ailment Indicated by Autopsy

Death as the result of natural causes was the verdict returned by the coroner's jury, Tuesday morning to enquire into the death of Peter Peters, 44, prisoner, who died in the Belleville General Hospital, late Monday night. The man, who had been under sentence of imprisonment since the 7th of July, had since spent the time in the hospital.

Formerly he had been a ward at the Mental Refuge, having been taken there from the township of Pereday, near the village of Bancroft, some time in November. For some time he had stayed at the Home of Refuge but about a month ago absconded and returned to his home. Later he was arrested for vagrancy and returned to Belleville, where he died in the hospital when he complained of his condition. Cancer was the chief ailment, which was discovered by the autopsy. Dr. Bur. Bennett keeps the coroner's jury in his official statement.

The coroner's sub-committee met under the chairmanship of C. H. Thomas, Reeve of Thurlow, and Deputy sub-committee on standardization considered the establishment of a bacon inspection service. Canada Prepares to Make New Offer to Imperial Conference

QUID PRO QUO

Bennett Expected to Make Concession For Concession

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Canada has practically completed her quid pro quo for the Empire Conference.

Through the holiday week-end a cabinet sub-committee worked on statements put forward by R. Hodges, Minister of Finance, has gone through the Canadian tariff, developing special attention to those items in which the British importer is specially interested.

"It will be a real preference," was the comment last night of one close to the government.

Ottawa Camps.

By reason of its procedure, the conference has in a sense divided into two camps — in one, the Dominions meeting together to formulate their needs in the British market; in the other, British equally preparing the same problem is to harmonize the two positions.

Like the Dominions, Britain is now studying the position to see how far she can go to meet the Dominion demands. It seems likely she will eventually turn to a form of three-cornered deal with the highest rates against the foreigners with whom she has no trade treaties, a lower rate for trade treaty negotiations and free entry concession for the item with foreign countries.

Trade Figures.

Delegates Back.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 2.—Delegates to the Empire Conference eagerly await the final decision of Canada's new offer. Back from their week-end by lake and river, they returned today to the grind of committee and sub-committee. They ploughed through the mazes of currency and standardization but their thought was rather of Premier Bennett's next step and what it involves.

Concessions.

Assumption is clearly drawn that Premier Bennett is preparing to make adequate concessions and adequate concession. Rumor particularly points to woollens, textiles, automobiles, iron and steel machinery. But Mr. Bennett keeps his counsel and has given no official statement.

The currency sub-committee met under the chairmanship of C. H. Thomas, Reeve of Thurlow, and Deputy sub-committee on standardization considered the establishment of a bacon inspection service. The purpose of this committee would be to prevent such cases of trichinosis occur because of differences in the standards of inspection and markets of the British Commonwealth. Discussion turned also on the preparation of a uniform code of national standards on which statutory regulations might be saved. No decision was reached.

2 ACCIDENTS OVER WEEKEND

Driver Falls Asleep and Other Crashes Into Building

Two accidents were reported by Traffic Officer Ryles for Belleville district on Highway No. 2, over the week end. Early Sunday morning, Clifford Hall, of Hamilton allegedly fell asleep, while driving his car about one mile east of shannonville. The car crossed to the north side of the road and went into the ditch damaging it to some extent.

The front axle, right front fender and running board were badly damaged. Mr. Hall himself was fortunate enough to escape without any injuries to speak of except being shaken up.

The second accident happened later in the day on Sunday, when a car driven by Miss Annie Callahan of Detroit, Mich., crashed into the building of William Gallagher's gasoline station seven miles west of Belleville on the highway. Miss Callahan, who is a nurse in Detroit was driving eastward, when she decided to stop at the Gallagher gas station to get fuel. The driver turned southward off the highway to pull in alongside the gas pumps. She failed to turn enough and crashed into the building just south of the tanks. The impact of the crash moved the building some six feet towards the southwest. Miss Callahan awaited the arrival of the police and later arranged to make restitution with the owner of the building for the damages entailed.

Suddenly realizing that he was about to take the wrong road and too late to turn onto the highway, Thos. LaPrance of 123 Normandy Road, Toronto, swerved his car completely over into the ditch on the south side on the highway about one half mile east of Shannonville, early Tuesday morning.

Mr. LaPrance was accompanied by his wife and his aunt, Mrs. Mary Ann O'Connor, also of Toronto. Both the ladies were quite badly shaken up and later were rushed to the Belleville General Hospital where it was ascertained that Mrs. O'Connor had been cut quite badly about the head. Mrs. LaPrance also suffered somewhat from the shock but was not injured to any extent.

Mr. LaPrance was proceeding eastward and when he approached the new cut which was made by the highway department just east of Shannonville, he continued to drive his sedan along the old road which leads in front of the Anglican Church in Shannonville. Suddenly the driver realized his mistake and tried to turn his car to the right, the sudden swerve causing the car to turn over in the ditch. The car was found by Traffic Officer Ryles lying on its side in the south ditch, and the occupants were taken to the Belleville Hospital where Dr. J. Adams attended them.

My Dear Mr. Hertly:—Last night I had a big surprise. While sitting at a table playing cards with friends the radio was on and most unexpectedly and suddenly I heard the word "Belleville". My friend said to me, "Say, did you get that?"

I said, "Yes, but there are a good many Belleville in the United States." I suffered somewhat from the shock but was not injured to any extent.

Napanee. He at once attempted to get in touch with other officers of the district of Kaladar and round up some of the settlers to assist in the search. After I had spread the alarm in Kaladar I hurried back to find a few of the nearest settlers engaged in the search.

Stopped to Pick Berries.

"It appeared that the party had stopped their car to pick some huckleberries. Mrs. McQueen saw a child patch a few feet farther away from the rest of the party and she walked in that direction. That is the last the husband and family saw of her. Evidently she had walked in the opposite direction from the road, and while the rest of the family attempted to trace her she had gone farther and farther in the bush evidently quite unconscious of the fact that she was getting back the way she came. By the time the party could get back to the car to blow the horn she had gone so far in the bush she couldn't hear it. Old residents of that district declare that the innumerable hills in that particular section are particularly bad for any one to find their sense of direction in once they have become turned around. Mr. Austin, who stayed with the family until almost dark stated that just before he left the scene dozens of searchers had assembled and were engaged in a well planned search of the district. It was point-the nearest telephone in the general store at Kaladar and notified the provincial police, search parties of police and nearby settlers at once got organized. The search still continued under the direction of Provincial Officer F. W. Barrett of Napanee, assisted by police of the district of Kaladar, and scores of others.

State of Exhaustion.

"We had been wandering along the road from Erinsville to Kaladar when we came on the party," related Mr. Austin. "They were in a pitiable state of exhaustion and worry over their mother, and hours of search through the bush of that district before we had arrived, tired and worn. Even the battery in their car had run down from prolonged use of the horn in attempting to summon it. It was then about three o'clock in the afternoon and Mrs. McQueen had been missing since a little after ten that morning.

"As soon as I found out what the matter was I at once set out for the general store in Kaladar, to the nearest telephone. From there, after nearly an hour's work the storekeeper managed to get in touch with Provincial Officer F. W. Barrett in

Campbell Clan Centennial An Interesting Event

Near Roslin, to Celebrate Centennial—The Call of the Clan Heard From Maine to California

SUNDAY CHURCH SERVICE

Centennial Celebration Begins With Appropriate Church Service in Roslin Presbyterian Church—Dinner Under the Apple Trees at "Woodbine Cottage"—Skirl of the Bagpipes Scotch Songs and Speeches

The Campbells are coming, Abby! Abby! the old mansion house which had stirred the air with thrilling promise o'er many a hill and through many a glen in Scotland in days gone by has had its echo in and around Roslin in Hastings County for weeks past in anticipation of the Centenary gathering of the Campbell Clan set for August 1, 1932. Just one hundred years since the original Campbells came here from Bonnie Scotland to build a new home in a new country.

The Campbells came from far and near and assembled on Monday, August 1, at Woodbine Cottage, near Roslin, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Leslie, the original home of William Campbell and his wife Isabella, when was founded the Campbell Clan in Canada, with a family tree whose branches have spread all over Canada and the United States.

Under a smiling sun the Clan gathered once more around William Campbell for his Canadian home one hundred years ago, and the scene was reminiscent of interesting beyond words. Green fields rich in promise and an abundant harvest stretched away in every direction and the sights and sounds of prosperous farming mingled with the greetings of descendants of the original Campbells as they met, many for the first time to celebrate the centennial of the Campbell Clan in Canada, 1832-1932. Over one hundred descendants of the original Campbell from all parts of Canada and the United States were gathered together on this unique and interesting occasion, some from as far away as California, Minnesota, British Columbia and Connecticut.

Pleasant was the meeting and as greetings were exchanged and identities made known many a tale of the long ago as handed down by fathers and mothers, again went the rounds and the younger members of the clan learned of the folk lore and the hardships and privations endured by their stout-hearted ancestors along the long road leading to eventual home and prosperity. The skirl of the bagpipes provided a truly Scottish atmosphere, while merry laughter rang through the air surcharged with happiness and good fellowship. Woodbine Cottage, home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Leslie, and original home of the first Campbell, was the centre of interest, containing as it does mementoes of early life in Canada dating back over a hundred years to the time when it was constructed of sturdy roughhewn logs and stood to fight and battle against the severe winters of those days. Modernized and remodelled out, the spirit of a century ago is still manifested in the huge open fire place, capable of holding huge logs over three feet in length, and still fitted with its movable metal 'crook' from which a kettle or cooking pot was wont to hang, and lighted by huge slabs of stone this ancient fireplace radiates the sturdy characters of the time. On the mantle piece can be found candle snippers and extinguishers, snuff boxes, nutmeg graters and other collects used in the long ago. About the sitting room can be seen chairs and other furniture, hand-made and still capable of giving good service, although many of these have passed since they were fashioned by clever craftsmen, just outside the Leslie home luxuriant bushes of English woodbine tell the origin of the name of Woodbine Cottage.

Beneath the apple trees in the orchard long tables were set and a splendid dinner served by the ladies in charge, while the bagpipes played by Mr. William McIntosh of Belleville, added to the stirring tunes of Auld Scotia.

Church Service

Fitting was that such God-fearing folk as the Campbells should acknowledge the Divine help and guidance down through the years, and so a specific Church service was held on the Sunday preceding the formal gathering in the old Presbyterian Church, Roslin, which was filled to capacity and most appropriate to the occasion, hymns were sung which were favorites on the occasion, and a sermon eloquent and impressive preached by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Hall, whose text was as follows:

Mr. Hill took his text from Ephesians VI. 2: "Honor thy father and thy mother, which is the first commandment with promise." This second commandment, we say, is for our fathers and mothers of Clan Campbell who first settled in this district. The servant would be successful to the extent that those gathered together were out more firmly resolved that, in their daily living they would so conduct themselves as to reflect honor on their forbears. You, in this service a patriotic duty was being discharged. One of the dangers in a new country even for children of background, the lack of the steadying influences of noble traditions. By reverently calling attention to their early days in their land a valuable service was rendered to the country.

Mr. Hill then reviewed the change in living conditions which a century had brought about, but declared that amid all this flux there were certain qualities which had permanence. Among these was the spiritual power engendered in family life, which was the basis of our civilization. In this connection he noted as a happy circumstance that the original Campbell homestead still remained within the family. A second permanent quality was that of moral stamina which had descended from the first settlers to their children. "It is a race," he said, "for which we should give thanks to be born of honest, God-fearing stock." A third such quality was that of spiritual dependance. Facing life in the raw the pioneer had constant help from God. In evidence of this claim they had founded the congregation in which this service was being held. In the last fifty years the centenary of their arrival their descendants gathered to give thanks to God in the same church was evidence that, like their fathers, they recognized their dependence upon God.

A Bit of History

When the good things provided by the ladies had received ample justice an interesting program was carried out with Dr. W. A. Matheson, of Toronto, acting as chairman, and Miss Pearl Campbell, of Belleville, secretary. Dr. Matheson in a brief address, punctuated with wit and humor, welcomed all present to the Centennial of the Campbell Clan and reviewed the chief events respectable for the gathering. Miss Pearl Campbell read a number of letters and telegrams from members of the Clan at a distance who found it impossible to be present. Not the least interesting part of the programme was the historical sketch presented by Mr. William Moore, historian of the Clan who at seventy-five is still hale and hearty and in appearance not more than fifty, with a memory clear as a bell, and a fund of historical information and historical reminiscences. His recital of the history of the Campbell Clan follows:

Conditions of Scotland 100 years ago were somewhat similar to what they are in our own day. The Napoleonic wars had their aftermath of depression. Lack of employment and poverty led many to emigrate to other lands to improve their conditions and among others our forbears came to Canada. There were two families, William and John Campbell. They hailed from Elgin Morayshire. John was a farmer, a Mr. Rose, an expert farmer and William a stone-mason by trade. John was married to Margaret Faulkner and William to Isabella Mason. William's home was in the little village of Duffis Moray-shire situated on the river Spey.

As the story goes William was crossing a bridge over a small stream, probably the same we have heard someone singing. It was a woman's voice and the most beautiful singing he had almost ever heard. Curiosity led him to investigate and the singer was Isabella Mason. An acquaintance was formed which resulted in their marriage November 1st, 1827. She, Isabella Mason, was of Scottish descent. Her mother, Mrs. Isabella Mason's maiden name was Hardy of Dublin well. Family tradition all along has been that one of this family took command at the battle of Trafalgar after Lord Nelson was fatally wounded, but it is more likely that he was an "Aid" and carried the last orders of Admiral Nelson to the next in authority. One of Mrs. Mason's last words was "Home, my Hardy," showing their intimate relationship.

William sailed for Canada on April 8th, 1831, just after a seven weeks' voyage arrived in Montreal. The following spring, March 31st, 1832, Mrs. Campbell arrived, having Montreal a few weeks before the cholera broke out in that city. William remained in Montreal and worked at his trade there and grandmother and the children came to Hastings County and settled on the homestead, Lot 31, in the 9th concession of Thurlow. Mr. Gilbert Haste, of Lot 30, 8th, was born among the Moira River and Mrs. Latta took them in for a kindly spell of it. Grandmother often spoke of this. Their first dwelling was a log shanty erected by John Campbell who seemingly had been the first to make the venture across the sea. Conditions were none too smooth nor easy in those days. Perhaps they were just as happy and free as we are with all our luxury and modern wonders of steam, electricity, etc. Often they had to cut with torches to frighten away packs of wolves which surrounded the shanty at night. A good dog was a valuable possession in those days. One day Uncle John said he thought the ax would run today. Grandmother asked what he meant and on explanation he got no rest till he made sayings and got things going. It was a great run of sap and sugar and syrup were in abundance to the delight of all.

To William and Isabella Campbell were born eight children, three boys and five girls. Flora, Elizabeth and William before leaving Scotland and John, Isabella, Margaret, Alexander and Ellen in this country. Flora was married to William Leslie, October 4th, 1842; Elizabeth to Alexander Moore, December 4th, 1855, John to Jane Murray, April 4th, 1854, William to Lurinda Elliott, April 8th, 1852, Isabella to James Falconer, January 4th, 1865, Margaret to Samuel Leslie, December 17th, 1862, and Helen to Thos. Stinson, February 16th, 1865. Alexander died young. A tree of the descendants of the family corrected as far as could be ascertained.

Grandfather and grandfather William was familiarly called, settled many of the disputes of the community. In winter court was held in the house and in the summer more frequently in the drive-house. He often sat with the judge at local trials in the court house in the village. He was a man of good judgment and decisions were seldom questioned. He took an active part in public affairs and was one of the committee that laid out the Belleville road from Belleville to Tweed, now the Tweed road. Records of the Masonic Order at Belleville show that he was one of their charter members; he always took a great interest in this society.

Although our forbears had many trials and it is now becoming to be boastful yet the religious life was not neglected. Means for public worship were initiated by the Caledonian, Bible and Paraphrases Societies of Clan Campbell. The community met in the homes on Sunday evening and had service consisting of singing, prayer and reading from the Bible. The Methodists were among the first to hold public services; these were generally attended. As the settlement grew a Sunday school was found necessary and Uncle Sandy Mason donated a site for this purpose. Among the early preachers were a Mr. Hume, Mr. McCauley and Mrs. Campbell's cousin, Rev. Mason the first missionary to the Red River Settlement. He was a carpenter and a preacher's desk made by him is still in the vestry of Roslin Church. Many years after the Campbell home was the home of the circuit preacher, missionaries and they often spoke with affection of the kindness received there. Grandmother was good to the students and ministers and it was the greatest joy in after years to contribute to the support of missions.

As we think of the sturdy character of those pioneers who hewed homes out of the primeval forest and laid the foundations of the institution of our homes and country it becomes us, as their inheritors, to stand them well and in reverent memory lay our tribute of gratitude at their shrine.

In conclusion it is becoming that we return thanks to Almighty God for his kind and providential care and leading all through the years and that we may be worthy of deliverance from this period of distress and anxiety which marks the end as it did the beginning of our centennial.

Speeches and Music

Musical selections and happy speeches marked the program, the part-popular James Blanker, of Belleville, rendering several appropriate Scotch songs, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Amey Loni, a violin solo was rendered by Mr. Loni in a charming manner by Mrs. Will Leslie, of Lowrie, Minnesota.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Blanker moved by William Moore and seconded by Donald Leslie, was carried with enthusiasm.

Brief addresses were made by Mr. Alfred Stinson, of Hartford, Connecticut; Mr. Will Leslie of Lowrie, Minnesota; Capt. William Hunter, of Belleville; Rev. Mr. Hill of Roslin.

Captain Hunter, who has passed his ninetieth birthday, recalled having worked in the fields which spread out beneath the knoll where they were gathered, and how he had left to join the British and help repel the Fenian Raid invaders. He remembered Squire William Campbell, who told him that ever since not he was off to fight for the good Queen Victoria he would not let him go.

After his military duties were over he started in business with a capital saved from wages earned on the farm and was elected forty years in succession, twenty-six of which were spent in Winnipeg. His recollection of early events in an around Roslin were very interesting to his hearers.

Among the visitors from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. William R. Leslie and two children, Margaret and Alexander from Lowrie Minnesota; Mr. and Mrs. David Campbell, two sons and daughter, from Vancouver, B.C.; Mrs. Charles Brunsberg, from Long Beach, California; Mrs. Harry Smith, The Methodista; Mrs. Alfred Stinson, Hartford, Connecticut.

One of the objects of particular interest to the visitors was the old box store brought to the farm nearly a century ago and in use on the day of the gathering. This was adjudged the oldest store in Hastings County. On a counter once owned by a Belleville firm in connection with the Methodist Church firm of stove manufacturers a few years ago. It is still capable of years of service and has been retained on special occasions.

POLICE SEARCH HIDEOUTS FOR THREE KILLERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 30—Over the highways and into the mountains and hide-outs of five states, police standard today for the killers of the three Volpe brothers, slain in a gang war here.

A trio of swarthy men, one about five feet tall, the others six feet, were the object of th unusu which sent state police and highway patrolmen to cross-roads to scrutinize every passing car, constables and county officers into their areas, and Pittsburgh police and detectives into waterfront dives.

PLAINFIELD SCENE OF ACTIVE ROAD WORK

Construction work on the Yonge highway is now in full swing, with activities of scores of men being centred into the section of road near O'Brien's bridge, and at Plainfield, where the road is being widened and straightened to eliminate the sharp curves and turns at both places. Teams, men and mechanical equipment, including a gas locomotive and cars on a small gauge track, which has been laid alongside the road at O'Brien's bridge all head to air of activity to the scene. Near Plainfield men labor in fields of standing grain, cutting the right of way through the coarse land cut by surveyors, while at the bridge, heavy rock in the embankments on both sides are loaded into the busy little miniature freight trains.

So thoroughly explored is the Chicago area that it would be almost impossible to discover a new species of plant there, says a curator of the Field Museum.

Canadian Judiciary Mourns Death of Justice John F. Orde After Lengthy Illness

Sat on Hydro Probe But Did Not Give Decision

Toronto, Aug. 2.—(By The Canadian Press)—Canada's judiciary today was bereaved of one of its most popular members in the death of Hon. John Fawcett Orde, Justice of the Court of Appeal in the Supreme Court of Ontario, who died at his home here last night. He was in his 82nd year.

His Lordship succumbed to an illness with which he had been afflicted for the past month. Only an extraordinary stamina, coupled with a dogged determination to resist his sickness, enabled him to leave out the bed as long as he did.

Mr. Justice Orde had in June completed his arduous duties of Royal Commissioner enquiring into the charges of the late John Gillies and Ann Waters; her husband, the late William Loni predeceased her some years ago. Mrs. Loni was a member of the Centre United Church and for years was a faithful adherent of that body. To those left to mourn the loss of an aged and highly esteemed resident of the county is extended the sincere sympathy of the countryside.

Mr. Hale, drowned, the body being swollen from long immersion. No signs of violence appeared on the body and it was presumed that he had fallen into the creek after becoming separated from his companions. An inquest will be held. Meanwhile the body brought to close a mountain mystery in which after searchers found themselves baffled, all sorts of rumors spread like wildfire. Hints of four play and even of murder were freely whispered and circulated. Those who found the body hurriedly stated a belief that an autopsy would reveal a simple drowning.

Search parties spurred on by promise of a reward made by Premier Taschereau of $1,000 and augmented by a like amount by Aluminum Company of Canada, numbered as high as 145 men.

George Spaulding Hale was born in Smithport England in 1886 and obtained his mechanical training in that city and Darwin England. He came to Canada in 1910, associating himself with the motor industry in Belleville and Toronto, joining the Ford Company in 1914, entering the Toronto plant as a mechanic. DANGER OF STANDARDIZATION

Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, speaking in Riverside Baptist Church, New York City on Sunday, claimed that the moral danger of this age lies not in independence but in standardization. "We run like sheep from one fad to another. We are mis-minded. We are played upon by agencies that encourage conformity, seeing the same movies, reading the same papers, surrendering to the same salesmanship. We are in danger of becoming a society of moral rubber stamps. We yes-yes nearly everything that comes along, so that few things are more needed, both for outself-respect and for our social welfare, than the recovery of a healthy moral independence."

Desire for wealth, worship of success and love of ease are the three bandits of the beauty and fineness of life. These factors steal away repose and spiritual life, said Rev. W. F. Whitney at the Metropolitan Methodist Temple, New York. These things make heart bandits and they attack the inner life. Preacher, layman, banker, merchant, all have had enter the heart this desire for money. The success of this type of life, particularly since such great numbers of men have been unemployed for so long, living on the charity of others, is now a great problem as desire for wealth and love of success.

BIRD SANCTUARY

Brockville Recorder and Times has noted the plan of Walker Havelock Robb, naturalist, poet and lecturer, claiming that if a bird sanctuary could be established in every county in Ontario, the province will become a mecca for an increase in the bird population, citing the case of "Abbey Dawn" at Kingston. The Recorder and Times urges a sanctuary for Leeds, and says "There ought to be enough public interest in this question to bring about the establishment of one or more bird sanctuaries in that part of the province so that something may be done for the protection of bird life."

Bird-lovers will hope to see these hopes fulfilled.

A revival of interest in the sanctuary at Belleville would not be amiss inasmuch as one man is now trying to carry the burden by himself. Walter Turner, president of the local branch has done much for the bird life of these parts and ought to have the co-operation of hundreds of citizens.

SHEEP PAY TOLL

Ten thousand sheep from Normandy have been butchered to make the costliest set of books ever issued, one hundred sets of Homer's Odyssey in four volumes, entirely printed and bound in vellum. Three thousand sheep and 'we go into the first two books while ten thousand more sheep are still grazing whose hides will go into volumes three and four. Then the slaughter will be staged next spring. To secure vellum of the same thickness and color, sheep of the same great flocks are being reared and killed at the same age.

Homer was the poet of one of the greatest ages in all poetry and in actual history—a pastoral age, a warlike age, and an age of adventure. His pictures of the earlier days are painted with a master hand and sheep and cattle are noted in the story of the Iliad and Odyssey his two great works the Iliad and Odyssey again and again. Vellum was the old material of manuscripts.

Graduates of colleges still receive their diplomas of parchment. In reality, the skin of sheep, goat, pig, or calf is called parchment when prepared for writing upon. When the skin is treated of its hair or wool, it is placed for some time in a lime-pit, and then stretched upon a square wooden frame drawn tight by pegs. When the flesh is first scraped on the flesh side with a blunt iron, then wetted with a moist rag, covered with pounded chalk and rubbed well with pumice stone. After a short pause these operations are repeated, but without chalk. The skin is then turned and scraped on the hair side once only. The flesh side is scraped once more, and again rubbed over with chalk. All this is done by the tanner, who allows the skin to dry in the frame, and then cuts it out and sends it to the parchment-maker, who repeats the operations with sharper tools.

Such labor indicates how costly such a set will be as this new Homer.

VACATIONAL STUDY

What can be done in the way of vacation instruction in the best of all literature not only as literature but as the greatest guide in life, the Bible, is indicated in the remarkable success of the Daily Vacational Bible School in Belleville this summer. Rev. George S. Buckingham of Ottawa, an official of the Dominion organization is the energetic person to whom goes the credit for the organization of the young of Belleville into half a dozen schools. Some years ago Mr. Buckingham while in Belleville launched the organization with great success and his return to Belleville for a few weeks this summer to fill the pulpit of Emmanuel reformed Episcopal Church during the absence from the city of the rector, Rev. George Marshall, in England for consecration as bishop, was seized upon by a number of teachers and Sunday school workers to extend the organization. Though Mr. Buckingham's stay here is drawing to a close the schools will go on for three weeks yet and next year promises still further extension of this work among children.

The result of the work will be felt in Belleville for many years and in the individual life of the scholars.

GIFT UNFORGOTTEN
By Aline Michaelis

She had a lovely, elfin grace.
A smile that could all doubt disarm,
And she was sweet and fair of face,
With woodland lure and pixie charm.

Her suitors brought her pearls and jade
Rare books, and carvings quaintly made;
But one brought just a roundelay.

He brought a little song, which told
The April wonders of her eyes,
Her smile's swift magic to unfold
The gates that lead to Paradise.

The pageant of the years went by;
Her pearls and jade were toys outgrown
With that bright, magnetic witchery
That those who loved her well had known.

She now forgets all other things
Which once her suitors joyed to give;
But in her heart his song still sings
There, still, the muted treasures live!

DENMARK SENT TWO NEWSPAPER-MEN to the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa to watch closely the trend of events. Denmark finds her best market in Britain for bacon and butter. One Dane's dred million dollars a year. Denmark's agent he bill for bacon for John Bull; another seventy million for butter, and twenty million for eggs. Literally Denmark is interested in this Trade Within the Empire movement. One prominent business man of Denmark stated that rather than lose the English market Denmark would apply for admission as one of the Dominions in the British Empire. STANLEY BALDWIN and other British dignitaries at the Imperial Conference in Ottawa are allowed $25 per day for personal expenses and that may be the reason why they have been presented with free liquor permits, for I'm sure would spoil a day's expense sheet to have to spend two dollars for a permit. Leaves them hardly enough to buy a bottle of Canada rye a day. But what a lesson to junketing politicians—$2.50 a day for personal expenses —doesn't leave any margin for tips, or tipsy's either.

THREE BILLIONS FROM INSURANCE

Three billion dollars is a sum of money which is beyond the power of imagination to grasp. It is more than the gross revenue of all American railways in a good year, and well up to the total revenues of the United States automobile business in a good year. It is less than the amount which life insurance policyholders and beneficiaries in the United States and Canada received last year in insurance payments and funds. According to the National Underwriter, Chicago, the exact amount so paid in 1931 was $3,346,940,323.

Of this huge amount, death claims matured endowments, annuities and additional accidental death benefits totalled $1,316,337,731. Payments on premium savings and cash surrender values totalled $1,025,515,346, making a total of $2,905,853,078. This is an increase of 10 per cent. over the 1930 total, and an increase of 15 per cent. in five years. Policyholders received $643,-096,262 additional in policy loans in 1931, bringing the total to $3,548,-949,342 additional in policy loans in 1931, bringing the total to $3,548,949,342 additional in policy loans and loans to more than three billions and a half.

Life insurance serves all classes of people, and virtually every one is in not the large death payments which account for the huge aggregate. Death claims amounting to $30,000 or more totalled 437, and accounted for only $46,453,000 of the $1,316,337,731 total, or slightly more than 15 per cent. The life insurance company with claim paid in Canada in 1931 was on the life of Thomas T. Law of Renfrew, amounting to $586,397. The second was on the life of a resident of Vermont, the amount being withheld, for $280,000. In London there were two claims of $100,000 each paid. Angus McLean, of Bathurst, N.B., was insured for $100,000 and George W. Hemlewood, Toronto, for $111,000. The largest endowment claim name not given, was for $84,585.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

SUNSHINE IN WORDS

Did you ever notice a dog on a chilly day put his nose in your hand? If there's one in a room he'll find it, for he believes in using what sunshine there is. A lot of folks all us have a dog would do well to use the same kind of philosophy.

A pasaale, New Jersey man tells the Rotarians that he has never found the sunshine he needed by manufacturing it. Sunshine, he says, feels blus or depressed he writes down all the bad and sad and useless words that he can think of, and their suggestion is so strong that his spirit is reached and he acquires new courage with which to meet his problems. Here is a few of them:

Cheerful, smiling, joyful, buoyant animated, inspired, sprightly, jaunty, lively, happy, blissful, pluoky, vivacious, brisk, glorious, hilarious, enchanted, indomitable, exulting, jubilant, elated, blithesome, playful, confident, sportive, gay, merry, chivalrous, cordial, spirited, jovial, sympathetic, mirthful, captivated, inspiring, delighted, entertaining, transported.

No man is happy who does not think himself so, said an old Greek philosopher, and no one who is happy when thinking constantly of his troubles, his misfortunes, real and hard times. Why not go over the cherry list a few times and get in a sunny spot for a change?—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

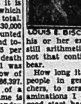
THE AUTOGRAPH "BUG" AT OTTAWA.

A report from Ottawa says that autograph hunters are numerous at the parliament buildings where the Imperial Conference is in session. The seekers of signatures lurk behind pillars ready to dash forward whose signature they desire appears in the offing they pounce on him and insist upon having the pen and flame in their books. To these people that is the big thing about the conference. Others may tremble as to the outcome, others may be writing it rises or falls by the number of autographs they can obtain. Others gaining the signatures of the great and the near great is a harmless hobby that many people find a great pleasure to those who are animated by the craze. It does not cost the donor anything except the energy to write his name. The autograph hunter usually supplies the pen and the ink.

Collectors live in a world of their own. Whether it is stamps, birds' eggs, autographs, postcards or photographs the accumulation is the thing. Appreciation is the mental satisfaction in these hobbies and perhaps justifies the enthusiasm of those who pursue them.—Call Reporter.



COMING CAR.

The automobiles of the future will look more and more like one another, we are told in an informative article by Mr. T. R. Elliott in Maclean's Magazine. Streamlining will comprise the close observer of this year's models, for a tendency to that effect is already apparent. However, there will be still a distinct difference between the makes of the different species—in materials, appointments or power—their appearance will conform to the streamlining. They will adopt, Mr. Elliott says, a shape very much like that of a teardrop resting down the cheek. It is the shape of the raindrop, the bird and the fish. Man, having experimented, has found that nature was right, after all. The great advantage of the teardrop shape is in the saving of power. It seems that at 50 miles an hour the teardrop uses about ten horse power as against the 30 used by the ordinary sedan. It means a saving not only in gasoline but in engine consumption. Automobiles should tend to become cheaper and more economical to operate. There are other improvements along the highway that lead to the "perfect" car. One of them is expected to be the super-balloon tire. Others have to do with materials, lubrication and engine design. But the last word in automobiles has not yet been uttered. The industry has an interesting future.—Hamilton Spectator.

DO NOT WORRY OVER RECORDS OVER EXAMS

Expert Says Time Has Come to Scrap Such Tests

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

LOUIS E. BISCH

Many parents are still worrying over the school grades made by one or more of their children. Either the child failed or did not do during the past spring term, or he didn't do as well as he expected, or if he

How long it is going to take for people in general, including teachers, to scrap all tests and examinations I do not know, but a good start has already been made. Nevertheless, the underlying principles underlying pedagogics now are almost identical. Only more than examinations are not a fair indicator of a child's ability, still less his general intelligence, but they are learning all they can from them and accept them to help the pupil to end, and make it easy for the teacher.

If we mark anything at all, we should mark in the classroom the daily displays, the interest he shows, even if the results are not so brilliant!

Most of what we cram into our minds through tests is quickly forgotten, anyway. Knowledge and facts are not the only stuff of knowledge should always be related to something. Facts are like sticks and means something, for it has practical, definite and tangible use.

The child that does well in school or in the classroom is not necessarily the bright child. He may be a plodder. Intelligence is the child's ability actually to think. He may think only in the classroom, preferring to pursue his own thinking and along more practical lines.

That the average system of education is not based on psychology or genius there can be no question. Strictly it is based on the memory and indicates mental possibilities. The chief trouble is that the child is not considered as an individual; not studied intensively as to his capacities and how he differs from every other such child. He is forever graded according to age and sex. First, however, he is graded according to more or less theoretical grounds; next and that's the finish!—The child is forced to conform to these standards.

Another pernicious practice is the competitive system—the custom of pitting one child against another, one or more children as models, which decrying a few others as dunces.

This either discourages a child or makes him resentful. It always does what the teachers hope—that is build with a healthy ambition to excel.

We do not try enough to find out what our children actually think and feel. What they say and do do not as a rule interest us, may, indeed, be most misleading. It is the things that they cannot say—the disappointments, fears, self-accusations and the like which they never even mention.

We want our youngsters to be full of energy, we want them to try to do their best. The way to encourage them is to help them grow up to ridicule, or make invidious comparisons with other pupils who get a lot of A's right along. The way to get the best out of a child is to get him interested in his work, and the quickest method of interesting him is to link the school work with life problems outside the classroom.

So, if you have a child, who does not bring home high marks, consider him as an individual first. May there not be something radically wrong with his schooling, rather than with the child himself?

20 YEARS AGO
August 2, 1912.

At a meeting of the Wharf Street Debating Club in their club rooms at the foot of Wharf Street last night, great indignation was expressed by the members present when the chairman of the committee appointed to interview the gentleman in charge of the city to clean the city crossings, reported that the official had absolutely and emphatically refused to keep clean the cross ing opposite to the Ferry house A lively discussion took place regarding what action should be taken and it was finally decided that if the crossing in question is not kept clean in future, Foster Ward accede from the city and run its own affairs. In Foster ward, it was said by the members, we have the smartest men, the largest manufacturing concerns, and the shipping and that this being the case the residents of the ward need not ever look to the city fathers do do. As to the number of the Belleville Yacht Co. by law, which is to be voted upon shortly, it was the unanimous opinion that as the proposed plant of the company will be situated in the ward, the rest of the city should be left to vote on the question and that only the ratepayers in Foster ward should have any say. No immediate action in the matter will be taken. The city council will be given another chance to do the right thing and the feeling was expressed that the city fathers will do so.

SOME PREFER THE MOVIES

There is a generation of young people in town that Grand Opera has never become a cherished form of recreation. The children whose parents gave them movie money have grown up to like movies. As they grew up they continued to find the glamour and illusion on the screen which a earlier generation sought in the theatre.

Many professional and other professional people have felt sure that this is the case. Proof is offered in part of the study of Westchester theatre and cinema patrons being made by the County Recreation Committee. It is the general survey revealing numerous interesting facts about the recreational activities of the residents. The point about the theatre is that there is a large group, almost 50 per cent that never goes to the theatre and does not care to.

It was thought that many would go to the theatre if they had enough money or the opportunity. The question, directed to those who said they were unaccustomed to patronizing theatres, asked if they would go if their yearly income were increased by $1,000. Only a tenth of those movie patrons said they would. The County Recreation Survey Plans is now offering Broadway plays at movie prices. This should help to educate those indifferent to the theatre in form of entertainment which will give variety to their leisure hours.—New York Times.

VOICES OF THE EARTH

We have not heard the music of the spheres
The song of star to star, but there is more
More deep than human joys and human fears
That Nature uses in her common rounds.
The fall of streams, the cry of winds, that strain
The oak, the moaning of the sea's surge, might
Of thunder mocking afar off, or rain
That falls by minutes in the summer night.
These are the voices of earth's secret soul
Uttering the mystery from which she came
To her has been them grief be-yond control
Or joy inscrutable without a name.

PAYING for a house is usually a long-drawn-out process. What may be an asset for you can easily become a liability for your family; should you die. You can arrange to pay off the mortgage by means of a Londen Mortgage Policy—term premium for which is exceedingly small, possibly not more than 1% added to the rate of interest on your mortgage.

The outstanding lesson taught by to-day's conditions is to play safe.

MADOC WINS FROM TWEED

Score 9-7 Win, Bringing Baseball Back to Popularity in North

Tweed, Aug. 2 (Special)—Madoc furnished the opposition for Tweed on Wednesday at the Exhibition Park in a baseball game, winning the decision by a score of 9-7. Through the efforts of Chas. Clark and others, who regretted to see the national pastime thrown into the discard, an attempt is being made to revive the game in Tweed and give the town a place on the baseball map that she used to have a few years ago in the days of Robt. Elliott, Bert Houston, Clark Brown, H. Wager and others.

Considering the fact that the players have played only three or four games this year and are not affiliated with any league they are serving up a smart brand of ball. Callaghan pitched good enough ball to win the majority of games but slipped in the first innings permitted the opponents to score five runs. Barker pitching for Madoc was invincible after the fourth innings and held off all Tweed's efforts to register a win.

Win Six of Seven Events From Campbellford

Tweed, Aug. 2 (Special)— The members of Tweed tennis club are playing at the top of their form now, as witness their success in the last tennis match in Campbellford on July 27th in which they won six of the twelve scheduled events. The other event was that by W. McGee who was forced to default his match to H. Free following an injury sustained in the match he was leading at the time 4—2. Time was when Tweed considered themselves fortunate if they forced their Campbellford opponents to the limit of three sets to win an event, Campbellford's play has not suffered with the passing of time. They are playing better than ever, but the Tweed exponents of the game are playing the best tennis of their careers.

B. Rollins defeated C. Weston 6—2, 7—5.

W. McGee lost to H. Free 1—6, 4—2 (defaulted).

CAPTURES 18 POUND LUNGE

George A. Reid of Belleville Makes Third Catch of Season

Ex-Mayor George A. Reid, summering at Moira Lake, concluded a month's summering on Monday with the best piece of fishing of the year as far as he was concerned when he struck an eighteen pound muskinonge, this being the third of this species of fish he has caught this summer.

He was out trolling with Percy Naylor of Madoc, and was using an ordinary line, really two lines tied together when he made the strike in front of Cottage Cove on Watson's Beach. The landing of the fish was watched with interest as it put up a stubborn scrap. Mr. Reid naturally thinks this the crowning event of his fishing season coming as it did on the last day he was at the resort, he and Mrs. Reid having returned last evening to their home on Queen Street.

Speaking of the capture of the seventeen pound lunge made in the Trent River by Captain C. W. Browne, Mr. Reid jocularly remarked of the fish "I did not have to call the 46th Battalion to help me land it."

The proof of the weight of the lunge is given by Mr. J. D. Bankier and William Colling of this city, who weighed it.

Miss Jean Holland spent a week, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Reid at the cottage. Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Anderson were guests recently for a few days at the cottage and Mr. and Mrs. T. Sullivan spent a day at Mr. and Mrs. Reid's cottage.

GOOD PROGRESS MADE ON MADOC HIGHWAY

Good progress on the construction of the Madoc highway has been reported this week the top is being put on part of the completed road running north some distance from Foxboro, while below that point the sub grade has been excavated and waits the filling of gravel and crushed stone, which is being drawn from the nearby crusher. Road widening for some distance has also been completed. In order to facilitate the work a detour of Madoc traffic at this point has been necessary along a concession road a mile or so on the Stirling highway, west of Foxboro.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Believe it or not the Belleville Nationals sure had a hectic weekend. They staged a wonderful ninth innings rally to romp home ahead of the Peterboro seniors on Saturday at James Stenson Park and then ran into "old lady bad luck" again to lose a tough game to the league leading Parties by the score of 7 to 3 on Monday morning. The score in Peterboro was 4 to 0 for the Petes going into the ninth. The Caregreens put on their batting togs and socked the opposite high up and far away for seven runs in their half of the ninth while the Petes came home scoreless one run and had the tying runs on the paths when the final out was made by the locals. Alex Weir was on the hilltop on Saturday and hurled stand-out ball throughout. He was opposed by Ernie Holmes, who simply lashed the local hitters to the mast for eight innings. Holmes weakened in the later few innings and the local swat-smiths pounced on his offerings in the last minute of play. He was relieved by Russ Kitchen. Poor management on the part of the Petes was quite in evidence when the ballgame went up. A good manager would have never pulled the ace of his mound staff in Peter-"Merkin" that was sent in Peterboro on Saturday. It is O.K. to yank a pitcher we admit, but why pull a catcher who knows the opposing batters? Umpire Ken Colling roused the ire of the Petes fans in the last half of the ninth when he called Red Hollingsworth out at third base on a close play.

Dumb baseball on the part of the young Nationals was quite in evidence on Monday morning when they took the short end of a 7 to 3 score from the Kingston Frontenacs. Of course the loss of Feeney Mills did not help the morale of the locals to any great extent. Bob Greer, the Wellington Junior, who filled Mills' shoes was in no way to blame for the loss. On the other hand he completely out-played some of the older members of the team, defensively. Johnny Pelster also hurled excellent ball and no doubt if the loss could be laid to his door. When Oliver threw Bert Vince out at second base in the initial inning, he gathered the respect of not only the visiting team but all present in the park. The Petes did not try any wild base running after that. Mickey Cochrane was the target of many an out-burst of feeling on Sheridan on the holiday. When he committed two errors and struck out three times the local fans sure gave vent to their feelings. The unfortunate affair that followed Jake Quinn's removal from the game was most regrettable. The person responsible for such actions should remember that ball players the calibre of Quinn are gentlemen. This especially can be said of Jake Quinn. There was no need of any disrespectful remarks towards Quinn. The boy had a badly dislocated or sprained shoulder. On the other hand we are glad to say that the Belleville fans kept on their own side of the fence and never crowded around the Kingston dug-out. That is one feature that is not allowed in the local ball park.

When Knotty Lee throws his All Canada's hopes Percy Williams against the Miami Beach girl's on Wednesday evening at the Fair Grounds the Canucks will be facing the world's champion women's baseball club. The Miami girls have played not only in United States and Canada, but in China, Japan, Cuba and Mexico. Edith "Babe" Roth, who plays first base for the Miami club, is credited with being a small edition of the "Mighty Babe himself" as she has been known to hit two circuit clouts in one game. Phyllis Zagerska the team's catcher is another feature to add to their roster. Their pitcher is credited with having struck out Babe Ruth some months ago. Knotty Lee will either start "Steamer" Lucas or Yarnell, late of the Toronto Maple Leafs, against the girls. The girls are all American born.

Canada's hopes Percy Williams and Bert Pearson fell by the wayside when Eddie Tolan of the United States and Ralph Metcalfe of the same country, ran one, two in the 100 metres at the Olympic games yesterday. There is one consolation to it all though and it came when Canada's flag was one of the first to be raised at the Stadium. Harold McNaughton of Vancouver was the winner of one of the first events in the 1932 games when he won the running high jump for the land of the Maple. The Canucks will be heard of plenty more before the games are over.

SIX YEAR OLD BOUNCED BACK IS UNINJURED

Montreal, July 30 (CP)—David Bloom, six, today is being offered prizes by his chums to display his India rubber qualities, following his feat of falling from a second-storey window on to a cement pavement without injury.

David, while trying to climb from the second-storey window to the roof of his home, lost his balance and fell. David quietly got up and went in to tell his mother about it. Taken to a nearby physician David was found to be unharmed.

A new TYPE and KIND of Automobile

Two brothers named Wright flew a power-kite off the bleak sands of Kitty Hawk, and gave to the world the airplane. Genius and daring, seeking new thrills, added hulls and keels to winged motors—and gave us hydroplane.

Today, the earthbound automobile takes on phantom wings —and you have the TERRAPLANE!

Not only a new model but a new kind of automobile, it springs full-powered from the independent, daring, Hudson-Essex engineering that has contributed more than 60 "first's" to automotive progress.

Because it skims the roadways of old terra firma with a fresh, smooth, soaring action akin to flight, Amelia Earhart christened it the TERRAPLANE.

Its new engineering principle is pneumounted power—power set free—with the highest ratio of power to weight ever achieved in a production car here or abroad. Its unit body-and-chassis construction is the first achievement of complete structural entity in any car.

In performance it out-starts, out-climbs, out-runs, out-curves and out-stays cars three times its weight and ten times its price.

Beauty.....

BY HELEN JAMIESON

Courage is a Quality of Beauty

Those have been tough times, my hearties. Maybe you know it. Those days in the schoolbook looks sick and miserable, and whereas a fat roll of bills once rectified just about any situation, there was no plenty of room for quarters and dollars. Things have happened to those pretty certificates, which one enlarged paper fragments called coupons and for which the man in the bank handed out the money, with a friendship change. Woe and lamentations!

Yes. But the bolden hasn't fallen flip of the world. Not at all. Old world wagging on just the same. And these tough years have revealed women as they are. Whiners or workers. Quitters or world conquerors. Ugly or beautiful, according to the measurement of the spirit.

Hard times have shown up those chiffony "I want" babies. Howling because they couldn't have this or that. As if in the long run, the full span of human existence, things mean so terribly much. Does a woman, when she's old, remember an expensive frock or the fur coat that put the family budget on the blink? Naw. She remembers the pressure of a hand. A word whispered. Maybe, just a moment of silence, a moment of beauty that warmed her heart.

A lot of us had had everything was little or nothing. "I find," says she, "that I'm just as happy with three frocks as I used to be with thirty. I'm just as happy hooking it to the job as I was motoring to the bridge party. This readjustment is good for us. I'm learning. Learning good for me. Before, I only knew how to load. And I didn't do that with any success."

GRIGGS—LANCASTER

The home of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Lancaster, Dalcroft, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday 27th., July 1932. The occasion was the marriage of their elder daughter, Florence Marion to Mr. Albert Thomas Griggs, son of the late Joseph and Mrs. May Griggs of Edmonton, Eng. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. J. M. Paterson in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. At seven o'clock the bride entered the room and was given away by her father. She was gowned in white ensemble and wore the traditional orange blossom and veil. Miss Mabel of Trenton, a cousin, was bridesmaid, and she was gowned similar to the bride in powder blue. Mr. Windsor Fraser of Bancroft, was groomsman. The bride's mother looked quite modern in her wedding gown of blue.

The groom's gift to the bride was a blue calf leather bag; to the bridesmaid, Cruden's Concordance; and the groomsman, sterling silver cuff links. Many useful and valuable gifts were presented the bride and groom, as befits the rite of the wedding.

After a buffet lunch the guests sang verses one and two of "Heat be the tie that binds" and began to depart.

The following were present from a distance:—Mrs. Trenton, the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Payne and Miss Minnie Payne; From Tweed, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Payne; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Payne; Mrs. Harry Mullett, Carman and Thelma; Mrs. Stella Reid and Miss Mary F. Geary, who played the piano, Mrs. Ida Lancaster, Mrs. and Mrs. Ashton; From Moira, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mullett and from Toronto, Mrs. Ethel Lancaster.

But before his joke becomes known as a nik-wit statement much alarm has been caused, and depositors worried, and rightly so.

In all states there are heavy penalties for the man who is responsible for any statement that starts a run on a bank.

And the law should not be tempered with mercy.

A Warm Greeting

Ever notice what a difference there is in the greeting that often fervent people give their guests?

It's a joy to visit a home where hearty welcome and with give the indications of being pleased by your visit, where they can meet you with genuine smiles of happiness to see you.

How different from homes where poise regulates each word and movement and the welcome is stiff but decorous.

There is a great thing in its rightful place.

It will easily be overdone in ordinary social cOntacts between guests and hostesses.

But it is best in an assumed attitude, adopted for effect.

It is not the result of a well-regulated, disciplined mind.

It is the kind spontaneous welcome—which is the sort of welcome that warms the heart and makes friendships lasting.

The veneer of many persons who have been hitherto too well filled with success and the world's good things to be interested welcome to old friends has been cracked.

Proud natures have had setbacks that will last in reaction. Over and above exclusive their friends with whom they have been associated in friendship.

Because a thing of such a serious nature has died it will be repeated again and again with resultant financial disaster.

Then when the date is looked up it will be found that the date mentioned is a Sunday or a holiday and of course the bank is closed.

Such a joker should be jailed.

It could seem like a joke to the more thoughtless.

Then there is the "charity who starts the rumor that the So-and-So bank is closing its doors.

Advice to the Lovelorn

WANTS AN INTRODUCTION

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a girl who lives on the same street with me, and I like her very much, but I have never met her often. Would it seem bold if I spoke to her? Please let me know anyone who could introduce us?

Guy.

Now, my dear Guy, young people who speak on the street without introduction are frowned upon. Therefore you should wait until you are open to the charge of "picking up" a girl. Perhaps you could manage that. If you use your imagination and ingenuity, I'm sure you can arrange acquaintance with your lady friend out where church she attends, or at the young people's meeting. Some one in charge could be able to introduce you. You can really become acquainted properly if you use your head.

SUNDAY DAY AT HOME

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Recently a girl on my sister-in-law asked you about a Sunday night supper to be served on the porch. You sent her a very good bill of fare, which was good and extremely reasonable. Now, I'm one of the meantime, I've married and I have to do a little entertaining my wedding party and a few guests. Could you give me the same bill of fare and oblige.

A Bride

Delighted to help out in the way of suggestions for your Sunday night party. I don't seem to recall the exact bill of fare I sent to your sister-in-law, but if you send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope, I'll do my best for you. I've many other good suggestions for little entertainments that I'll gladly share.

pleased he had joined because the dole was having its effect on the youth, who, though constantly industrious, had come to the stage where he did not like work because people have grown to like living on this form of charity.

"This could the country have got along without it?" the reporter asked. "England would have been better along without some form of relief, that is clear," said Mr. Marshall. There are upwards of two million people getting the dole. It is so big and inflnite that a question that it seems no party will scarcely dare to touch it, he believed.

State of Church

Asked as to the state of the Free Church of England, the bishop said it was in very satisfactory condition. There are three dioceses in England, Northern, Central and Southern, and each has a bishop in the care of Bishop Vaughan, who is the bishop in next London, who is the primus or primate of the R. E. Church of England and Canada. He has been acting head of the church in Canada from the time of the consecration of Dr. Irwine as Bishop and the consecration of Bishop Marshall.

Some congregational churches in England are using the "pounding" of pipe evening frocks. A new and lovely model is of pale pink romain with a garland of deeper pink gardenias and leaves at the bottom of front and extending into shoulder straps.

Many small Furbelows mark many of the organdie evening frocks being worn this season. A pale pink frock has the skirt made entirely of tiny flat frills, each one with a scallopped edge. The long matching cape similarly frilled. The cape and skirt are lined with white and the skirt is red.

Patrics and between afternoon fashions and full evening frocks are those delightful ensembles that are so popular for summer engagements. Ready for next Autumn is a lovely model of black velvet. The skirt is simply made with folds at each side. There is a short cape effect formed of folds of the fabric, each fold heavily embroidered all over with jet.

Just a touch of violets with white is lovely on a frock of white. The crepe has armhole bands of violet velvet and the long matching cape is bordered with the ostrich. too.

Then the Scripture lesson was given by Mrs. Thompson, followed by prayer by Mrs. Hollinger. Roll call was given, each member answering to her name by contributing or taking the key-word "Praise."

Hymn No. 6 was sung with Mrs. George Foster acting as pianist. The Watch Tower was conducted by Mrs. Hollinger. Mrs. Lee, the subject of the ladies taking part which proved very interesting to the meeting closed by singing and prayer.

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Alden)

It would be sad if lace would be relegated to the background but this is not likely to happen. A new and lovely evening frock is of black lace in a chantilly pattern posed over a slip of gold and rose-colored satin. Matching shoes are worn.

Jewelled clips in medals at night for this style shoe is still extreme-ly popular. With a black dress one woman wears a charming medal of diamonds set with reds and straps of silver kid.

Pink clouds are visible on evening frocks, with the popularity of pink evening frocks. A new and lovely model is of pink point romain with a garland of deeper pink gardenias and leaves at the bottom of front and extending into shoulder straps.

STOCKS STAY AT OLD LEVEL

Tuesday's Trading Very Limited on Toronto Board

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Prices failed to vary very far from the level of Saturday's closing on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. As the opening the list marked time waiting to see what Wall street intended to do and when prices sold off and firmed in New York there was to be noticed a slight degree in local securities. Around noon the price level was practically unchanged from the previous session. Trading was moderate and inclined to broaden out.

International Nickel was the leader by a small margin with a gain of ¼ to sell above 8. C.P.R. and Pond of Canada were almost stationary as were Dominion Stores and Loblaw. Brazilian Traction gained fractionally and the oils held steady.

Bank shares were firm and inclined to sell lighter.

WINS PRIZE IN COACH CONTEST

Boys from all parts of Ontario competed in the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild $75,000 contest. Inaugurated some months ago under the auspices of General Motors. A miniature of the royal coach of Napoleon, Emperor of France, was the model and some very fine reproductions were made. Prizes were presented in Toronto Friday evening by Mayor Stewart of that city. John Raymond Lill, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lill of Corbyville, won junior second miniature craft and junior second Trimcraft with a beautiful coach upon which he worked five months and two weeks. Over 1,000 boys and youths in this section worked some time on miniature coach models but few finished in time for the judging.

CHILDREN ENJOY HOLIDAY OUTING

Fifty merry children enjoyed the annual Sunday school picnic of the Alligator Methodist church yesterday afternoon. The scholars were taken to a pretty place on the Moira River early in the morning and had a delightful outing for the day. A program of sports and games was enthusiastically carried out and prizes were awarded to the winners. Ice cream was provided the children who had their lunch in the open. The pastor, Rev. W. M. Willoughby, and the superintendent of the Sunday school, Mr. Veley, were in charge of arrangements for the successful affair.

See the Big Show

. . . now going on

As you read these lines, the Big Show has already begun. It's a new bill every day—right here, in your favorite newspaper. Make yourself comfortable, and turn the pages.

You'll find it a sparkling review—full of movement, and life, and interest and news. News of the world of people and places. And news of the world of goods and services.

See it all; read it all. The news columns will keep you posted on events of the day, and the advertising columns—why, they're news columns, too, of course. Advertisements are news of the things you need and want. If you don't want them today, you probably will tomorrow.

Here as the news passes before your eyes, make a note of this product, and that service. Tomorrow, when you start out to shop, you'll be able to make a bee-line for the place that has just what you want, at the price you want to pay. Considering the tiny amount you've spent for a seat down-front, our BigShow is far, far more than your money's worth on that score alone.

Bob Greer, 16 Year Old Jr. Replaces Mills and Catches Fine Game

QUINN INJURED

Jamieson is Steady, While Compeau Nearly Boots Game Away

It is apparent that Jammy Jamieson, Kingston Ponies' ace hurler, has the jinx or Indian sign hung on the batting Belleville Nationals this season. The cocky little right hander from the Limestone City has turned back the Nationals in every game this year and added another victory to his list, when the Nationals took the short end of a 7 to 3 count at the local fair grounds Monday morning.

The laugh of the fans fell before the first ball had been pitched when it was learned that Believille's veteran catcher, "Frenzy" Mills, would be an absentee from the line-up. Mills was hit on the thumb with a foul ball in Peterboro on Saturday when the Nats staged a belated ninth inning rally to beat the Petes 7 to 5. After the game Mr. Mills ascertained that Mills was suffering from a broken blood vessel at the base of his right thumb and will be laid up for some few days. The loss of "Frenzy" Mills was a sad blow to the cause of the Nationals on the holiday morning. On the fact that his presence was sadly missed especially in his hitting and his studying of batters for "Tommy" Pointer who hurled one of his best games only to have his team mates throw away opportunity after opportunity by either loose play or commit mistakes, that spelled defeat for the homesters. Bob Greer of the Wellington juniors, was at the last minute drafted into service as the regular catcher and this lad who is but sixteen years of age handled like a veteran. Greer proved to be complimented on the wonderful showing he made in his first senior baseball game in the O.B.A.A. Special permission was granted by the C.O.B.L. and the O.B.A.A. to allow him to fill the vacancy left by the absence of Mills.

Dumb Baseball.

Dumb baseball, especially on the paths, spelled ultimate defeat for the Nats, and they failed to capitalize on the opportunities which were theirs at times. Cons regrettably in the second inning in the sixth inning, stance occurred in the sixth inning, when Jake Quinn, classy guardsman at the Ponies' first, was forced from the game suffering from a badly sprained or dislocated shoulder, which he received earlier in the game, when he fell while going after a ground ball. While Quinn was being escorted from the field, a spectator passed a nasty personal remark about Quinn, of which Jerry Arnell took exception and promptly gave a nice right into the eye of the wise-cracker. For his prompt action or in closer ball player can be found in the central loop than Jake Arnell, and there was no apparent reason for an out-burst of verbal abuse from any local fan.

Compeau The Goat.

Mickey Compeau, Kingston's conceited little shortstop, was the target of many verbal outbreaks from the fans, when he "booted" two hit balls and struck out three times. He failed to hit the day and his two errors nearly caused defeat for Jamieson. Erich Stone was the "big shot" for the Ponies on Monday morning, when he garnered two singles hits, two doubles and two singles being chalked up to his credit. Stone batted in a third for the local nals, was the long distance hitter of the day with a slashing triple to right field. Will Greiney, sore leg and all, was the only local batsman to collect two hits, one being a double in the first inning.

How Runs Scored.

The game opened with Bert Vince, the veteran Percy Williams of the league, walking but when he attempted to steal the "kid catcher", Bob Greer threw him out quite easily, much to the delight of the fans. The Ponies bagged two runs in the second, when Quinn was safe when Vince walked and both scored on Jimmy Arnell's single to right center. The Ponies garnered two more in the third, when Quinn doubled, Greiney walked and both counted at the plate when Stone cuffed the horse-hide for two bases. The visitors added two more in the seventh on a single by Elliott, a double by Reid and a triple by Greer, Greer thrown in for good measure. Again in the ninth the Ponies added a run other run when Bob Elliott scored after walking, going to second on Stone's single and scoring on Greiney's error. The National only scored in the fifth inning when their local fans had their say for a short time. The same was true for the Ponies when Compeau booted two grounders, Alex Weir, Dorsey and Reid all singled to count three runs. With runners on first and second Greer was struck out and the locals' only rally was crushed.

The Nationals journey to Kingston on Wednesday where they battle the Ponies in an all-important ninth game. They are now three games behind the Peterboro senators and as the situation stands the locals must win eight of their twelve remaining four games in order to be assured of a play off for second position in the loop. The Nats now have a game in Kingston, one in Peterboro, two with Toronto, two with Peterboro and one with Kingston. This applies only if the Petes win all of their remaining four games.

Win Places Locals in Almost Sure Playoff Berth

Peterboro, Aug. 2.—(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)—Proving that history repeats itself, Belleville staged a ninth inning rally in the senior game here Saturday to score their runs and beat the Petes, 7 to 5. Three weeks ago the Nats won a 9 to 5 victory here by collecting 8 runs in the ninth, and another large crowd today saw practically the same thing. The win strongly entrenches Belleville in second place. After being held scoreless and to two hits by Holmes for seven frames, the Grover men went wild in the last stanza to drive him from the mound with five hits in a row. They got, to Kilchen, who went in then, for a walk and two more singles, seven runs being chalked up. The Petes got two in the first on a walk, fielder's choice, single by Scully and Foley's double. Hollingsworth's double, an error and fielder's choice gave them one more in the third. They got their next one in the eighth on a two-bagger by Ross and Nichols' single. Dalli-Ins triple and single by Hollingsworth and Ash gave them just one more in a belated last inning rally.

Singles in Bunches.

Morgan knocked out a double in the fifth and Cook singled in the seventh, but steady pitching and fine fielding by the Petes halted still the ninth. Then singles by Creiney, Cook, Greer, Morgan and Barriage brought the derrick for Holmes. Chambers walked, and Weir, batting for Pointer, both singled before the side was retired.

Pointer pitched fair ball for the winners, keeping the hits scattered throughout the game. He weakened till the last frame, when he seemed to tire. Kilchen took a job to get the side when he went in. The Petes' fielding was brilliant, several fine catches being pulled off in the outfield and two sparkling stops by the ble-plays holding the Nats down. Beavis, Morris and Scarlett all grabbed some of the flies.

Cook and Morgan led the Belleville batsmen, two each while Nichols and Dallin had three apiece for the Petes and Hollingsworth had two.

Kenneth Kellaway Shows Marked Skill in Handling

The punt races scheduled for Queen Elizabeth Park, Toronto, and Victoria Park, proved a drawing card for several hundred of Belleville's citizenry. The weather was ideally cool and sunny, and the park looking its best, made a perfect park looking tow at its best. Scores of picknickers were present when the first after-noon's sport, allow the youngsters to display their skill in punting, with ten under the finiest of conditions. During the early afternoon there had two or his Sea Fleas performing for the edification of the spectators, while a number of swimmers disported their wares in the waters and floos from the island raft.

Seven Face Starter.

At 3 o'clock King Rogers started seven punters, the last entered from the south eastery point of the island, on the north part of which, formerly wind, which however freshened during the progress of the race, blew from the south-west. The five, of the punts with the Sea-skelt skiff was His' attempered by Kenneth Kellaway getting away with the first puff of wind, followed by Skipper Charlie Dolan in the "Flying Dutchman." These two boats fought it out throughout the race. On the first, second and third leg of the race, Kellaway, the buoys first, Cap. Dolan rounding the first buoy. Sailor Billy Pickle sailing the "All Alone" was third and last all the way. The first two legs under a freshening breeze closed up on the others' lead, though in the last leg of the race, Dolan was outclassed by the speedy craft which Kellaway had be heard from if the next two legs, but never forced with more wind.

Great Fig'sh.

The great surprise of the day, and which furnished an exciting finish to the race, was the fifth boat, the west of the park. Skipper Dolan had rounded his eighth buoy in the Flit oeannell, closely followed, but with an appreciable margin over the Seaskelt craft, and made a long tack to windward to allow him to clear the southern end of the park in a half free run home. Then when Skipper Kellaway sailing close to the wind, rounded the park and crossed the finishing line ten seconds ahead of the "I Don't Know." The "All Alone" finished third and Sailor Pickle fourth.

The course was laid out from the park to the black buoy southwest of the government dock, to the black buoy in the channel west of the park and thence around the headland of the King Edward Point to the starting point. King Rogers acted as starter and Hon. A. Arnold Thompson, Will Nolan and Professor Lalonde of Peterboro, N.C., were judges. Proper Prechiste loaned his motor launch for the convenience of the committee and aided out materially in making the afternoon a success.

The race was thoroughly enjoyed by all officials, sailors and spectators and a goodly crowd weather permitting will be present when race on Wednesday afternoon, August 10th.

No fourth boat finished. Had this been done so it would have been entitled to one point in the reckoning for the three races. The winning craft in each race of three rounds, second 3, third 2 and fourth 1 point.

The punts entered were as follows: Seaskelt Kat "The Cat" sailed by Kenneth Kellaway; "King of the Flats" by Norm Kellaway; "Tejaro" by Jack Lill, Jr.; "All Alone" by Billy Pickle; "Red Bird" by Skipper Dolan; "Puddle Jumper" by Don Holton and the "I Don't Know" by Charlie Dolan.

The postponed race meet of the Napanee Driving Club was held on Monday under ideal weather conditions before a large crowd attending at this popular course. Owing to the number of horses entered in the three classes offered, the officials decided to split the races and race them off in elimination heats. Each class was divided into divisions of eight horses each and the first four to qualify in each division and the remaining eight left in each class to race for the money. This meant most spirited racing in the elimination heats.

Trampe Mile in 2.18½.

Lou Canot, owned by Percy Morgan of Campbellford, was much too fast for the field in the first 2.24 class and won her elimination heat and then went on to capture two more, pacing the last heat in 2.10½, the fastest mile of the afternoon, and the track is reputed to be 104 feet over the mile, which makes her time 2.09 flat. Lou Canot finished over a half mile ring. Guy Chenault, a horse with a long list of payments made them look ordinary and won the race after five heats. He was second in the elimination heat, won the next two and two and finished a fine third in the fifth heat. Bessie C. Todd, also another trotter, was second in the first 2.24 class, won her win elimination heat and was far back in the second heat but came on to win the third heat. Her only opposition was furnished by Buck Trampe from Peterboro. The Belleville horses present of which there were two acquisitions from Napanee and brought home some of the money. The track was quite dusty but good and was reported by drivers no accidents to mar the afternoon's sport.

Defeat Wellington in Both Playoff Games in 13-4 and 17-5

For the second year in succession the B.A.A.A. Juniors won the championship of the Hastings Junior League when they defeated the Wellington Juniors two straight games in the league series' off. Last year the Association kids annexed both games in two straight games from their Prince Edward County rivals and history repeated itself on Monday, when the local juniors won the first game of the play-off series at the Fair Grounds on Saturday afternoon by the score of 13 to 4 and turned around a beat the Wellington aggregation to the tune of 17 to 5 at Wellington on Monday afternoon.

By virtue of their win the Association Kids now meet the champions of the Peterboro Junior City League in the first O.B.A.A. play-down game which opens on Saturday afternoon next. The Hastings Juniors defeated Lindsay in two games twice by the Junior Moose and twice by the B.A.A.A. kids. The latter winning it the past two seasons.

Heavy Stick Work.

In Saturday's game, when the locals pumped home to victory by the score of 13 to 4, Ernie Smith, wielded right handed of the Association juniors, was on the mound and had the situation well in hand throughout. Smith allowed but six scratch hits and fanned seven batters throughout the entire nine innings, striking out eleven opposing batters in the game. The third inning locals was the big hitter of the day collecting five counters on six hits, two trips to the bat. Captain Jimmie McGuire and Doug Armstrong were both in line with three safe blows each, Pillingham, Bob Greer and Richard Smith, all in the run getting column.

In the holiday game at Wellington Bud Wilkins was elected to hurl for the Association kids and he opposed the classy George Noble, who had also hurled Saturday's game for Wellington. Noble was in rare form and whiffed no less than nine Wellington batters, Jimmie Pothwell and Gerrie Noble hit for the circuit at Wellington, while Jimmie Pothwell, Armstrong, hits, a triple a double and a single to his credit.

The line-ups—

B.A.A.A.—Tube, Barriger, Wilkins, McDonald, Pothwell, C. Smith, Walshe, and E. Smith.

Wellington—Blain, Noble, Burley Greer, Mann, Vanderwater, Pillingham, Munro, Watt and B. Greer.

Saturday's score by innings:

B.A.A.A.—3 2 2 0 0 1 1 3 — 13 17 2

Miss Strike Wins Heat

It was late in afternoon before slender little Hilda Strike, Montreal, brought Canada a championship in the Olympic picture. Third in her 100 metre heat, Miss Strike shot to a brilliant victory in the first semi-final, getting a nod from Marie Dollinger of German and Elisabeth Wilde of the United States in a thrilling finish.

In the women's sprint semi-final Mary Kendall, of Vancouver, beat Mary Vandervliet of New Liskeard Ont., were eliminated, finishing out of the first three. Miss Vandervliet was fourth and Miss Prinzell fifth in the first heat, Evidently Canada competing for Poland, set a new Olympic record in 400 metre relay in 11 9-10 seconds. She ran the first heat in the same time.

AMBASSADOR OF GOOD WILL IS LORD BURGHLEY

BY ELMER DULMAGE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Los Angeles, Aug. 2—Dethroned as Olympic champion in 400 metres hurdles, Lord David Burghley is hailed today as Great Britain's ambassador of good will. A tall, blonde, smiling democratic, the British Member of Parliament who won for nobility and England the 400 metre timber topping title in 1928 only to lose it yesterday to Irish Robert Tisdall, has been taken to heart by Los Angeles and its international settlement, Olympic village.

Wherever he goes in the city he is met by crowds of admirers with cameras and autograph books; in the hot-dusted village where athletes and officials are allowed to in a general favorite. Burghley and Tisdall battled with the Italian, in French with the French men. England's puppet prince of Wales himself, could not be more lauded than the former Cambridge athlete.

Burghley's the same quarters as the rest of the 2,000 athletes from all over the world. With a few exceptions, he lives in a small frame house with two rooms, a living room and a bed room. He came to this conclusion after the first day of the British team and he traveled to the continent, as they did by special train.

If the fair-haired Englishman had retained his hurdling title it would have pleased more than England's Olympic record have cheered as loud as all the British Empire.

IRISH EYES

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Her heart was beating so fast when she left the train that she felt almost suffocated. Mounting the subway stairs that were veiled with bright advertisements of tooth paste and breast biscuits, her knees were knocking together.

The Law Library was on the fifth and top floor of a dark old rubber-scented building, whose mahogany-boxed elevators loitered on their way up. Everything looked grim and smelled of dust. The closed doors of all the offices they passed were of dull old opaque glass, dimly lettered in chipped black.

Apparently the entire upper floor was given over to the reference books of maritime law. Sheila went through a swinging old black-padded door into a dark, shadowy place where a bald old man sat at a desk. Silvery threads of alcohol were installed away from him in every direction. Readers, all men, were scattered about among the long, leather-covered tables. The enclosed, clanked, the air was heavy and warm. Lights were already lighted here and there. Now and then one of the men coughed protractedly, and the soaring roar of the flying gun in the quiet place.

Peter was not in sight. Sheila stood hesitant, with shame and self-contempt in her heart. But after a long minute he loomed from an alcove, his head combing up behind her and was smiling at her.

"Good girl!" he said in approval. And Sheila was grateful to hear that she had come. It was giving in to him; he had known that she would; he had waited for her patiently. "You look swell!" he said, evidently relieved at her sensible mood.

Suddenly everything was flat and dull.

"Oh, I was sort of playing a part that night!"

He did not hear her, because he was leading the way through the room toward a set of large doors at the back.

"What do you know about my getting married on Tuesday, having a big party tonight—and I've got to meet Gertrude at church and every-thing?" Peter said grinning. His tone was hardly more than a whisper.

"Well now listen" I felt that I had to talk to you. I won't be a minute, a minute!"

He had guided her through the rear arcade, past some old men playing checkers. There was still another room beyond; Peter went with confidence toward a narrow door, unobtrusive among the racks. He opened the door, and Sheila followed him into an old bookroom, evidently long deserted. It was lighted by two tall, dim windows, below which she could see shabby back yards, the sides and backs of office buildings, and the roof of some garlanded and column-ed restaurant whose electric sign was already flashing on and off in the winter dusk.

In the room were old shelves lined with books, a long table with a worn black leather cover held in place by nail-heads, two or three old chairs, a library ladder. Besides the books on the shelves there were many more, piled in neat heaps on the floor; some of these were tied with rope marked "Bindery", and on others were cards that said, "Dealers." Evidently the place was an overflow room for the library. Sheila, coming in, turned in surprise to Peter.

"How did you know about this room?" she asked.

"Well, my father one time thought it would be a good idea for me to take up maritime law. Frank's a lawyer, you know; he went to Columbia. He's in the district attorney's office now. There was a rich old guy named Waters house—I think he was a sea captain or something—and he had a big collection of books; when he died he endowed the library; it's called 'The Waterhouse Maritime Law Library;' I believe. Anyway we used to come in here and study. There was a swell librarian here then but she's gone now."

"For pity's sake!" Sheila said, looking out of the window.

"Sit down," Peter directed her. He lighted a dangling light. "Listen," he went on, "I had to talk to you. Listen, why didn't you ever write me?"

Sheila was across the shabby leather-topped table, her linked hands lying before her. Her heart softened; this was what she had expected.

"I didn't know your name."

"You heard it."

"Yes, I heard it that morning when we met each other. But I didn't remember it."

"I couldn't find you," he said.

"You had my address."

"Yes, but listen. That paper was nothing but a piece of pulp when I tried to read it."

"You knew I was going away the next day."

"And I went over to the eight o'clock train, to see you."

"Sunday?"

"Yep, I waited for both the trains."

A light broke upon Sheila's face. "A boy drove us home," she remembered suddenly. "A friend of the girl I was staying with had a car. I'd forgotten that!"

"There are about twenty Carsadenas in the telephone directory," he said. "I telephoned every one of 'em."

"We haven't any phone."

A pause.

"I wouldn't want you to think that I could talk like that and just—just be flirting," Peter said, awkwardly. "But then—then, you see, I got engaged."

"Oh, that was all right!" Sheila assured him, vaguely and politely, and they were silent again.

"You see—well, we're getting married on Tuesday!" Peter explained youthfully.

"I know." It seemed to her that all life was a long blank ahead of her. Not that she wanted this particular man, or any man. It was just that everything was dull.

"I had to explain it to you. I tried to find you, I couldn't."

"Oh, that was all right," she said again, with a little effort.

"No, but how's everything?" he asked, out of a silence.

"Fine."

"And that girl who was with you, how's she?"

"Rose? Rose Foley. She's fine."

Peter watched her intently, across the table, for several long seconds. He was handsome, in his blue suit, with gold arabesques in his dark-blue tie. His eyes were blue, too, pale Irish blue, and the pink of his clean-shaven skin in agreeable contrast to the silky dark wing of his black hair.

"You see, Geri Keane has lived in our family since we were kids," he offered.

"Sure."

"She's a—well, she's a great girl," Peter said.

"It's all right. But I didn't think either one of us were —was—were just fooling," she said, presently, in her soft, plaintive voice.

MR AND MRS- THE DIGNITY OF THE PROFESSION

THE SON OF TARZAN—No. 89 (Metropolitan Newespaper Service)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

All that night, as Korak lay despairing because he knew the elephant could not unloose the knots that bound him, Meriem and Baynes rode north along the river. The young Englishman had been sorely wounded by one of the Arabs' shots and the two were therefore doubly anxious now to reach Bwana's home. The day was still young when they came suddenly upon a party hurrying southward. It was Bwana himself and his sleek black warriors, searching for Meriem.

At sight of Baynes the big man's brows contracted in a cowl; but he waited to hear the girl's story before giving vent to the anger long pent in his breast. But when she had finished he seemed to have forgotten Baynes. His thoughts were on another subject. "You say that you saw Korak?" he asked. "Yes," replied Meriem, "as plainly as I see you!" Still doubting, Bwana repeated his question to Baynes, asking him to describe the ape-man.

"He is about my age," said Baynes, "remarkably muscled and exceedingly tanned." "His hair and eyes, what color were they?" It was Meriem who answered him, "Korak's hair is black and his eyes are grey—like yours," she said. Bwana turned to his head man. "Take Miss Meriem and Mr. Baynes home," he said. "I am going into the jungle." "Let me go with you, Bwana," pleaded Meriem. "You are going to search for Korak—I know it." Bwana turned sadly but firmly to her. "Your place," he said, "is beside the man you love." A litter was rigged for the now feverish Baynes and the little cavalcade was soon winding slowly back along the river trail. Bwana stood watching them until they were out of sight, but once had Meriem turned to wave farewell. With bowed head and drooping shoulders she rode. Bwana sighed. He loved the little Arab girl as he might have loved a daughter. Slowly he turned toward a nearby tree.

FREEDOM OF BANCROFT IS GIVEN PARTY

Distinguished Clergymen Honored By Reeve of Village

GIVES MESSAGES

Rev. Dr. Jones Speaks on Value of Hard Times

Last Monday, Mr. James Hales, K.C., of Toronto, conveyed a party of distinguished clergymen to Bancroft. A reception was held in the United Church, the minister, Rev. J. M. Fraser presiding. The following letter was read from Mr. Judge Gunther, Reeve of Bancroft, who was unable to be present:—

"It sincerely thank you if you will kind invitation to welcome such outstanding men as Rev. Hugh Roberts, Rev. Dr. Jones, Rev. E. R. Perkins, at present supplying the Methodist, and Rev. D. Lloyd Jones M.D., the renowned physician preacher.

"To those we extend greetings. They come to us in times of need when our food and prayers have gone out to the Old Land that has protected this liberty and freedom for centuries. Now at a time when misery, in the midst of a superabundance of riches, threatens the very existence of our boasted civilization, we look again for help to the Statesmen of the Old Land. We pray that the coming upon their endeavors to legislate, in common with the wishes of the people, so that our people and the people of the world may be allowed to enjoy the rich blessings that a kind Providence has so beautifully given us. We can expect no proper welcome, but those gentlemen may rest assured that they are sincerely and heartily welcomed by the Town of Bancroft."

We assure Mr. Hales that he will not be called upon to defend any of his estimable party, nor especially to since I have decided as Chief Magistrate of Bancroft to extend to Mr. Hales and his party our most outstanding courtesies in which life the freedom of our village would they honor me with their presence."

Mr. Hales replied most happily to this cordial welcome. Dr. Roberts (who by the way has received the unanimous vote for nomination for Moderator of the General Council) spoke as the President. He spoke on the need of the hour, the outstanding opportunity that lies before Canada to apply to every day life the teaching of the gospel of the King-dom of God.

Rev. Mr. Perkins dwelt upon the present world, pertaining to the Gospel Behold, I make all things new. Rev. Dr. Jones was thrilled by the effects of a long far ride but spoke to the point. He said, "I am often asked, "What do I think of Canada?" I say, the people I in Canada are making the same sort of mistake that the people of the old country are making, they talk about depression and economic stress and neglect the all important matter of personal salvation." He said how that, 150 or 200 people would meet for prayer or fellowship in his church at Port Albert, Wales. Many a man has thanked God for the hard times, for in his extremity he has found God. Rev. C. H. Quarterman, the Anglican Rector, proposed a vote of thanks and Mr. W. N. Gilroy, Reeve of Wollaston, seconded the same in a motion. The meeting, which was largely attended from Faraday, Bayside, Coe Hill, Cardiff, Mount Eagle and Port Stewart closed with singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds," and the Benediction pronounced by Rev. A. J. Terrill.

Needless to say "Beautiful Bancroft" this day deeply privileged to have had the presence and message of these distinguished guests.

VOGUE

The tree throughout long years knows no disguise
Of nature's self in her own whole-someness;
No fashion of a fancy is the dress
To flaunt the beauties of eternities.
The leaves of sinewed youth and mellow age
Are changeless cycle of their constant life;
With steadfast soul, devoid of doubt and strife,
The tree itself is law of freedom's ways.
Should man presume the forms of life and art
To marwit h vogue and mock the bidding heart,
Warp nature without adding dignity
And truth, and faithless blind the searching heart.
Look but two thousand years before and after
At change, and bury tears in pity's laughter.

I REMEMBER

I remember, I remember,
The house where I was born,
The little window where the sun
Came peeping in at morn;
He never came a wink too soon,
Nor brought too long a day;
But now I often wish the night
Had borne my breath away!

I remember, I remember,
The roses, red and white,
The violets and the lily-cups,
Those flowers made of light!
The lilacs where the robins built,
And where my brother set
The laburnum on his birthday:
The tree is living yet!

I remember, I remember,
Where I was used to swing,
And thought the air must rush as fresh
To outlive on the wing.
My spirit flew in feathers then
That is so heavy now;
And summer pools could hardly cool
The fever on my brow.

I remember, I remember,
The fir tree, dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky:
It was a childish ignorance,
But now 'tis little joy
To know I' mfarther off from heaven
Than when I was a boy.

At The Capitol

CAPITOL EMPIRE WEEK

"The Hound of the Baskervilles" the latest thriller of the Baskervilles has been widely publicized by story translation into numerous languages and by its recent broadcast over NBC. This drama, follows on the heels of "The Fatal Hour" and "The Speckled Band," with plays at the Capitol on Wednesday and Thursday.

The stories are spoken of as a series only because they are all made from Conan Doyle's famous detective tales, and because each one, of course, relates a new adventure of that master of all detectives, Sherlock Holmes, the famous sleuth of the Baker Street district novelist. But each of these stories is the same as a complete story in itself being in that respect no different from the original tales which Conan Doyle wrote, some of which appeared in magazines and some of which have been published.

The present picture is based on one of Sir Arthur's most romantic and most colorful stories. No less a person that Edgar Wallage, whose recent untimely death came as a shock to lovers of literature and drama throughout the world was entrusted with the task of writing the dialogue for this picture, the producers wishing to be sure that the story was given every advantage in the way of clever and absolutely authentic in addition to those splendid and well known characters are assembled into this fascinating tale by its author, Conan Doyle.

"The Hound of the Baskervilles" is a splendid example of the latter kind of thing. Packed together at the edges of the great, lonely stretches of Dartmoor a group of persons typical of those dramas of English life which have stirred the world since Poe made famous the world over. There are young Sir Henry Baskerville, who has just inherited the great estate and has come to claim it at the Hall, following the sudden death of his father, Sir Charles as the same time as his friend Dr. Charles met with foul play, and had died of heart disease, as official reported; the old family retainer, Barrymore, and his wife, who had served the dead man and remained to serve his successor; across the moor, in the person of Young Stapleton and his beautiful sister, Beryl, and whom young Sir Henry at once falls deeply in love and—last but not least—immortal Sherlock Holmes, who has come at the doctor's insistent pleading, and with him has brought his old friend and co-worker, Dr. Watson, companion of many adventures.

Then there is the fearsome legend of the hound of the Baskervilles heads of the Baskerville family, seized, when "The Hound of Curse", the companion picture to "The Spirit of the Baskervilles," which is said to have brought a death of violence to every lord of the house since the days of old Sir Hugo Baskerville, who loosed his own bloodhounds against a poor village maiden seeking to escape his lecherous clutches.

Conan Doyle has taken this material and woven around it a tale of mystery and suspense which is thrilling in every incident. Only the master mind of Sherlock Holmes is able to thread its way through the tangled maze of false clues and baffling leads with—which the development of the mystery is crowded. "The Hound of the Baskervilles" is one of the best of all Doyle's creations, and it remains today an example of really perfect detective fiction. The screen version the original story has been followed with fidelity in every detail only actual spoken dialogue being added in order that it would be strictly in the modern spirit; and this was the delicate task so beautifully accomplished by the late Edgar Wallace.

Tonight

"Tone of delicacy" is a perfect rise and should not be missed tonight when it appears for the last time, Wednesday, at Genevieve Gitz Night for the ladies.

SEVEN KILLED IN BIG FIRE

Firemen Trapped in Basement of Ritz Tower Hotel

New York, Aug. 2.—Seven firemen were killed and 15 rescued in two terrific explosions that trapped them in the sub-basement of the fashionable Ritz-Tower Hotel on Park Avenue in the heart of the theatre district.

Another fireman was reported dying, and twenty-five other persons, four of them firemen, received injuries of various degree.

The explosions were in the basement, fighting flames in a paint shop, when the first explosion occurred. Then, a few minutes later, nine of these were able to escape. The second explosion followed almost immediately.

FORMER CONSERVATIVE SENATE LEADER DIES

Moosejaw, Sask. Aug. 2.—(Can. Press)—Senator W. B. Willoughby, former Conservative leader in the Senate, died in hospital here last night, aged 72 years. Cancer of the throat from which he suffered for several months was the cause of death.

The funeral has been fixed for Thursday afternoon.

The late Senator Willoughby was born in Peterboro, Ont., on July 10, 1860. In 1893 he was married to Susan Smedley Jones, of Philadelphia. She survives him, as James S. Jones a resident of Germantown.

Mr. Willoughby's early life was spent in Peterboro and Toronto and later in Toronto until 1897 when he came west to Moosejaw. This city was his home from that date onward.

He graduated from the University of Toronto in 1883 with honors in history, and in 1887 he received his L.B. degree.

Admitted to the bar of Ontario in 1886, he practiced in Toronto until 1897, when he came west and opened a law office in Moosejaw. He was Conservative leader in the Upper House for 18 years, but for months ago when ill health forced him to resign.

The grasshopper menace in the west was not taken seriously by some people until the golf courses were affected.

In Greece of old, people who took no interest in public life, and who minded their own business, were called by a word from which our word "idiot" is derived.

BRITAIN, AUSTRALIA NEARING AGREEMENT

Free State Threatens Heavy Tariff on British Coal

British Coal Imports Into Free State to Force Transference of Orders

Unless Orders Says De Valera For Coal Are Transferred to Continent He Will Apply Prohibitory Tariff on Coal

IRISH FREE STATE PLAN FAILS

Merchants Disregard New Duty of One Dollar Per Ton and Buy in Large Quantities From The United Kingdom

Dublin, Aug. 3 (CP)—President Eamon De Valera today gave warning that unless orders for coal are transferred to the continent he may apply a prohibitive tariff on British coal.

The government's scheme to damn the flow of British coal to the Free State has hitherto met with failure, as merchants continue to disregard the new duty of $1.00 per ton and buy large quantities from the United Kingdom. More than 50,000 tons have arrived since Sunday, merchants declare they have little faith in continental coal, and consider it cheaper in the long run to pay a higher price for the British product.

Irish Gas companies have informed the government they will have to increase the price of gas unless British coal is made available to them at normal rates. In other directions however President De Valera's economic plans have met with greater success. The British wholesale manufacturing firms have announced their intention of opening factories in Dublin in order to avoid the new duties.

60 Non-Union Miners Besieged in Mine

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 3—Gov. Harry G. Leslie today ordered Indiana National Guard troops into Vigo County where union pickets have besieged 60 non union miners in the Jewett mine.

Sixty non union workmen hemmed in by a ring of Union pickets exchanged bursts of fire at daybreak and then the attackers and defenders settled down to cautious sniping tactics.

The siege began late yesterday. One picket has been killed and four wounded. Two specific requests for troops sent by Joseph Dreher, Vigo County sheriff, have been ignored by Governor Harry G. Leslie.

Great Reconnaissance.

An airplane reconnaissance of the Dixie Pee mine, 3 miles north of Belle Lancet, Secretary Treasurer of the corporation operating the shaft disclosed that the mine buildings were still intact. The pickets have prevented any outsiders from approaching the shaft, 40 Workmen Inside.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 3— A union picket line bristling with rifles held prisoners in the Dixie Pee coal mine today 60 workmen, four of them wounded by gunfire yesterday in which one picket was killed and four injured.

National Guard troops and scores of deputy sheriffs with tear gas packers by use of gas, were requested by Sheriff Dreher, whose deputies were helping to raise the siege in the face of a picket strength estimated at 2,000.

BELGIAN PACT WITH FRANCE

Officials at Ottawa Silent Upon Preferential Trade

Ottawa, Aug. 3—Department of trade and finance officials refused to comment on the Franco-Belgian Trade Treaty announced yesterday, by which Belgium is given a wide preference on semi-finished and manufactured goods exported to France.

The announcement referred to copper, lead, zinc, hides and office equipment as among the products chiefly concerned. Canadian exports of these articles in France during the year ended March 1932, were valued as follows: Copper $781,706; lead $433,004; zinc metallic $274,086; hides $6,437; office equipment nil.

Individual tea bags made of perforated cellophane are said to be tasteless and to withstand hot water.

POLICEWATCHFOR BELLEVILLE BOY

Escapes From Industrial School—Sent up in 1927

William F. Mahon, of Belleville, was reported to have escaped from the Victoria Industrial School in Mimico at midnight Tuesday night. Mahon was committed to the school of correction in 1927 by Magistrate Mikel in the local Juvenile Court when he was arraigned before Rid Worship on a charge of incorrigibility.

Mahon's parents, who lived in the vicinity of Belleville at that time, seemingly could do nothing with the boy and after he was taken to the Industrial School they moved away from this vicinity.

Accompanying Mahon when he escaped on Tuesday night were Donald Gifford and Clarence Dixon, both of Belleville. The local police were informed of the escape and a close check-up all kept on travelers to give description of these lads is being kept by the police in Eastern Ontario.

Farmers Praise Downpour of Rain Most Valuable of Entire Season

All's well in Hastings County today has arrived.

In the city there might have been a few looks cast askance at the weather by summers clerks and workers in business offices and stores who had made previous arrangements to spend the regular Wednesday afternoon holiday in the open, but there are no sour looks in the country. Out there everything is "just right." The "blessed downfall" which commenced early Wednesday morning and gives promise of continuing throughout the day has already done incalculable good to the parched fields and dried out crops from weeks of steady heat, a wide smile.

To farmers of the district it is more than the "million dollar rain" slightly and familiarly quoted from time to time in connection with abnormal values according to rural residents when the rain falls. It is a matter could be placed upon this rain which has been the best one to occur this summer. And the time could not have been better. Green fields have already emerged greener, while root crops and garden stock were ripening stalks where the dampening earth. This downpour will last all summer" declared one prominent farmer of Thurlow as he stood on a downtown street corner yesterday under the dripping sky with his face beaming.

WILL PROTECT EFFICIENCY IN INDUSTRY

Injurious Competition With British Industry Not Allowed

COTTON TRADE

Cotton Industry is Very Efficiently Conducted

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 (CP)—Efficiently conducted industries in Canada will continue to be protected from injurious competition even from competitors of the United Kingdom. This is the interpretation put on the reply of Premier R. B. Bennett yesterday as the press conference in connection with the imperial economic conference.

The Prime Minister had been asked as to what concessions Canada would be prepared to extend to the textile industry of the United Kingdom.

"Insofar as it is possible to encourage any industry throughout this country from the British Empire without impairing any efficient Canadian industry it will be done," he replied. He added "the cotton industry in Canada is one of the most efficient in the world."

Controversy

The reply started a controversy among the visiting newspapermen as to whether the Prime Minister meant that efficient Canadian industries would be protected or that they were an efficient one to need no protection. While no official announcement was made today it is certainly authoritative to state in the minds of cabinet ministers and officials that in some lines Canadian industry is very highly developed and it should not be put out of business by any outside competition in the Canadian market, even by British competition. Accordingly their protection will be assured.

The government will not allow such inefficiency to shelter behind a high tariff as against other British industries.

VESSEL SINKS OFF VIRGINIA

Steamer Sends Schooner to Bottom in Chesapeake Bay

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 3—The old schooner Mary Lee Marr of Marr land was in collision with the steamship Milton S. Littlefield in Chesapeake Bay last night, it was announced, when the Maryland vessel arrived in Baltimore this morning.

The schooner, according to first reports sank after the collision. No injuries resulted, and assistance early available as to possible loss of life.

At the Old Bay Line office here it was said the Maryland was not believed to be a total loss, but information had not yet been received from the captain of the steamer.

The home port of the schooner was Elizabeth City, N.C.

MISS SCRIPPS DIES

La Jolla, Cal., Aug. 3—Miss Ellen Browning Scripps, 85, philanthropist sister of the late E. W. Scripps, founder of a newspaper chain, died at her home here early today.

Miss Scripps was born in London, October 18, 1847, to James and James Megg Scripps, a bookbinder. She was one of thirteen children.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Aug. 3—Five hundred Paraguayan soldiers, the first to leave here for the front to engage in hostilities against Bolivia, started up the river today toward the Chaco.

There was considerable confusion and a near disaster at the very start, for no eager are the young men to join up that 300 volunteers stormed the vessel just before she shoved off and nearly capsized her. The departure was delayed until they were ejected.

BONUS ARMY IS IN QUANDRY

Demand Decision as to Whether Army Will be Disbanded

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 3.—The shabby men and the shabbier bonus-seeking United States war veterans today demanded a decision from high command as to whether attempts will be made to disband the army of more than 7,000 veterans camping just outside Johnstown.

A disgruntled contingent filed in and out of the field head quarters in Unity Park, where a succession of statements credited to their leader, W. Waters.

The staff itself is in a state of confusion and said Waters is being urged to come here to address the army.

Dispatches from Washington early today quoted Waters as advising the veterans that there is no need to disband. While no official announcement was made today it is certainly authoritative to state in the minds of colonn, the government considers that in some lines Canadian industry is very highly developed and it should not be put out of business by any outside competition in the Canadian market, even by British competition. Accordingly their protection will be assured.

The government will not allow such inefficiency to shelter behind a high tariff as against other British industries.

JAY SPRAGUE HOOKS LUNGE

Weighed 34½ Pounds is 58½ Inches in Length

The lunge season has been officially opened for some time and Jay Sprague of Mountain View up till the present time holds the record in this district for hooking the largest one of the present season. Fishing alone on Tuesday between Goose Island and Big Island, Sprague had a real struggle and the battle was on. He was using a motor boat to troll by and between the two islands and had his line out when he got a real line on his hook. He played the fish for a time and a quarter's work before the lunge was finally landed in the boat. Without trying to impose on good fortune, Mr. Sprague hurried home and got Percy Pleard on the scales, the "lunge" tipped the beams at 34½ pounds and measured 58 1-2 inches in length. The fish was in fine condition, there being apparently plenty of feed in the bay. The "lunge" are beginning to appear in numbers in this section and no doubt more of these fish will be taken from the water before the season closes.

BODY OF GIRL FOUND BURIED

Missing Girl's Dead Body in Vacant House Cellar

Ludington, Mich, Aug. 3.— The body of 17-year-old Evelyn Sanford, who disappeared from her home here, was found buried in the basement of a vacant house in the rear of the home of Francis Nash in Prescott today. Nash was taken into custody for questioning tonight.

The body was found by Corporal Cosburn Hamilton of the State police and Harold Pfeiffer, 20, of Manistee, one of the men assisting police who have been aiding in the search for the girl.

A spade at the bottom of outside steps leading to the basement led officers to the spot where the girl's body had been buried in about 18 inches of earth.

Views Body

The vacant house is across a side street from the rear of Nash's home in the outskirts of the village of Pentwater. The girl lived a mile from the place on a lonely swamp road where the girl was last seen by Nash. It is far from the farm home of the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Sanford.

Signs of Struggle

Signs of a struggle and a few strands of blonde hair were found at the edge of a swamp where Evelyn vanished Saturday night.

Officers and possemen combed the dark spots of the swamp yesterday. They also inspected every unoccupied building within a twelve mile radius of the swamp and dragged the Sauble river. The net result was discovery of an iron bar 10 inches long with stains on it resembling blood, but no clue. It was found along a highway two miles from the Marsh.

Aviatrix Takes Stand at Lancaster's Murder Trial

JEALOUSY CAUSE!

Mrs. Keith Miller Tells of Quarrel of Men Over Affections

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 2.—Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian flyer and former aviation partner of Capt. W. H. Lancaster, testified at the former British Army Aviator's murder trial today that he contemplated suicide in connection with she and Haden Clarke, her fiance, might receive $1,000 from his insurance policy if he "died violently."

She was a witness for the prosecution in its efforts to prove Captain Lancaster killed Clarke, a young writer, because of jealousy, the aviatrix said the men quarreled over her affections at dinner the night before Clarke was shot at her home. They had violent differences, however, she said.

She said she locked the door of her room when Clarke told her he didn't want Lancaster to go there and talk her out of the marriage plans.

Not Engaged

Mrs. Keith-Miller said Lancaster hurried home from a business trip to Los Angeles after learning she and Clarke had become engaged as the youth could see her memoirs which she hoped to sell.

"Mrs. Miller were you engaged to Captain Lancaster?" Counsellor Hawthorne asked.

"You can't be engaged to a person who is married," she replied indignantly. "Captain Lancaster and I married six years."

Infatuation?

"Were you intimately with Haden when Lancaster left here on March 19?" Hawthorne inquired.

"No. I changed my mind later. I advised him (Lancaster) by letter sent in St. Louis and so did Haden. We read each others' letters before they were mailed.

She said Lancaster was sad upon his return from St. Louis because of her engagement to Clarke and told her he planned to kill himself in an aeroplane so she would benefit by his insurance.

Mrs. Miller said the insurance company had failed and he abandoned the plan, she added.

DRY KANSAS IS STILL DRY

Primary of Tuesday Shows Dry Candidates Favored

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 3—Dry Kansas is still dry after yesterday's primary election in which candidates sought the favor of voters of the commonwealth's first choice for the first time in two decades.

Ben S. Paulen, Independence banker and former governor, took a 10,000 vote lead early in his race with Joe H. Mercer, for the Republican Senatorial nomination.

Alfred M. Landon, oil man and fellow townsman of Paulen, held a field of three for the right to oppose Governor Woodring in November.

Senator McGill, Paulen and Landon are listed as dry.

Bargaining Discussions Opened at Conference Preference is Sought

Australia Favors Stand on Increased Preferences on Canned and Dried Fruits, Butter, Wines, Barley and Other Grains and Dairy Products

ADMISSION UNDER BYLAW

Australian Plan to Lower Tariff Rates on British Imports Where These Compete With Inefficient Australian Industry, it is Said

Ottawa, Aug. 3—(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—Great Britain and Australia are approaching the first agreement of the Empire Conference.

Their cards are on the table. British and Australian delegations today opened their bargaining discussions. Australia particularly wants a tariff preference in the British market on meats. She wants new or increased preferences on canned and dried fruits, butter, wines, barley and other grains, dairy products including cheese.

For Australia the important items are canned fruits, Australia's chief exports. (1) Maintenance and widening of existing tariff preferences on imports from Great Britain. (2) Reclassification of the Australian tariff so as to make certain protected areas in Australian industry available in a preferential way to Great Britain.

(3) Stimulation of British trade by admission under by-law.

(4) Removal with slight exceptions of the remaining prohibitions and surcharges imposed on imports for financial reasons two years ago.

In a general way, the Australian plan, it is understood is to lower tariff rates actually imposed on British imports where these imports compete with inefficient Australian industry. British ports it is felt, can also be materially assisted under by-law method. The Australian Customs act gives the Minister in charge power by law to give special import facilities to articles he deems necessary for the industry of the country. Many such articles, it is thought, Great Britain is in a position to supply.

Australia now makes large purchases of automobiles in the United States, though this trend it is held, can be diverted to Great Britain to mutual advantage by slide rule adjustment of the Empire Conference proper representatives are now engaged in negotiating among themselves. Canadian and British lumbermen, it is understood, have already reached an agreement in principle although details still remain to be worked out. The tone of the agreement is distinctly optimistic. It is also proposed that the tariff preference which Great Britain now grants in favor of Empire lumber should be increased from ten to twenty per-cents ago.

Napanee has been chosen as the site of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' convention, to be held during the two days, October 6 and 7, according to officials of the association who are now preparing for the meeting to be held. For the past three consecutive years Belleville has been the headquarters for convention, but it is expected that in the future meetings will be held for the benefit of dairymen and cheesemakers in the central section of the Province will be held at various towns in the area which the association represents. Asked to comment on the fact that Belleville has not been named as the site of the convention this year, Mr. James Irwin, district governmental cheese grader, with headquarters in this city, stated that as such conventions were purely educational and for the benefit of representatives of the industry throughout the district, since it is to be expected that succeeding conventions would be changed from town to town in the district.

ANOTHER GAS PUMP STRUCK BY CAR

Running into gasoline stations and gasoline pumps seems to be a favorite pastime for motorists about this community of late. Early Tuesday evening, Oliver Hagerman, Trenton, drove his car into the gasoline pump of the filling station operated by R. A. Cunningham about two miles west of Belleville on the Trenton-Belleville highway, causing considerable damage.

Mr. Harris was pulling into the Cunningham gasoline station to refuel his car, when he misjudged the distance and drove his car into the pump. The force of the impact knocked the pump clear from its moorings and damaged it to some extent. Provincial Const. Ryan investigated the case, and it is understood restitution will be made. This is the second accident in recent days where similar accidents have occurred in this line.

FAST MOTOR BOATS MENACE CANOES

Canoeists and fishermen in row boats and skiffs in the bay and harbor draw attention to the practice said to be indulged in by pilots of power boats, who come dangerously close to the latter craft at times, with attendant danger of swamping the frail craft in the wash and swells left by the passage. Several narrow escapes from drowning have been reported as the result of the large boats breaking the speed limits in harbor waters and coming too close for comfort to smaller boats. At night during the darkness, there is said to be considerable danger owing to power boats speeding through the bay without the necessary running lights.

"Both practices are against marine law," declared Harbormaster Robert Conuy, who declared that infractions of speed laws and other regulations will be dealt with severely if any avoidable accidents should occur.

Yes, the results are often surprising.

Yes, it almost invariably is. And this is to be expected.

For what reason?

Errors of vision demand an excess of nerve energy. This excess is used for other purposes when seeing becomes comfortable.

MASQUERADE IS ENJOYED

Annual Event at The Point Attracts Large Gathering

Presqu'ile Point, Aug. 3 (Special) —It was a time of strange sights and curious faces when the annual Masquerade Dance was held at Presqu'ile Pavilion on Monday evening. More than three hundred people packed the building to see the prizes for the judging and the dance after the prizes had been awarded. It was a gay scene indeed. Soft lights, brilliant, scintillating costumes, swaying, provoking dancers, happy faces, glistening eyes. Here a suit of prince-striped pyjamas dancing with a starched nurse. There a Scottish lassie swinging on the arm of a ragged gypsy. Several swashbuckling pirates put up their cutlasses to dance with demure colleens. And Mahatma Gandhi, shnet and all, cavorting gaily with a chorus girl in his arms. A happy time, an evening to be remembered, and a promise to attend again next year. Spectators' seats had been arranged around the dancing floor, and these rapidly filled. Early in the evening a little Dutch maid with many a sweeping curtsey, performed a stately little dance, and immediately after a side door opened and a host of others flocked figures. With the judges in the centre of the floor and the orchestra playing a waltz, round the side began, and for a half hour spectators and dancers alike admired the many costumes.

The prizes were awarded by the judges as follows:

Best Dressed Couples—Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rochester, and Alderman Duckworth of Toronto as Madame Queen and Amos; Mrs. Huffman and Mr. Bert Huffman, both of Toronto, dressed as nurse and patient.

Best Fancy Dressed Lady—Miss Lavina Smith as Indian Girl; Miss Smith as an Indian Maid.

Best Comic Dressed Lady—Mrs. Foster and Miss Bicknell of Toronto as Bowery Girls; Miss Alma Cassidy of Toronto as Actinolite.

An additional prize was given on the floor, through the kindness of the manager, Mr. Grant Johnson, when a bag of goodies.

The judges of the event were Messrs J. Foulds, of Oshawa; Brethour of Toronto; Sinclair of Rochester; Brooks of Presqu'ile; and Mrs. J. Ross of Brighton, and Mrs. McCullom of Belleville.

The prizes were particularly fine and the winners were more than pleased at their good fortune. They were as follows:

Best couple, fountain pen each; five pounds of chocolates. Best fancy lady, case of compact; a boudoir compact set. Best comic lady, case of compact; a silver necklace. Best fancy gent, a Kodak; a set of military brushes. Best comic gent, a fountain pen; a Yardley set.

The management of the pavilion have made such a success of this affair in the past that hundreds of crowds are increasing, and it is undoubtedly one of the outstanding dance events of the year in this part of the province.

POLICE COURT

As a result of a motor accident on the Frankford-Trenton Road, two weeks ago, Mrs. Jack of Trenton, will spend the next thirty days in jail after he pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving in the police court Wednesday morning. Mrs. Jack's automobile and Magistrate Mikel that he did not have a driver's license. He also pleaded guilty and costs was imposed with a sentence of thirty days in default of payment. And did not have the necessary money and will spend the next month on the job.

Patsy Gallagher, also of Trenton, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a car in a manner dangerous to the public. The incident occurred on the Frankford-Stirling road about a week ago. Gallagher also admitted to His Worship in the police court that he had failed to purchase a driver's permit this year. Gallagher was called upon to pay $25.00 and $12.75 costs on both charges, the sentence to be imposed in one month's time.

Joseph Clews appeared before His Worship charged with driving a motorcycle in a manner dangerous to the public. He pleaded not guilty and witnesses were called to testify. The case arose out of an accident which occurred in front of Cannifton United Church on the morning of July 19th last, when young Clews struck an oncoming car after passing another car going in the same direction in which he was. The magistrate found the accused guilty on the evidence submitted and imposed a fine of $10.

Experiments at Cornell University show that vegetables on road side stands keep fresh longer if displayed on a rack sprayed with a fine mist of water.

Plant Blooms at Night, Group Watches Cereus Flower Unfold

Mrs. George Page, Dundas St. West, Owner of Plant

Gathered at the home of Mrs. George Page, 116 Dundas street West, a little group of friends and neighbours waited on Sunday for an event, that comes to pass only once in seven years, the night blooming cereus plant. This wonder of the flower world is really a form of cactus plant with no particular appearance until blossoming time comes. Then, at midnight, there is revealed the depth of a day romance, which yields gorgeous unlike that of any other flower.

Watched with solicitous care by the owner the plant showed the first semblance of a bud about two weeks and a half ago. At the base of one of its upright leaves a small lube appeared, like a green finger, which looked like a length of twisted coloured candy. Until Saturday this tube was very tightly. Then it began to open slowly and at five o'clock on Sunday gave definite indications of blossoming that evening. Those, who had the privilege of seeing it as its midnight flowering will not soon forget the beauty of the sight. The white wax-like petals folded back to make a blossom eight inches wide, the outer petals standing out like rays. The perfume of the flower filled the whole house, like the exotic fragrance of some garden flower. The flower has been called the "moon goddess", a fitting description of this strange and beautiful flower, that comes only once in seven years to show its rather ugly plant.

The bloom remained until Tuesday morning, the perfume rapidly fading however. The petals drooped and shrank, the opening door heralding another seven years of preparing for the return of the "moon goddess".

This plant is the only one of its kind in this district. At the Allan Gardens, Toronto, there is another night blooming cereus, one hundreds of people to the Gardens this summer. Mrs. Page has another plant of night blooming cactus, the flower of which grows from the leaves. The one, she hopes will also produce a flower this summer.

SAY MOTORISTS TOO FAST FOR BARRIE

The chief claims that a person from the Queen City drive through here may put their heads out the window and shout in his direction, "So this is Barrie. How fast are we going, chief?"

Must Have Empire Wheat Preference is Canada's View

Ottawa, Aug. 3—"We are no longer on the cloudland of doubt; we are dealing with actualities. If I could have sat down and methodically plotted the way to gain one achievement by this conference I would not have done better than has been done."

In these words Tuesday, before more than a hundred newspapermen from all parts of the world, Premier Bennett sounded Canada's declaration that the Economic Conference had far far in a success, and that to date it fulfils every hope; He continued:

"There is no room for pessimism. My job is to get results. Now it is to get news... but I give it to you that only the highest hopes of success exist, let alone in the Canadian delegation but in the entire conference."

Deeds Now Removed.

"Are the concessions as well as the unpaper nine countries before the conference?" he was asked.

"We are no longer in the cloudland of doubt. We are living in the realm of actualities," the Prime Minister replied, thus being taken to mean that a definite line of change on definite policies took place to-day.

Among the highlights of Mr. Bennett's answers to the questions put by members of the newspapermen's gathering may be summarized the following:

Results in 10 Days.

(1) Mr. Bennett foreshadowed "results"—in due time—in 10 days."

(2) He answered in the affirmative, also, when asked if in his opinion the conference could conclude its labors by August 20.

(3) It is Canada's firm conviction that there "must" be a preference given by the United Kingdom on Empire wheat. "Must" was not used imperatively, he said. The preference may be quota, duty, or both.

(4) "Unfair" competition, generally interpreted as a reference to Russia, could be met without protection. (This being taken to indicate that duties could be placed against Russian wheat, for instance, without resorting to embargo.)

(5) Instead of 8,000 items for the Canadian free list, the total is 9,533, many of them offer "only in vowels."

(6) The conference is giving consideration to the idea of an Empire bank, as a medium of exchange, or clearing, as a medium of currency.

(7) As to textiles—Canada will encourage imports from British so far as it does not run without impairing any efficient Canadian industry, Canada's cotton industry being "among the most efficient in the world."

(8) The conference is harmonious.

(9) There will in all likelihood be a Fall session of Parliament and it may be that not until then will Canada's undertakings become known in detail.

MORE RIOTING IN GERMANY

Guns, Knives and Clubs Are Used For Weapons

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—Rioting, with guns, knives and clubs for weapons, has suddenly flared anew in Germany. Three men are dead, and several others severely injured.

Nine members, Communists, retaliated for th eattacks by National-Socialists (Nazis) Monday, which resulted in the death of the Communist leader and another man in the party councils. They fired a volley into a Nazi meeting, killing one.

Four were stabbed or shot during the fighting in Berlin.

A socialist laborer, father of ten children, was killed at Zwerbeneck, when a squad of Nazis leaped upon a group of pedestrians, some of whom had been taunting them.

LEWIS WILSON LOSES BARN

Fire Destroys Modernly Equipped Barn Late Tuesday

Rawdon, Aug. 3 (Special)—A large modern barn owned by Lewis Wilson, Harold, was burned on Tuesday shortly after five o'clock, while an adjoining pig pen was also consumed by fire. The fire is believed to have started from an unknown origin in the hay mow, but it is believed spontaneous combustion was the primary cause.

The building was being the most recently equipped barn, erected but five years ago, also lost a calf, two horses, grain binder, grain binder, separator and a quantity of harness. The house caught fire several times but by the help of the volunteer bucket brigade was saved. Two weeks ago the kitchen of the barn caught fire and Mr. Wilson was forced to place a new roof on it, which was again burned off on Tuesday. Some insurance was carried but not sufficient to cover the loss sustained.

BACK TO DAYS OF BISMARCK

General Kurt Von Shleicher in Role of Iron Chancellor

Berlin, Aug. 3—The German Republic, as a result of Sunday's election, faced today a situation resembling the days of Bismarck, with General Kurt Von Schleicher in the role of "Iron chancellor."

Chancellor Franz Von Papen, head of the present cabinet, the power behind which is the affable but decisive Junker-General Von Schleicher, declared last night his government intended to stay in power, defying the Reichstag if necessary.

Referring to the post-election riots yesterday which were attributed to the National Socialists and in which four were slain, the Chancellor said whoever is found responsible for the "regretable events" would find the cabinet "determined to deal swiftly and summarily with them."

The chancellor made it clear that he and the group of which he is head would continue to rule Germany without party support. Yesterday's election had any significance," he said, "it was in favor of government by the German people of the government's efforts to rid the country of party control.

"My colleagues and I," he continued, "intend to restore unity to the Reichstag with our program of constructive effort and we shall not hesitate to unseat it in the face of the cryin needs of our objective, non-partisan work."

BONUS SEEKERS FACE STARVATION

Refused Permission to Camp on Site Bought For Dollar

Washington, Aug. 2—As the host of bonus-seeking United States War Veterans chewed dubious beans in Anacostia Flats camp, it is heard of the death of a second veteran, shot in last Thursday's clash at Washington. Eric Carlson, 38, of Portland, Oregon, died today at the Washington hospital of a bullet in the abdomen.

Hope deferred was high among the 7,-000 men, women and children barricaded at Anacostia Flats camp. They might move to a permanent camp on a site bought for a dollar near Waterbury, Mid., but Gov. Albert C. Ritchie refused to sanction the plan. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg said and said the Attorney General was considering means to prevent the scattered bonus marchers from entering the state.

Over the Johnstown encampment, by the way of Anacostia's polluted stream, hovered the fear of pestilence as well as starvation. But with all their worries, the bonus marchers time to discuss with satisfaction the demand for the ousting of Senator Hiram Kellar (Democrat, Tenn.), for a congressional investigation of the famous army's eviction from the national capital by tear gas, fire and bayonet. "An act of vandalism," Senator McKellar called it.

FOG AND BRIGHT LIGHTS CAUSES CAR ACCIDENT

Mr. W. C. Hopkins of Cookzville in mistake drove his car head-on into the auto driven by Mr. Hoskin of the mail, intersection in the village of Frankford about 1.30 a.m. Tuesday morning. Mr. Hopkins accompanied by Miss H. Brock and Miss C. Hazelton and Mr. Cunningham all of Cookville, were proceeding southward on Main street through the village of Frankford. As they approached the small steel bridge south of the village intersection a car was approaching from the south. There was a heavy fog quite prevalent at the time and due to the fog and the overpowering lights Mr. Hopkins failed to see the bridge.

He drove his car almost head-on into the north pier damaging the car to some extent. Fortunately all of the occupants of the car were quite painfully injured, while Mr. Hopkins was recipient of a rather nasty gash along the forehead. Traffic Officer Pym Foster covered the accident and reported to headquarters.

Keen on Work Delegates do Not Want Time Off for Play

Likely Only One Member Will Go to Welland For Opening

Ottawa, Aug. 3—Resitive, anxious to get back to their work and get back home, the British delegation to the Imperial Conference is reported to be manifesting a somewhat cool attitude toward the week end trips arranged by the Canadian Government for the visiting delegates.

Only one delegate from the United Kingdom, it is understood, will attend the opening of the Welland Canal on Saturday. Either Rt. Hon Stanley Baldwin head of the party, or Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas will go. If Mr. Thomas makes the trip, it is said he will return by airplane to get on with his work.

Other members of the British delegation will remain here over the week end studying the proposals of the various dominions. They want to be able to go into the conference next week with their minds made up as to what can or cannot be done. They want to finish up and get on a boat for home.

In arranging the week end trips the Canadian Government was under the impression that the British were on the long Thursday to Monday week ends so much in vogue in the old country. Apparently this was a mistake. The British, it seems, like their long country house week ends in England but regard such things as a waste of time here.

CONSECRATION OF 2 BISHOPS

Willesden Chronicle Describes Consecration of Rev. Geo. Marshall

Willesden Chronicle, reporting the consecration of the Rev. George Marshall and the Rev. J. C. McGee as bishops of the Free Church of England, the Reformed Episcopal Church, refers to the unique ceremony at Christ Church, St. Alban's Road, Harlesden, London, on Thursday, July 7th when the two new bishops were consecrated. Christ Church is regarded as the pro-Cathedral Church of this denomination and for that reason was selected for the ceremony. It was here that Bishop Vaughan was ordained and on the Bishop Primus he took part with Bishop Penn, D.D., and Bishop Young in the consecration of their minds' needs up as to what can their two bishops. There were about twenty clergymen in the service.

History of Church.

It was in June 1926 that the Free Church of England was united with the Reformed Episcopal Church. The former church came into being fifteen years from the time of the beginning of the Oxford Movement as a protest against ritualism in the Anglican Church. The constitution of this church was ratified by legal enactment in 1863. In 1873 Bishop Cummins resigned his office in the Anglican communion and transferred his labors to a new sphere and organized the R. E. Church.

The Ceremony.

After the sermon by Rev. T. Carter, D. D., of London, the two bishops elect retired to the vestry while the anthem was sung by the choir. They returned to the church in the full vestments of the order. The presiding bishop then required testimonials of the elected bishops and for certificates of canonical election and the office. These were read and the congregation joined in prayer. After the Litany the presiding bishop examined the elected bishops on the articles. The bishop elect then retired to other themselves in the rest of the episcopal habit. While they knelt before the presiding bishop, "Veni Creator Spiritus" was recited, the presiding bishop and presbyters laid their hands on the heads of the kneeling bishop elect, while the consecration prayer was being recited by Bishop Vaughan. Bibles were handed to the bishops elect and after a short prayer the bishop presiding proceeded with the communion service in which the newly consecrated bishops and other bishops took part. The benediction followed by the last collect concluded the service.

ARMY FLIER FACES TRIAL

Murder Charge Against Capt. Lancaster to be Heard

Miami, Fla., Aug. 3—Forty-three witnesses and a venire of 100 prospective jurymen were called today for the opening of the trial of Captain W. N. Lancaster, former British army flyer, for the murder of Hadra Clarke, fiancee of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, the aviatrix flying partner. Of the witnesses 24 were summoned by the defence and 19 by the state.

Clarke was shot the morning of April 21 in the bedroom he and Lancaster occupied at the Keith-Miller home here. Lancaster had returned hastily by aeroplane from St. Louis twelve hours before, making the hurried trip on receipt of word that Mrs. Keith-Miller, an Australian aviatrix and his former fiancee, planned to marry Clarke.

The lookdown, a fish of southern waters, might well be called the pretzelfisher in view of its undershung jaw and the angles of its face.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD

Stratford has been celebrating its centennial this week. One hundred years ago there were two log shanties and across the Little Thames was a rude wooden footbridge. The Beacon-Herald says of these, "The two shanties and the footbridge comprised the business section, residential section and public works of Little Thames, now Stratford. There was nothing else unless one could consider the trail, which had been blazoned through the woods towards Goderich, worthy of mention."

In this new world towns and cities grow rapidly while in old lands villages may remain for many generations. But Stratford like the cities in the western world springs up more quickly because with development of the country there must be centres which are naturally suited for business and commerce. Stratford is one of these great centres.

Cities so placed are no doubt to continue growing larger and more influential as time passes. Business has picked such centres and will continue to flow through these places.

Stratford which has given so fine a demonstration of its citizenship and civic ideals in the past gives promise of still greater things for the years to come as it enters upon its second century.

There is one sad fact in connection with the development of the cities in the western world—absentee ownership. We are so easily wiped out because wave after wave of progress sweeps forward and washes away the buildings which several years hence have a sentimental and a patriotic value not to be counted in gold. But the smaller cities and villages find it difficult to keep up a progressive spirit, cannot afford the expense of preserving them at their own cost. Stratford is however doing a chance to preserve memorials of its pioneer settlers.

GORGULOFF TO DIE

Gorguloff, who has been sentenced to die under the guillotine, performed an act which has served no useful purpose, the killing of a President of France. Not even an anarchist could point to the slaying as having one point of merit from the revolutionary standpoint.

Gorguloff like so many others with bent leanings, allowed the thought of destruction to dominate his acts. He allowed hatred for the office to turn to hatred of his fellowmen and the result was a terrible act, the killing of a fine public character in his old age.

Wrong thinking is at the basis of this murder and the way led inevitably to the slaughter.

Let others, Gorguloff had to take brandy before he did the deed. Naturally he felt he had to have his murderer's hand strengthened before he could perform the dastardly act.

Those who toy with radical ideas, and keep meditating upon them in season and out of season, soon get the whole outlook of things changing under this obsession, and in the course of time their attitude towards mankind and institutions becomes so warped that they are nihilists, anarchists and such like public menaces.

Their way is not the way of progress. The sane man lies in taking up a progressive opinion which will peacefully bring the changes in those conditions which are not what they ought to be. But the killing of a man in another country who had done no harm to anyone merely because he was in office in the hope that it might embroil France and Russia in a world conflict and which drives a spike in the very method which Gorguloff and his ilk would like to foist upon civilization.

A GARDENING EXPERIMENT

George Santayana in one of his essays tells us that after men have gone the whole round of academic debate upon social problems which often act like a pother of smoke in the atmosphere and darken counsel with words, there is always some stroke of hardship that forces us back upon the simple realities of life, and so helps to cure extravagant conceits and preserve our common sense. We must sow and we must reap. The eternal bread question is the "open" of our existence. And as quaint old Sir John Mandeville long ago remarked: "When Adam was turned out of Paradise he betook himself to delving." One of the effects of the present depression is seen in the notable revival of the back to the land slogan, and the various efforts in this direction mark a healthy reaction towards a better adjustment of farming and manufacturing interests, an equation upon which the prosperity of any country largely depends. This is the broad swath of the problem to be solved.—Montreal Gazette.

Letter from dentist: "Dear Madam, —Unless the denture you had from me is paid for without delay, I shall be obliged to insert the following advertisement in the local paper: 'Excellent set of false teeth for sale. To be seen at any time at Mrs. Smith's, 5 Dettone Terrace'." The teeth were paid for the same day.

BENEATH THE STARS

By Aline Michaelis

White lights and laughter, heat and song,
The rhythm of the dance,
The movement of the restless throng,
And then the sky's expanse!

To leave it all the violins,
The dazzle and the glare—
Before the morn's first glow begins,
To seek the sweet, fresh air!

Down garden ways so still, so cool,
To wander through the night,
To watch pale lilies in the pool
And fireflies' fitful light!

To leave the music and the mirth
Which the vague unrest still mars,
To tread the green and kindly Earth
Beneath the tranquil stars!

They drop away, the care and grief,
Forgotten, drifted far,
While, beautiful, the stars are brief,
Life beckons like a star!

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO, 1832, the Campbells came to Roslin. One hundred years later the Campbells came back—and it is the descendant of Colonel William Campbell, who had left the old home to seek fame and fortune far beyond the pleasant hills and valleys of Thurlow Township in the County of Hastings. The Campbells came back to celebrate one hundred years of progress and prosperity. Speakers at the gathering referred to present living conditions with those of one hundred years ago and less. Woodbine Cottage where Squire William Campbell lived, and died by his own hand—never shrewd knowledge of men and women, kept the peace as general arbiter of all disputes—was not the only cottage which is lighted with electricity where the Squire had to be content with candles. The rude logs of settler newing are hidden under a covering of well painted boards, and the house has assumed in consequence, a modern air not entirely in accord with its honorable antiquity. The great fireplace is only used on state occasions and modern stoves, electric and coal, replace the huge wood stoves of early days. Telephone and radio now link the village with Toronto, New York, London and all parts of the civilized world. Matches now are always at hand but in Squire Campbell's day matches were unknown and the fire must always be kept in. Should it unfortunately go out, a hurried trip must be made to a distant neighbor for a few pieces of live coals. Just imagine having to get the live coals back over hill and dale and get them home before they had died out. Think of the hungry wolves, which prowled around and howled for a feast as they smelled the beastlies in the rude barn, and the human smell from the cabin. Think of the wolves that their footmarks were found at times on the window sill. Then at other times they would come so close as to make a sortie with torches had to be made to drive them away. No roads, no bridges, and endless clearing of the land before crops could be got in. These are but some other interesting legends are now folk lore of the Campbell Clan. Then there is the story of the teacup found in the saucer in the Campbell Cottage, while a great fire roared in the seven-foot fireplace, and the huge iron stove brought with much difficulty from Montreal, and which stands and over forest trail, added its mighty quota of heat. Squire Campbell lived one hundred years from Roslin to see the coming and wayfarers may read the inscription on the surveyor's stone by the side of the road which tells where Squire Campbell's last earthly home was. Thurlow, Ont.

JOHN EMERSON, D.L.S., 1848. All done up decently and in order and made matters of record as the cautious Scotchman way. When the Campbells came to Roslin they were clad in homespun, and they got their living from the soil and their clothes from the beasties which formed their meagre wealth. When the Campbells came back to Roslin one hundred years later they were clad in purple and fine linen, and instead of the cattle and the carts of pioneer transportation, the modern automobile made the miles into minutes over the splendid roads which this generation has built. God bless sturdy ancestors who suffered all the hardships that we might have the pleasures, who turned the wilderness into a land literally flowing with milk and honey —the Campbells came, the Campbells conquered, God bless the Campbells.

Other Papers' Opinions

HONESTY IS MORE GENERAL

From the record of 306 representative retail establishments in twenty-five scattered cities in the United States it has been deduced that there is less fraudulent buying now than at the peak of prosperity. Quite likely a similar survey in Canada would show a parallel result. There is no increase in the passing of bad checks and little increase in the volume of bad debts, so that while business may be down to some extent there is compensation because of better standards that will be more appreciated when good times come back.

Partly responsible for this favorable situation is the increased vigilance of credit men as regards new accounts and the acceptance of checks. But there is more truth in the statement that prosperous times demand more caution than hard times.

Among certain classes of people the temptation to acquire articles by illegal means seems to be stronger when the pocket is more or beyond they reach than when they are in real want. It is one of those paradoxes none can explain. Shoplifting is a problem that is aggravated by periods of great prosperity, because this urge to keep up with the Joneses is intensified. When everybody is retrenching and economizing there is not the temptation.

Professional deadbeats are to be found in every community, but their number is not augmented by adversity. There are more dead accounts on the books of most retailers today than there were ever in 1929, but these are not bad accounts. On the contrary, unemployment will speedily balance them —Galt Reporter.

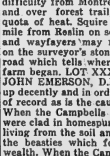
UPWARD TURN IN WORD

Everyone is ready enough to admit that present prices of securities are ridiculously low. In the opinion of those securities, yet everyone who is concerned over the possibilities of the future business is filled with depression watches the security markets and accepts their pessimistic action as an indicator of the trend of business.

It is a pity, because though the security markets may be dead or moribund, business is not. Business in Canada actually turned upward in May. Not much, but upward further out of line with the figures of the corresponding month of 1931. Reports for May showed a continuation of the trend registered for many months, as against an approximate stabilization in Canada during the same period — Toronto Saturday night.

LITTLE ACCOUNTS BUT

Akin to the stinging of mosquitoes are the little accounts carried on the books of local merchants. Each is small does not constitute in such except as a cause of annoyance, but a large number does and may be serious.



Some little items of fifty cents to a dollar—considered so trivial by those who owe them, that they are neglected—are a real problem to many firms. The goods that this money was used to purchase were bought by the merchant in large quantities, and the correspondent is large bill that had to be met and paid when due. The merchant who had to this trouble, sometimes with considerable difficulty, however, finds that when he does get his small bills, the collective amount would not be inconsiderable.

If the residents of this community would make it a point to clear up all their minor debts, they would be rendering a favor to our retailers out of all proportion to the importance to the small sums involved.—Kitchener Record.

MAYOR TO PRESENT THE FREE RADIO

On Friday night someone is going to present a beautiful short and long wave radio when His Worship Mayor George Geary hands the winning coupon on the Capitol Theatre Stage. Manager Chris G. Few People There Are Who Cannot Tolerate Milk

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Where fever is present, no matter what the disease may be, one of the first considerations should be the state of the digestive tract with the diet.

Lest a drastic purge produce so much disturbance as to cause serious damage, as is possible in typhoid, or weaken too much an already depleted system. Licorice powder in small doses, or milk magnesia is excellent.

All solid food must also should be stopped at once. It is a wise precaution to do so, for solid food alone, save for a fair quantity of water only help add to fever, which is always increased when there is temperature.

Some people cannot tolerate milk, but these are few. The taste is what many object to, but this can be overcome by flavoring with fruit juices or cocoa. Milk should keep up the strength of the patient, from one to two quarts should be taken in the course of every few hours.

Later on, however, especially after the true nature of the disease causing fever is established by diagnosis, modifications in the diet are usually desirable.

Below are given menus for recipes arranged by Miss R. Cutler, formerly of Bellevue Hospital in New York, which will be found most appetizing as well as nutritious. The caloric values are given in each case.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

Every child should have a daily period of rest in the middle of the day, even when on vacation. A child should also be taught to be contented when alone, either in play or with a book. It is unwise to try continually to amuse any child.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was around at my sister Gladies house this afternoon, and Gladies got a paper in the mail pop, I decided to give little Willie a lesson in the value of economy this afternoon. Willyum, after all he's 3 and a half years old and it's a world wide fact that economy plans are the strongest.

So I took Willie out pop said, and ma said. Well, you mite say I had varying motives in taking the damned kid on me when I opened my bag to get my handkerchief or my pocketbook, and a real little Willie noticed a lot of loose pennies and nickels and dimes a rolling for them as if he thawt this was a world where the money simply is free for the asking, so I spoke to him. No, Willie, you mustent touch nunnies and it's not good for little boys or anybody ele's boys for that matter, and I said tell you what I'll go I said, I'll give you a penny apiece if you'll give me Pollyanna, ma said.

Pollyanna is a girl, and ma said, Poppawits is the name of his ledgy bear that he's always hugging about with him. Well, I got my straw. Well, he was quite willing to give me Pollyanna for a penny and out I started a big as life, whereupon little Willie let loose a scream that could raise a dead canary, ma said.

Well, I soothed ended there and then, I suppose pop said, and ma said, Not in the least, I carefully explained to him that I would give an I.O.U. and then I wrote on a piece of paper, I owe Willie Gladies ma 5 cents and then I guided his little hand while he made his sign it, wasent that clever of me?

Yes pop said, quite clever Proberly morning no.

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma sat in the parlor with a book in her hand, belief and incomprehensible, I can't tell a lie pop said, and I'm not ashamed of it, I'm taking my silver handle umbrella home with her from Maud Hewes house this Saturday afternoon.

Because it wasent the silver handle so much as the silk cover. The silk cover is beautiful and so strangly, pop said. Umbrellas and silk hats are my servants. No matter who's payed for them in the first place, they seem to belong to the person who is responsible for the moment. Umbrellas and hooks are my friends. I am always opposed to the public enemies, like Umbrellas, Corporate and Municipal, and umbrellas and hats and lumber. Lumber is public head, in other words, rain. Just let books and hats and umbrellas travels freely and impartially, so that they can be the servants, no safety to one and all irrespective of class or creed. So everybody feels a behaonel rite to umbrellas and hats and umbrellas, though the sentiment is not universal from a strictly legal point of view pop said.

But the worst of it is, it wasent even raining, ma said, when you stopped down to the very last drop, so she started in the silent shadow of an enuue in my sense of humor, she said. You could have brushed me away with a feather when I discovered that I'd brave home her old umbrella instead of my own, she said.

Well, who was the first to leave you or she? pop said and ma said, Well I was as a matter of cold fact.

Then ye gods, it was you that took her umbrella, pop said, and ma said. Nobody could call that much like them things pop said, I see no reason why she couldent of left them there, and I intended to do, instead of dragging it home to the country, where she lives, and now I dont know when I'll see it back. The nerve of her, ma said.

O revoir pop said, And he got in back of the sporting page and stayed there.

At The Belle

"TOM BROWN OF CULVER" IS MOST UNUSUAL FILM

Novelty rules this season's pictures and here is one of the most unusual of them all.

What is said to be one of the most unusual and novel screen plays of the current season has been booked to commence at the Belle Thursday and Friday, matinee daily, according to the announcement yesterday by Manager Forhan.

The picture is "Tom Brown of Culver," the Universal production the previous season which made Jack Summerville in the leading roles, and was shown at the University City and partly at the famous Culver Military Academy in Indiana. The entire story is told against the background of this well known institution, and is in fact all a modern dramatic story of a boy whose father was murdered when the lad being a hero of the World War.

The supporting cast of "Tom Brown of Culver" is the fact that not a girl appears in so-and-so it is a story of boys only lacking in intense "heart interest." The cast of Tom Brown, Jack Brown, Warner and Summerville, includes Richard Tucker, Stanley Toler, Russell Hopton, Andy Devine, Eddie Phillips, Richard Tucker, Tom Alexander and other screen favorites.

Marjah Crowned

The world's most coveted mental marvel, Marjah, continues his appearance on the stage of the Belle on Friday and Saturday, afternoon and night, answering all questions propounded to him by members of the audience. He tells how everything is governed by mental law and his insight and foresight are positively uncanny. The Great Orpheus is a mystic and mental entertainment presented introducing the mysterious Marjah and his clever magician, Lang Tchang Yuen.

FRUIT GIRLS DEFEAT LEAFS

Loosely Played Game is Won by Score of 15-4

In a rather loosely played game, the Belleville Fruit Girls defeated the Maple Leafs by the score of 15 to 4 at the Armouries Lawn, Tuesday evening.

The Fruit Boosts took the lead in the first innings and never were headed by their Maple Leaf rivals who had defeated them the day previous in an exhibition game played at Wellington.

"Tiny" Lewis was on the hilltop for the winners and hurled excellent ball being given six-light support by her team mates. Lois Carter started on the hilltop for the Leafs but later gave way to Pat Ethier, who finished the pitching duties for the Maple Leafs.

Helen Bagnall attended provided the fielding sensations of the night by making many spectacular plays on his balk. B. McGuire of the Fruit team was the only one to get a hit for the circuit, while Doris Bland turned in her usual steady game at third base.

The line-up:

CONTINENTALS ON TOP RUNG

Closely Contested Game Goes Against The Favorite

Trenton, Aug. 3 (Special)— The Continentals won out in a closely contested game with the Shamrocks by six to five. It was the Shamrocks game until the last inning when Rustan the sturdy man from Wooler hit a homer with three men on. The insurance man got three runs in the second innings on three errors by the Shamrocks, whereupon the Shamrocks earned every run they got. It was a surprise to most of the fans that the Shamrocks put up such a good game as they have been in a slump for a long time and the Continentals have been going strong. Coughlin was in the box for the Shamrocks and proved that he was good as they come, pitching nice ball throughout the entire game. Seager was working for the Continentals and 70% can be had for the good two hitting secure in the field for a lot of good. Crowe has a string bad pitchers, when any one of them is the only real pitcher the Shamrocks have, which will make the going a lot easier, when the Shamrocks start on Friday of this week. Alexander in centre field for the A. C. boys is playing real fine batting one of the best sensational catches of the season, running back into left field for a high fly, which was headed for the left field fence. Bert Hughes had a good three feet into the air and with good judgment, he is also batting about 400 ball. Wenman on second for the Continentals is playing good ball. It was the whole right field running in the first inning that made Rustan's wise safe hits, he has unceasing confidence in his team and in his hit. Rustan going in for Anderson for the Shamrocks proved to be worth by getting a run. Bowden pinch hitting for Seger in the Shamrocks seventh inning did not it was fair; to Chambers to get a free pass, Bowden repeated with Jordan, which loaded the bases for Rustan, who made a clean game with his homer. Coughlin had two out when Chambers came in on a wild pitch. Crowe failed to set them hit than to try for a home run.

Lineups:

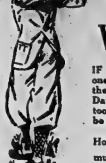
TRENTON HAS "A BALL TEAM

Defeat Marlbank-8-5 After Eleven Innings of Play

TRENTON, Aug. 3.—(Special)—Believe it or not Trenton has a hard ball team at last .It may be rather late in the season to think of hard ball or any other kind, for that matter, but the boys journeyed to Marlbank on Monday and trimmed them nice to eight after eleven innings. Harold Fuller was doing the hurling for the Trenton team and doesn't show up badly either for a man, who has not been pitching ball all season. The remainder of the team is made of softball players but they look good. Young was on the mound for the Marlbank team and the Trenton lads were up against no cinch, when they had him to contend with as he is an old time ball player and has been having hurled for the St. Mary's team a number of years ago. Trenton has been able has to support a hardball team and it seems a shame as a good many of the players on the Belleville club are recruits from Trenton. It would be no easy matter to get a smart ball team ready for next year but the organization is would be fans have said. They never dig in past years and it seems doubtful if they would be given the chance again. At any rate they will have a chance to show that first hard ball game for here here on Friday afternoon when the Marlbank team journey to Trenton for a return game.

With The Olympians

Los Angeles, Aug. 3—Figures indicate the greatest Olympic boom in history. Out here the experts are talking of a 500,000 gate at the 100th modern renewal of the games. Within only three days, nearly 200,000 people have paid to see the international events opened. Of these 155,000 have witnessed the track and field events. Two years ago it took eight days at Amsterdam to draw the 100,000 customers in the main stadium.



Falling records brought joy to Jack Ryder, general manager and secretary of the organizing committee. He had told friends from the start that there was a fast track, which is made of peat, and that records fall in consequence on conventional cinders.

A fast harness track had flourished hereabouts 20 years ago, and when Ryder heard of its peat composition he sought the same material.

Stella Walsh—Stanislawa Walasiewicz to Poland—had a busy afternoon. She had to interrupt her training for the discus to win the 100-metre run.

British Delegation to Receive Canada's Offer In Course of Two Days

Likely Conference Will Close by August 20 at Latest

CRITICAL DAYS

Diverging Views Have to be Brought Together

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 3—The British delegation expect to receive Canada's offer either today or tomorrow, so far, it is stated at British headquarters, no definite offer of concession for concession has been received. There have been discussions. The discussions are continuing. But the final word has still to be said.

The conference is now forging ahead with conclusion on or before Aug. 20 as definitely in view. All agreements made will be subject to approval by various parliaments of the empire. It is as yet uncertain whether the agreements will be between Great Britain and individual Dominions or multi-patterial embracing all participating units.

The next few days will be critical days for the conference. Diverging views have to be brought together, political reaction away back home has to be considered. Yet the view prevails, that the conference will result in definite understandings.

As a first step, an expert subcommittee, it is understood, has prepared draft agreements on Empire standards. It is proposed that the agreements should be concluded first between British and Canadian steel manufacturers, and finalizing later. The agreements cover specifications and commercial

TOWN SECURES RADIUM PLANT

Ore From Eldorado Mines Will be Treated at Port Hope

Port Hope, Aug. 3—By the simple signing of a lease Port Hope, Ont., acquired new standing in the scheme of things as the centre of an industry declared to bring incalculable benefit to suffering humanity. Following months of carefully conducted negotiations, officials of Eldorado Gold Mines, Ltd., agreed to erect the plant on John Street formerly occupied by the Canada Metal Company and are gathering equipment for installation of the first commercial refining radium production plant in Canada, Gilbert LaBine, president of the company announced Down the Mackenzie.

Pitchblende ore from the company's property at Great Bear Lake, Northwest Territories, will be brought down the Mackenzie river to Waterways, Alta., end-of-steel, and thence by rail to the plant. Chemicals, to be supplied chiefly from Sandwich, Ont., will be transported to Port Hope either by lake freighter or rail. The process of radium extraction requires large quantities of chemicals and it is more economical to locate the plant close to the source of these materials and transport the ore to it.

Beauty..... BY HELEN JAMIESON

Corsetieres Know Best

"We have many different styles of foundation garments and corsets," said the head of the corset department, "yet most women among ten need alterations. They don't know about the possibilities of a properly selected corset—what it does to change the outline of the figure—and you can't tell them either. What they're looking for is a garment that will hold up the stockings and hold in the stomach. The rest doesn't concern them much. A woman is as qualified to pick out a corset for herself as she is to tell the doctor how to remove her tonsils. Corset fitting is a profession. I've been at it for twenty years. There's a lot to know."

Frocks make demands on feminine shapes. They are designed evidently with the idea that every femme is blessed with the perfect figure. (Look any picture in the gallery.) They demand the normal bust, the sassy little waistline, hip measurement only a few inches more than the bust measurement. Enough on girls who have haunches. Well, they can work them off by sweat of their brows, or by choking off fat-producing groceries, or they can bind them in by with the right foundation garment. Or, better still, do all three!

A common mistake is getting a corset too long in front, or pulling it down too far. It rides up. If it is long over the hips and abdomen, there is a roll of flesh bunched up above the waist line. Often a garment is satisfactory, but if it is not put on properly it's a flop.

What stays should do is to give to the feminine torso a smooth surface and as graceful a silhouette as can be achieved. The body must not appear rigid or laced, and must be free of movement. The right effect comes when the garment is not too small. That's where women err. They don't get rid of their bones by that method. Fresh must get somewhere. The right cut will neutralize, adjust, flatten a bit where the heavy curves are, permit the figure to be free where lines are good.

There are front-laced corsets for women who have developed saggy tummies. Getting into one of these tummy controllers is an acrobatic performance. The supplicant for the requisited diaphragm slips into her saddle, places herself on her back in bed, pulls heels up under her, lifts and stomach high in the air, so the inner organs drop toward her chest, pulls the laces, rolls over on her side, stands on her feet, and then she's all tummy has gone, she doesn't know!

The made-to-order corset or foundation garment is a luxury that brings elegant returns. It is the only thing for the woman of the sway-back figure. It is a help to one whose hipspring is greater than the average. Like the made to order shoe, it bestows upon one a feeling of beauty superiority.

For warm weather wear, there are comfortable washable foundation garments of crepe de Chine, satin, mesh, or jersey. They skim over one's form. If they are almost as light as chiffon. Very necessary when the frock is diaphanous and unmentionables so brief and saucy they're not worth mentioning.

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Miss Louie Faires who attended her sister, wore powder blue crepe de Chine with a wide hat. The groom was attended by Mr. Charles Faires. Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Joyce left on a motor trip to Ottawa, Niagara falls and other points. The bride's going-away costume was a smart green ensemble with fox fur and a matching green turban.

Advice to the Lovelorn

BROKE UP FOR NO REASON AT ALL

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For over a year I went with a certain boy, then we broke up and have seen each other only once since. It seems as if he still likes me, and I really love him, but he never comes to see me any more. He talks as if he is coming back sometime, but sometime never comes. Do you think he wants to come back? Tell me what I should do about it. Thank you.

J. G.

Sometimes young people drift apart for no real reason, or no reason that can be discovered. One or the other suddenly grows indifferent, and imagines some fancied neglect. Or it's a pure case of nerves or stage fright that makes them unaccountable things—rush by with not speaking, get "mad" for no cause at all, then weep and regret. It's a wise "lover and his wife" who can keep on an even keel during the mad, glad days of courtship. Beat this in mind, in the case of your young correspondent, better write him a little note and invite him to call; then stop breaking up for no good reason. Watch your step.

LIKES A FORWARD GIRL

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been with a certain boy about six months and find I like him better than all the others I know. Twice I plucked up all my courage and asked him to escort me to parties. Both times he had an excuse. To make things worse, I have a girl friend who is more to him than anybody I know. Every time she asks him if he will be her escort, he accepts. My mother tries to discourage me by saying he is only using my love. This has no effect, either. How can I possibly draw him to me? I just can't make up my mind to forget him.

H. G.

I hope you won't find me too unsympathetic; but I find myself agreeing with your mother. Don't waste your youth and sweetness worrying over a young man who turns down your invitations and is attentive to another girl. "As good a fish in the sea as ever were caught" is the motto for you to live up to at present. Youth goes so quickly, it's a pity to waste a moment of it in "pining" over the "unhappy." I'm sure your mother is the sympathetic kind who'll treat you to a new dress, and let you have a party, and do all those things that help a girl to forget.

TWENTY-EIGHT YEARS DIFFERENCE IN AGES

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Forty-three years of age, yet I'm considered fairly good-looking. I don't do much of anything, because I've enough to live on very comfortably. A few months ago I met, in a place of business where she is employed, a beautiful young lady of twenty-eight. Each time I go to town I stop and see her, I care a lot about her, but I'm afraid from this feeling, she doesn't show it. What do you think of me and the difference in ages? Would I have any show at all?

H. S. S.

It isn't so much a difference in ages, but a difference of temperaments. If the girl is the type who likes to dance all the time and "paint the town red" a job keeping up with her, But if she's one of the quiet kind who likes home, domesticity, children and all the homey things relating to them, you might be happy.

What tastes have you in common? Do you like books and reading? Do you both enjoy music? Theatre? Movies? A glorious summer evening cards? If you have congenial tastes, there's a chance of happiness but if it's just those fascinations a young woman invariably has for an older man, the risk is great. It shouldn't be difficult to find out how she feels toward you. Just ask her.

DID NOT APPEAR FOR THE WEDDING

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Some time ago I met a young man, and from the very first we seemed to fall really and truly in love. We became engaged, and the wedding day was set. Now I am a modern girl, I smoke, and take a highball occasionally. He said he wanted me to stop drinking entirely, and go cut down on the cigarettes. I'll admit I did over-indulge in them. I agreed to do as he asked, but the day before the wedding he didn't come for the rehearsal and I haven't seen him since, nor has he written to me. I am miserable and can't get him off my mind. All of my old crowd is married, and I am single.

'It may be cold comfort, at a time like this to say that you are capable of acting as this one has done, would make a very poor partner to depend on "for better or worse". But humiliating as your experience has been, my dear, I honestly believe you'll be thankful for it in time. There's a decent way of doing things, even to breaking engagements at the last minute, and he failed in that.

Can't you go away for a nice long visit, some place where no one knows about this broken engagement? Get some new frocks, or make over the old ones. Miracles can be worked with these dyes that can be processed at home. Try a new deal all round. And don't be angry with me if I suggest you cut out the cigarettes and highballs.

CAPITOL EMPIRE WEEK
"The Hound of the Baskervilles" Today

Look for the smear of blue paint, Watson. When we find that we will know we are on the right track.

It is Sherlock Holmes speaking, and in the days of the 1900's he his old friend and somewhat clumsy coadjutor, Dr. Watson in the latest of the Sherlock Holmes detective and mystery thriller pictures "The Hound of the Baskervilles," which starts an engagement at the Capitol Theatre today for two days.

This is the third of the Sherlock Holmes pictures to be made in the screens of the country this season, and it speaks well for the genius of the creator of the famous detective, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, that this screen drama measures up to the more recently devised mystery thrillers and creeps off with first honors. It is an eminently satisfactory attention gripped entertainment, in the opinion of this screen reviewer. It is recommended to readers of Sherlock Holmes stories.

Here we have Sherlock Holmes, pestled on his favorite chair and all and with him the famous Watson—just as familiar as ever and just as lovable, nevertheless—bending their efforts on the solution of a great mystery of the Dartmoor wastes. What brought the death of old Sir Charles Baskerville, master of Baskerville Hall?

There is a legend to the effect that all heads of this famous house of the Baskervilles met sudden ends in some violent and unnatural manner —the result of a curse which fell upon the luckless house for bad in generations gone, when cruel Sir Hugo unleased his bloodhounds against a beautiful maid of the neighborhood who had been trying to recapture, to submit her to the distaste of Sir Hugo. She was identified by the hounds, the maid died in a wild spot on the moor, and there, later Sir Hugo was himself found dead. Generations after, it is the same curse in which the body of kindly Sir Charles has just been found.

Can there be anything to the legend of the Baskerville curse? Is there really a hound of the Baskervilles? And if so, is it an animal of flesh and blood, or is it a creature of some ghostly world, an avenging thing beyond the reach of man? These are questions which Sherlock Holmes has to decide, and he sets about his deductions in his characteristic and fascinating manner. Soon the brainy detective is convinced that his principal suspect is the last male descendant of the Baskervilles, Sir Henry, now living in London, but recently arrived to take up his residence at the Hall, and quite open to temptations of the jungle and of any dangers to which he might be exposed.

Patrons of the Capitol Theatre will undoubtedly have a good time and enjoy many thrills watching the unfolding of the mystery on the screen, for the production has been done with no little skill, and the story moves smoothly to a swift and effective climax.

The dialogue, by the way, is especially effective, which is easily understood when it is noted that the late Edgar Wallace, master of the modern mystery story, was entrusted with the task of adapting it to the requirements of the present screen version.

JOY—FAIRES

STIRLING, (Special)—St. John's Anglican Church was the scene of a pretty nuptial event on Saturday, July 30th, at 10.30, when Florence Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. B. Faires, was united in marriage by her father, wore an Empire gown of white taffeta with tiny puff sleeves and a white cocktail hat and carried roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Barton Hinchcliffe in her paper on "How can the Women's Missionary Society fight the evil," said one must know facts about alcohol and its harmful effects on the body and home. Christ has said "I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Alcohol is one of the gates of hell.

A reading was then given by Miss Chadwick, on "Appeal for Temperance."

The meeting closed by singing the hymn "A Charge to Keep I Have" and the Mizpah Benediction.

WALLBRIDGE W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the Wallbridge W.M.S. was held at Wallbridge United Church July 6th, with a good attendance. Lunch was served at noon by six members of the Ladies' Aid Society.

Mrs. T. Hinchcliffe, president of the W.M.S. opened meeting with a hymn and prayer; roll call was answered by members repeating a favorite verse of Scripture. Mrs. G. A. Hutchison gave the treasurer's report. A committee composed of Mrs. S. M. Nicholson, Mrs. E. Lane, Mrs. L. J. Ketchpaw, Mrs. H. Hinchcliffe and Mrs. F. Shorey was appointed to look after a tea meeting.

Mrs. E. T. Hinchcliffe read a letter from the District reporter stressing the importance of Nursing Movement." Sentence prayer by a number of members was offered. A temperance period was conducted by Mrs. S. M. Nicholson. Mrs. Elsie Shorey gave a paper on "The amount spent in the Dominion for Liquor in 1931," also the increase of distilleries and breweries since 1920. Mrs. Frank Storey gave a paper on "The product of liquor traffic in, for and what it means to the home, especially to boys and girls.

NICKEL CHIEF STOCK TRADED

Bank Stocks With Smelters are Two Other Issues in Demand

TORONTO, Aug. 3—Prices started firm around noon on the Toronto Exchange today after an irregular trend in early trading. Bank stocks and Consolidated Smelters were leaders in early trading and International Nickel came to life later when wall street showed signs of improving. Volume was light.

The advance in the bank stocks was a carry-over from the previous day. Royal, Montreal and Commerce were bid up 3 and 4 points with very little stock out. Toronto, Imperial and Nova Scotia were unchanged and Dominion of a point.

Smelters rose a couple of points on fair publication of production data and official announcement of a small profit from operations in the first six months of the year. Nickel was dull to start the day and a small traction above the previous close until around noon, when the bid price was raised to 8.

C.P.R., Dominion Stores, Ford of Canada and Brazilian traction showed slight changes only. Pages-Hersey tubes lost a point and the oils were practically unchanged.

MARKET GETS SECOND WIND

Setback of Tuesday Overcome After Early Trading

NEW YORK, August 3.—The Stock Market appeared to have got its second wind today, after yesterday's setback.

Early irregularity in both stocks and bonds was soon superseded by renewed strength. In stocks, the market turned extremely dull during the first half hour, and bulls concluded that the wave of profit taking had been completed.

Buying appeared to be virtually all groups of shares, and by early after noon, gains of 2 to more than 5 points were registered in such issues as American Telephone, American Can, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco "B" U. S. Steel, common and preferred, Chas. Corn Products, Consolidated Gas, Coca Cola, Dupont Johns Manville, International Harvester, Kresge, Kroger, Kresge, Kroger, Kentucky, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern and others. Issues up a point or more included Westinghouse, General Electric, Westinghouse, American Smelting, Kennecott, Standard of N.J., New York Central, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake and Ohio, and others.

Many Buyers

Brokerage quarters which had been anticipating a technical reaction had widely advocated fresh buying on declines, so that yesterday's profit taking was met since the buying movement got under way, profited from reactions, most of which buyers had been awaiting.

Although the mid-week reviews of the steel industry were somewhat disappointing, the weekly report of electric power production was acceptible to favorable interpretation.

Oils were helped by favorable weekly statistics from that industry. Drug, Inc., advanced on declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $1. Coppers reflected further firmness of prices abroad, and reports that metal was scarce at the domestic price of 5 1-4 cents a pound. Usually well-informed quarters looked for a declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 35 cents by General Motors Directors after the close.

See the Big Show

. . . now going on

As you read these lines, the Big Show has already begun. It's a new bill every day—right here, in your favorite newspaper. Make yourself comfortable, and turn the pages.

You'll find it a sparkling review—full of movement, and life, and interest and news. News of the world of people and places. And news of the world of goods and services.

See it all; read it all. The news columns will keep you posted on events of the day, and the advertising columns—why, they're news columns, too, of course. Advertisements are news of the things you need and want. If you don't want them today, you probably will tomorrow.

Here, as the news passes before your eyes, make a note of this product, and that service. Tomorrow, when you start out to shop, you'll be able to make a bee-line for the place that has just what you want, at the price you want to pay. Considering the tiny amount you've spent for a seat down-front, our BigShow is far, far more than your money's worth on that score alone.

IRISH EYES

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"I wasn't fooling," he said.

"I waited for you, that Tuesday night," Sheila stumbled, in a silence.

He winced. "I thought you would."

"I'm glad," Sheila said, belatedly, "that you didn't want to—to throw me down.

"I never threw anyone down in my life!" he said, looking at her seriously, across the table.

Somehow, with the suddenness of a shock, her feeling altered. The words, the tone in which he said them, awakened her. He was acting—a little. He was enjoying this —just a little! Sheila felt gladly with a revulsion of feeling. She wanted to punish him. She wished she had dreamed dreams about him for so many years. Now it was as if he were disintegrating before her eyes.

CHAPTER 9

Her cheeks grew red. She continued to look at him, silently. But there was discomfort in her feeling now. She wished she had not agreed to meet him so impulsively.—this man who was to marry another girl in less than a week.

"Listen how it all happened," began Peter, "I go off for a beach picnic with a couple of fellers, don't I? And I meet a—a—the girl."

Perhaps there was really no change in him. But the change in herself was so sudden and so shocking that Sheila was quite unable to fit anything smartly into her head.

"I say to myself that I never met any girl like this in my life," he went on, speaking always very seriously, almost fiercely, and looking at her across the folded arms, "cloud."

Boys were like this. They loved alternatives. And he was a boy.

"Well," he continued, "We have lunch together, we talk together, we go in swimming. It's Peter and Sheila right off the bat—an' I right?

"You'll say, I walked with you to your cabin, and you asked me after we swam." Peter, needing no encouragement, was continuing. "Right! I did. But all those cabins looked alike; I couldn't find it the next day. There were thousands of them!

"All right. This girl and I hit it off," he began again with gusto; "we like each other. We have dinner together, and we dance. Along about midnight I find myself telling her that I love her. I get me. And it was true, too! I said to that girl, 'You and me going to be married, Sheila. I'm coming to see you Tuesday night, and meet your folks, and just as soon as we get ready to tell them—'

"Tse, I know," Sheila interposed, scarlet-checked. "But—

"What a minute—we-ll a minute!" the boy said, with an upraised hand. "That's the last she hears of me, isn't it? And what does she think I am? Why, she thinks I'm a skunk!"

It was all vehemently delivered, with an air of honesty and determination. And somehow it only made her want to laugh—or to cry.

Sheila's face reflected a very rainbow of emotions as she sat there.

"Well, I come back to town, I try to find my girl, I can't be done," Peter summarized it impidly. "For while I'm all off my feed; I feel rotten. I get to walking up and down strange streets looking for her —no good.

"Well, all the time Gertrude's right in the picture, see? Just like one of my sisters—I mean," Peter interrupted himself, speaking more naturally, "I mean I've always like Gertrude. And she's always liked me. It was Mother who tipped me off. We were going to Forest Hills for the tennis, one day," Peter said, "how, don't you break Gert's heart on her, Peter?" Gert got as red as a beet. 'Ah!' I says to myself, 'that's the way land lies!' Well we fixed up everything that day, and everyone was glad, my father got me a job, and everything was fine."

Sheila thought that this time, on her way home, she would stop and get her one of those special cream cakes. She would wash her gloves and talk to Angela, and the dear familiar routine of Saturday afternoon would re-establish itself. And tonight, when she was going to sleep it would not be to an accompaniment of thoughts of Peter McCann.

No, he had talked himself out of her heart. It had been done quite simply, in the kindliest possible way. She was not losing him, she had never had him; no one had ever told the Peter of her dreams, because there never had been such a Peter.

Looking at him, the actual Peter, as she decided this, she was conscious of a sense of light-headedness.

"You're terribly pretty," he said, "and lots of fellers will fall for you. But I wanted you to know about me, well, I'm not the sort that says things—and things like I said that night—to a girl and doesn't mean them. That was the way I felt, the thought of the moment right at home —when I saw you.

"Well, a lot of fellers wouldn't have thought of that. They'd have thought, 'It was a long time ago; I was tight. Not me. I had to see you. I told Gert and Mother, you know.'

"You don't mean you were startled out of a musing dream that had carried her miles away; she was thinking that she might get Joe a tie like that for Christmas—

"I told them I'd met you last summer, and I thought you were fine, and that I'd no idea that things were going to end so, Peter.

He smiled at Sheila, and she smiled back. She felt humiliated and chastened and sweet; she wished herself miles away, but she would not see it. After all, it was of consequence, for in another five minutes he and she would part, and they would not see each other again.

So that's the way the whole thing came about!" he said, reliter.

"How much more he would have thought of me if I'd paid no attention to his note, and hadn't come here today," Sheila thought, stand ing, too.

"Gosh, it's after five!" he exclaimed, shocked into complete naturalness for the moment. "And I was to go to Joe Long's shop between half past four and five, and I have to meet Gertrude at the church! What do you know about that—four minutes past five!"

He stood up, and on the phone Sheila, following him, saw his expression change curiously.

"Why," he ejaculated simply, "it's locked."

"Stuck nothing! It's locked."

"Rattle it!"

He rattled it madly, and shouted "Hey! Listen! Say!"

There was silence on the other side. Complete, unbroken silence.

"Say!" he shouted.

"Isn't that funny——we're locked in!" Sheila said again.

"Funny!" He laughed abruptly, ruefully. "It's a heck of a note!" he said.

"We can get out," she observed quickly.

Oh, sure we can. Only——" He paused. "I suppose," he diverged, "they lock the old place up at five." "They must. But there'd be a caretaker or janitor or something some where 'round."

"Sure there would be."

"Probably they clean the place nights."

"This is Saturday night."

They investigated. Some fourteen or fifteen feet below them was a dirty, cindery roof, just the depth of one of the stories of the old building in which they were trapped. A fire-escape railings curved up over one edge of the roof; there was a tangle of chimneys, tanks, other roof levels about and below.

"We'd break our legs."

"Ockh!" he ejaculated, off for another feverish inspection of the room. "My mother's waiting for me now!"

"I know it!"

"I'm due at a party at seven!" the boy muttered.

He had returned to the door. It was a high door, deep-set and unpromising. It had been built in that long ago—time when solidity and permanence were considered in architecture. Even to the pressure of Peter's body it yielded not a quiver. Peter kicked it; it did not stir.

"Gosh, I'll bet there aren't ten doors like that in New York!" he exclaimed bitterly.

"The doors in our place—well, throw a silk shirt against 'em and they rattle!" Sheila observed, sympathetically.

Peter gave her a resentful glance. "It's all right for you!" he said, "But I'm a hell of a hole."

"Oh, we'll get out," she stated.

"All right, we'll get out. But how?

"Well——" she hesitated. "But you can't imagine our not getting out," she offered.

"I've got to get out!"

"Why, I don't seem to be a telephone—" Sheila remarked thoughtfully.

His glance explored the entire place.

"They might—Saturday night."

"They don't!" he said, in despair. "If we could just hear their the great room," he began again, after a pause in which Sheila, having opened the window upon the bleak winter evening, hag hung out of it all possible angles, to see if she could discover any means of escape.

"It's snowing!" the girl announced, restlessly, with soot on her cheeks as she drew in her head and slammed the window down again. "Whew-w-w! It's bitter, out there."

"Listen, if we could once get into that next room we could telephone! To your mother?"

"To the police."

Sheila's shaking frozen hands stopped short in horror. "We'd be in the tabloids!"

Sheila sat down, too.

"I don't know why it's so reasonable," she suggested. "There must be some way out. I never in my life heard of anyone ever getting locked up in a library before."

"Maybe there's a somebody in back office, below us here, who could hear us if we yelled."

They rushed to the window, opened it, hung out and shouted, in vain. Still and, inspected as well as they could the tiers of windows below them. There was no sign of light. Everything was deserted and dark and quiet in the early evening.

"It's six o'clock," Peter said, frantic.

The first look of personal uneasiness had appeared on his dust-streaked face.

"I've got to get out," she said.

"My mother'll have cat fits. If I'm away without letting her know; she gets awfully mad. She'll be fit to be tied!"

"Well, what do you think it is for me?" Peter demanded sullenly.

They flung themselves on the door for three unavailing minutes that seemed like half an hour. Then they gave up, both boy and girl disheveled, panting, their hands sore, their tempers hot. Saint Peter's sounded Angelus, and Sheila's lips moved automatically on the last quiete words.

"It's growing like mad, it's blizzarding," she said, as the window.

"Well," Peter said. "Here we are. Where do we go from here?"

The dangling light burned on starkly in its gentle revelry on the long cord sent queer shapes and shadows plunging about the moldy, high-walled old room. Outside the window a blizzard beat steadily in flakes of snow were tinged with pink from the dim street glare behind them.

Snow muffled the world; snow piled at last on the broad window-sills. The room began to get very cold, and smelled more than ever of dust and rubber and old bindings.

"That's what they've done, all right."

Then there's nobody here, Saturday and Sundays."

A long pause. They looked at each other.

CHAPTER 10

"Well, it doesn't matter," Peter said, "because I don't know that up my folks will get in touch with the police."

"Don't put our names in the papers!" Sheila answered.

"Not if my father gets on the job He has 'em all in his pocket. If I could only get out of here in time for that party," Peter went on, restlessly, "I could square it with Gert fast enough. Mother wouldn't care, anyway. But if they have to call off the party——

"Call it off?" she repeated ah he paused, sowing.

"Try. You see, it's for Gert and me, and there's going to be a hundred people there. That'd be a heck of a note!" he muttered.

"I hate to think of Mamma!" Sheila presently said suddenly.

"Well, gosh, imagine if you were going to be married on Tuesday!"

She looked at him levelly.

"I'd still hate to think of Mamma, worrying," she repeated coldly.

A sneeze spoiled the effect of her speech, and Sheila, drawing her coat closer about her, observed wistfully that she could eat a good dinner this very minute.

"I could eat a horse!" Peter said. "Look here, we've got to calmly, after another long interval. "We've got to drop out of this window, somehow. We could easily frame to slush in here before they found us—"

"Oh, don't!" Sheila whispered, terrified, shrill.

"Well, I tell you we could. We haven't got anything to eat in it's only seven o'clock now—they might not find us until Monday morning—"

"Oh please!"

He was at the window, the girl beside him. They opened it, and a rush of, cold snowy air swept into the room, and made them stagger and gasping.

Peter shut the window; there was again an unearthly languor and quietness in the suddenly quieted place.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

As the last horseman disappeared, a swift change He threw back his head, his great chest expanded came over "Big Bwana." Leaping upward, he caught a lower branch and drew himself into the tree. His movements were cat-like and agile. High into the upper branches he made his way and there commenced to divest himself of his clothing. From the game bag slung across one shoulder he drew a strip of doe-skin, a neatly coiled rope, and a wicked looking knife. When he stood erect a grim smile touched his lips.

and his nostrils dilated as he sniffed the jungle air. His grey eyes narrowed. Crouching, he leaped to a lower limb and swung rapidly away into the jungle. Moving swiftly, he stopped only occasionally to raise his voice in a weird and piercing scream—and to listen for a reply. Several hours later, he heard, far off, a faint response. His nerves tingled. It was a bull-ape answering his cr-

Korak, finally becoming convinced that he must die if he remained where he was, spoke to Tantor in the strange tongue the elephant understood. He commanded the great beast to lift him and carry him toward the northeast. As Tantor bore him along Korak called aloud now and then in the hope of attracting Akut's band of apes, whose wanderings often brought them into this neighborhood. "Akut," he thought, "may possibly be able to unlock the knots."

It was worth trying at least—better than lying there in the jungle until he perished. The great ape had freed him from similar bonds upon that other occasion when the Russian had imprisoned Korak, years before in far off London. Traveling thus, alternately listening and calling, his heart beat faster as, far off in the jungle, he heard a welcome, hideous cry. Akut to the south of him had heard and was coming! There was another who heard them, too.

C.P.R. FAILS TO OUST WOOLER

Wooler Defeats C. P. R. 8-3 and Can Still Win Playoff Berth

Trenton, Aug. 3 (Special)—The C.P.R. failed to oust Wooler from the playoffs in last night's game here when Wooler beat them eight to three. Had the railroaders won their game the Leafs would have been out of the running, but as it is each still have a chance to tie for third place. Wooler has another game with the Continentals which they are liable to drop, which will give the C.P.R. third place. Free was hauling for Wooler and appeared to be in good form. The entire Leafs team are a hard aggregation to beat. Redcliffe at short is perhaps the best in the league, he is been a long day since one set by that boy. Rochfax was behind the bat for Wooler last night in place of Tor, who has a split finger. Norris did the pitching for the C.P.R. using the clutrre route. He is a little inclined to be wild but in another year should develop a real pitcher as he has plenty of speed. Kennedy the hard hitting left fielder for the C.P.R. was somewhat off his game last night making two bad errors each costing them a couple of runs. Robinson in centre field was just the opposite catching them no matter where they came as long as they were in the outfield.—Ross Burnett stood on behind the plate and was burnt nearly in the game and was replaced by the regular catcher Steenburg. The C.P.R. attempted their old habit of bunting the ball, which won them the game against Wooler the last time they played but the old trick didn't combine were ready for them and soon broke it up.

Lineups:

Wooler—Sutton c; Steenburg rf; Putnam If; Stacey 2nd; Whitney 1st; Rowan cf; Redcliffe ss; Free p; Tor c; Rochfax c.

CONTINENTALS SHOWED FORM

C.P.R. Team Taken For 14-4 Loss and Showed Further Down

Trenton, Aug. 3 (Special)—The Continentals showed their superiority over the rest of the teams in the league here on Saturday night when they drubbed the C.P.R. to the tune of 14 to 4. The C. P. R. have been fighting hard for a place in the playoffs and have been running in a real board of ball but failed to take the insurance men, who should win the league handily, if the Shannocks now take a real slump. The Railroaders are running neck and neck with Wooler for third place and both teams are fighting hard to secure the berth, which will put them in the playoffs. Culverson was in the box for the Continentals and he is improving every game. This boy is no doubt the best pitcher in the league. With his speed if he were able to control it now and then he would have them all breaking their backs with a change of pace. During the game he was able to get eight strikeouts against a hard hitting bunch like the C.P.R. It is an enviable record. Burt started out on the mound for the C.P.R. but was unable to stay two innings, when he was replaced by Ernie Bowen, while Ernie pitches a fair brand of ball, the Continentals are used to his style of pitching somewhat by his effectiveness. Jack Ried, the backstop for the Continentals has been certainly hitting the old ball in the last month, pulling a home run with two on in the fourth. Cook in centre field for Crowe is a boy who can go and get them, he robbed Begin of a sure homer in the fourth when Ken hit one for a ride into the bay which Cook caught by reaching back to the edge of the shore, jumping high in the air and snared it. Kennedy for the C.P.R. proved his effectiveness in being able to break up a ball game, when a hit is needed, hitting a three bagger with three on in the seventh. Both are now tied for the home runs than any other man in the league but he was a little behind in getting started on Saturday night. Both teams pulled a double play in the sixth.

Line-ups:

CANADA RUNS TWO THREE IN 800 METRES

Hampson of England Wins In Close Empire Clean Sweep

EDWARDS FLASHY

Hilda Strike Montreal is Second to Stella Walsh in 100 Metres

Olympic Stadium, Los Angeles, Aug. 3—Old Phil Edwards of British Canada, is now a "grand a has-been" as Olympic sports have ever seen, now Tuesday from the flowery grave which track experts had pointed him to and paved the way for one of the greatest record-smashing battles in all Olympiad history.

Tall and slight and with a stride longer than that of almost any runner in the world, the Negro collegian set an unheard pace in the final of the 800 metres as the two conquerors, bespectacled Tom Hampson of England, and Phil Edwards of Montreal, who raced into the finishing tape side by side with Hampson the victor.

It was Edwards who bloodied the pace.

The two-three finish of Canadians in the 800 metres—an all-round triumph for the British—was the feature, enhanced in the 100 metre dash by Hilda Strike, of Montreal, who placed second behind Stella Walsh, Polish American speedster, who equalled her own world record of 11 1-10 seconds in the race. Miss Walsh ran for Poland.

Edwards Paces Record

The finish Edwards engineered for the 800 metres brought a crowd of 50,000 wildly to its feet as Hampson, English school master, who has been running only four years, dashed down the stretch in a thrilling duel with Wilson and the gangling Negro. Edwards was caught in the nine minute, 49 4-5 seconds, the most remarkable time for the distance ever recorded.

Wilson was a foot behind Hampson at the finish, Edwards a little back of the fair-haired Montreal youth. Eddie Genung, United States, was fourth; Edwin Turner, United States, fifth; Charles Hornwood, United States, sixth; John Powell, Great Britain, seventh; Sera Martin, Peru, eighth, and Erik Backman, Finland, ninth.

Hampson, English school boy at 800 metres in the 1928 games, and popularly supposed to have been his best year in first class competition, Edwards, went to the mark Tuesday as the favorite to win, however to place well. The crowd cheered as Hampson, Wilson and the first American trio warmed up.

Hampson, whose feet belonged to Edwards until the race had reached the final stretch, was content to let the colored veteran shot into the lead at the first turn and sprinted only when he was forced. He was caught in 22 and 2-5 seconds at the first quarter.

Bunched in Stretch

Edwards was six yards in front of Genung as he flashed past the quarter mile mark. Hampson and Wilson was in third place and Hampson was in fourth position. Phil's ebony legs continued to work the pistons, driving even harder down the long lap, but Hampson caught Edwards far down the back stretch and then Hampson forged in front of Wilson. The three were bunched in the stretch as they came home stretch.

The crowd expected Edwards to fall back exhausted from the terrific pace he had set, but at this point the dusky Guianan put on steam. Hampson and Wilson were unable to shake off Edwards. Momentarily Wilson drew up on even terms with the Negro and tugged with him for, but Hampson got back his foot advantage and drove across the finish line ahead. They finished in a bunch.

Hampson's 1.49 4-5 broke Sera Martin's world record of 1.50 3-5 and Wilson's 1.50 4-5 was another new mark at 1.51 4-5.

The 100 metre title confiscated yesterday by Eddie Tolan, United States Negro, Percy William withdrew yesterday from the race because he ran in the 100 and was not in condition for more competition.

Just to show appreciation for Williams' gift, four sprinters broke the Olympic record of 31 3-5 seconds in leading the way to the semi-finals. Ray Ralph Metcalfe, colored American star, lowered the mark to 31 4-10 in the first of the second round heats. Tolan equalled this in the second. C. Rai of Argentina brought the time down to 31 2-5 in the third heat and Arthur Jonath, German, duplicated the feat in the fourth.

Pearson and Wright

Both Bert Pearson and Harold Wright reached the semi-finals safely. Pearson was second to Toppino, just behind the little colored flash who won the shorter sprint Monday. Wright was second in the heat won by Jonath, the Canadians seemed more at home over the longer dash course.

Wright captured his first round heat, easing up in 22 2-5, and Pearson won his in 22 3-10.

Little Bob Rankine of Preston, Ont., qualified for the 5,000 metre final, finishing fifth in the second preliminary heat. Rankine led the field for four laps and only gave way when he was assured a qualifying place. James Burns of Great Britain won the heat in 15.35 4-5. The first seven qualified.

Thrown in with a group of high class hurdlers in his preliminary heat, Art. Thomas of Cobourg, Ont., was eliminated. He finished fourth to Percy Beard, United States; Rod Harper, Great Britain and E. Wegner, Germany. Beard was caught in 14 7-10 seconds for the 110 metre route.

Presqu'Ile Point, July 3 (Special) —About fifty members of the Campbellford Rotary Club motored here on Thursday afternoon to enjoy an evening's entertainment. A blue Pontiac sedan came to grief just after crossing the narrow bridge to the mainland on the way to Brighton some time Tuesday afternoon. Apparently having crossed the bridge at too great a speed, it failed to negotiate the turn on the other side, and went over on its side in the mud. The occupants slightly shaken, but no serious damage was done to the car or passengers.

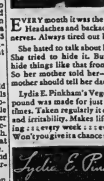
Twenty three Sea Scouts are in the group which spent the week end or day for a two weeks holiday. Of these sixteen are from the centre of their organization, made the journey by the water, one group of them in a small sloop taking seven hours to make the trip. In spite of the unfortunate loss of their cook tent, they are enjoying their stay. The group is in charge of Mr. Richens.

On the softball game played Thursday afternoon the Belleville Sea Scouts lost to Trenton Scouts the score 26 to 10. They have promised themselves that they will get revenge in a return match on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nesbitt and family of Brighton are spending several weeks at their summer home here.



Several of the Sea Scouts hitchhiked to Belleville on Wednesday, making the trip and return in good time. Others of the group have been amusing themselves sailing on the bay and swimming.

Wednesday was a very quiet day here. Pouring rain in the threatening weather the usual crowd of picnickers was absent, only a few of the faithful bathers were out over a good crowd attended the dance in the evening.

A Quarrel Ends Suddenly

Most quarrels are without excuse. Why quarrel, then? Pray what's the use?

—Old Mother Nature

Old Mr. Toad and Grandfather Frog are cousins. Both were born in the Smiling Pool. Both were tadpoles there and with others grew up through the tadpole stage to little Toads and Frogs. It was then that Old Mr. Toad, a very tiny Toad then, no tiny that he could ride under the smallest leaf, left the Smiling Pool and started out to see the Great World. Thousands of other little Toads did the same thing. In fact there were no Toads left in the Smiling Pool. But Grandfather Frog, who was then a baby Frog in the Smiling Pool. He had the handsomest green coat you ever saw, and the sweetest and loudest voice, and he had the best opinion of himself of any Frog in the Smiling Pool.

When Old Mr. Toad returned Grandfather Frog made fun of him and pretended to believe that he hadn't succeeded out in the Great World and had had to return to his old home in the Smiling Pool. In vain Old Mr. Toad protested that he had returned because his children might be born in the same place that he had been born, and that the Great World was a very wonderful place for those smart enough to make a place for themselves there. Then he slyly hinted that those who never went out into the Great World knew nothing of it and were glad to leave home. Grandfather Frog had lost his temper.

So this quarrel had been renewed each spring all through the years that Toads quarrel between two cousins who were old enough to know better; to know how futile and foolish such quarrels are and how nothing ever is to be gained from them. The truth of the matter is they enjoyed quarrelling with people are that way. And the older the quarrel the more they enjoy it. Old Mr. Toad wouldn't have felt that he had been to the Smiling Pool if he hadn't seen Grandfather Frog and had some words with him. And Grandfather Frog would have felt that the entire summer had been spoiled for him if he hadn't had a go in by telling Old Mr. Frog what he thought of him.

Now nearly Old Mr. Toad admired Grandfather Frog's handsome green coat and envied him his beautiful voice, and secretly the great leaps he could take for such a little fellow he had not for the world would he have let Grandfather Frog know it. And Grandfather Frog envied Old Mr. Toad, his travels back in the Great World and the sweetness of his spring song, but not for the world would he have let Old Mr. Toad know it.

So it was that this beautiful morning in early June they had started in their old quarrel and had almost reached the point of calling each other names which is when you think of it, such an utterly silly thing to do. Grandfather Frog had just opened his big mouth to tell Old Mr. Toad in very plain language what he thought of him, when he closed it suddenly and at the same time, made a high beautiful dive through the water to the bottom, in his eagerness he lowered into his head to be out of the way and little bubbles of air came up from him. Old Mr. Toad could see it all from where he sat and could dive between some grasses that quite hid him.

A shadow swept over him. He looked up to see Mr. Marsh Hawk sail over the Smiling Pool with a look of disappointment in his face. "I'm glad Grandfather Frog saw him in time," muttered Old Mr. Toad.

BRAKES LOCK CAUSES SPILL

Minor Crashes Near Trenton Over Holiday But no One Injured

Trenton, Aug. 3 (Special)— On Friday evening a bear tragedy took place at the corner of Dundas and Front Streets, when Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Crandell, Prince Edward attempted to make a turn off Dundas on to Dufferin Ave. in their horse and buggy. Mr. William Kalpakian of 4035 Catherine Street, Montreal, driving a new Buick sedan was coming each on Dundas and seeing Crandell swing over on the left side to make the turn seeing that he could not get through he pulled well over to his left, when Crandell became excited and pulled back over in the path of the car Mr. Kalpakian pulled over as far as possible to avoid hitting the buggy going up over the left mouth, but struck it a glancing blow taking of one wheel and breaking both shafts. Fortunately neither the horse nor the other vehicle other than badly shaken up.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Wm. Hartley of 1504 Waverley Avenue, while driving a sedan car accompanied by his wife and three children on highway number 2 about a mile east of Trenton, Mr. Hartley was returning to Detroit and on coming west saw a buggy parked off the highway in which Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. Harry, Applied the brakes to stop as there was a car approaching in the opposite direction. On applying his brakes they locked and the car swerved over in the path of the other car, driven by Mr. Daniel Sullivan of Trenton in which were his wife and three children. His son Walter aged 13 was out over the nose striking an old scar, which bled profusely. Both cars were badly damaged and had to be removed with wrecking cranes.

The pharmacist has much less faith for his skill and knowledge than patients, it is known, for physicians increasingly prescribe medicines in terms of trade names instead of ingredients to be compounded.

HORSES ABANDONED AFTER ESCAPE

Trusty Slain as Septette Escape From Prison in Arkansas Early Tuesday Morning After Destroying Weapons

Tucker Prison Farm, Ark., Aug. 4 —Four convicts were killed and three wounded in a daring break from a prison camp stockade and a subsequent gun battle between the fugitives and officers today.

Seven convicts, one of whom killed a trusty serving as a guard at the stockade here, were surrounded by officers a few miles from the prison and three were shot to death. Two were wounded and two others surrendered.

Tucker Prison Farm, Ark., Aug. 4 —One guard was killed and another was slightly wounded and all firearms and ammunition in the camp were seized or destroyed, in the escape of seven convicts from Camp No. 2 of the Tucker Prison Farm early today.

The convicts abandoned horses on which they fled shortly after midnight. They took with them several guns and a supply of ammunition after disabling all other guns at the camp.

Included in the group was a life termer, Edward Wakefield, whom prison officials say is a desperate character.

Slaying of Trusty

R. G. Jones, a trusty, who was blamed by the authorities for organizing the flight and killing Elza Howell, the trusty serving as a guard, was one of those wounded.

Howell, a crack rifle shot, was also to death when he related attempts of the escaping convicts to take his rifle.

They seized what guns and ammunition they could carry and dismantled all other firearms at the camp before fleeing on horse.

FEAR SETBACK AFTER HEAVY BULL MARKET

Rises of Six to Seven Points Cut Off at Noon

PROFIT-TAKING

Fifty Per Cent Rise in Few Days is Thought Too Good

New York, Aug. 4—The bull market in stocks rolled up further impressive advances in the stock market today, before the interest of profit taking became great enough to bring a substantial setback.

Price averages at the peak of the session were 4 points higher than in quoted value since the lows of a few weeks ago or about 50 per cent. Improvement in the money market history for a like period of time, it was taking on an astonishing. Extreme gains of 2 to 6 points in many issues were about cut in half, as the list slipped off after the middle of the day.

Loses Half Gain

Allied Chemical about up about 6 points, then lost about half. A point rise carried American Telephone across par, or about 3 points above the year's low, but it slipped off a couple of points from the top. U. S. Steel lost most of an extreme gain of more than 5. Standard Oil of N.J. rose 2 points to 33¾, the highest price of 1932, before the afternoon set off.

Miscellaneous issues up 2 or 3 points at the top included Coca-Cola, Union Pacific, Dupont, Drug, Allerican Water Works, North American, Case, International Harvester, American Can, American Tobacco, Eastman Kodak, Westinghouse Electric, and others.

The rate of advance in shares since early July has surpassed even the most optimistic of estimates.

The recent phases of the advance have been helped by growing bullishness on commodities, notably wheat. A number of miscellaneous stocks have been sweeping higher. Today saw good gains in such items as rubber, lead, and in the Chicago market, butter and eggs. Copper was a little firmer.

Press Says Specific Tariffs and Debts Ruled Out of Parley

London Express Says World Economic Parley Opens —Way to Discussion Only of "Prohibition, Baseball and the Weather" But the Herald is Satisfied General Tariff Question is Not Barred.

London, Aug. 4—(AP)—Acceptance by United States of the invitation to the forthcoming World Economic Conference brought editorial expressions of satisfaction in the London morning newspapers today, tempered with reports that certain topics, including specific tariffs and international debts, had been ruled out.

The Express after enumerating the excluded topics said there leaves prohibition, baseball and the weather."

"The participation of the United States is the vital fact," said the Telegraph. "The whole project of the conference would hardly have merited consideration otherwise."

The Herald welcomed the acceptance as "extremely satisfactory." It said it believed the exclusions would prevent the conference being fully effective, but was gratified that, as it understood, the discussion of tariff policy generally was not excluded, although the consideration of individual rates was barred.

"A world conference that excluded consideration of tariffs would be a complete absurdity", the Herald said.

Tangible Results of Conference Foreseen Issue Early Next Week

CANADA NOT HOLDING UP CONFERENCE

Canada Asks in Return Increased Preferences on Wheat, Meats, Bacon, Dairy Products, Fish, Copper, Fruit, Vegetables

OTTAWA, August 4.—Five of the nine delegations to the Imperial Conference have now come to handgrips with actuality. Australia, India Canada and South Africa have each begun to negotiate, or are definitely entitled to negotiate, with Great Britain.

Among themselves the Dominions have also had conversation in which the realities of trade agreements have been involved. Observers here look for tangible results to issue some time next week.

Canada's Offer

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)

OTTAWA, August 4.—Canada formally submitted her offer to Great Britain today. She offered additions to the free list. She is ready to give a wider spread of preference as between British and foreign goods.

No one is holding up the conference, the Press was informed. Privately, as conversations between the different delegations developed, matters arose which had been left over from the preliminaries required looking into, but that did not mean delay on the part of any delegation.

Everything is going "extremely well", the Press was informed. No ill-feeling of any kind had been shown, feelings were most congenial, and there were "no rows or quarrels."

Increase In Trade

Canada's offer will, it is calculated, mean from $100,000,000 to $300,000,000 more British goods each year for Canada. These goods are now largely bought from foreign countries.

What Canada asks from Great Britain in return figures out at approximately the same amount.

British goods covered by the new offer include iron and steel, anthracite coal, certain lines of textiles—although it is understood, textiles are not heavily involved—electrical goods. The textile industry is regarded as one entitled to reasonable protection, particularly certain lines of leather goods, electrical supplies, automobiles.

Iron and Steel

Iron and steel figure largely in the trade which Canada offers to divert to British channels. Last year Canada imported $200,000,000 worth of iron and steel, largely from the United States. Only ten per cent. of these imports came from the United Kingdom, and last year was a depression year. Canada's normal imports of iron and steel run to the tune of $350,000,000.

In return for her offer, Canada asks that Great Britain new or increased preferences on a range of products, including wheat, meats, shelling bacon, dairy products including butter and cheese, fish, copper, nickel, zinc, lead, cattle, vegetables, fruits.

Offer Well Received

In the Canadian view, Great Britain can buy within the Empire much under these heads that she now buys from foreigners. Canadian purchases from Russia for instance total around $150,000,000 a year. British sales to Russia total by comparison only from $3,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year.

AVIATRIX TELLS OF LOVE NEST

Mrs. Keith-Miller on Stand For Over 3 Hours

Miami, Fla., Aug. 4—Crowds were drawn today to the trial of Captain W. N. Lancaster, former British army flyer for the murder of Haden Clarke, his rival in the affections of Mrs. Jessie K. Keith-Miller.

Mrs. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, who was Lancaster's fiying partner and once his fiancee, was called back to the witness stand for cross-examination after a three and one-half hour session in which she told of her love for the aviator and Clarke by whom she became engaged as he wrote a story of her life.

She said she had loved and admired Lancaster, and planned for almost five years to marry him. Then she told of her sudden infatuation for Clarke, during Lancaster's absence on a business trip and of how she decided to change and to marry.

Woven through her story were accounts of contemplated suicides as an end to the difficulties—financial and emotional—of the three.

She described the efforts of the three living together in her house here—to eke out a living; how Lancaster went to the Bahamas in an attempt to earn money in an aviation venture; how she and Clarke started writing her life story in the hope it might be sold.

At intervals she said hunger made the men go forth to return with chickens and rabbits from unexplained sources.

Mrs. Keith-Miller today faced cross questioning regarding the action of the two men in the night before Clarke was found mysteriously shot in his bedroom at her home last April.

PREDICTS AUGUST HOT AND DRY

"Summer might be half gone, but we haven't seen any heat yet to what we will during the coming few weeks," declared the weather oracle today as he poured over some of the charts and recorded the day's temperature. Old Mother Nature so far this season.

Several months ago it was predicted, that any heat we would have would come during the latter part of the season. So far it has been exceptionally cool and wet. By crust, this district has had an average of five rainy days during each month. Now, to finish the forecast for the remainder of the summer, the oracle predicts that August will be very hot, most of September will be, and the remainder of the season dry.

SKETCH MADE BY YOUTHFUL PARIS ARTIST

A framed personal sketch is now in the window of The James Trail. It was drawn and signed recently in Paris and shows how young artists there practise for their daily bread until in time they become famous and their clouds of glory after them throughout the ages. The circumstances connected with this drawing were fully explained in the letter by Mr. G. M. James from Paris recently published in The Ontario Intelligencer.

AIR MAIL TIME ACROSS ATLANTIC

Ottawa, Aug. 4—Possibilities of even greater rapidity in the transportation of trans-Atlantic mails than the present established yesterday formed the subject of comment today among delegates of the Irish Free State to the Imperial Conference here. A postal agreement embodying details of the Irish Free State and Great Britain was reached yesterday, the possibilities of the future."

The new boats could be chipped off the three days and 22 hours record between London and Montreal, making the time service practically a matter of three days and a half.

Dog Follows Master off Plane Wing Two Parachute Separately to Earth

St. Catharines, Ont., Aug. 4. —Carl, four year old silver gray police dog of Harold Brooker, Niagara Falls, Ontario, upheld all the traditions of faithful dogdom this morning when he followed his master from the wing of an aeroplane in the first dog parachute jump known.

Carl wore a separate "chute" and floated gracefully to earth, making a four point landing and only a few feet away from Brooker. When the handful of spectators reached Brooker and his dog they were wagging his tail enthusiastically and Brooker was gazing with satisfaction at the dog's performance.

Long weeks of preparation carried on in secret preceded the jump. David Imrie, air engineer of the Toronto Island Flying Club, who piloted the plane used by Brooker, designed a special harness for the dog. A leather collar fitted snugly about his neck to which was attached the wide webbing which circled his body. Three two rings he was attached by ropes to his parachute. The ropes were carefully measured so that when the dog left with Brooker when he stepped from the wing he could slide to earth safely in the machine.

FALSE MOVE IS DEATH CAUSE

Reaching For Hip Pocket Patrolman Shoots Motorist

New York, August 4. — Ralph Richards lost his life today because he made a false move.

He reached for his hip pocket as Patrolman Joseph Kelly ordered him out of an automobile last night to answer for a $13 robbery. Kelly shot him in the stomach, and he died early today.

Richards, a Half brother of Vincent Richards, Tennis Star, led three other convicts to liberty from Eastview Penitentiary July 16. He thwarted the "escape-proof" locks by mechanically inserting a leather strip in the lock of his cell so that it would not close but would register as closed on a central indicator. He had a long police record.

ASSESSMENT IS LOWERED

C.D.S. Appeals Against Valuation and Lowered $5,000

Picton, Ont., Aug. 4.—(Special)—W. S. Lane, acting for Canadian Department Stores Ltd., appealed against the assessment placed on Picton store by the town assessor. The appeal was heard by Judge Mc-Lean on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. F. L. Ward, appearing for the Town of Picton, called witnesses appeared both for C.D.S. and the town, including three from being H., B. Bristol, Mr. Gordon Hamilton, Mr. Vanuxler, K. D. Norman and Mr. McCurdy, assistant manager of C.D.S. The assessment was lowered from $30,000 to $25,000. The witness gave many instances of the drop in the business sites of the town, indicating the fall in value due to the depression period.

BOLIVIA DOES NOT REFUSE

League of Nations Informed by S. A. Republic

Geneva, Switzerland, August 4.—(AP)—Bolivia's statement that she "does not refuse" recourse to arbitration in the dispute with Paraguay was reached the League of Nations Secretary today after a delay in transmission. Bolivia made a note from Paraguay giving further details of recent events in Gran Chaco. Paraguay already has assented to the League's proposal to arbitrate. There is some doubt here whether both those countries take the same view of arbitration. It is believed that Bolivia would limit discussion to the question of territory which Paraguay would enter into the merits of the dispute.

WATERWAYS PROBLEM FOR BUFFALONIANS

Unfavorable Attitude Towards River Development

SIX QUESTIONS

Lake Transportation And Oceangoing Under Survey

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 4—An extraordinary headache into the lifelong relationship of Buffalo and Great Lakes transportation. Whether it will develop into an open break will depend largely on the attitude of the Chamber of Commerce toward the proposed new waterway, to be announced within the next few weeks.

No concerted opposition to the waterway has developed yet, but immediately after the treaty was signed, leaders of the Great Lakes shipping industry here voiced their disapproval.

Yesterday the special waterways committee of the Chamber of Commerce discussed the project for two hours behind closed doors and planned a more detailed survey than any it has yet made that survey will consider the problem of why, for the first time in a century, a water transportation project is being received unfavorably here.

Six Questions

The committee is expected to meet again in about ten days, the survey will answer six outstanding questions. The answers will be made public, and on them will de-

HEAT VATICAN PALACES WITH ELECTRICITY

Vatican City, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Pope Pius has decided to heat the Vatican palaces, including his own apartment, by electricity, from a new plant, oil-burning electric plant, and to enlarge the power house built in Vatican City two years ago.

His heating, Franco Rasini, who previously was appointed consulting engineer without pay, convinced the Pontiff of the desirability of modernizing the plant. Besides increasing the light and heating facilities, the new plant will be used to supply the Vatican City fountains.

There is some doubt here whether both those countries take the same view of arbitration. It is believed that Bolivia would limit discussion to the question of territory which Paraguay would enter into the merits of the dispute.

Why Learn Number of Your Car Markers?, They're There to Look at

This week's prize for asinine question of the week should go to Mr. Herbert Neely, of New York, now on tour with his new refrigerator, and yet the story is plausible.

Mr. Neely was accompanied by his wife and children, entered the city central camp with the intention of staying the night. He was greeted by the caretaker, of paper and came back and copied them in the book. Everything that they had put down for Mr. Neely had had no occasion to remember the number of his car and never took the trouble to learn them.

With a sweeping flourish of pen, Mr. Neely filled in the blank spaces on the book. He came to the item of his car. It came number. Then there was a long pause. He hemmed and hawed and scratched his head. Finally he dropped the pen, took a run out to the car, thanked down the numbers on a piece

The first game of the play-offs was won by the Canniffton aggregation. The third and deciding game will be played at Canniffton on Friday evening, when the same two teams meet again.

FAILS TO STOP AFTER COLLISION

The first hit and run driver of the season was reported to the local district office of the Provincial Police early Thursday morning when Wendell Hicks of Canniffton, reported to the police that his car had been struck by another car, near Glenn Ross the previous evening.

Mr. Kellar related to the police that while driving his car in the vicinity of Glen Ross about 9.30 p.m. Wednesday evening, he was struck by another car coming from the opposite direction. In the collision the left rear wheel of the Kellar car was damaged and fell off the axle. The other car failed to stop and Mr. Kellar was unable to ascertain the number of the car. The case is being investigated by the Motor Patrol Police.

CARS COLLIDE AT INTERSECTION

Colliding at the corner of Pinnacle, and Station streets, a truck driven by a woman in search of the city, collided with a touring car driven by Murray Reddick, R. R. No. 7, Belleville damaging both vehicles considerably.

Police Constable Izard was called to the scene of the accident and found, that the truck had been driving the truck south on Station St., while the Reddick car had been proceeding north on Pinnacle St., and was turning west on Station street when the accident occurred. The collision took place at the centre of the intersection. Later the damages were settled between the two parties concerned and no police action was taken.

POLICE WATCH FOR MOTORCAR

The local police department have been informed of the theft of a Willys Knight sedan from Smiths Falls. The sedan was alleged to have been stolen by two men last Wednesday evening. The men are described as being medium build. One was slightly cross-eyed and wore a suit of blue combination overalls while the other wore a dark suit of clothes. The licence number of the stolen car was said to be LC-240. The car was supposedly heading west.

NO FIRE LOSS IN CITY IN JULY

Climaxing unusually low monthly averages of fire loss since the beginning of the year, the month of July which has just passed has set a precedent for all time, topping all previous monthly records in the memory of the force. Out of a total of, nine alarms sent in to the department during the last month not one dollar of fire loss in the city has been recorded. Periodic inspections of all premises throughout the city by Fire Chief W. Lynch and his assistants, and splendid cooperation by citizens and merchants has done much to create this most favorable record the city now holds.

SIGNS POINT TO AN EARLY FALL

In keeping with the first few scattered leaves dropping from the trees, posters of Fall fairs being established throughout Ontario, and other signs of a fast receding season, several Canada geese have been sighted flying south. Early this morning, Mr. Richard Elsworth, driver for a local transport concern, sighting the wild geese flying low across No. 2 highway, near the rifle butts east of the city. Nearly a dozen of them comprised the flock, which were headed south east over the bay. Blackbirds in the district are also said to have been congregating.

TOURIST SEASON REACHES PEAK

Tourist season at the city camp has now reached the highest point of the summer, with an average of a dozen or so separate parties making a stop at the camp each night. Many more of them take occasion to stop at the camp during the day and prepare meals. During the month of July 375 cars, each containing from three to five persons made a stop at the camp and registered in the book. Addresses; which were given on the registration card, in fact, that continental tours have become the accepted thing with a number of tourists. Many of the tourists are repeaters, having visited the camp before. During the present month of August forty cars have registered up to August 3rd. Nearly all remarks written in the book were in the caretaker, Mr. Black, show—an appreciation of the camp and services rendered, while located.

No. As before stated many see well in spite of their eyes of vision.

Obituary

LATE MRS. ADELAIDE LONT

The funeral of the late Mrs. Adelaide Lont took place Wednesday afternoon from the residence of her grandson, Mr. R. Fox, 1st concession of Ameliasburg. Rev. R. D. Mullin of Bloomfield officiated by the Rev. R. J. Irwin of Toronto, a former pastor of the deceased conducted the service at the home and at the grave of interment in Asbury cemetery. A large gathering of relatives and friends from throughout the countryside were in attendance as a tribute of respect to the memory of Prince Edward County's oldest residents and as an expression of sympathy for those bereaved. The many beautiful floral offerings further testified to these sentiments.

Canada Has Got Britain is In

Ottawa, Aug. 4—In poker parlance Canada has opened the "pot," the United Kingdom has "come in" and both are going to draw cards. This illuminating simile was brought out by interrogation during the press conference here today, when the announcement was made that definite proposals had been made by Canada to Great Britain.

"I know you don't know what you have got," the deck of interrogators replied.

"Oh, the British always stay," was the reply, "and we are not going to draw cards.

TAX PAYMENT RUSH LIGHTER

Many Taxpayers Have Already Paid First Instalment

Death and taxes are unescapable. Probably this same knowledge that the necessary payments cannot be evaded is responsible for the fact that there was no actual last minute rush at the City Hall Thursday morning to pay taxes on the last day allowed. Without having an extra five per cent added for tardiness. Last minute rushes might have been observed on payment of other accounts ranging all the way from dog tax to public utilities, but city taxes are something else again.

"While it is too early to state whether or not payments this year will be larger than last, we believe they will be," stated officials of the tax department who are too busy to take much time to make vague guesses. "So far everything has been alright. After we get time to check up a little we'll know more about it."

All morning long files of citizens were seen at the counter in the tax department of the city hall. Busy clerks took the money and handed out receipts, but the rush which was expected was not as heavy as the few preceding days when even the lower steps were crowded with men and women of all ages anxious to pay and get away. While a good many of the lineup admitted that it had been necessary to scrape and save for a long time to get enough together to satisfy the account, there was a spirit of optimism and cheerfulness apparent not generally associated with the payment of money in any manner.

TRANSFERRED TO ALBANY

Albany, N.Y., Aug. 3.—The Readi-Bell League will be transferred to Albany Saturday, it was announced here last night. Buffalo will play that date.

PASSES BUGGY STRIKES A CAR

Drivers of Both Cars Use Excellent Judgment

Failing to observe a horse and buggy, which were directly in front of him and about to make a turn, Ernest Smith, 27 Station St. driving west on highway No 2, 4 miles west of Belleville, suddenly pulled out to pass the horse drawn vehicle and collided, nearly head-on with a car driven by Ralph Smith of Wellington street also of Belleville.

Mr. Robinson pulled to the south side of the road trying to avoid hitting the buggy from the rear, but he pulled directly into the path of the oncoming Smith car, which was proceeding on its own side of the road, in an eastwardly direction. Both drivers were quite cool and collected and a serious motor accident was avoided as they might have collided head-on had the drivers not used plenty of judgment in the seeing that no accident was inevitable.

The accident was investigated by the Traffic Officer, who found, that the front ends of both cars were considerably damaged, while the left rear wheel of the buggy was broken off.

ARE RIVALS FOR BOTTOM PLACE IN BALL LEAGUE

CARRYING PLACE — Rivalry between Consecon and Carrying Place for the doubtful honour of holding bottom position in the Ameliasburg Softball League reached a head in their game here on Thursday evening, when Consecon trounced their rivals 12-1. It was not that open rioting broke out, although there was a slight fracas between a Consecon fan and a local fan after the game had terminated but rather the absence of that spirit of sportsmanship which should be exhibited when any two teams meet. Because Carrying Place had been given their licence, Consecon fans seemed to feel that they must win at any cost, and the rasping and "ranting" which they gave the local players did not improve the game or the reputation of the Softball League.

The play-offs of the league between Rednersville and Victoria are due to be played this week, the first being played on Thursday evening, the second next Tuesday, and the third, if necessary, the following Thursday.

Quite a number of persons in this community have been successful in securing one of the wagons given by Lobiaw's as a premium. As Saturday was the last day that the store was open, there was considerable of a scramble for the remaining tickets on time. Some who had more than they needed gave the surplus to children who were crowded them, hanging around the front of the store asking every customer for his ticket. Among those who secured these wagons are Master Johnny Buchanan, Master Lloyd Hennessey, Master Bobby Hall and the Masters Arnold and Willie Perrow.

Parents Wake up Kiddies Here To Have Artist Draw Sketches

Wm. Pollock, 18 Finds Local People Like Pencil Sketches

MAKES GOOD HERE

William Pollock, 18, tall and lanky, with a wide brimmed western hat, nimble fingers and a youthful smile, left the city today with plenty of money jingling in his jeans given him by numerous residents of the city enraptured with his true to life pencil portraits sketched of themselves in a moment, on their own door step for 50 cents on the average.

"Sure, it's a racket", he admitted. "But, it's a good one. Anyhow, people get real vuals for their money so why should anyone kick? It seemed that no one did.

"And the hat?" "Just a gag. Except for being a few miles the richer side of Hamilton, where I was born, I have never been west in my life. And the hat goes with the job."

Throughout the day, and part of the evening before, Pollock had toured the residential sections of the town asking those who wished to have their pictures drawn. Many of them did. "Sometimes", he confided, "they liked them so well that they woke up the kiddies to have me draw them, too."

Uncanny ability of the youth to sketch portraits with lightning-like sweeps, with pencil charcoal caught Liberdom. He has never taken a lesson in his life, but his ambition is to save as much as he can from his tours throughout the country and take a regular art study course in Europe later on. "Portraiture", declared Mr. Pollock, "is the best form of art. There is medium for expression which no other branch can provide."

The young man is headed east, adding so that he can stop at occasional farm houses and pick up a little money on the way by his clever drawings. He stepped at the tourist camp in the city this morning to pack his knapsack, which included some of the specimens of his art. A number of officials of other cities were included among the number shown. "Sometimes I get into some mistakes and other places on route and give them a free picture", he declared, "but most small town people don't bother much with that. Some of them have an exaggerated ego which is hard not to sketch, but which would not flatter them if they saw the finished picture. Big men are the easiest of all."

1.—Will increased volume of traffic, 10 or 11 years hence, be sufficient to justify construction of this additional waterway at such a cost?

2.—Since the taxpayers must pay for the waterway will the tolls thereon make a return sufficient not only to pay for maintenance and operation but also to provide interest and debt service?

3.—"Freight rates and cost of production of electricity quoted by promoters of the project apparently are ten years old. Is the project justified in view of prevailing rates during the past ten years?

4.—Assuming that the entire project is completed as planned, will it be wise economically for ocean vessels to enter the Great Lakes ports or for lake boats to go down the river to Montreal, Quebec harbor or points beyond?

5.—Canada having insisted on a 27-foot depth, which means a 30-foot channel for the project, how much will it cost to deepen the inner harbors and channels of all the Great Lake ports, most of which are located on the American side? It should be remembered here that the greater proportion of these costs will become a charge against the locality in which the port is located and the owners of the adjacent property.

6.—Assuming the principal reason for United States participation is to furnish a cheap outlet for the products of the Middle West, particularly grain, is it a fact that production of cheap hydroelectric power in new territories, where land and labor are cheap, will ultimately result in bringing foodstuffs, from other parts of the world, into, rather than out of, the Great Lake region?

Botsford said a seventh question was being considered in Buffalo. The Niagara River was the greatest point of international exchange of commodities in the world. It was feared, he said, that the final effect of a partnership in the enterprise, "might be a serious disagreement between Canada and the United States in the event that the Great Lakes cities attempted to ship foodstuffs or materials of war to any nation with which Great Britain was at war."

FIRE SWEEPS RESERVE NEAR BRAGG CREEK

Calgary, Aug. 4—Fire sweeping the forestry reserve near Bragg Creek, 15 miles west of Calgary, was out of control last night as 60 men fought the flames. The conflagration is spreading over an area one and a half miles long and a half mile wide.

The fire broke out Sunday night and was believed to have started from a camper's fire. Bragg Creek is not in danger, forestry officials said, unless the wind changes.

CAPONE CONVERTED

Al Capone claims he has been converted. He does not call it conversion but he says it has been made clear to him that crime is folly, racket is a get one nowhere. Rackets did land Al Capone somewhere, in prison where he makes boots and where he has developed the anti-racket idea. What Al says is as true as can be but does Al really believe it? or is he talking for the world? His racketeer friends outside the penitentiary do not believe it. The Montreal Gazette says they think likely prison life is making him a softy.

So Al's bad name clings to him. Nobody will believe him unless he shows it in good works after he gets out of prison and unless he tries to undo the harm his rackets have caused others.

THIEFVAL

The speech of the Prince of Wales at the Thiepval memorial dedication on Monday pointed to the fact that the Imperial War Graves Commission has concluded its work in the erection of memorials to the men who gave their lives. This last memorial unveiled commemorates the sacrifice of 73,000 men who lie in unmarked graves. It also commemorates the joint sacrifice of France and Great Britain who gave two and a half million lives during the Great War.

This is the largest of war monuments. The war memorials which Britain has erected now mark all the Empire dead in the war.

This memory of the dead is probably the best means in which to remember it. The war is an evil event; with knowledge that men by many thousands gave their lives as these memorials clearly attest cannot but act as an agency for world peace.

To those who served throughout the war and know the well-remembered places in France where blood flowed the battle of water and spirit strove mightily there may come the feeling after fourteen years that things have not turned out as they were expected to turn out — a world in which we farm by engines of war is now torn by rival camps of thought, and a greater general dejection has been felt than even during the days of the war. But there comes the consolatory thought that out of these dire events Providence may bring to pass what is for the best of the race because even the untoward things and conditions may spur men to work for their betterment.

WOMEN AND LABOR

The social trend is indicated in the last census of the United States showing that eleven million women are earning a living outside of the home. The public attitude toward the place of women in business has changed greatly in the past twenty years. Those who live in cities, in small towns, on farms, people in factories, men and women see no objection to women workers in any field of activity. In all of the 534 occupations listed women have progressives except in thirty.

Work has been taken from the home and put in factories. Home laundresses have dwindled in numbers as the total of women in power laundries has doubled in a decade. This is of course true especially in the large cities where private workers is not so much a lack of space and drying facilities. There are four times as many women working in dry-cleaning establishments as in 1910. Silks are sent to the dry cleaner and not to the laundry, domestic or industrial.

A noted fact is the decrease in the number of women osteopaths and physicians. While other professions are appealing to women with more insistence, there being half as many more practising medicine than ten years ago, the numbers in medicine and surgery for some unknown cause have declined. Every profession even mining, boasts of women members.

Typing and stenography have always been thought the women's or girls' field. Really they are not always so. Even ten years ago there were only five women to one man, today the women number twenty to one man in this activity. A hundred thousand women have given up dress making and millinery while eighty thousand more are numbered in garment factories and eighty thousand in hair dressing, manicuring and other branches of the art of beautifying.

It is a noted fact that farm labor has dropped from first to fifth place among occupations for women.

What a startling trend and how completely it is being transformed is revealed in these intriguing facts. The world of mechanism is here in full swing—the industrial revolution from no doubt that it has wrought many wonders not only in production but in changing the status of the people and occupations.

DAY'S END

By Aline Michaelis

Day's end, toil's end,
And oh, how sweet
To know a friend
Waits now to greet
Your weary tread,
Your tired eyes,
With meat and bread
Of Paradise!

With meat of cheer,
With bread of love
How doubly dear
Toil's end must prove!
At the day's end,
When spent and worn,
To know a friend
Your loan has borne;
Felt your care's sting
And fought your strife;
Day's end must bring
The best of life!

THE BUSINESS DEPRESSION has been turned over to President Hoover by the United States Congress and Senate with their blessing, in part, and a hope it choke him into dying of it, together with a few billion dollars to play Fairy Godfather with. Here's the new Prosperity Chart as handed over to Skipper Hoover by Congress:

"Creation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with a capitalization of $2,000,000,000.

"Expansion of the Federal Farm Loan System with $125,000,000 new capital.

"Establishment of a system of home-loan banks, capable of furnishing upward of $500,000,000 to small-home owners and builders in meeting their requirements.

"Enactment of the Wagner relief bill, providing $2,100,000,000 for relief of destitution and construction of public works; of this, $1,800,000,000 to expand the capital of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"Ratification of the Hoover one-year moratorium on interallied debts to enable European countries to avert a financial catastrophe.

"Release of about $800,000,000 in gold through enactment of the Glass-Steagall act.

"Enlargement of the facilities of the Federal Reserve System to help smaller banking institutions meet the unusual demands of the times.

"Enactment of the budget-balancing bill.

"Decrease of more than $150,000,000 in government expenditures through a special economy committee."

FREE MEDICAL SERVICE

According to statement at the convention of the Canadian Medical Association Canadian doctors gave $10,000,000 worth of free attention in 1930, the year for which it is expected to be trebled or quadrupled. This is a financial sacrifice which is not appreciated as it should be.

PIANO RETURNING

An exchange asserts that the last few months, particularly, have seen a great change in the attitude of the people of Canada toward the piano. In the United States the turn of the tide set in earlier—about a year ago. Some observers of the situation there have attributed some of the piano's revived popularity to the interest stimulated by the extensive series of piano talks and piano lessons have been given over the American broadcasting chains and to the widespread system of home class teaching in the public schools—a movement that is now well established in Canada.—Edmonton Times, Brockville.

A COWARD'S DEATH

Paul Gorgouloff must die!
He has been sentenced to death on the guillotine for assassinating President Doumer, of France. Because the man was caught in the act, it was a foregone conclusion that he should pay for his crime with his life.

He knew this was coming. Some weeks ago he pleaded for death, but now he has changed his mind and would remain alive until the last moment. He expects a second father of a son.

As he stood in court, hearing his sentence pronounced, he bowed his head and chopped off, he shouted: "Kill me, but kill me as a man. Don't shoot me in the back or put back into service—and not in Northern Ontario, but the older part of the province—the old district of Northern Ontario, but there one finds a decrease of 1,000 men in total in 1930.

The total of public schools in the province 6,403, shows a decrease of 63. Classified as to construction 1,317 are of brick, 4,796 of wood, 176 of concrete and 2,214 frame. Under frame construction is the only increase compared with 1930.

The decrease is noted chiefly in rural schools of Northern Ontario. There were 96 less than in 1930, although the five cities in the same districts added four. One township reported no less than 19 schools while 12 the cities each one more.

Oxford, exclusive of Woodstock, has 106 public schools, a decrease of 3 from 1930. In construction, 94 are of brick, two of stone, one of concrete and 9 of frame. Here is an increase of four brick schools, a decrease of two stone and nine frame. Additional line of concrete and one less frame school. Average attendance in the county for total is not due to any change in North Oxford, Increase in average attendance in—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

POOR CHEESE MEANS A LOSS OF $1,600

Speaking at a meeting of cheese factory makers at Ayr, Ont., on Tuesday, Burnley, president over by W. V. Dewery, Geo. Mann, Dumfries, said he was not much interested in the money that might be gained in the future as a result of the work of the "five-year-plan" as he was over the money that was being lost today now. This he regarded at the present time as the most important thing. In a report just sent out from Montreal, Eastern Canada cheese is now with butter too large a number of defective cheese; 2,000 pickouts had been found in the last ten days in Ontario. Rating these at a loss of one cent a pound, or 80 cents a cheese, it meant a loss of $1,600 at least. Mr. Burnley said that he told the farmers that there was no need for second-grade cheese in Ontario and unsatisfactory cheese present to do all possible to keep up the standard of our dairy products.

RATTLER KILLED

Andrew Milne, of Seymour township, is credited with having killed a rattler while removing a stone pile from his farm. He was investigating a rattling sound with a shovel and with this weapon killed the intruder. The rattler is rather a rare sight seen in this district it is stated there was no mistake in the type.

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA IS DANGEROUS

Shock or Worry on Digestion May be Exciting Cause

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

There are many forms of anemia, but not all are serious. The variety of anemia called "pernicious" is, however, a dangerous condition that requires continuous care, watchfulness and expert treatment.

Pernicious anemia is not an impairment of the blood in regard to its quantity but in the quality of the red blood cells, conditions that may result from injury, hemorrhoids, disease of some organ, or some similar cause. Such forms of anemia are not serious when the fault in the body is repaired.

In pernicious anemia, strange as it may seem, the haemoglobin, or red coloring matter of the blood, is not greatly reduced, but bad, and rather is proportionally increased. This is why pernicious anemia differs from other forms of anemia. When a blood test is made the number of pernicious anemia it is found that the red cells may be only one-fifth of normal, but they are not less. Such red cell, however, has more haemoglobin than normal, and so makes up for the numerical deficiency of the red cells which carry it. This is the ground on which the statement that in pernicious anemia the haemoglobin is greatly increased.

The pernicious anemia usually occurs between forty-five and sixty. Often the victim has enjoyed good health, or has seemed to, and for a considerable period. In many cases the disease is due to some great shock, extreme worry for months, the sudden loss of a loved one, or such as excitants of the disease.

Pernicious anemia is also peculiar disorder better than those of Dr. Addison, who first clearly described the disease of the blood. It makes its approach in so slow and insidious a manner that the type patient can hardly fix a date to the beginning of the attack. The patient which is shortly to become so extreme. The countenance gets pale, but not the pallor of the chlorotic pearly, the general frame flabby. There is an increasing indisposition to exertion with an unconformable feeling of weakness or breathlessness in attempting it; the heart is readily made to palpitate; the appetite is variable, and often presents a blanched smooth and waxy appearance; the tongue is clean and tongue seem bloodless."

The first disease progresses the ankles may become swollen and gradually the patient becomes unable to walk. Shortness of breath is necessary. In severe cases, the mind may become wander or is confused.

Another strange feature about pernicious anemia is that the general weight of the sufferer as well as his strength may not greatly be healthy, and in striking contrast to the appearance of other diseases which he presents. He may, in fact, look well and yet may scarcely have the strength to raise an arm.

There are persons who know they have this disorder, yet they refuse to take treatment through the services of a physician. Nothing is more dangerous. Today much can be done for this disorder, to prolong the life and restore the victim to healthy becomes. Repeated blood transfusions, particularly in the first stages, are helpful. These are especially useful to tide the patient over a critical period. Formerly such a procedure was almost prohibitive in cost, but today so-called "blood banks" can be found much more readily, and the cost is not so great.

Fresh air, good food, rest and general hygiene are of great benefit. Meat is difficult for these patients to digest, but taking liver regularly in the diet as such or as an extract or powder, has much to recommend it. Again, the discouragements and carelessness to accordingly great. Such a patient should get up with a fresh air, but follow out to the letter the instructions of his physician.

When the digestion is upset, causing looseness, a cathartic is indicated to remove the irritating substance. This applies to adults and children. Remember that it is always safe to use under such circumstances. Then following out a diet that may also be needed.

United States Wins One, Two, Three, in 200 Metre Final

EDWARD PLACES

Thomas Green, England, Wins 50,000 Metres Walk

Los Angeles, Aug. 4 (By Elmer Dolmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—The speed producing firm of Wilson and Edwards from Canada is billed for further performances today as the 10th Olympiad track and field sports continue into the second half of their record breaking existence. Now this time lanky Phil and Blonde Alex are in different turns. Idle of Los Angeles track fans, after his smashing race in 800 metre final Tuesday, which forced Tom Hampson of England and Wilson, to break world records to beat him, is back for the 1,500 metre final. He qualified yesterday. Just as good at the shorter distance, Wilson returns to the finder warfare for a crack at the 400 metre title. First and second in 400 are sure to be run this afternoon. Whether great Canadian speedsters are as ready to run is reported today as they were Tuesday, is question, that not even stars themselves can answer. King Qualifies.

Eddie King of Hamilton qualified along with Edwards for the 1,500 final and will be accompanied in the 400 heats by Jimmy Ball of Winnipeg, and Ray Lewis of Hamilton, who just missed Olympic glory at the Amsterdam games in 1928 when he equalled record to Ray Barbuit of the United States, has made a fine recovery from a leg injury and will go to the mark in good shape.

In the 80 metre hurdles final for women, Aida Wilson of Toronto carries the Maple Leaf. Babe Didrickson of the United States, all round athlete, who already has annexed the Javelin title is an odds on favorite to win the hurdles. She broke the world record in winning her heat yesterday.

Lea Nutton of Montreal, will try to make up for disastrous broad jump performance, when he fouled three times and went out without having a single jump measured, in the hop, step and jump today.

Although pointless in track and field events yesterday, Canada entered the all around point scoring column late last night, when Dan Joy MacDonald of Toronto knocked Ilmo of Finland to take second place in the welterweight boxing finals. Jack Van Bebber of the United States was the champion.

The pair of sprinters Canada counted on following the return of Percy Williams' leg injuries, Bert Pearson, Hamilton 1928 Gold Wright, Edmonton fell victims at the start of the second heats by the United States athletes on Olympic Stadium track.

Pearson was eliminated in the semi-final heat of the 200 metres won by Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette University negro, Wright failed in his heat trailing Tolan, Metcalfe and Eddie Tolan, the little Detroit negro who has succeeded to the title formerly held by Williams.

Clean Cut Win.

Tolan's triumph in the 200-final was clean cut and decisive. Never so than in the 200 final which he won by inches. This time Tolan left no doubt as to the winner. When he came into the cleaning white tape two full yards in the van of George Simpson, Alabama negro, Metcalfe, third Metcalfe, then followed Arthur Jonsin, Germany, Carlos Catuli, Argentina and Bill Walters, South Africa.

Yesterday's win the greatest day the United States has ever had in Olympic competition and likely has to be equalled.

But for the gruelling triumph of Tom Green, Great Britain's walker in the 50,000 metres walk the day would have been entirely an American one for four of the five event's championships decided were captured by athletes from this side of the border before 80,000 spectators.

Green, rated one of the best walker's England has produced, outlasted a field of Olympic tried veterans as well as youthful contenders in the 31 mile grind.

Despite the intense heat Green finished the course, 31 miles, 385 yards in four hours, 50 minutes and 10 seconds. Seven minutes and 41 seconds behind Green came Janis Dalicsh, of Latvia and then following the veteran Italian walker, Ugo Frigerio.

The pole vault produced a nerve wracking contest between Bill Miller of Stanford University, the ultimate winner and Shuhei Nishida, of Japan. The former won with a vault of 14 feet 1 in inches. A fraction above the Olympic record.

Keeping up the sensational performances began Saling, of Iowa, led his team mates, Percy Beard and Jack Keller in the finish in the 110 metre hurdle final in order. A shade under the Olympic record established in the preliminaries.

Canada's Chances At Los Angeles

Here are listed Canada's entries, with their times or distances, compared with the Olympic record, in today's Olympic track and field events at Los Angeles:

400 metres heats: Olympic record 47 3/5 seconds. Canada's entries, Alex Wilson, Montreal, 48 1/5; Jimmy Ball, Winnipeg, 48 1/5; Ray Lewis, Hamilton, 48 4/5.

1500 metres final: Olympic record 3.53 1/5. Canada's entries, Phil Edwards, Montreal, 3.55; Eddie King, Hamilton, 4.00.

McDONALD IS SECOND IN WELTERWEIGHT CLASS

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 4 (CP)—Bronsed Danny McDonald, Toronto welterweight added points to Canada's total at the Olympic games here, when he won second place in the welterweight division last night. Jack Van Bebber, United States, was declared champion.

McDonald gained his high position by throwing Rimo Lehto, Finland, in two minutes and 48 seconds, after Van Bebber had won the championship.

Previously McDonald had gained a decisive victory over Jean Perdeck of Germany in a 15 minute bout and Van Bebber had won on points from Lehto. The Finn would have won this class had he defeated the American.

With The Olympians

Ben Eastman and Bill Carr, archrivals on the cinder path and track, have been forced to forget their own feud by the figure of Lieutenant Godfrey Lionel Rampling, British aeroplane pilot who has been flying 1,000 miles in 10 metres. And they are not ignorant. Governor of Montreal and Jimmy Ball, the Canadian, Ray Lewis of Hamilton, Harvard star at Amsterdam, Crew Stonely of England and the Australian Cleveland were already getting their share of discussion.

Eddie Tolan in winning the 100 and 200 metres dashes, maintained a University of Michigan tradition. Ten only other American double winners, Archie Hahn in 1904, and Ralph Craig in 1912, did their collegiate training for U. of M.

Attendants yesterday detected the Olympic champion souvenir hunter. Into a fish hook tied to a cord he was trying to snag one of the flags from 15 feet up from the stadium walls.

Jupiter Flowian once again spoiled the aspirations of the Consiful leaguers on Wednesday when the Belleville Kalsomi team won by a 6-3 decision. At noon Wednesday, after the Kingston encounter, had rained out the game, Dave before calling off the game, they informed Manager Geyer that the game was off but would be played on Thursday at 6 p.m. Wednesday evening, have three postponed games to play, one with every club in the league, one with the postponement was a blessing but to the Consiful leaguers it was a given "Feeney" Mills longer to recover from his recent injury. However from his remarks on the subject it might be well to add that Feeney's injury of Wednesday morning is not so bad as previously announced although he will be out of the game for a week or so at least.

Following Monday's game the Belleville National's executive will be the O.B.A.A. for permission to use Red Greer for the remainder of the season. Greer's team has already qualified for the finals and he is but 16 years of age. The question of Belleville will be decided at the sub-committee of the O.B.A.A. meeting.

Recent outbreaks during C.O.B.I. ball games of late have necessitated the O.B.A.A. to send down umpires in the Central League for another year. There have been numerous fights between the players and even the fans and players spit. Last Friday night at Picton the umpire has not only lost his position but has been driven off the park. As was previously stated, home umpires are not a success from every angle. If the league wishes to function successfully the O.B.A.A. will have to send umpires to save money for the clubs and to keep the fans satisfied. The money saved by using home town umpires will not be compared with the loss of patrons who refuse to go into a park under the present system of umpiring. Even the umpires hate it.

We wonder if anything definite has been done by Trenton in securing the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team to Belleville this fall? All the Toronto daily papers gave the local citizens a write up and we are still plenty of encouragement in the matter, tho who hesitates is lost.

It has been brought to our attention that season ticket holders of the Belleville baseball club are able to get their usual seats at the Kingston-Belleville game on Monday morning. The account once previously this season we were told, That was at the opening game. As these season ticket holders were guaranteed permanent seats for all league games they should be entitled to the same. Belleville now have two more home games and as the league race is quite keen at present a goodly crowd should be on hand each day. If this be so the request ticket system should be restored.

With the record release of the averages of the Belleville girls soft ball league it is noticed that Thelma Morey, although she has been the leading hitter in the loop all season, is below the .500 mark. Pearl Tuttle and S. McGuire, at present holding the laurels of the Belleville Fruit Club, is about the best hitter in the loop. Jessie is not hitting the she of her hat for the first four or five games but has come to the front in a big way of late. She is now leading the home run list with seven, one each blown to her credit. L. Baker is also in the lime light here with two to her credit. "Mad" Kelleher has also two back over the fence with seven chalked up in her favor. There are but two or three more games left in the league and next week should see the beginning of the league playoffs.

No official word has been received from the O.B.A.A. by the executive of the champion Belleville Intermediate team that they play in the provincial playoffs. However, it is understood they are supposed to meet the winners of the Perkins Bush and Bowmanville series. Whether or not they will be able to do this will be decided by the O.B.A.A. convenors. Coach Herbie Morris will have the kids out to practice this week and not take it easy with pitchers the calibre of Lee, Hawkins and Ivy on the hill they will make things very interesting for the Belleville fans. Morris has turned right hander of the local Juniors. Morris has one of the best pitchers ever to perform in Belleville. Providing the team can find a batting line up like they did during their league games they will be tough opposition for any other club in Ontario.

After talking to the executive of the Kingston Penales over the telephone on Wednesday evening Manager Grove agreed to play Wednesday's postponed game on Thursday evening. The Kingston executive assured Grove that they could not get the Cricket Field in Kingston either Friday or Tuesday evening. Manager Walt. Lester it was accordained by the local club that they would have had tried to get the Cobourg senior team to play here on Friday and their postponed game of July 27, on Friday or Saturday. We understand like the co-operation afforded by the Kingstonians.

The Bay of Quinte international regatta will be held at Picton this season and now reads Aug. 8th—Point Anne at Belleville Yhc; Aug. 9th, Point Anne at Belleville Yhc; Aug. 10th, Picton at Belleville Yhc. The game of Aug. 3rd when the Victoria were scheduled to play at Picton, will be played here. When the Yhc and Point Anne play here on Friday evening Campbell and Adams will be the betting favorites. The Yhc are never losing leaders.

Previews and Reviews of Current Offerings at Belleville Theatres

CAPITOL EMPIRE WEEK
FINAL OFFERING

On Friday and Saturday "A Night in a London Music Hall" arrives at the Capitol Theatre.

This revue of headliners of the English Vaudeville Stage will please both old and young, and containing a little of everything.

DOUBLE KILL

In previous film roles Robinson has appeared as gunman, gambler, editor and criminal. He has always been a stone hearted man, dominating room and events with an inflexible will and daring which carried all before it. In "Two Seconds" however, he portrays John Allen, a hard working iron worker who is a victim of circumstance.

As Allen Edward G. Robinson makes a radical departure from the characters he has been giving American picture audiences, beginning with "Little Caesar" on through "Five Star Final" and "The Hatchet Man." The actor himself regards the character as the most difficult he has been called upon to portray since his entrance into pictures. Metropolitan critics have hailed Robinson's performances in this picture as one of the brilliant achievements of the dramatic season.

The aggregation of players assembled for the production offers an excellent example of the care with which First National pictures are cast. Even the smallest parts have been entrusted to experienced and able actors.

Preston Foster who has the role of John Allen's buddy plays the same part that he created in the New York production. His first few days with the picture made such a deep impression upon the producers that one of the scenes that he was immediately signed for an important role in another picture and given a term contract.

Vivienne Osborne, who plays Shirley Allen, has a brilliant record on both stage and screen. She appeared in David Belasco's production of "The Haven" and has been leading woman with Frederic March, William Faversham, Sidney Blackmer and Dennis King. Future audiences will remember Miss Osborne as the girl in "Skyscraper Souls" and "Three on a Match."

At The Capitol

"TOM BROWN OF CULVER"
STIRRING COLLEGIATE STORY

Much of the picture was filmed at the Culver Military Academy in Indiana, and there are inspiring scenes of almost a thousand cadets marching as units of infantry, artillery and cavalry. In these picturesque surroundings is told a story which is always filled with interest, and at times with a quality of drama that grips the spectator.

Tom Brown, a young man of 18 plays the title role, and he acquits himself in a manner which stamps him as an actor of unusual ability. H. B. Warner is, as always, excellent in his role as the boy's father, and Slim Summerville is his usual jovial self as the ex-sergeant who is still re-living his part in the Great War. Others who do good work are Ben Alexander, Richard Cromwell, Tyrone Power, Jr., Dick Winslow, Bill Cahill, Sidney Toler, Willard Robertson, while William Wyler must be credited with an outstanding job as the director of the picture.

In "Tom Brown of Culver" Tom who supposes himself to be an orphan is befriended by the American Legion and sent to Culver, where he is the centre of many interesting adventures. Eventually his father, who has been awarded a posthumous Congressional Medal of Honor for his supposed heroic death in France, turns up with the confession that he really cracked under the strain of a bombardment and deserted. This situation and the way it is solved, forms the high point in the story.

There is not a woman in the cast of "Tom Brown of Culver," but as a story of young manhood it is at times inspiring, and time nostalgic through the absence of "the girl."

"Tom Brown of Culver" is an unusually fine picture and one which you will long to the utmost.

Mysterious Space Night

Do the dead return? Do you believe in spirits? Now is your opportunity to see them working. Tonight is Spook Night at the Belle, when a performer will be given a free personal interview, and conducts his engagement Friday evening at which time he will demonstrate his mystic powers as the foremost exponent of thought transference to ever appear on a public platform in Canada. Marjah is being highly commended for the refined manner in which all questions are asked, as no time causing anyone any embarrassment. The great "Ovetia," master magician, will offer a host of tricks that will amuse and amaze all.

PILES
Ended Without Cutting or Salves

If you think a surgical operation is the only way to get rid of itching, bleeding or protruding Piles, it's because you haven't heard of the harmless internal medicine discovered by a prominent Toronto physician.

After years of study Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the cause of Piles to be internal—congestion of the blood in the lower — the hemorrhoidal veins flabby; the bowel walls weak; the parts almost dead. Right away the doctor set to work to find a real internal remedy. He succeeded, and after prescribing it for 1000 patients, who were cured in over 200 cases, he named his prescription HEM-ROID.

The doctor wants every Pile sufferer to benefit by his discovery, and so there will be no doubting or delay J. R. McKeown and druggists everywhere are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end Piles in any form.

So why waste time on external treatments or think of an operation when HEM-ROID tablets are guaranteed.

MARKET LOST BY PACKERS' GRASPING?

London, Ont., Aug. 4— Because meat packers and middlemen have been grasping to accept less than 100 per cent profits on their slaughtering, packing and particularly Ontario, has lost the European export market, in the opinion of Hon. W. H. Price, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, expressed in an interview with Londoners.

Meat packers and manufacturers who process Canadian farm products have no need to cater to an export market and as a result they do not try. They cannot compete on the export market and still make the 100 per cent profits.

IRISH EYES

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"Listen!" he said. "I'll take this ladder, and get it in the snow down there on the roof next door, and drop one to you."

"That'll break every bone in your body!" Sheila predicted.

"The ladder was twenty four feet high. They looked at it dubiously.

"If I could get down," Peter pondered, "and telephone Gert——"

And without further parley he was up, and at the window again, he had thrown it open, his head was out in the storm. Like a person transfixed in a terrible dream Sheila saw his body silhouetted for an instant against the falling flakes of the snow.

Then the window space was empty, except for the thick soft flutter of the flakes.

Sheila rushed to the window and screamed into the blinding storm and whiteness, outside. Nothing could be seen. Talking to herself, muttering frankly, Sheila turned back into the room and extinguished the light.

This done, looking down, she could see the dim, dark outline of the roof below and see, against the grayish-white, something black moving.

"Oh, my God, he's killed himself!" Sheila whimpered. "I can't help him." And leaning out, she shouted, "Peter!"

Her voice was muffled in the snow. Behind the wind was not so high now, although the flakes were falling thicker and faster.

"Peter!" she cried again, in agony. Oh, he would die there, with no one to help him, and she couldn't get down! She was back at the window again. Peter was groaning feebly.

"Oh, God, help us both, get us out of this!"

She was groping in the dark for the dangling chain of the light when she heard a sound close to her that was like a long sigh. A smothered shriek burst from her; someone was there going to throttle her as it sounded like a great animal sighing just at her ear.

Not conscious of what she was doing, she ran to the window, gripped its deep sill as best she could, climbed over it with almost the swiftness of a leap, and was dangling out in the snow.

"Oh, God, forgive me my sins!" sobbed Sheila, and dropped.

"Ow! Ow! me!! shouted Peter.

"God, you've killed me!"

Sheila, snowy, breathless, panic-bent, clutched herself together, rolled over scrambled to her knees to see her feet. She had hit him.

"Oh, I've hurt you! And I'm not hurt at all! You broke my fall!"

"I'll be the world I broke your fall!" Peter agreed, sitting up dizzily. "You knocked the wind outa me! Oh, my leg——"

"It is broken!" Sheila was pulling, lifting, trying to make him sit up.

"I think it is. But wait get up," he said, feebly struggling to his knees in the darkness and the raw cold of the snow. "What got such solicitous of me now?" he asked me—ouch! was that I thought I had a couple of ribs in my lungs. I thought I was bleeding to death, inside. Damn it!"

"But, Peter, we're down!" Sheila ejaculated supporting him, staggering a little as he stood upright against her. "You're all right, are you not? You can walk on your leg, you?"

"My ankle hurts, and I kind of turn it once when I walk on it," he said, leaning on it is the best I'm walking for it." Sheila was thing in the world for it." Sheila standing in the world for it." Sheila standing him eagerly, blowing the feathery coating of snow from her eyes, the better to see the direction in which she was guiding him. "My leg is the only thing to do is to get the blood started back——"

At the mention of her mother her heart sank. She would be safe at home in twenty minutes now, safe in the security of warmth and light and understanding that was her mother's kitchen. She could have a hot bath, and be asleep before supper, and a cup of tea——

"Ouch, I certainly floundered wrecked myself!" Peter shouted, limping him with both arms; they supported him with both arms; they were making their way toward the two books of the fire escape, just visible in the gloom. The snow, whirled softly about them, wet their faces.

"Peter, go carefully. It would be awful to walk right off the edge of the roof!"

"I can't hear you."

"Take care!"

"I didn't think I could walk as well as this, even."

"Oh, you'll be all right."

"Be awfully careful going down the fire escape. We've up on the third floor."

They fingered its wet iron rails in the gloom.

"Take it easy now, Sheila!"

"I'm going awfully slow."

She lowered one foot cautiously over the edge, and began carefully, slowly, backing, she put down the other foot, and descended another fully; snow falling all about her and powdering head and shoulders and the already-piled snow clinging and falling away below her fingers and feet.

Following her, Peter was surprised to discover, as he had discovered and Sheila, as they came shinking and panting from their hiding-place, "who your friends?"

"I never met them before." Ken said. "How did you and the lady get mixed into this, young feller?" he asked, scowling at Peter.

He started shyly enough, even laughing at their predicament and adventure. But something chilled his blood as he proceeded; there was that in the men's quiet eyes that was not healthy, there was menace in their very presence, and Peter knew, as Sheila had known for some time, that the night's peril was not over. His voice died away into silence and his face took on a grayish pallor.

"This ain't your wife, then?" Ken asked.

"No sir. That's what I was telling you," Peter said. "I'm to be married on Tuesday—to another girl. That's why I'd be so much obliged if you'd let me telephone."

The men glanced at each other.

"No rush," Ken observed mildly. "Your wife-to-be will not be worried, it's getting on to eight o'clock" Sheila exclaimed anxiously. And the sudden thought of that comforting and prosaic evening, of her love and tenderness, brought tears to the girl's eyes.

It was not much but it was exquisite balm to Sheila. She managed a rather wild smile.

"Thank you!" she said

"You give me your name," Ken directed, drawing a piece of paper from his arrow the table and taking a fountain pen from his pocket, "and I'll let your folks know. There must be a telephone soon," he added comfortably.

He and the other man then broke into a conversation, low-toned and monosyllabic, as it seemed. Sheila did not know. That they were talking of Peter and herself she knew from their glances. Inky, who had worn a paint-stained old smock when they emerged from the closet had now changed back to his dusty coat and had removed the old curtain that had been carelessly thrown over Peter's coat on the chair.

"Come on, let's get going," Ken said. He glanced at Peter and Sheila, standing bewildered and fearful together. "Nothing'll happen to you," he told them scornfully, carelessly. "But you busted in here, d'you see? We never asked you folks in here."

"Well——" Sheila began weakly, her eyes wide. "We hadn't any intention——"

"Oh, that's all right, that's all right" Ken interrupted her as he bulked on a heavy coat and drew on gloves. "But it may delay you a little bit getting home, see?"

"But you'll let my mother know?" the girl asking anxiously. He looked at her with a sort of stare, took Sheila's arm and led her downstairs with no further word. Sheila heard the door behind her slam upon Peter's protest, "Say, what—the—hey, what are you trying to do——" The words were cut off there; she lagged inquiry at her companion.

"You'll be down with Inky," Ken told her.

They went through a back passage, Ken gripping her arm tightly. A side door opened into a narrow alley; they were out in the night.

"Don't make any noise now, Sister."

"I won't!" she answered, frightened.

An open car, a large touring car with the rain curtains securely buttoned down, was standing at the curb. Snow was falling softly, drearily; all the noises of the city were softened and dull.

Ken, still holding tight to Sheila's arm, fell into a low-toned conversation with two men who emerged from the shadows; afterward one of them looked at Sheila sharply. This man was ag American, elderly, lean, nervous. She saw Ken give him the addresses and telephone numbers he had taken from Peter and herself upstairs. The old man latched nodded, muttered a word or two.

"Now you get in front here, Sister," Ken said then, opening the right-hand front door. "And we'll be out of this in no time at all!"

I can't—" She drew back, glancing at the dark alley facade of the building, the dark snowy flutter of whirling in the air, the light upon which the restaurant lights were still flaming and fading in soft pink. "I can't leave Mr. McCarthy——" she protested.

"He's coming," Ken told her. "Get in!"

When Sheila, secretly praying, had obeyed, he walked around the car to the driver's seat, the elderly man standing close to Sheila, with one strong hand gripping her wrist.

"Don't make no noise," the man said.

Her frightened eyes moved behind him, as the door through which she and Ken had emerged opened again, and Inky and an unknown man came out, with Peter between. Peter appeared to be stumbling, heavy—perhaps his hurt leg was bothering him again.

British Films Must Succeed on Merits Situation at Ottawa

Presentation of Truthful View of Life Essential in Entertainment and Instruction in Talking Movie Theatre—Traditions of Mother Country Therefore Valuable.

By CHRIS G. HOLMES

As I sat on the terrace of the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa and discussed the British film situation in Canada with M. Neville Kearney, the film delegate to the Imperial Conference, evidence of an ultimate betterment of screen entertainment became increasingly apparent.

British films are gradually effecting an extremely welcome introduction into the moving picture theatres in this country, with the result that, given a fair showing, they will eventually monopolize a goodly percentage of Canadian theatres' bookings within the next year.

A Film Quota.

It is the immediate intention of the British film producers to ask a ten per cent quota of British productions from the Canadian government. The reason for this is not to force British films down the throats of the Canadian people, but to compel theatres to give the better films a fair showing, thus enabling the people of Canada a chance to judge Empire-made film is superior or inferior for themselves whether or not the foreign one.

In England, a film quota was established some years ago, commencing at 7½ per cent., rising 2½ per cent. each year until it gained 25 per cent. At the present time the film quota in England calls for 30 per cent., but in reality the quota is unnecessary, because theatre owners in England are willingly showing 30 per cent. British films, at least.

There are some 4,500 motion picture theatres in the British Isles showing an average of 50 Empire-made pictures each year. Assuming that a quarter of those pictures are suitable for Canadian tastes, the request for a ten per cent. quota of British films does not seem to be excessive.

Quality of Production.

The most vital factor in successful film producing is quality of pleasing entertainment. England does not intend to make pictures for the sole reason of uplift. "What is intended is to present to the native a more truthful and beautiful light of how the white man lives.

The importance of this will quickly be seen when we glance at a map of the world and view how British possessions are situated. The Empire itself represents a quarter of the world, but only a quarter of the Empire speaks English. There are 350,000,000 people in India who do not know the first word in the English language, and if these people, who are naturally unintellectual, and who believe what they see, see moving pictures of the white races living in a certain manner, how much it may be venered, the morale of those people is going to be in keeping with such living, and the example of the white man will be followed and intensified.

Traditions of the mother country do not count for nothing, and it is those traditions which British Film producers have to study when making motion pictures. To confine the narratives in the Empire, extreme care must be exercised in influencing the minds of these people, and in consequence, motion pictures, being seen as well as heard, must form true interpretation of how the white man conducts himself, and how he treats his women folk. Films can do immeasurable harm just as much as they do good.

With this in mind, British film producers work on a definite basis which is not only going to be beneficial to the native but also pleasing to the white man.

Language and Speech.

The chief drawback to British films carrying popular in Canada is what we know as accent. Some people talk of the Oxford accent. There is no such thing in perfect English as Oxford accent.

In England, anyone who desires to impress upon his neighbor self-importance affects a mincing way of speaking which his become known as the Oxford accent. The mincing speech resembles speaking as though suffering from adenoids, and is, to use our own term, "putting on the dog". It is not only unnatural but also vulgar, and is most decidedly foreign to the well-bred Englishman. Now, the broad speaking originated on the speaking stage to denote to the audience that that particular character was a jumped-up Jack.

England, as everyone knows, has many dialects spoken by various parts of the country. This is due to heritage, and it is just as hard for the English peasant to speak perfect English as it is for a Chinaman. The Cockney says "dirty" for lady, the Yorkshireman has it "ladgy" with a long "a", while the perfect English is of course as it is spelt.

Arising from these dialects, and it must be remembered that many stage plays contain characters who speak various dialects, is the need for careful selection of films suitable for the tastes of Canadian people. This selection is being made and it is only these films which the government of Canada will be asked to put before the theatre owners in the film quota.

In addition to portraying all the ideals of the British Empire, both a selection will be the means of educating our citizens in the proper use of the English language.

The supreme intention of allowing the people of Canada to see British films is not by any patriotic motive, but that British films must gain popularity and pass the acid test on their own merits.

If British films are not shown in Canada, it is clearly impossible for them to become popular at all. Hence the reason for the quota system.

Here in Belleville, the picturegoers are fortunate in being able to judge for themselves whether or not British films are more suitable for public consumption than foreign ones. If the situation in Belleville becomes universal throughout the country, then it would appear that no objections would be raised against a quota being established.

I personally, believe that British films are gradually reaching a very high standard of entertainment, and my knowledge of England and the ways of the people convinces me that not only Belleville but the whole of Canada will learn to like and also to copy the example set by the sterling quality of the British film.

The remarkable success of the showing of Empire productions now at the Capitol Theatre during Empire week adds further to my convictions and I trust shortly every British film will be universally demanded by Canadians before very long.

EMPIRE WHEAT UNDER REVIEW

Conference Will Consider Action When Preference Lapses

By R. K. CARNEGIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA—The British conference on Empire wheat, amounting to 10 per cent, expiry with the remainder of the Irish preference next November. One of the chief tasks of the Imperial Economic Conference will be deciding what steps shall be taken to preserve advantages for Empire-grown wheat in the markets of the Motherland.

Since Canada is by far the largest producer of wheat within the Empire, the Imperial Conference discussions will of course be of peculiar interest to this country.

The delegates will find at their disposal a wealth of information on every phase of the wheat market. During the five years from 1926 to 1930 inclusive, Canada exported an average of 257,863,000 bushels of wheat annually. Australia's average for the same period was 84,152,000 British India's 70,000,000 and the other British countries 357,000. During that period British countries exported therefore a total of 330,052,000 bushels annually, Canada supplying 78 per cent, Australia 19.4, British India 2.3 and other British countries 1 per cent. These are exclusive of what the United Kingdom re-exported.

During the same five years British itself produced 48,261,000 bushels of wheat annually, consuming 196,850,000, re-exported 1,972,000, and consumed 244,339,000.

Commonwealth countries exported much more than the United Kingdom imported, the Empire countries therefore must sell very considerably outside the Commonwealth if the present rate of export is to be maintained.

With the average annual exports of all British countries over the United Kingdom at 130,800,000 bushels and the average imports into the United States 100,000,000 bushels, Commonwealth countries will have to find a market for roughly 234,000,000 bushels each year outside the Empire. There they would meet the competition of the foreign wheat which had been kept off the British market.

During their studies it is expected the delegates will make particular use of statistics for the years 1926 to 1930 inclusive, as the data being prepared for the conference is for this particular term of years. One thing is sure that it covers a more or less normal span in world conditions including both a boom year and a depression. The Irish, four year, 1930 is the last for which complete statistics are available for all the countries with which members of the tions of the Empire trade.

And when it comes to wheat flour Canada also leads the Empire. During the five years 1926-30, she exported an annual average of 9,509,000 barrels; Australia 3,150,000; British India, 6,000; British Malaya, 49,000; other British countries, 95,000 barrels. This made a total of 19,399,000 barrels annually, Canada exporting 61.8 per cent; Australia, 32 per cent; British India, 4.1 per cent; British Malaya, 0.3 per cent; other British countries, 0.6 per cent.

During that period the United Kingdom imported annually an average of 5,941,000 barrels.

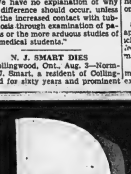
MED. STUDENTS SUSCEPTIBLE

Tuberculosis More Prevalent With Them Than Any Other Body

(By The Canadian Press)



KENTVILLE, N. S.—Medical students are more susceptible to tuberculosis than any other universally, according to Dr. H. W. Hetherington, chief of clinic, Henry Phipps Institute, Philadelphia, who lectured in connection with a "refresher" course for doctors of the Maritime Provinces at Nova Scotia Sanitorium.

The course, given under direction of Dr. A. P. Miller, the sanatorium superintendent, was taken by about sixty doctors from the three provinces, many of whom had attended the annual meetings of the Nova Scotia Medical Health Officers' Association and the Nova Scotia Medical Society.

"In examining students from the various faculties at the University of Pennsylvania," said Dr. Hetherington, "we found that the incidence of tuberculosis in medical students increased with each year of the medical course until in the fourth year it was 21.5 per cent. higher than at the time of graduation. The actual number of students with tuberculosis found in the lungs, discovered by X-ray examination, was 25."

Of these, two already had clinical tuberculosis, seven additional had pulmonary tuberculosis, symptoms or physical signs that were so trivial they had not yet realized their significance. The remainder had disease that was likely to progress, but had not yet caused any evidence of ill health. Comparing the medical students' 21.5 per cent. with that of other students at the time of graduation, the incidence of similar lesions in dental students was 10.2 per cent., law students 8.4 per cent. and arts students 5 per cent.

"We have no explanation of why this difference should occur, unless it is the increased contact with tuberculosis through examination of patients or the more arduous studies of the medical students."

COAST TRADE INVESTIGATED

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — Newfoundland's coastal trade is under review by the Dominion Board of Trade, and at a recent meeting it was intimated that adoption of foreign trade regulations is favored as a means of meeting competition from foreign vessels. Much of the coastal trade is carried in foreign bottoms; and the customs department will be asked to invoke new restrictions. Following is an excerpt from the Daily News report:

"Complying with the recent request of the council, the traffic committee has considered the matter of foreign steamers freighting and trading on the Newfoundland coast. At the present time foreign steamers are permitted to land cargo at various ports and also to take freight from port to port without any restriction. The committee, in considering this matter, was of the opinion that Canadian regulations if put into effect here would cover what is required. Foreign steamers must be permitted to discharge a cargo at two or more ports and to load cargo for foreign ports, but this should be under the customs regulations outlined in section 5 of the Canadian regulations. Members of the trade have on various occasions asked that the board of trade endeavor to do something to remove the unfair competition of foreign steamers freighting and trading on the Newfoundland coast."

Here is section five of the Canadian regulations, referred to in the report:

"When vessels bring cargo or passengers from a foreign port consigned to more than one Canadian port, the masters of such vessels must file a full report of the whole contents at the first port of entry and distinguish therein the items to be there landed and the ports at which all other items are to be landed. Such report must be made in duplicate, with an additional copy for each succeeding port at which there are goods to be landed; and the collector or proper officer of customs shall mark each item in such report with the entry numbers, if entered, and in case of any item landed and placed in sufferance warehouse without entry, it shall be marked with the letter 'L' in the said report; duplicate copies to be filled at said first port of entry and the others to be carried with the vessel, and one to be filled at each succeeding port of entry."

"I was seventy years of age. Last Christmas I was completely doubled up with Rheumatism. I could not brush my hair, wash myself nor lift a teaspoon. Pain and I should say more weak my nose. I am working harder than a young one to-day. I can move from the chair to the bed, many thanks, to Kruschen Salts. I take them in my tea and I have recommended them to many. I could not get in or out of bed myself, nor sit up. My wife had to put a towel round my neck to help me. I was a lump of trouble. But see me work now—18 hours a day sometimes. Kruschen Salts have done it."—C. J.

Rheumatic conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels. In addition, there are still other salts in Kruschen which prevent food fermenting in the intestines, and thereby check the further accumulation not only of uric acid but of other body poisons which undermine the health. Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all chemists throughout the world. In bottles 1/3 and 2/6, or 5/6, per bottle.

GUARANTEE OF AUSTRALIAN LOAN WANTED

Believed Success Has Crowned Bilateral Talks

CONFER WITH INDIA

British Manufactured Goods Will Have Preference in Country

Ottawa, Aug. 4—Australia is to get United Kingdom guarantee for her proposed two and one-half billion dollar conversion loan—so it was reported following Wednesday's private conference between Australian and United Kingdom delegates.

The cabinet of Australia and the United Kingdom delegates upon the final phase of their trade and financial deliberations—for Australia's approval has yet to be received—as trade—marks the beginning of the end of the conference. It means the new British Empire trade mosaic is actually being laid behind the scenes.

Meeting Indians

Tomorrow the United Kingdom meets the Indian delegates for the tentative patterning of the Anglo-Indian trade entente to be erected out of the materials passed backward and forward in "conversations" and talks, formal and informal. And next—possibly tomorrow—Canada falls into conference with the United Kingdom in this semi-final phase of this great British Empire parley.

Australian finances and conversion-loan guarantee requirements of the United Kingdom, it was reported after yesterday's deliberations, formed the background of the discussion between the Australasian and United Kingdom delegates. The intimation was that success in so far as this semi-final stage is concerned, had crowned the proposals and counter proposals of these deliberations. In return for her great financial accommodation, the United Kingdom is to get very favorable Australian trade accommodation for British manufactured goods.

Two More Committees

Customs barriers, exchange instability, standardization —all these subjects were threshed over again in what appear to have been the semi-final stages in further committee meetings. Two more subcommittees came into being out of the various conferences—a subcommittee to consider the establishment of minimum requirements for the grading and standardization of agricultural products, and a committee to examine into the broad question of industrial co-operation—dovetailing of Empire industrial effort—in the Commonwealth. The number of subcommittees making various forms of inquiry now approaches a dozen.

The Committee on Economic Co-operation met Wednesday and received what were said to be encouraging progress reports from the subcommittee on Standardization and Procedure. It was this general committee which designated the new subcommittee on Standardization of Agricultural Products.

POLICE NIP NEWSPAPER FRAUD BY ARREST

Halifax, Aug 4—Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrested W. R. Hamilton of Montreal, Tuesday in connection with fraud said to have been practiced in Canada during the last 12 years and involving between $40,000 and $50,000.

According to the police, some of the Dominion's outstanding financial and industrial leaders, including a number of the nation's government, are victims of the scheme, which is based on splendidly fraudulent subscriptions to a newspaper service for photographs and biographical sketches, that were not published.

The head of the service stated here yesterday that Hamilton never was an authorized collector for the organization.

UNITED STATES WATCH KEENLY OTTAWA MEET

Trade Council Points Out Sympathetic Interest Felt

STATES PARTNER

(By The Canadian Press)

NEW YORK—"The United States is an indispensable partner in the economic stability of the British Empire, the National Foreign Trade Council declares in a statement on the importance of the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa. The Council hails the Ottawa meeting as a constructive opportunity to put heart into the world and formulate measures in which nations outside the Empire may later co-operate toward revival of trade.

"The British Empire's greatest customer awaits with keen attention and sympathetic interest the outcome of the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa," the statement declares. "Second to Great Britain herself as the world's greatest importing nation, the industries of the United States have spent approximately 35 cents within the British Empire out of every dollar's worth of products purchased abroad in recent years. Our value as a customer of the British Empire, as measured by imports during any year in normal trading year, 1929, is approximately $1,000,000,000, excluding our $400,000,000 purchases from England herself. We thus effected 25 per cent. of our purchases abroad from the British Empire, excluding Great Britain." The proportion, if not the value, remains the same in the depression years, the statement adds.

"In a wide variety of British possessions dotted all over the world, we buy more than we sell. Such is the case, for instance, in India, British Malaya, Ceylon, Jamaica, Trinidad, the Gold Coast, Nigeria, Aden, Newfoundland, and British Honduras. We sell more than we buy in the cases of Australia, the Union of South Africa, New Zealand, Canada, the Irish Free State, Great Britain herself, and several other sections of the Empire. But few Americans realize that in the British Empire as a whole, excepting Great Britain and Canada, the United States has an unfavorable trade balance. In the case of Canada our favorable trade balance of $200,000,000 is fully offset by the expenditures of our tourists, by the payments by American companies of interest on Canadian investments in this country, and other items. A considerable part of our favorable trade balance with England is also offset by similar items, plus other important 'invisible' items such as those of shipping and insurance services.

"Our interest in the purpose of the Conference is, therefore, far less that of a trade rival than that of an indispensable partner in Imperial prosperity. Americans have more than $5,000,000,000 invested in the British Empire, and there are more than $1,500,000,000 of British Empire money invested in this country. We buy from Canada, moreover, 15 per cent. more than all the British Empire together, 50 per cent. more than the United Kingdom, and 28 times as much as Australia and New Zealand combined.

"Finally, so far as Canada is concerned, no recent developments, in tariffs or otherwise, have seriously affected the normal trade between these two great friendly nations. Whereas, in 1911, 38 per cent. of Canada's exports came to the United States, in the fiscal year of 1931-32 this percentage had risen to 41 per cent. In 1913, 60.8 per cent. of Canada's imports came from the United States and in 1931-32 the percentage was almost exactly the same at 60.7 per cent. There is some reassurance, therefore, in these statistics that the reciprocal arrangements between these two countries in the fact that each of them still does almost identically the same ratio of trade with each other as in the year when reciprocity was last an active issue."

Advertising Essential of Modern Business Life

Lord Wakefield, Noted Financier Gives His Views

The following address to the Society of British Advertisers was given recently by Lord Wakefield of Hythe, producers of lubricating oils.

Advertising is so necessary in the modern world that, if it did not exist, it would have to be invented. However diverse the goods they have to sell, advertisers have many interests in common, interests that can only be served by joint action. Their fundamental relation to advertising is one that can be shared by no one else. It is—to them—a commodity. They have to buy it; to buy and to use it with economy and skill. Although we advertisers share with members of the profession that intellectual interest in their "bright ideas", from the point of view I have just mentioned we stand alone.

Advertisers, as the years pass, are discovering more and more about the uses of advertisement. They have now at least reached the point of wisdom which consists in knowing how much they still do not know. This is particularly true as regards the commonplace values of the different kinds and degrees of advertising. We look to this Society to establish tests and standards that will help us to compile our annual budget to the best advantage. We want more facts about the different media. The society of British Advertisers can help us to keep our own house in order in matters of waste and discretion. The use we make of space and publicity is as great as important as the choice of the best media.

Advertising is as essential in the modern world. It is astonishing in how many widely different ways the advertisement carries its message. It has added a sparkle to commercial life, and humour are some of the advertiser's best weapons. The maker of puns, even, has come into his own again. Whatever the line of attack—whether we cajole the customer, or shock him into attention—the aim is commercial efficiency. Modern large scale industry obviously depends upon a steady and growing demand for, its progress. Original and persistent advertising has thus become the salesman's surest ally.

The increasing need for advertising has made a place in commerce for the skin of brilliant brain waves.* Possibly it would be truer to say that it is the new type of original idea themselves who have seized the opportunity offered by modern industrial methods. Whichever came first the hen or the egg, as to book — between manufacturers look upon the advertising man as a bright particular star in the industrial firmament. He is their organizer of victory. Give him a good article to sell and a reasonably free hand and your charts of output and costs move in gracious curves in the right direction. Generous advertising is true economy.

Manufacturers and advertisers have a very direct interest in the problems that confront the nations today. Public education is enormously aided by the present upon conferences and negotiations which we all hope will do much to restore trade and confidence between the peoples of the world. Personally, I sometimes feel that the war, war debts, reparations and all these international issues have to some extent diverted our attention from another important issue. Do we realize the full effect of the tremendous increase in productive power of the last twenty years? A very real revolution has been silently taking place in every industrial country. Factory engineers could give you instance after instance, showing how ten men can produce what would have needed a hundred men not many years ago. It is an endless process, to be found in almost every trade. There is another point that particularly concerns a pioneer industrial country such as ours. This is, the cumulative effect of long years of export, both of manufactured goods and of machinery for making such goods. We must be realistic and consider us to be, sooner or later. If the facts lead us that, in certain directions, we have to deal with a saturated market, other facts suggest that we can look for new prosperity—if we understand them aright.

Advertisers are producers. They know the facts as to our industrial capacity. It is not over production but rather under consumption that bars the way to prosperity. The marvels to be found in the new era of prosperity. Scientific discoveries every day add to our powers and wealth. The man in the street has an ever-growing consciousness of new needs. All these are factors which properly brought together, must mean an even higher standard of life. I have an intense admiration for the way in which millions of our fellow countrymen have settled their position and of their own making. Let us end them. Our productive power is immense. If we preached—and acted—optimism for six months I believe the whole atmosphere would change for the better. Pessimism is a poison. Too many people are forcing their attention upon the liabilities in the national balance sheet—they ignore our assets.

Shakespeare's King once said that the greatness of our country lay in the homes of his people. That is a truth of profound significance today. We had a crisis last year, and the way in which we surmounted it has given us a new standing in the eyes of the world. Let us again give a lead. Let us show that we can once more do the world the picture of a nation in full industrial health and that a people secure and prosperous.

A SUPERSALESMAN?

By Lilliace Mitchell

"I should hope to tell you I'll not give him a job, Myrtle," her father said shortly. "The salesman I'm looking for is a fellow who'll stick right tight to the business and the way I've always done. No one catches the tearing about the country at sixty miles an hour, here, there and everywhere."

"Now, Dad," coaxed Myrtle when he paused for breath I'm going to tell you something. You don't know it and for that matter, neither does Herman Blake himself know it. I'm going to marry him one of these days."

"My—!" gasped her father. "You don't say so! And you want young Blake to have the job so your future living is assured."

"Not at all, darling," she answered in her silkiest voice. "I only want to make sure you're a live wire in your business and can keep swimming fifteen years from now. So far you're swimming along on your name."

"As head of the most expensive motor car sold in this city," began her father pompously as the head of that same organization, I say—er—ah—oh well, send along your young Romeo and I'll try him out. But mind this well! I'll not have him chasing over the countryside in any car of mine. The most costly car made can't be used like one of these little runabouts the high school lads build out of something the cast forgotten!"

"Is that so, now?" murmured Myrtle. "You'd think they could stand the abuse, wouldn't you?"

Indignantly scorning to reply her father stalked off.

The following afternoon, the new salesman — Mermon Blake —said without preliminaries, "If a customer's worth selling, Mr. Merrick, I'll sell him."

"And customer," retorted Merrick testily, "is worth selling." Then he stared at the card with the window managerly. "Well, if that wouldn't be a cat to a cat's tail! There's Brickett of Brickett & Bauman's collaring a customer right I nfront of our door! Come on if you please."

Before more could be said, Brickett (his hand under the prospective customer's elbow) entered the salesroom and steered towards Merrick.

"This is Mr. MacArthur," Brickett introduced the customer suavely. "A week or so back he was thinking of buying one of our really good cars. He wishes, however, to look over your line before deciding on ours. Lives out in Walnut Hills."

"Westwind Hills," corrected the customer, his eyes roving over the gleaming models before him. "I might take a look at that job."

Brickett had left. MacArthur was still undecided between the eight thousand dollar job and a ten thousand. "You can't be told Merrick, "it's my uncle who will really buy the car. Brickett tried to sell him and high-pressured him but he wouldn't talk any more. I like Brickett's car but don't like the selling you. But uncle called off the whole deal."

"Really", murmured Merrick.

"They demonstrated the car in the late twilight when the roads were empty because even motorists dine promptly. Blake sat behind in lonely state while Merrick drove and explained the beauties of this model.

"We're home now," said MacArthur slowly. "If I could just coax uncle outside to look at it— it really runs like a charm—I like it a lot. I'll tell you, I'll bring him out and maybe you and your salesman could just step behind that bush there. If uncle can look at it without feeling high-pressured under a salesman's eye."

Myrtle was well-pleased. The tryout couldn't been perfect.

"You're driven this car or this make before? Good. You drive. I'll up your lane right to the door and show it to your uncle. Blake, I will wait here—"

"Oh no, we won't" said Blake lamly from the back seat.

The customer had already slipped beneath the great wheel and had the car in gear.

"We know scarcely anything of this fellow," said Blake in a low tone. "He can't take this car out of sight."

"Stroll a sale, you dumbhead!" roared Merrick. "Brickett knew what he didn't know."

"He didn't," said Blake. "He didn't even know the man's correct address,"—and suddenly to the astonish, "Jack" to draw your gat, fellow. Mine's on your heart right now."

"Up this lane," Blake continued after his swift jiujitsu hold had rendered the stranger momentarily helpless, "is the county turnpike six bros in back is another highway wherein two minutes this new car would have been speeding while you looked for Merrick to make up his mind. I found that out by driving about for nearly a half.

"Can you tie it," gasped Merrick when attack as close to business he never went anypace.

"Tie it? Sure, I can beat it. Also in running about the country I've noticed this bird's phone in police stations and post-offices. There's $5,000 reward out for him. It'll set Myrtle and Dad up in housekeeping, eh, Pop?" he asked suddenly.

"You—you can have this car for a wedding gift," gulped Merrick. It'd have been gone except for you," he ended honestly.

"Thanks but we'll take a roadster for now," said Blake calmly. "We shan't need this big cat—No; 'll later."

BOY SCOUT SERVICE HELD AT STIRLING

Stirling, Aug. 4—The Boy Scout Divine service was held in St. Paul's church July 31st with Boy Scouts, and Scouters and friends strong, five troops included viz: Picton, Marmora, Belleville, Trenton and Stirling were headed by a contingent band from Belleville.

After the National Anthem, invocation and hymn "For Beauty of the Earth", Rev. Rowland led in prayer. The choir then sang — "Seek Ye the Lord," with two effective solos by Mrr. Gerald Chase and Miss Betty Conley. The Scripture reading was taken from the 17th chapter of Exodus. Hymn "O Son of Man, Our Hero, Strong and Tender." Then Rev. Rowland took as his theme "The Call of Joshua," asking "Has every great leader had a successor?" I believe so" then he called attention to the British statesmen.

"The Challenge is upon you, Boy Scouts," measure up to the standard of truth, honesty, purity, age and steadfastness, be prepared Oh, you next opportunity, never comes my way, opportunity will come if one is prepared. Those who not get into a slipshod fashion, even in your daily duties, Joshua had years of training before his time and thus was made fit to become Moses' successor, and the call was the main thing in life is to be prepared in your God."

Mr. G. L. Clute then sang "Just we Fingers" with the Court of Honor and the Benediction pronounced.

At the close of Divine service the troops marched down to the Memorial Park where a basket of picknick was spread on the tables under Tom Ward as the base of the Cenotaph. "Auld Lang Syne" was sounded, then two minutes silence prevailed then "Reveille" and the march to the fair ground began, crossing into "Brooklyn" and hence up Front St. The inspection was a picturesque scene with the varied colours of the flags, the varied colored staffs, etc.

What might have proved a serious accident occurred on Sunday evening July 31st about seven o'clock, when Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Richards were returning home from visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. Jamie Dunlop on Boards. They were just turning in to their driveway when Mr. Orlo Lloyd of Harold came along in his car, also driving on the Consecon-Bellford road and hit Mr. Richards' buggy with such force that the whole outfit buggy and horse were upset in the ditch, smashing the right front wheel to bits and breaking the shafts, and several spokes of the other front wheel and only slightly damaging Mr. Lloyd's car. There were three occupants in Mr. Richard's buggy, Mr. James Todd, Toronto, a cousin of Mrs. Richards accompanying them. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd and another lady were the occupants of the car, and they escaped any injury. Mr. and Mrs. Richards' horse and Todd escaped with only minor bruises, the parties acted amicably.

He was charged with stealing an automobile from Brantford and American license plates from Lyndon.

Real Cooperative Agreement, Nothing in Way of Ultimatum, is Object of British Prime Minister on Debts Problem

U. S. PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION IN WAY

MacDonald Has Not Yet Decided What Will be Best Way of Approaching Washington on Question of Discussion of Debts

London, Aug. 5.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald has no intention at present of going to the United States, it was authoritatively stated in London tonight, with reports that he or some members of the delegation to the Imperial Economic Conference was about to go to Washington to discuss the debts issue.

It was said that Mr. MacDonald has not yet decided what will be the best way of approaching the United States on the question, nor does he believe that anything can be done until after the American election.

He is, however, prepared to act when the time comes in any way which seems most effective for reaching a friendly settlement acceptable to the United States and to the governments which participated in the recent Lausanne conference.

His purpose, it was said, is to achieve a settlement which will mean a cessation of controversies understanding. He is particularly anxious that whatever is done should result in a real co-operative agreement and that there should be nothing in the nature of an ultimatum.

Hindenburg's Soldier Fist is Poised Above Nazis' Storm Troops

Will Strike at Causes of Bloody Riots of Past Six Weeks Which Have Cost Lives of 130 Persons and Brought Injury to 1,000 Others.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—The soldier fist of Germany's octogenarian president, Field Marshal Paul Von Hindenburg, poised today over Adolf Hitler's nationalist Brown storm troops and other organizations which have participated in the last six weeks of bloody riots.

Newspapers said the aged President, following a long cabinet session yesterday, was prepared to strike with the full force of the government's power unless rioting stopped immediately.

Hitler's Nazi circles issued a half warning, half threat, against such action, declaring discipline was not being maintained but that if heavy measures were taken it would be impossible to make guarantees.

The death total in the rioting, which has grown almost to civil war since the present government took office two months ago, stood today at 130 and considerably more than 1000 have been injured.

Canadian British Lumbermen Submit Report to Parley

(By Thomas Green, C.P. Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 5—Canadian and British lumbermen have placed their report before the Imperial Conference last night. The document, signed after a sitting which lasted until a late hour, is in two parts, it was definitely learned.

The Dominion and British imports known as the trade agree on:

1. An embargo by the United Kingdom against sawn lumber imports from Soviet Russia.

2. An increase in the quota of all foreign countries on sawn lumber from 10 to 25 per cent., with Empire lumber continuing to enter free list.

The second part of the report is signed by the group of British importers said to control the importation of lumber into the United Kingdom. Members of this group believe on the principle of increased preference from 10 to 25 per cent., based on the principle of control of imports from the Soviet Union they suggest a control of the amount of Canadian imports by the British lumber importers themselves.

The object of the discussions which have taken place is to give Canada control of its annual $140,000,000 potential sawn timber market in the United Kingdom. It achieved, this would mean that the Dominion would ship in sawn lumber $1,500,000,000 worth, which approximately—these are official figures—each year to the Mother Country.

Finance Methods Employed by Holding Companies is Condoned

ALBANY, N.Y., August 5.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt said yesterday that financing methods employed by some of the nation's large utility holding companies should not be condoned by government and indicated that he would urge strict governmental scrutiny.

The Democratic Presidential nominee outlined informally a few of the basic principles which would guide him in shaping his recommendations for stricter governmental regulation of the public utility industry. He declined to be formally quoted, but indicated that in the not distant future he would set forth his viewpoints in clear and unmistakable language.

While he believes the government should have full power over the utilities, he said, that in return for adequate service the Utilities are entitled to a reasonable profit which he approximates at 7 or 8 per cent. on the investment.

Chicago's Industrial Area is Swept by $6,000,000 Fire

60 Companies And Three Fire Boats Fight Blaze

Chicago, Aug. 5—The flames of a $6,000,000 fire challenged 60 companies of firemen and three of three fire boats early today to put out.

The fire, breaking out yesterday afternoon in the Quincy grain elevator, spread to the Chesbrough Packing Company where it destroyed four buildings.

Perishing in the flames were 300 hogs, 50 head of cattle, and 200 sheep. Destroyed also were $25,000 bushels of grain, 3,000 tons of feed and bacons, 300 tons of fertilizer, and 2,500 hog carcasses. Three boats, tied up in the Chicago River nearby, were burned at a loss of $75,000.

An explosion of dust in the stored grain immediately was the cause of the fire. Dense clouds of red flames and smoke burst from the tall structure, scattering showers of embers down on the wooden gens of the packing plant.

IMPLEMENT SHARES LEAD MARKETS UP

CASE IS UP $7

U. S. Steel Touches $34.75 For Advance of Two Dollars

New York, Aug. 5.—The stock market was given another upward whirl today, and after a period of profit-taking around mid-day resumed the advance.

Trading slowed down somewhat when the list showed an inclination to settle back. In the first three hours total transactions approximated 2,000,000 shares, or well under yesterday's.

Wheat Feed Rumor

Even implements led the uprush, reflecting rumor of the formation of a $30,000,000 bull pool in wheat and implements with the advance in Chicago wheat prices. International Harvester advanced $5.75 to $23.75 a share, J. I. Case was up $7.75 to $34.75 and others were all their day's high prices as the market entered the fourth hour.

U. S. Steel touched about up $2 to $34.75 and then lost part of its gain.

Ether Unused in World War Bought at 7 Cents a Pound

Trenton, N.J., Aug. 5.—Indictments of three officials of New York chemical concerns on charges of conspiracy to distribute ether unfit for anesthesia to hospitals and municipal supply houses are scheduled today by United States District Attorney Wilentz.

Those indicted were Sidney Colton, trading as the Pacific Chemical Company; Edward Gordon and Benjamin Gordon, officers of both the Keegan Chemical Co. and the Harold Surgical Co.

Sale to Hospitals

The government charged actual sales were made to several hospitals.

Cohen, the government charged, purchased 160,000 quarter pound packages of ether, unused in the world war for seven cents a pound. Shipments were alleged to have been made to order of the Keegan Chemical Company. Government Chemists have labeled the ether unfit for anesthesia.

Actual Bargaining at Conference Soon to Open Modifications Expected

Canada's Offer to Britain Will be Considered by Canadian and British Delegates to Imperial Conference on Monday

DIVERSION OF TRADE POSSIBILITIES

British Delegates May Make Suggestion to Canadians to Modify Offer of Preference For Preference as Noted by Premier

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 5—Modification of Canada's offer of preference for reference will probably be requested by British delegates at the Empire Conference. The British delegates with the full reports of their own experts—now studying the offer—will meet with that of the other Dominions and India—before deciding on policy. But in British circles, it is doubted whether either the Canadian or Australian offers as they stand will be regarded as sufficient compensation for the imposition of preferential tariffs on wheat, meats, and raw materials now on the British free list.

Two Factors

Factors in the situation which according to the British viewpoints, should be considered are:

1. The necessity, especially in times of economic crisis, and in order to steadily the cost of living.

2. The necessity, in the British expert trade, of maintaining low cost of production.

Doubt is also felt in British circles whether, under the Canadian offer, the probable diversion of trade from foreign to British-Canadian sources would bring about the figures mention in unofficial forecasts.

It is however fully realized the actual bargaining has scarcely begun. Just in the coming negotiations modifications on both sides will be quite within the usual order of things.

Canada's offer to Great Britain according to present plans, will be again discussed at a meeting of the Canadian and British delegations on Monday.

(By R. K. Carnegie, C. P. Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 5—Canada proposes to so alter her tariffs that her importations from Great Britain might be increased anywhere from one hundred million dollars to two hundred million dollars annually. In the statement presented by Premier Bennett to the British delegation yesterday the tariff changes suggested are to be carried by items.

Of the 800 items in Canada's tariff it is understood that about 300 of them would be changed if the offer were accepted. In each case the object would be to give increased protection to the British exporter as against those of foreign competitors.

Accept Disadvantages

London, Aug. 5.—(Canadian Press)—In a leading editorial today the Times declares if Great Britain is to maintain her present position in Canadian duties on her products she must be prepared to accept the disadvantages arising from the preferential importation of foreign foodstuffs and raw materials, which otherwise it would be impossible economically.

The success of the conference depends on the reconciliation of interests between Canada and Australia, suggests the Times, and the British protective policy hitherto followed by both Dominions would make it difficult to concede competitive entry to the bulk of British manufactures; similarly both must be willing to increase the preference by rais-

Statistician Gives a Few Figures to Show Extent of Cargo of the Lemoyne

PORT COLBORNE, Ont.,—August 5.—(By the Canadian Press)—Cold salt sat on the heart of the New Welland Canal. Behind him as he stood motionless in Tait's covered quietness many a one subject to another. Then he launched into a story. And the statistician got busy.

"When the lemoyne opens the canal tomorrow, she will carry the world's greatest cargo of grain," he said. "She was already carrying 371,826 bushels of wheat at one load, and that cargo would make 12,250,000 two-pound loaves of bread. If you laid those loaves end to end, they would reach 2,350 miles, or the distance from the spot, where the wheat was produced to the sea. It would take 210 farms of 150 acres to grow the cargo and 286 60-ton railroad cars, or a train 2 1-2 miles long to carry it. Seven average cannine freighters would be needed to carry the cargo, which is enough to supply Canadian requirements for a day and a half. The cargo represents the early output of 83 acres of prairie land, and it would take 50 men, working with shovels, 10 hours a day, 12 days to unload the ship."

"Well," said the old salt, tapping his pipe reflectively against the snubbin post, "that's quite a load. I remember when the first Welland, the Erin—pulled out of Port Colborne with a thousand cargo. It was 30,000 bushels."

ing idle tariff against foreign imports, reluctant however, except in special cases, to lower it against British imports.

Working Out Agreement

London, Aug. 5—(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—"Delegates now have all the material for working out an equitable agreement" said the Times today in commenting on the Canadian offer to Great Britain at Ottawa yesterday.

"They will have to bear in mind all the complicated considerations" warned the Times. "Canada's very proper determination to protect her own industries, together with the corresponding claims of British agriculture and her responsibility from a British viewpoint of doing anything likely to increase materially the cost of living here, are limiting factors."

Taxation of Food

"Canada's offer appears on the face of it quite substantial," said the London Daily Telegraph. "It may provide real openings for British trade but the tragedy of the position is that the essential basis of an offer like the Australian one is the taxation of food here. The British delegation have large forces to take a hand in the debate. Their forces always foresaw, that of either swallowing food taxes or seeming to churlishly reject the offers of the Dominions.

"Mr. Bennett's generosity is overpowering," ironically exclaims the Manchester Guardian. "No such extraordinary diversion of trade has ever been contemplated outside Sir De Valera's fantasy of making Ireland do without Great Britain. At best the figures on paper of trade across the 49th parallel are grossly inflated.

Tariff Issue

They assume," continued the Guardian, "that Canadian civilization can be made self-supporting and that an artificially stimulated trade across 3,000 miles of ocean can replace natural trade across the invisible line of frontier."

"It is hardly too much to say," declared the Morning Post, "that after the British conference is assured. All that is doubtful is the attitude of the Canadian delegation feels itself at liberty to make. If those people are willing to find fault cannot suggest anything rising about the Canadian proposals."

The Daily Herald, a representative Labor opinion organ, finds Mr. Ish cabinet tackled the United States debt problem yesterday. But it a tariff ring is put around the empire it will not help desires. Washington is likely to demand the payment of $50,000,000 or war debts due in December which means new economics and new taxes."

The convict, serving a seven year term for bank robbery, was charged with slaying a fellow convict guard Elex Rozell when he made a gesture to halt the escape. Jones was a trusty guard for 15 months with full confidence.

AGRICULTURAL CONFERENCE ANNOUNCED

National Board of Technical Men is Proposed

Ottawa, Aug. 5—A conference of officials representing all government agricultural services in Canada (Dominion and Provincial) will be held in Toronto on the week of August 29, announcement of this was made today by Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion Minister of Agriculture.

The Minister will propose the establishment of a national committee of technical men to advise Minister of Agriculture on the best methods of co-ordinating the various Federal and Provincial activities in research, experimentation, control, extension, and marketing. The meeting has been called to follow closely on the Imperial Conference.

Co-ordination Sought.

"We have been working for some time," said Mr. Weir, "to bring about a closer co-ordination of Federal and Provincial agricultural services. The Dominion Department of Agriculture has cooperated with several of the provinces in setting up joint committees composed of the men responsible for the direction of research and extension work in some of our various colleges and experimentals. The success of the committees in preventing unnecessary duplication and overlapping of services has led me to the conclusion that it would be the best interests of economy and efficiency to establish a national committee of technical men to advise the ministers of agriculture of the best methods of coordinating the various Federal and Provincial activities in research, experimentation, control, extension and marketing.

New Problems.

New problems are constantly arising which require the combined efforts of several departments and institutions to solve, and it is on account of this that the services of men well acquainted with the existing organization and personnel of the various services is desired.

LOCOMOTIVE IS BLOWN UP

Brakeman Killed as Dozen Cars Thrown Into Heap

Quebec, August 5.—The locomotive of a Canadian National freight train blew up at Bic, near St. Madeleine station today, killing the brakeman and seriously injuring five other members of the crew. A dozen freight cars were thrown into a heap, blocking the track.

Philidme Rouleau, of Riviere du Loup, the brakeman died instantly. J. A. Talbot, of St. David, the engineer, and Joseph Dubois, conductor of the train, were severely scalded and received other hurts.

ST. MALACHIE, Que., Aug. 5

Skunks Take to Bee Eating but are Dispatched by the Light of the Moon

Woodstock, Ont., Aug. 5—The bees are the pride of Mr. West Zorra and all would be well had not the skunks of West Zorra taken to bee-eating. But the men of West Zorra, mostly of sturdy Scotch stock, are not easily beaten and the way in which they have taken to skunk hunting bids fair to put a stop to the mal-adorous assault upon the honeycombs.

Angus Bain and MacKay went out to look at his apiary the other night and there he discovered the skunks, skulking from hive to hive, greedily devouring every sweet bee. They were tempted to venture outside the doors of their dwelling. Angus summoned his nephew, Angus MacDonald, a marksman of parts, who brought down four of the striped marauders by the light of the moon.

No Relief for Indigents who Came Here Since First of September 1931

"There will be no relief given indigent families in the city of Belleville who have taken residence in the city later than September 1st. 1931." This ultimatum delivered by Mayor Geo. O. Tice, in his office in the city hall Friday morning was made following disclosure that several needy families formerly residing in towns and rural communities near Belleville had moved inside the city within the past month or so and had attempted without success to register for relief at the city office for help during the coming months.

"We consider the city severely enough hampered already in attempting to supply unfortunates who have lived here for years, with the bare necessities of life, without adding to the list," declared the Mayor, who voices the sentiments of the city council in the matter. A census still probably be taken of new arrivals.

WHAT DOES DE VALERA WANT, A REPUBLIC?

Dublin, Irish Free State, Aug. 5—President Eamon de Valera was challenged by the Dail today to declare without equivocation whether he wants a republic or an Irish republic.

The incident occurred during a heated debate on his request for an emergency appropriation of $8,000,000 to aid the Free State's commerce and industry.

Former Minister of Agriculture Patrick Hogan, opposing the appropriation said:

"Let Mr. de Valera tell the Irish people straight whether he stands for secession from the British commonwealth and then they will know where they are at."

BOYS PLACE NAILS ON RAIL TRACKS

Three boys of tender age, residents of the district of College Hill were chased from the railway tracks of the Canadian National Railway, near Grier street crossing late Thursday afternoon, when a resident of that section observed the boys placing something on the rails just before "The Mailer" fast express east bound arriving in Belleville at six p.m. was due. The articles the boys had been laying so carefully on the tracks were large nails Questioned by the man who observed them, the boys admitted they wanted to make "scissors." It was revealed by further questioning that two nails, first crossed and laid on the rails would be formed into the shape of small scissors, after the weight of the train wheels had passed over them. Cautioned as to the danger of such practice, and the possibility of a serious train wreck occurring from the habit of placing anything on the tracks, the boys admitted the fact, promised better behavior in the future, and left the spot in a chastened mood.

OTHER NAMES WILL BE PUT ON LIST

Ambitious Canadians lose few chances to improve the status of their business. Only a recent item in the Ontario Intelligencer carried a notice that a letter had been received by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce from an exporting firm in far off Palestine, requesting the names and addresses of apple exporting firms in this district. Through the efforts of Mr. J. O. Herity, manager of the chamber, a list of names was compiled and forwarded. Today another communication was received by Mr. Herity from Mr. C. A. Nugent, apple exporter of Trenton who had noticed the news item in the Ontario Intelligencer and who wished his name added to the list which had been forwarded.

CABIN CRUISER IN BELLEVILLE PORT

The "Spindrift", a ten ton cabin cruiser owned by Mr. A. S. Rutherford, Montreal, on tour of the St. Lawrence river and the inland waters of the Bay of Quinte anchored at Belleville Thursday evening on the way to Trenton, the last stop to be made on the trip west. From Belleville the boat will return to Montreal, with a stopover at the Thousand Islands. The party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wright, the Misses Walcott and Buchanan and Mr. F. W. Davidson, all of Montreal.

BRIGADE RUN NOT NEEDED

Pungent smoke clouds tinged with the aroma of burning rags, issuing from the rear of a store on East Bridge Street, near the corner of Front street, brought out firemen to that location at 9.20 Thursday evening. A thorough search of the premises failed to reveal any signs of fire.

REPLACE MAIN WITH SMALLER ONE

As a precautionary measure, and to avoid trouble later on in the event of the pipe bursting during the colder weather, the four inch main formerly supplying the old Frank elevator in the rear of the block on Upper Front Street, long since torn down, but well remembered by many of the older residents of the city, is being taken up by engineering department of waterworks, who are installing a new and smaller section of pipe at that location. The old four inch main has been capped since the water mains in the city were first put down.

POLICE WATCH FOR STOLEN CAR

About noon on Friday the local police received a telephone call from Kingston informing them, that a Maroon four door sedan bearing the license plates LM-809 had been stolen at Kingston about 30 minutes previously. All local police were on the look out for the brown colored sedan, while the motorcycle patrol immediately swung into action. The highways east and west of Kingston are both being patrolled looking for the stolen sedan.

CAUGHT MAKING A "U" TURN

Business was rather quiet in the local police circles during the past twenty four hours. Only one case appeared on the police blotter on Friday morning, that being an infraction of the highway traffic act. The motorist was apprehended for making a U turn at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets. Upon stopping the motorist, Constable Izard found that he was driving a car minus a tail light and the operator did not have a driver's license. Charges will be preferred.

STEWART'S DISEASE IS NOT PREVALENT

"There is no Stewart's disease affecting wheat in this district, or if there is no one has reported it," declared Mr. A. B. Baird, chief of the Dominion experimental bureau, in this city. Giving as his personal opinion, that the disease, which is so common in most of the western counties is caused chiefly by the importation of the infected American wheat seed, Mr. Baird declared, that the central counties, of which Hastings county is the better situated, have been remarkably free from the disease owing to the fact, that home grown seed is used to the exclusion of that imported. The bureau on East Dundas street would be thankful to receive notice of any trouble in wheat or other crop in this or adjoining counties, especially Stewart's disease, caused by a small parasite attacking wheat stems and sawing them in two.

POLICE COURT

"Your Worship, this young man came home to visit the old home town" and met some of his old acquaintances and they evidently had a few too many," said the counsel for a young man, who appeared in the local police court Friday morning charged with intoxication.

The young man pleaded guilty to the charge and sentence was entered until next Tuesday so as to allow the unfortunate youth to accumulate the necessary cash to pay a fine of $15.00 and $7.00 costs.

Arthur Hubbell of Frankford, appeared before His Worship Magistrate Mikel charged with reckless driving on the Frankford-Trenton road on the evening of July 9th last. Evidence was brought out in court that Hubbell had passed a car and later his own car swerved into a telephone pole damaging the car considerably and injuring one of its occupants.

Hubbell testified, that his right front tire went flat and that was what caused the accident. He later admitted that after hitting the pole his car had gone some 50 feet past the pole. He said he forgot whether or not he had applied his brakes after hitting the pole as he was excited.

His Worship found the young man guilty on the evidence submitted and fined him the minimum fine of $10 and $5.50 costs.

A number of other smaller cases of infractions of the Highway Traffic Act were disposed of by B. O. Donnan conducting the prosecution in each case.

WALLBRIDGE GIRLS WIN

Defeat Maple Leafs of This City by Score of 7-4

The Wallbridge girls although somewhat out of practise beat the "Maple Leafs" of Belleville on Wednesday night, the score being 7 to 4. Belleville girls took the bat first and N. Mcisaac succeeding in getting a run. Carter and Rushlow (catcher) Wallbridge took the bat with a vengence. E. Mackeroy, P. Kvobeen, and E. Carter all brought home three runs. No runs were scored by either side during the second innings. The third innings brought the score up to 3 to 2. Wallbridge scored two runs during the fourth innings, partly due to the fact that the Belleville pitcher lost control of the ball and flung it first to one side of the plate and then to the other. The fifth and final innings brought no more runs for each team. It is thought that the fence netting 40 rods away prevented the "Leafs" from making as many home runs as they did at the accourries. Their main fault was in the batting although they were far from faultless in the field. Wallbridge girls played well considering the fact that they have had no practise whatever. Mr. C. Ketchenson kindly gave the girls the use of a field.

Wallbridge — E. Mackeroy, P. Ketchenson, E. Carter, N. Donnelly, Steel, L. Howe, N. Ketcheson, F. Hinchcliffe. H. Mallory, E. Ronnow.

Maple Leafs — Carter, N. Mcisaac, H. Rushlow, E. Asselstine, P. Ethier, F. Hill, B. Brandt, O. Hill.

WORKHUNTERS BESIEGE TOWN

Too - Good - To-Be-True Story Embarasses Simcoe

Simcoe, Ont., Aug. 5—Widely circulated reports to the effect that 1,000 to 2,000 men are needed in Norfolk for the harvest on tobacco and other farms has resulted in aggravating unemployment conditions here. Hundreds of men, most of them with little or no chance of getting work here are flocking in over the highways and riding freight trains. The Simcoe town lock-up is filled nightly with applicants for shelter, the funds available being insufficient to accommodate the crowd. Others are sleeping in the parks and in box cars.

No Room in Jail

It is reported from Delhi that the number of work-hunters assembled there has reached such proportions there is no accommodation for them and they have established a camp on the edge of the village. The town of Simcoe has had its relief problems along with the other parts of the country but here transients from other places have contributed largely to the burden. No less than seventy families moved into the town at the approach of last winter, many of them requiring assistance to see the winter thru.

Early this Friday morning another of Prince Edward County's native sons and life-long residents passed away in the person of John Gilbert Weese at his late home in the first concession of Ameliasburg, following a lingering illness. The late Mr. Weese was born 84 years ago in the concession in which his death occurred, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James C. Weese. He engaged in farming all his life and was a successful and highly respected agriculturist of the county of his birth. As a member of the Asbury United Church he took a deep interest in the activities of that congregation. To those left to mourn his death is extended the sympathy of the community.

The immediate family surviving are the widow; two sons, Lorne A. of Asbury, and Hugh at home; five daughters, Mrs. Sandford Vandervoort, Front of Sidney; Mrs. T. Chase, Trenton; Mrs. M. M. Allen, Madoc; Mrs. S. C. Peck and Mrs. H. Adams, of Redneerville. Remaining also are two brothers, W. S. Weese of this city and J. F. Weese of Victoria, and a sister, Mrs. W. J. Allison of Albury. John A. Weese, M.P., for Prince Edward-Lennox is a distant relative of the deceased.

SISTERS OF CHARITY TAKE FINAL VOWS

Two sisters of the Community of the Sisters of Charity took their final vows at the conclusion of the Community of the Immaculate Conception, Kingston. The two sisters taking the perpetual vows were Sister Mary Magdalen de Pazzi (Olive Gibbons of Montreal) and Sister Mary Bernard (Agnes Minerva McNamara of Lonsdale.) His Reverency Archbishop M. J. O'Brien officiated at the ceremonies. The sisters were assisted by Rev. J. J. Feeney, Rev. T. E. Mooney and Rev. G. T. Marshall. The Retreat Master, Rev. Father Krogh of Toronto, delivered the sermon, the text being: "Son, Give Me Thy Heart."

At the conclusion of the ceremonies His Reverency also addressed the Sisters, congratulating them upon their happiness and also congratulating the Community on the addition of two more zealous laborers.

CAR CRASHES INTO GRADER

Alfred Davis and George Lalonde of Tweed Injured

Tweed—Alfred Davis, Tweed, and George Lalonde, of the same place, were painfully injured on Tuesday afternoon, when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a government grader on High way No. 37, near the farm of Mr. J. H. Foster at Chapman's Corners. The former sustained painful scalp lacerations and a badly cut lip. The latter suffered the loss of several teeth and a badly sprained back.

The automobile, which belonged to Mr. Lalonde, was driven by his son, Lee, who was uninjured. It appears that the grader was proceeding towards Tweed and had stopped on the east side of a small hills west of Mr. Foster's home. The automobile was also proceeding towards Tweed and the occupants were not aware of the presence of the grader until they came over the crest of the hill and crashed into it before they could take steps to avert a collision. Constable Wallace Moon, of Tweed, is investigating the accident. Mr. Davis' injuries are particularly unfortunate as dent he had booked his passage on the Empress of Britain for an extended visit to the Old Country. It is not anticipated, however, that his injuries will prove serious enough to delay his departure.

London, Aug. 5—(AP)—One disadvantage of capture by Chinese bandits is the quality of bedding socks that fit you. According to a letter the China Inland Mission headquarters here has received from H. Accidental Death Verdict In Death of Fl. Lieutenant H. W. Heweson at Airport

Gobeil Plane May Have Reached Blind Spot During Formation

FEW WITNESSES

Explanation of Formation Causing Death is Given

Accidental death was the verdict given by the jury empanelled to enquire into the death of Flight-Lieutenant H. W. Heweson, when they convened at Trenton Police Court on Thursday night to hear the evidence submitted by those in the air at the time and particularly that of Flying Officer M. F. Gobeil, who was piloting one of the machines implicated in the crash. No blame was attached to anyone. The jury was composed of Harold McClung, Chas. Parr, Claude Graham, Jack Kinney Kenneth Couch Hagill O'Rourke, N. J. McVicar and Kenneth MacKenzie. Dr. W. B. Crewe was the presiding coroner and B. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney, conducted the investigation. The accident happened at Trenton Air Station on July 29th, shortly after 6 o'clock, when Heweson succumbed to his injuries on the following day.

It was brought out during the evidence that at the time of the accident Flight Lieutenant Heweson was leading four other machines in formation flying laid in a manoeuvre called a squirrel cage loop, the crash occurring when, after the death of the leader of the formation and the wrecking of his machine, Flight Lieutenant Heweson crashed in Flying Officer Lawrence Wray and also by Flying Officer M. F. Gobeil, who stated that unless the formation is carried out perfectly, there is a possibility of any of the planes getting to a blind spot, where they cannot see the plane in front and an accident is liable to happen. It was clearly shown in the evidence that either Gobeil had reached a blind spot immediately before the accident or else the leading plane was slightly off line but the jury felt that neither had resulted in the exact cause of the accident that caused the death of Flight Lieutenant Heweson.

Evidence as to Injuries

Dr. George H. Stobbe, of this city, gave the cause of death as multiple injuries. He was called to the hospital on July 30 and found the deceased suffering from multiple contusions and severe lacerations about the head. Squadron Leader Arthur C. Leach gave evidence of identification, stating that he had known deceased since 1917 and that he had over 2000 hours in the air and that he was an experienced pilot and flying officer. Leading Air Craftsman Ralph Wilson, mechanic, and Aircraftsman Bell examining the Stinson 3H, which Heweson was flying at the time and found same to be in perfect condition, both as to motor and structure. The same evidence was given by Leading Air Craftsman Oscar E. Ally and Aircraftsman Wimber as respecting Siskin 22, of which Flying Officer Gobeil was in charge. Flying Officer Lawrence Wray, the next witness, was examined at length as he was in charge of the machine immediately following that of the deceased and narrowly escaped death himself as the Gobeil machine struck across the cockpit before striking the machine piloted by the deceased. He stated that he had been in the service two and one half months and in that time had 396 hours in the air. In answer to a question the witness stated that Heweson was in charge of the formation at the time of the accident and that five planes took part in the flying on that morning, the machine leading the deceased, himself next, Gobeil third, Edwards fourth, and Morris fifth.

Gave Details

"When did you go up?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"About 5.30 a.m. and we had been flying about forty minutes, when the crash happened," said the witness.

"Any instructions given?"

"Yes the usual ground instructions and the manoeuvres that were to be performed."

"What were the "flying conditions?"

"Excellent."

"What formation were you in at the exact time of the accident?"

"Will you describe the formation and exactly what happened as near as you know?"

"In this formation, Heweson's plane was leading, I was second, 10 feet from his wing and on the right, Gobeil the same distance from me, Edwards and Morris at equal distances from each other. Heweson one dives together and when attaining a speed of 135 miles per hour, the front plane goes into a loop and each plane following does likewise. I had started in his loop and I followed him over the top and the end-must not lose sight of the plane in front. As Heweson started the second loop, a plane shot over my cockpit, but inches above and went through Heweson's plane just about two feet from the cockpit. I immediately 'kicked out,' that is to say, left the formation and I saw Heweson's plane go down out of control."

"Did you see Gobeil's planes?"

"Yes, it was spinning towards earth but Gobeil had balled out."

"At the time of the accident where was Gobeil in the formation?"

"Third and to my right."

"Was he out of position?"

"Yes."

"Have you no guide to keep in position during the formation?"

"Most only the plane in front."

"What is the general practise if one is out of position?"

"To kick out so as to avoid a collision."

"How do you lose your position?"

"You lose sight of the other plane in making the loop on account of the wings making a blind spot if the preceding plane does not go over straight. In that case everyone would get way, the next plane less than the plane on his right and so on till the end of the formation."

"Was the formation out?"

"Not really so far."

"Do you know Gobeil?"

"Yes."

"Was he competent?"

"Yes, and capable."

Followed Instructions

Flying Officer F. M. Gobeil, the last witness called, stated he had been in the service since 1925 and had 1,000 hours in the air and that for the past ten months he had been at Trenton.

"Did you receive any instructions on this particular formation before going up?"

"Yes, we were to keep three machines apart and to do three loops in succession."

"Had Happened"

"We went into a dive for speed and I saw Heweson pull into his loop and I was thirty feet above. Wray started and I too slightly dove for extra height and the Heweson plane came up from below me."

"Was the leading plane slightly off line?"

"I think so as I was not out of position."

"What did you do?"

"I balled out after the crash."

Flight Lieutenant W. I. Riddell stated he was on the ground at the time of the accident and in answer to a question as to length of service in the air stated he had been flying for 14 years with a short time out after the Great War. He also had been in the R. C. A. F. since 1925 and that both Gobeil and Heweson were capable flying officers.

"Did you see the accident?"

"Yes."

"What were the conditions?"

"Perfect."

"Never did the accident happen?"

"I think number three plane crossed over number two and crashed on the leading plane."

"What happened?"

"Heweson's plane flicked over on its back until seventy-five feet from the ground, then it turned on the wing and nose-dived into the earth. The planes were about 600 yards from the hangars at the time."

"Would you say the account of the accident as given by other witnesses was correct?"

"Yes, I don't think Heweson was quite straight."

Alfred Rose, W. Walden and Wm. Allin all farmers of Sidney township and resident near the air station gave evidence of hearing the crash but did not actually see the accident. All three were first on the scene and stated that the machine fell straight and Heweson completely enveloped in the cockpit of the plane and that he was terribly injured.

OBITUARY

LATE WILLIAM MOSSMAN

The funeral of the late William Mossman took place Thursday afternoon from his late residence, Y Bridge Street. The Rev. A. E. McCutcheon, pastor of the Tabernacle United Church conducted the service at the home and also at the place of interment in the Belleville cemetery. Many friends and neighbors were in attendance to pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased, and there was a particularly large attendance of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way, C.N.R., employees. At the graveside the president of the local branch, R. Workman, officiated in their committal ritual. A great many beautiful floral offerings were received by the deceased's former friends evincing further the widespread esteem in which he was held.

The bearers were Messrs. J. Whir, Jen. G. Clarke, R. Hope, E. Irvin, J. Colyer and H. Doherty.

MARIONETTES

Sue Hastings' Marionettes will present an entirely different program from "Hansel and Gretal" and "Goldilocks and the Three Bears" — on the 12th afternoon of Chautauqua. This program will be staged specially for the kiddies but will appeal just as forcefully to the grownups.

This distinctly European type of program is just as popular as it was 100 years ago, and has proved the most popular type of children's entertainment on the Canadian Chautauquas. These little wooden actors manipulated by means of strings, dance do practically everything on the stage that a real human being can do. The presentation of "Hansel and Gretal" will surprise all by its sheer cleverness, magnificent stage setting and the life-like acting of these little puppets.

We invite everyone, young and old, who has the magic gift of make-believe, to come to the Chautauqua tent on the 12th afternoon to take this trip to Fairyland.

"IF IT'S CITIES SERVICE . . . IT HAS TO BE GOOD"

This strict test shows oil's uniformity and staying power

Oil that thins out too fast in your car soon leads to trouble—scored cylinder walls, scored pistons, possibly burned out bearings.

So chemists check not only the viscosity or "body" of oil at normal temperature, but also the change in viscosity as temperature changes. This is done by noting the time it takes a given amount of oil to flow through a fine hole at 100° temperature. The oil is then heated to 130°—to 210°—and the same test applied. Too much change in viscosity with higher temperatures tells them that this oil might be too thin to give satisfactory lubrication at high engine temperatures.

Cities Service chemists—testing every grade as it comes from the refineries—hold each grade of Cities Service oil to rigid standards of viscosity and viscosity change. However, viscosity standards alone do not assure an oil's lubricating value. There are many other tests which Cities Service oils must pass before they can be sold. Because these chemists reject any run of oil that fails to meet any one of these tests, oils from Cities Service always have the same long life, the same toughness, the same uniformity of grade, no matter where you buy them.

For that matter, you are safe wherever or whenever you buy any Cities Service product—for "if it's Cities Service, it has to be good."

Cities Service—one of America's ten largest industrial enterprises—broadcasts every Friday, 9 P. M. (E. S. T.) over WEAF and 31 N. B. C. stations.

WARLIKE

Jocund as if they were going out on the greatest of all adventures, troops of two nations, Bolivia and Paraguay, have started to move towards one another, war seemingly being their object.

Other nations have done the same in the past. Bolivia and Paraguay have the opportunity afforded by the League of Nations but ignore it. Paraguay has ordered mobilization and Bolivia is expected to proceed with its military activities which have so far included the capture of the forts Corrales and Toledo and bombing.

Chaco is the object of this incipient struggle. It is an extensive jungle with swamps and is rich in oil possibilities. It is hoped that the bitterness may remain local, though many U.S. veterans are talking of enlisting in the armies of the two countries.

War, Mussolini, has just said, is the best and only means of developing the best in nations and perhaps the embattled countries of South America feel like carrying out this view in action. They tend to sit on the shibboleths of the Great War and did not feel the effects of that struggle until of late years when the financial results were experienced in falling employment. They therefore have perhaps a little more excuse than if Duce for the holding of this opinion, but in the present day is just an excuse for a war of aggrandizement, which is backing up the jungle against the League of Nations.

If Bolivia wins the war, they will find many of their ideals looking pretty shabby by the time one of the parties to the struggle is ousted, and it will come in the time of payment of their debts. The victor as well as the conquered pays.

KEEPING OUT CROOKS

County fairs in Ontario have not gone the way of the one horse chaise as Editor Vermont Journal has already said. This statement was taken up by the Sherbrooke Record. The Journal points to certain untoward conditions which brought about the end of the state fair at White River Junction. With a twenty year record for prosperity and success, the infusion of swindling operations worked to its disadvantage and the result is a falling-to-ruin lot of buildings with the grounds now used as an airport. The Journal points out that had kept its skirts clean from the fakirs who had been granted concessions to ply their trickster methods, the public would not have been deceived. The Journal goes on to speak of games of chance which destroyed another fair.

Sherbrooke's record editor walked over the grounds of the fair in that place and voiced a personal protest against the gazaboos, tricksters, or fakirs who are, he says to be found in any fair and whose faces leave a bad taste in the mouth. This is his verdict—"No country fair can long thrive with the swindling rascals permitted on the grounds."

The Government of this province does its best to suppress but the final burden rests on the directors. A man or woman who loses to the low type of men who play these games ought to be prosecuted by the directorate. They are not so much to blame as the directors who allow the 'bad eggs' on the grounds. Nobody wants to see the man who gives something away for nothing for there greed and crookedness lurk.

The fairs of this province have faced an uphill fight but do not appear to be falling away. They have other uses than coaxing people to be fleeced by tricksters. They do not depend upon the percentage of the loot taken by these gentry. No self-respecting board will take a penny from those who decide and take people's money for nothing. Ontario's fairs serve an agricultural and social purpose and are therefore able to weather any untoward conditions which may arise.

ANNUAL FALL FAIR

Belleville's annual agricultural exhibition is looming a short distance away. Prospects are bright for a very successful fair, not only from the standpoint of the city and district merchants but from the viewpoint of the Bay of Quinte section. Since the revival of the fair some years ago with a new park and with modern buildings the exhibition has been something of vital importance in the life of the countryside and-city. That this year will add to its progress is confidently expected.

Citizens of Belleville and the district ought to plan to take in the local fair. Its program will be worth while.

IF I WERE SURE

By Aline Michaelis

If I were sure your love would be,
Each decade, as today—
No lessening of ecstasy,
No ardors burned away,
I'd ask, if sure to give your kiss
Such welcome, greet your arms,
With such a boundless tide of bliss,
No other Paradise!

If I were certain—ah, my own,
When was love ever sure?
And who the formula has known
To make its spell endure?
Enough if for one golden moon
Its wonder is possessed,
For though it vanish all too soon,
It leaves the whole life blest!

SENATOR GEORGE P. GRAHAM and Mrs. Graham are celebrating this week the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. George was a cowboy lad, making a weekly paper talk in Morrisburg, when the young lady who has had such a good influence on his life, took a chance and married him. Before long the Ontario country editors make good, and this one travelled far—from the bank of the canal at Morrisburg in Dundas to the Mighty of Toronto and Ottawa — once a cabinet minister in Ontario, then leader of the Opposition and potential Premier had the political pendulum swung that way — later Minister of Railways at Ottawa, intimate friend and confidant of Sir Wilfrid Laurier —another of the many editors who served the Liberal party in the Dominion op the death of Sir Wilfrid—the Morrisburg man travelled far and now after this hurly-burly of political life these many years takes his ease in the solemn and sombre halls of the Senate—sombre no longer as the ready wit and humour of the Man from Dundas burg stirs up laughter and happy feeling in the sacred precincts. Congratulations to Senator George P. Graham and his estimable wife.

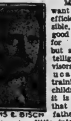
TOWARDS STATE MEDICINE



Two straws might have been noticed blowing in the wind of circumstances recently which indicate the trend of the times towards a state medicine and state hospitals. Neither of them was headed straight for that point of the compass consciously, indeed, might easily be taken to be pointing away from it, but they are none the less indications that the public mind is awakening to the facts on that subject. Although the motion to ask the provincial government to establish this service in Saskatchewan forthwith, was turned down by the Union Authorities Union convention in Saskatoon, there was an illuminating debate and the matter will have further investigation of the matter. Examination of the arguments placed there for and against the motion show that opposition to compulsory coincided mostly with that based partly on an insufficient understanding of the facts and partly on an instinctive reactionary distrust of corporate action in connection with the public welfare and civil take the indigent when they are sick." This although not cover behind an apparently reasonable objection to increasing materially the burden of taxation. It needs to be remembered that taxation is the only means of meeting public needs and that the cost of medical service at present has become so to be much higher per family than the tax rate for a service that would work with. People would not pay more—they would merely pay more equally. A similar attitude seems to assume the responsibilities of citizenship was experienced in the early days of state education and it is to be hoped that a backward member of a very backward community who would say today that socialized elementary education is the first necessity of civilized life. The case for socialized medical service is, even stronger, for an illiterate public is a danger only to itself but a sick person may easily be the involuntary cause of the suffering and death of many.

The second straw came from quite another quarter. The resolution adopted by the Ontario Medical Association at its meeting, at first sight, appear to have little or no bearing on the subject under consideration. It merely urged that doctors should be paid by the state for services rendered to old persons who were at present treated free. Figures were adduced to show that 26 per cent. of the population were—individually—unable to pay their bills for medical services. It was stated the free services already rendered amounted to $40,000,000. The Medical Association probably intended merely to voice the right of members to payment for their work. Neither medical men as a professional body nor Ontario as a province can be said to be tarred with the brush of Socialism. It may be confidently assumed that the Medical Association's decision to remove the stigma of charity from indigent patients and transfer the responsibility for treatment to the public authority was not dictated by any political bias towards a publicly controlled medical service. It was simply the less a step in that direction, because it was, de rule have been, an unconscious step. The logic of facts was the wind on which the second straw was blowing. It is on that account, all the more significant of the times.—Western Producer.

INFLUENCE OF FATHER NOT APPRECIATED

Man's Method of Approach is More Disinterested

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Many fathers want to be as much like mother as possible, not only as a friend and helper for the home, but also as an intelligent supervisors in the education and training of their children, and for this it is nevertheless true that mother and father work together too little interest is taken in the particular phase of life duties.

It is all well and good for the mother to mete out the closest kind of contact with her children. All children need a motherly influence care and guidance, especially in the younger years, but there is no sin saying the fact that a certain influence emanates from the father which the mother cannot possibly furnish, and it is an influence that is of the greatest value.

Many fathers have taken advantage of for the best interests of their children, and he must provide the bread and butter for his fami lyyet it doesn't require much time at times on the father's part to contribute to the intellectual and general well being of the family group of which he is a part, to make himself felt.

In the first place, a father should not consider his children all in a group. He must realize that each child is individual and apart from the other. We all know, even from the beginning, that every new child may be timid, shy and reserved, while another child may be bold, forward and aggressive. But besides such distinctive characteristics in traits, there are many more subtle values that the father can contribute and try to find.

This is through individual training that we get the best out of the child. Training the child individually, tend too much to place the children in groups and try to fit them to the same mold, which are more or less prearranged by the mother. But the father, in the home the individual must be taken into the case by case more or less indefinable individual difference should receive full recognition.

The reason I hold that this is more important than that of the mother's is because men, as a rule, are more objective and less subjective, not only on a general situation but in their relations to children are concerned. A mother is likely to become impatient with a child's slowness, or overwhelming as such as she should to the task at hand, because she is a mindbehavior. She allows herself to become flustered or bluster, and when this happens her judgment is not as fair or as logical as it should be.

A man's method of approach, on the other hand, is more disinterested. He can judge his own child in a more impersonal way. He is not likely to let his emotions overwhelm him, and when he finally gives his judgment he is very apt to freight it with the reasoning and logic and common sense.

Yet fathers resist be particularly careful about what they let their emotions run away with them where their children are concerned, especially if the girls are in their teens and are already beginning to show signs of developing womanhood," for it is an undeniable fact that fathers of opposite sexes attract each other more than those of the same sex, and a fatherly interest without realizing it, may be acting in his growing daughter the same way as he would when she was young, and when he was a little throne of love.

He must also be careful lest in wanting to make a man of his son he becomes too harsh. Boys, too, have failings, and since a father and son antagonism is likely to develop on the part of the boy toward the father, the latter must be more than careful lest this smoldering antagonism is fanned into a flame of distinct resentment and hatred.

Ottawa, Aug. 5—Resolutions passed at 5th biennial conference of the British Empire Service League which met a year ago in Toronto and which was attended by Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, Earl Jellicoe, General Sir Frederick Maurice and other distinguished ex-service men, have been submitted to the delegates of the Imperial Economic Conference here. These deal with such matters as trade with Russia, technical training of the sons of ex-service men, Empire films, and Empire day.

Olympic Stadium, Los Angles, Aug. 5—By Ted Meagher, Press Sports Writer—The Japanese are politely trying to conceal triumphant grins.

They came to the Olympic games to learn, but they are doing a lot more than that.

They retained their hop, step and jump championship yesterday when Chuhei Nambu broke the world's record with a great triple jump 51 feet 7 inches, while the Japanese contingent cheered hoarsely.

Coming on the heels of Chuhei Nishida's great performance in the high ascend in the pole vault, it was enough with many Americans to put the Japanese fourth in the point standings of the unofficial Olympic games—behind the United States, Finland and Great Britain but five points ahead of Canada's 23.

Wheat, Meats, Lumber Are Included in List From Canada

By George Hambleton

(CP Staff Correspondent)

Ottawa, Aug. 5—British experts are examining Canada's offer of increased preferences, line by line, item by item. When the work of the British experts is completed—and it will probably occupy the week-end—the British Cabinet of seven will review it and decide their policy. Then will come any counter-proposals Great Britain has to make and the stage of actual bargaining. It is expected, that certain trade concessions will be made from the strict line of goods and counter-proposals Canada, Australia, India and New Zealand have now submitted their offers to Great Britain, South Africa follows today. They follow in the same general lines—an offer of wider preferences on British manufactures in return for great preferences in the British market on Empire products.

Canada's offer of preferences for preferences was submitted to the British delegation yesterday. Canada's proposals are on certain lines of British exports to her free list. On others she offers to widen the margin of preference—by increasing the duty on foreign imports or by reducing the rate on British goods as is considered right in the circumstances.

Canada asks from Great Britain new or increased preferences on wheat, meats, including bacon; lumber, dairy products including butter and cheese; fish, copper, nickel, zinc, lead, cattle, vegetables, fruits.

MUSSOLINI EXALTS WAR

Calls Democracy More Tyrannous Than Tyranny

Rome, Aug. 5—War is exalted by Premier Mussolini in what he calls "the seal of nobility to peoples," in his concluding exposition of Fascism for the encyclopaedia Italiana which appears under his old newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia. Perpetual peace, the Premier says, is impossible.

His dictum on democracy is this, it is more tyrannous and oppressive than tyranny.

Fascism, he said further, is a regime without a king but with a king. Nevertheless more exclusive, tyrannical and ruthless than a single king who is a tyrant.

His discussion of religion is brief:

"Fascism is not indifferent to religion in general or the Italian Catholicism in particular. The State does not have a theology but a morality. Religion is not only respected but defended and favoured."

He explains the Fascist cry of Empire as the will to power.

Phil Edwards Runs Smashing Race to be Third in 1500 Metres with Beccali as Winner

Leads Whole Distance and Only Beaten at Tape

A. WILSON SIXTH

Diddrickson Wins 80 Metres Hurdle in Record Time

By Simon Dalmaso
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Los Angeles Aug. 5—A second Canadian victory in the Olympic games track and field competition is proving harder to achieve than the Dominion has expected. The point total is rolling up as track men and women do astonishing things but no one has come along to lack a win beside that of Duncan McNaughton, champion high jumper.

Today Alex Wilson, Montreal and Johnny Ball, Winnipeg, made bids for the 400 metre title. All they had to do is beat Bill Carr and big Ben Eastman, the United States duo, Lieut. Godfrey Rampling, of Great Britain's Royal Air Force flat steppers, who have been clocked in under 47 seconds for the quarter mile.

Wilson, after his smashing race in the 800 final on Tuesday when he finished second, is one of the favorites, Ball and Lieut. Rampling the only two conceded a good chance to hold off the Carr-Eastman combination, though Bill Watson, Canada's 5,000 metre champion from Montreal, is also in the 400 metre route.

Surprise Package

Phil Edwards unloosed another surprise package yesterday by his smashing performance in the 1,500 metre final won by Luigi Beccali, 29 year old youth of Milan, Italy. Edwards closely followed the pace set by Glen Cunningham of United States, until the backstretch, where he forged to the front with Beccali and John F. Cornes, captain of Oxford University athletic club, charged down in the last few yards. Beccali's final spurt carried him into the tape a good three yards ahead of Cornes who barely beat out Edwards. Cunningham finished fourth, Harry Larva, of Finland, defending champion, finished last in a field of 11.

Beccali covered the distance in 3 minutes, 51 3-10 seconds, which clipped two seconds off the Olympic record.

Just a Workout

Winning the javelin throw title proved just an ordinary workout for the Finns. Matty Jarvinen beat the Olympic record each time he turned and his best throw of 235 feet, 2 inches, beat the Olympic mark by 20 feet. His countrymen Matti Sergola and Eino Penttila, finished second and third.

The Japanese were given good cause for excitement in the hop, step and jump contest which was won by Chuhei Nambu. He retained the title for his country with a world record breaking performance of 51 feet, 7 inches. The world record is 51 feet 1 3-4 inches. Erik Svenzson, Sweden finished second and Menichi Oshima, Japan, third.

Jack Portland, Collingwood, Ont. the lone Canadian in this event, was far out of it with a jump of 43 feet, 3 1-4 inches.

Another Record

Miss Mildred "Babe" Didrikson, the girl from Dallas, Tex., who only recently purchased the first heat of her life, hung up her second world record victory of the games in the 80 metre hurdles, which she won by 6 six inch margin from Evelyn Hall, Chicago. She covered the distance in 11.7 seconds to eclipse her own previous world mark made in the preliminaries by one tenth of a second.

Marjorie Clark, South Africa, finished third while Hilda Hatch, of Toronto, wound up fourth and left behind Violet Webb, of Great Britain, who was fifth.

TORCH SINGER IS INDICTED

Libby Holman Reynolds And Boy Chum on The Grill

Winston-Salem, N.C., Aug. 3 — Libby Holman Reynolds, Broadway singer, and Albert Walker, Winston-Salem youth, stand indicted today for the murder of Libby's husband, Smith Reynolds, heir to an estimated $15,000,000 tobacco fortune.

The Forsyth County grand jury reported true bills against the two yesterday leaving it to the prosecutor to decide what degree verdict to seek, when he brings the pair to trial.

Walker, a chum of young Reynolds, was arrested and placed in the county jail. Authorities at Cincinnati, Ohio, and New York were asked to hold some in his client body. Her father, at Cincinnati, said she was confined "at the proper time," but the whereabouts of the fair Broadway favorite remained unknown.

"This is a trump-up and a terrible injustice to an innocent young woman," her father said.

REPORT NOT TRUE

Washington, Aug. 5—State Department officials said today there is absolutely nothing to reports that the United States and Great Britain have exchanged notes with reference to a tariff conference at the end of the Imperial Trade Conference in Ottawa.

'TELL' MORGAN BIG HITTER

Clace Comes From Behind To Defeat Maple Leafs 13-11

Scoring three runs in the ninth inning the Clace girls came from behind to defeat the Maple Leafs by the score of 13 to 11 at the armouries lawn last evening.

The game was very keenly contested throughout with the doubt of the final score being in mind up until the final out was made. "Tell" Morgan was the big hitter of the night collecting four hits out of five trips, while home runs were hit by Thompson, Genereux and Grass Day. The win safely crimebed the Clace line in third place and the loss eliminates the Maple Leafs from the league running. On Saturday evening the Maple Leafs are challenging the local Wallbridge girls team to another game on the armouries lawn, commencing at 8 o'clock.

MAKE SHIFT TEAM

Belleville Have One And One Half Game Lead on Petes

Presenting a make-shift line-up the Belleville Nationals were defeated by the score of 11 to 3 at Kingston on Thursday evening, when Young Jamieson, the Petes ace hurler, pitched the Kingston Ponies to victory for the second time in three days over the slipping Nationals.

Thirteen men left on base also influenced all chances that the local might have had in winning their first game of the season from the league leading Petes. Errors of commission and errors of omission in the field did not help, but the Nationals had seven miscues chalked up against them.

Captain Peerey Mills was again an absentee from the line-up, Ken Chambers, catching the second baseman, doing the receiving. Chambers caught Cook, Wire's pitching advantage and although he had three errors, he turned in an excellent game. "Carm" Cook was brought from short field to second and used the boy from Trenton gave the fans something to sit up and take notice when he made three plays look easy. Cook looked good in the outfield for the Nationals but he literally shone in the infield against Kingston. Cook's throw to Riggs at third and Art Scarlett in the field also played excellent ball defensively.

Cretney Hits Em

The feature of the game was the return of Cretney, ranger first baseman of the Nats, to his former post as a hitter. Cretney made a regular field day while wielding the willow. He slapped Wire's offering for a triple, two doubles and a single out of five trips. He has been hitting the ball much harder of late and adds considerable to the thump of the Nats. He has been the ranger Gerow's pitching choice and although he has appeared in relief credited with the win of the game. Alex. outpitched Jamieson in the afternoon. He allowed but one free passage to first base while Jamieson walked four, striking out seven while Jamieson whiffed but five. Kingston got twelve hits and Belleville ten. The Nationals are now one and one-half games ahead of the third place Peterboro seniors who are holding down the second turn. With three games yet to play, one at home with Kingston and Peterboro and one in Cobourg, they ought to come through.

CANADA CUP LOST BY MARGIN OF 20 SECONDS

Rochester N.Y., Aug. 5—Continuing an unbroken string of victories started in 1903 when a United States yacht lifted the Canada's cup, the Commodore of the Rochester yacht club yesterday defeated the Canadian challenger, Invader III, in the fourth and final of the races for the historic trophy by the slim margin of 20 seconds.

It was the most thrilling race of the series, first one of the eight metre yachts, then the other, taking the lead. Both were sailed to their best advantage in a steady breeze of from eight to twelve miles that afforded relief to a gallery of thousands from the hot sun and a temperature in the middle eighties.

◆ Dr. Black's Daily Health Hint ◆

Be careful about over-exposure in the sun. A sun tan is healthful but it must be gotten gradually. Rubbing the skin with oil beforehand prevents excessive drying and consequent wrinkling, especially in older women. Use the sun's rays sparingly, for they can prove dangerous.

The golden age never was the present one.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Misses most of their regulars the Kingston Intermediate Ponies will journey to Kingston on Thursday evening.

Yanny Jamieson pulled the "iron man" stunt by hurling two games in three days over the Nats. Jamieson was set pitched by Manager Cretney pitching choice, Alex Wale as the box score will show. Alex had two more effective trials but the rival while he allowed but one pass he first while "Yanny" gave four free tickets to the faithful bag. The Nats played terrific baseball behind comebacker as less than seven errors of commission, not counting those of omission which were plenty. "Peerey" Mills looked on from the side lines and declared he wanted to get into the fracas sore thumb and all.

Even in defeat the Nationals displayed a new infielder, which is something to say at least. This time it was Carman Cook the "prize" as an infielder in Kingston, who not only fielded great but he played the keystone sack like a veteran. Chris Barclay also displayed himself at third.

Ken Chambers, who filled the duties of backstop over the absence of Captain Mills, cannot be blamed for the defeat as he caught a fine game and when he was right on the job pegged to second like a veteran under the circumstances. Will Potzer, who appeared to form as the combine with a vengrance, we see, was the youngest first baseman in the league and added some in his fielding, collected no less than a triple, two doubles and a single in five trips. Take it from us that's no setup.

If the Peterboro seniors "take" Cobourg on Saturday, and they should, well the Nationals will be in second place by virtue of the succeeding Peter. It looks as though the Nationals will finish in a blaze of glory. Belleville is between the Nationals and the Peterboro seniors and should tackle second place in the C.O. R.L. What a crowd of fans Belleville could get out if the locals could show when these two old rivals back up in the game of games, to determine who will meet the league leading Peters in the league finals.

According to the Kingston Whig-Standard both the Peterboro and Belleville clubs have refused to play the C.O.R.L. play off games at the Cricket Field in the Limestone City. This identical same argument was voiced at the last meeting of the C.O.R.L. mogols but was overruled by the vote of Belleville and Peterboro delegates due to the fact that the Cricket is the Kingston Parks Board were trying their best to rush the construction of their new Fair grounds and ball diamond. Now that they discovered that no effort was being made to rush the work on the Kingston park the fault is being directed on the construction of the race track. We cannot say that we blame any team for refusing to play baseball games on the Cricket Field where there are special ground rules for every field, except centre field from even to the outer gardens there are two parks and when a ball rolls into the latter it is out of the sight of the umpire and accordingly a home run. "Try and tell the Fenny management that one."

Tonight when the Point Anne Intermediates battle the local Victories at the Fair grounds the Vics have up to date failed to step into complete command of first place in the Bay of Quinte loop. Point Vics have always been in the lead in the league to date and if they can win one of the two games there are assured of a play off berth. Ken Hagar, Adams as well as Campbell, has been granted a playing permit to play in the league and those boys will form the battery against the "Cement Makers" tonight. These two teams book up again on Tuesday evening when they match Chummy Gerow has had the Vics set to perfection and Tuesday's tilt is said that with pitchers the calibre of Hamilton, they the "Campbell the Vics should go some to defeat the Intermediate "B" class this fall.

In one of their weekly games the Crystalaze kids gave the Junior Victories a 9 to 8 defeat on the Atlantic grounds last night. Art Young and Gordon Church did all on the mound while Don Thomas was on the receiving end. Moose kids used Leighton and Grassi as their battery. These two clubs are battling up for next year during these games.

Tomorrow we have some "red hot" news for the lovers of girls' softball. It has to do with the local girls' league. "See you tomorrow."

1,283 Motor Vehicle Accidents Occurred in Early Morning Hours

If you drive a motor vehicle of any kind the chances time you are tempted to relax vigilance because you think early and traffic light-ed—don't.

1,283 accidents occurred in the province of Ontario last year between midnight and breakfast hours. Most of these accidents took place because drivers, concluding they wasn't much congestion before right-of-way, stepped harder than ever and took the chance instead that the approaching intersection would be clear. Sometimes they are.

This attitude resulted in 82 known death and known injuries in the province in 1931. An analysis of the accident statistics furnished by Provincial Vehicles Branch of Ontario Department of Highways, discloses clearly that there is no hour during night or day, in any kind of weather or road conditions, when either motorist or pedestrian can afford to take a chance.

Beauty.....

BY HELEN JAMIESON

Chin Needs a Kneeding Now and Then

Ordinarily we don't go Pollyanna-and harp on that "looking on the bright side" string, mainly because, if you're always looking up you're likely as not to step into a coal hole, with the prospect of having to send round to the dry cleaner's. But when it is a matter of keeping a chin fit or rattling a chin that isn't, that heavenly, upward nose-tilted pose is positively a necessity.

Muscles extend from collar bones up into the chin to disappearing goodness knows where. Other muscles are inserted in the lower jaw, trek on up into the cheeks. But there's no need of bringing that up. The idea is that these interlacing fibers tighten when the head is held erect and go slumpy when the chin drops. If one's occupation is such—reading, sewing, typing—that there is more down- looking, than up-looking, fibers lose tone.

All of which never occurs to a woman until one grey day when she can't believe her eyes, even though they have never lied to her before. Below her chin are fine lines. The chin is soft, and —is it possible? —it has acquired a companion chin! Well, well! That sort of business can't go on. To let the face go to rack and ruin is unthinkable. One chin is sufficient. It should be nice or, at that. So, attention, women! Gird for the task!

Neck exercises? To be sure, but not precisely the kind you are thinking of—throw up and down nods of the head, those turns from side to side. No, Gertrude. You do neck stretching. As fonda, performance, but one that is in a good cause.

Throwing the head backward and forward is what the savage indivi- dual is going a good part of the time, looking up, looking down, glandular silver. That makes those lazy muscles come alive is an exhilarating hard-pull exercise. Muscles are to be drawn out to their full length. Casual bowing of the head won't do it.

Sit squarely on a chair, feet firmly on the floor, hands grasping the sides of the chair. Gradually, in quick little lifts, elevate the chin, throwing the head back slowly with each lift, bringing up the body away from the chair seat. There will be a muscle pull from the chest up to the ears.

Drop back to first position. Start again. When chin is lifted it goes up an inch or so, but it comes back only half an inch, avoiding that downward movement, which in this case is the fly in the beauty ointment.

After the exercise place the middle of the palm of each hand on the center of the jaw bone and knead the flesh, pushing it upward, exactly as one would knead bread. There are large veins there and the flesh will warm and glow.

Slap on a piece of gauze that has been dipped in cold witch hazel, hold it on with a chin strap, say prayers and go to bed. Do that every night for six weeks and the chin will have vanished. And good riddance, for it "good-bye, forever!"

Correct Manners

INTRODUCTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—I read your discussion of introductions but you did not mention relatives. What is the correct form to use in introducing a young man to my aunt? In my case my aunt has two children by a former marriage who bear their father's name, a boy fourteen, and a girl of sixteen. The boy is too old to be called Master, isn't he?

2.—When seating in a public place when should one place the napkin in one's lap. I have noticed some people will unfold the napkin directly they sit down and others who wait until they are served.

3.—My fiance's birthday is next month and I would like to entertain another couple at dinner on that night, letting it be a surprise to him. I do not live at home so it will have to be at a hotel. I would like a nice hotel where we could dance too. I know very little about entertaining and do not know how to go about it. How could I arrange to have flowers for the table? Would it be appropriate to have a corsage for the other girl and myself? Should we wait for them in the lobby? How long should we stay? Do I surprise darling? Really I don't know a thing about arranging anything of this kind.

Thank you.

1.— Family introductions are usually done with less formality than are other kinds of introductions. The expression "this is" is often used, or the introductions may be made like any other introduction. It depends upon whom we are introducing, and what we wish to register in the introduction.

When you introduce a young man to your aunt, you might say "Aunt Mary, may I present Mr. Thomas son?", or "Aunt Mary, this is Mr. George Thompson", or "Aunt Mary, Mr. Thompson."

When introducing the girl of sixteen or the boy of fourteen (or either household) it is, I think, gracious to give their titles....Miss or Mr.....and the first as well as the last name. This gives the introduction the dignity it should have, and the naming of both names gives a certain graceful information that is appropriate to the age. "Mrs. Wood, this is Mr. Arthur Stewart", or "Miss Graham, this is Miss Mary Brown."

2.—There isn't any definite rule about this, but it always seems more convenient if we place our napkin on our lap directly after we sit down. This, obviously does not hold up the service.

3.—You can make all arrangements for this party beforehand and if you plan carefully, as I am sure you will with such a high-priced wish to have everything right, you will easily have the assurance that everything is right before the party.... and then you can give yourself up to being the perfect hostess during the party.

The thing to do is to go to the head waiter sometime when you know that he will not be busy (this is, not at meal time. He might be able to give you a small private dining-room but usually have them for just such occasions and usually there is no extra charge for them.

Plan to have very few courses and to have these as perfect as possible. A soup, perhaps; the main course; a salad course; and dessert and an after-dinner coffee. Of course you may have more, but it isn't necessary. Have a clear soup, and served with it, hot buttered-and-toasted crackers of a simple kind. For the main course, you might have for each a half broiled chicken. This is safe, for usually it is well done, and usually everyone likes it. With this, fresh peas or small tips of asparagus, and either parsley potatoes or potatoes au gratin, or wild rice, or corn pudding. And something to give the added zest of a different taste—sauted peaches or apricots, fresh, if possible. Your salad, served as a separate course, might be endive alone, or endive and lettuce, or endive and tomatoes, or tomatoes and cucumbers, or any other "spring salad". Not too heavy a salad for this time of year. And with the salad, hot toasted cracklets with cheese toasted on them or served separately. The dessert might be a hot souffle (chocolate, vanilla, with sauce, or the inevitable ice cream. The ice cream might be dressed up with an interesting sauce....hot raspberry sauce or chocolate or any fruit that is in season. With this, small cakes. Then coffee.

The headwaiter will tell you just how much this check will be, and how to pay beforehand, if you wish, taking him to add ten per cent to the amount, for him to give to the waiter. As you plan the arrangements with the head waiter, give him a fee, a dollar, perhaps. Then, all your financial arrangements will be off your mind, and a great relief that is, or you may do all of these financial arrangements except the fee to the waiter, and that you can quietly give to the waiter on the evening of the party.

For the flowers you may tell the headwaiter just what you wish for the centrepiece, and he will get these flowers and have them arranged on the table. Or you can get the flowers the afternoon of the party and go to the hotel and arrange them on the table yourself. It would be charming to have corsages for yourself and the other girl and boutonnieres of one white or dark red carnation, or a few bachelor buttons for the gentlemen.

Since the party is to be a surprise it would probably be best to arrange to meet your guests in the lobby of the hotel.

The girl who is to be your guest should be the one to suggest leaving.... but she may wait for you to make this suggestion. You will have to observe about this.

You see, the great thing is to do as much of the arrangement beforehand as possible....and good luck to you for your party.

(Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

The Beauty Box

(By Helen Pollett)

Terrible to see a sixteen-year-old girl with a world-weary face. She knows everything; has seen every thing; heard everything; has learned to go but awhile along and tolerate the human race. She's sowing seeds of ugliness. She'll reap the harvest which will be horrid wrinkles, sagging tissues and a body that hasn't grace snap or vitality. The sophisticated poise produced by rolling full ones, doesn't make a girl attractive. It drives away the finest male creature. It doesn't make for happiness, and it has a devastating influence on health, spirit and appearance.

To fill out hollow cheeks, stoke up on adipose-building proteins—eggs, milk, cereals, butter and potatoes—and go in for facial exercises. Pretend to blow a feather in the air, forcing outward the large trumpet-like muscles in the cheeks. Anoint the skin surface with a heavy massage cream, place fingers and thumbs outspread from chin sides to cheek bones, lift up the flesh with a quick clawing movement. Then for an ice rub.

Blackheads should be fought tooth and nail, not only because they make the complexion hateful and unsightly, but because they interfere with the functioning of the sebaceous glands. Roust them with soapy massage—rub melted soap into the skin with the finger tips. Then place over the face towels that have been wrung out of hot water. Blackheads are plugs of grease; cold water has no effect upon them.

QUICK ASSETS $258,000,000 HELD BY BANK

Six Months' Statement of Bank of Commerce Issued

DEPOSITS GROW

Toronto, Aug. 5—The Canadian Bank of Commerce in its report to the Minister of Finance on May 31, 1932, shows that savings deposits have increased substantially, and a sound liquid position has been maintained.

The total of savings deposits has increased in the six months by $1,-000,347, from $383,303,739, to $384,-304,086. A strong liquid position is represented by $41,138,159 of cash, consisting of Canadian currency of $11,362,534, Dominion notes of $29,-504,464, deposits in the central gold reserves at $8,000,000, and United States gold and foreign currencies of $1,331,161. Other items in what might be termed readily available or "quick" assets, amount to $217,-775,970. Included in this total is an amount of $134,702,221, of high grade securities, mostly bonds, including Dominion and Provincial government securities to an amount of $80,153,965; United States government securities $2,027,421; Canadian municipal securities of $21,-167,526, and railway and other bonds amounting to $12,294,015. The total amount of quick assets is $258,464,-129, which represents 51 per cent of total liabilities to the public of $504,830,344.

In comparing the position of the bank with that shown at the end of its last fiscal year, November 30, several changes have taken place. Current loans (for commercial purposes) have been reduced by almost $17,000,000, from $206,519,223 to $191,896,517. Call loans in Canada have reflected not only the reduction in the values of securities, but the tendency toward outright purchases by investors, in reduction from $40,852,167 to $30,951,681. The decline in demand deposits is naturally the result of business men using as they do in times of depression, accumulated funds instead of borrowing for forward transactions and of preparations for the stimulation of business, now in prospect from the good crop and trade outlook.

Notes in circulation are $22,536,111 as compared with $24,-352,721, six months ago, while letters of credit have fallen slightly, from $12,911,611 to $11,614,117.

Provincial Financing

The May 31 statement reflects the services of the bank to Provincial Governments and to various municipalities throughout the country, which has required loans pending the finding of their requirements by public issues of bonds. Loans to Provincial governments total here were $12,925,000 six months before-amounted to $9,972,000 on May 31 last, while loans to municipalities have increased from $6,000,000 to $34,637,054. As before, deposits with the Minister of Finance remain the same, $1,250,000 and deposits in the central gold reserve are also unchanged, $8,000,000.

AUTUMN TRADE RISE IS SEEN

Efforts Made to Boost Commodity Prices Successful

NEW YORK, August 5.—With commodity prices still fired by growing expectations of autumn improvement and efforts being made to boost commodity prices, further sharp advances were achieved in the stock market today, although on the whole, prices did not get much above yesterday's highs.

Profit-taking checked the rise at times.

The farm implements were in the lead, with Case making an extreme gain of 7 points, and International Harvester getting up about 5. Miscellaneous issues moved up 2 to 3 points at the best included American Telephone, Consolidated Can., U.S. Steel Common and Preferred, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, American Water Works, Public Service of N.J., Dupont, Eastman, Standard of N.J., and others. Advances of a point or so appeared throughout, while, although the Coppers failed to participate. There were occasional recessions of a point or so from the best.

In Metals there was little change in Domestic Copper prices, but the Base Metal again advanced in the Foreign Markets, and at home, lead and zinc were again higher. Bar Silver also mounted 1-4 of a cent to 29 cents an ounce. Some of the day's earnings reports was that of Simms Petroleum, showing a loss for the quarter, the second quarter, against the large deficit of $1,208,277 in the like period of last year.

VOLUME MORE DISTRIBUTED

New Leaders Added to Those of Previous Sessions

Toronto, Aug. 5—Losing some of the ground that made the forenoon session of the previous day so spectacular, stocks on the Toronto Stock Exchange continued the advance in early trading today. Volume was more widely distributed and new leaders were added to those of the previous session.

International nickel and Consolidated Smelters continued to feature but had as running mates Brazilian Traction and Goodyear Tire Common, which was not as active as they in bulk but the price rose to 9 for a fractional gain. Smelters moved ahead 2 points and Consolidated Goodyear Tire made the best advance of the season to sell at 70¼, for a net gain of 4¼. Brazilian Traction also was in line with increased activity and an advance of almost a point. Oils were active but decreased somewhat and at slightly higher prices.

Page-Hersey tubes recovered the previous day's loss of a point, and Canadian Steel Foundries preferred Bakeries were up fractionally. C. P. R. fairly active, was off a point. Bank stocks were quiet.

GROUP INSPECTS APPLE ORCHARDS

English Buyers Much Impressed With Quality of Fruit

Trenton, Aug. 5 (Special)— Mr. Kenneth Crews, assistant to Jos. Hodgetts, head of the fruit branch of Ontario Department of Agriculture, met Mr. George C. Wess of Glasgow, Mr. Percy Peak of Liverpool, Mr. John A. Colyer of Aldershot, Eng., Mr. John A. Guthrie of average crop.

Portland, Oregon, who are in this country to view the fruit districts of Ontario. These men are large buyers of Canadian apples in the old country buying through Andrew Fulton, who resides in this land. The idea of the group is to find the fruit belts of Ontario and see the orchards and get general knowledge of the way that fruit farming is carried on in this country. They will look the district over this morning then accompanied by Mr. Crews leave by motor for Toronto where they will inspect the orchards as they go through the country, Mr. Crews stated last week, in conversation with this correspondent, that the apple crop would only be 60 per cent of the

Chatauqua Opens Season with Delightful Comedy New Brooms

Interesting Sidelight on Home Life of Business Man

A splendid crowd was present at the Armouries last evening for the opening programme of the Canadian Chautauqua entertainment. The appeal of the first entertainment promises well for the success of the week's offering. The Chautauqua was formally opened by Alderman Harold Armstrong, in the absence of Mayor O. O. The, who was out of the city. Alderman Armstrong welcomed the Canadian enterprise to the city and expressed the hope that the citizens would indicate their appreciation of the efforts of the Chautauquas to present outstanding programmes by daily patronage.

Alderman Armstrong introduced to the audience Miss Hope Hamilton of this section of the Chautauqua, who announced the opening vehicle, the comedy, "New Brooms". This clever play was very well received. It has amusing lines and the suddence in a constant state of merriment.

"New Brooms" was an interesting sidelight on the home life of a busy business man. Rather grouchy disposition the head of a big business business man, has a wife composed tionable at home and when his college son completes his course of deficiencies, the father gives him complete management of the factory and home for one year, the only condition being, that the son studio or any of the other pleasures sunny atmosphere, he advocates for the year.

Situations Develop

Ferocity and the play was one of uproarious comedy as situation after situation developed producing chaotic relationships. The father stayed at home while his son went to work. The change found the son at tennis, golfing and boating, to long hours at the office and from carefree leisure to frenzied business deals was too much for Tom's digestive system which was beginning to get a bit frayed, about the edges when the end of the play was preached.

Mr. Father had a lovely time. Aside from the embarrassment of having to spend a few days at home spending forenoon, his days at home were most enjoyable, and under the influence of the charming lady housekeeper his son had chosen, his distasteful career, too, underwent a change.

Everything, of course, works out agreeably. The son discovers that his psychological training and theoretical knowledge of business methods do not compare with the years experience in managing a big concern. He also learns that the serious times the perpetual smile is a valuable asset. Everybody lives happy ever after, start out again on a partnership basis.

The part of the father was admirably taken by Arthur McMurray whose portrayal showed experience on the stage. He was most convincing both in the temperamental and the terrible tempered Mr. Bates and in gentler scenes. The role of son was especially well taken by the charming young housekeeper proved herself a competent actress. The parts of the cook, the collector of donations for the church and the wily Miss Wheeler were all taken by a versatile young actress, has splendid stage presence. The parts of George Morrow and Mr. Kneeland were successfully taken by the same young man.

Chautauqua programmes will continue until Tuesday evening, beginning each afternoon at three o'clock and each evening at eight-fifteen.

Fair Directors Will Meet Every Week Until Fair Time

It was the feeling of the members of the Fair Board present at their meeting on Thursday evening, that there should be a regular board meeting every Thursday night from now until the opening of the Belleville Fair on August 30th next.

All committees reported activities in their line at Thursday night's meeting. Secretary Robt. Mitchell was in the chair, while Secretary R. H. Ketcheson assured the members, that all this year's prize lists had been mailed out, Secretary Ketcheson also informed the meeting, that he had received a number of entries for the Belleville Fair already and were very pleased with the entries daily. This is the earliest, that entries have ever been received for this new bigger and better Belleville Fair in history.

The directors also reported that their particular work was far ahead of last year and looked for a banner year in 1932.

RUSSO-GERMAN PACT FEARED

Prof. B. Schmitt Calls It Most Serious Threat

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 5.—Bernadotte E. Schmitt of the University of Chicago said at the Williams College Institute today the possibility of Russo-German military alliance was considered a most serious threat to the peace of Europe."

Leading the Institute Conference on the Versailles Treaty Schmitt declared:

"There is no use blinking the fact that those controlling the Reichswehr, according to evidence which cannot be dismissed as mere propaganda, appear to have entered into a working arrangement with the Soviet War Department, by which large quantities of war material are being manufactured in Russia under German supervision and directed against the day when Germany can show her teeth."

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases, but simply an alkali. Try buying some ordinary bisulphate of soda (not the kind used for dishes), some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in water right after eating. This neutralizes the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach. Inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

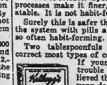
EVERY WOMAN faces this question

"How do I look to other people?" If you have a lovely skin, attractive eyes, and plenty of enthusiasm, you need not worry.



So many women, though, risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, pimples.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's All-Bran. This cereal provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B which tones the intestinal tract. All-Bran also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in All-Bran is much like that of lettuce. Special cooking processes make it firmer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Surely this is safer than abusing the system with pills and drugs! So often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

IRISH EYES

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

The two men boarding him into the back seat, and Sheila heard Peter say heavily, "Sure, I'm fine," in answer to Inky's gruff inquiries. "You all right?"

"Put this rug around you," Ken told her. Trembling she wrapped her knees snugly. "We ain't going far," he said.

They started. Sheila heard Peter snoring in the back seat. Snow fluttered down, down, down upon the black city streets and the shining wet tracks under the elevated road and the steamer rails bilged before the humble tenement doorways.

She knew it was Peter snoring because Inky was perched upon one of the small seats, his breath, heavy with garlic and wine, at her ear.

"How you and me doin', kid?" Inky talked to her. "Because if anyone stops us, I'm taking you up to your mother in White Plains."

"In the Bronx," she corrected.

"Oh, yes, that's right," Inky said, he said. "But don't you worry—you will get there. Nothing's going to happen to you."

"Only not to pull nothing," Inky's pal persuaded him, low.

"I wouldn't know how to pull anything!" Sheila said, angrily.

"No, you just do like I say you to," Ken observed encouragingly, "and you'll be all right."

"That was an awful smart thing you did down at that Bronx joint, Sheila," Inky presently observed.

"I may work," Sheila said, briefly.

"Work! It's gotta work," the other man said. "Type the bulls there?" he added.

"Now listen," Ken said sharply to Sheila in a quickened voice, "we don't know anything. You're going up to see your sick mother——"

They had left the city and were on one of the long lonely roads that skirt the eastern bank of the Hudson. Sheila, looking ahead, saw a police-box in the pink flutter of snow against lights, and two caped men standing there.

Her heart thundered, Inky was close beside her, and something he held was pressing like a firm disk or iron—it was as hard as iron anyway—against her spine. Sheila swallowed with a dry throat, tried desperately to pray, was terrified afresh because she could think of no prayer.

"Oh, God, oh, God——"

The two policemen came out in the flickering snow, and the lights of the car picked them up; they looked for it to reach them. Ken leaned out.

"White Plains?" he shouted, again.

The car stopped.

"White Plains?" Ken shouted again.

"You've got a swell night for a trip," one of the men said.

"Wife's mother sick," Ken explained.

That was all. One of the officers pointed with a cape arm; straight ahead. Ken started the car, they were moving again.

"Well, we got away with that!" Ken presently remarked with great satisfaction, and Sheila was able to breathe again. Just as long as he was pleased she was safe. Peter was still snoring, snoring—what nerves he must have to go to sleep under these circumstances!

They had come to a roadside restaurant or inn; they could not make out quite what the big square building was, for it showed no light. What light there came from an enormous truck at the door. The snow was still falling, but less densely the truck had stood there some time, for there were no tracks ahead of it or behind it.

Men sprang down from it, or appeared suddenly from the house and there was hurried, undertone colloquy. Sheila shaking with cold, wrapping her coat tightly about her and beating her hands against her sides, heard Ken say, "She oughter have something to eat, anyway."

But there was objection to this. Her heart failed her. She was exhausted to the point of tears. And all the time that she sat on the front seat, awaiting their verdict, trembling with fatigue, she could hear Peter snore.

"All right, all right!" Ken exclaimed suddenly. "And something about to Sheila, he said, opening the door of the car. "Get out and hold onto me. You may be stiff. Keep that rug."

CHAPTER 12

Broken, cramped, weak with hunger and cold and weariness, Sheila tottered out; Ken steadied her or she would have fallen. Everything seemed to be circling about her in the sharp black gentleness of the snow and the night, and the faces of the huddled men, shrewdly watching her, looked ominous.

She clutched his arm. He was no friend of hers, but at least he was closer to her than these murderous looking strangers.

"Listen—I'm so tired——"

"You haven't got far now. They ain't going to hurt you," he mutter ed gruffly. "Get in there and wrap that baby thing round you, too. Sit with your ma"—against that boy, you'll be all right."

Immediately Peter was half-lifted and half-shoved in against her. Hands reached for a jumble of foul-smelling old comforters and quilts and instinctively she eased Peter's snoring head against her shoulder, sheltered about them both what coverings she could. Straw came up in at the bottom of the truck, were so piercing that it was a matter of course to do what she could against them.

Someone slammed a hinged flap up, at the back of the truck; there was a clanking of chains and hooks. And, with a terrible jolt, for the truck had evidently been parked ready to go to the road, they were moving again.

Then came hours, eternities, of grim endurance. The truck jounced steadily on its way; sometimes lights loomed at the front. Sheila could see silhouetted the forms of three men huddled close together. Ken was not one of them. Through the canvas flaps at the back she could see sky and falling snow that twisted in the little strips of light and was gone. Only to be succeeded, sometimes meaning and slipping against her helplessly.

Peter, under the covers, trying to protect her arms and chest with one inconvenient foot, twisted with sore, tired limbs in the shaking, rumbling truck.

On and on and on; the men spoke only occasionally in low tones; the truck never stopped. Every time her body was jarred and aching, her head was flung back, she dully wandered vaguely. Sometimes she thought a moment only had passed, jerked awake again as the truck went over some rut or turned some corner.

"Oh, my God, my head!" Peter presently whispered.

"Keep quiet!" Sheila murmured.

A silence. Then he breathed again, in a more alert tone: "Where are we?"

"I don't know. They're taking us somewhere in a truck."

"Bootlegger?" Peter whispered.

"Sh-h!"

"Afraid I'd go, drink something that was fixed?"

"I don't know!" But your breath smelled like chloroform or something."

A long silence.

"This is state's prison for the whole lot of 'em!" Peter said viciously.

"I'll never get out!"

"We'll get out all right," he said. He appeared to doze again, and breathed heavily. "It's state's prison, that's what it is," he said, rousing, dig speaking in an angry, drowsing voice.

"For heaven's sake, don't talk so loud!"

She became a little night-hearted in her turn. It was hard to resume herself from the stupor that was half-consciousness to the full realization of pain and danger again.

"I'll never get over this; it's murder," Peter said.

"I'll be awful to start in——" she muttered.

When they finally did stop she could not be completely awakened. She was half-dragged, half-guided along a snowy path, up steps across a powdered, low, unrailed, country porch and into a house not many degrees warmer than the outer world. Sheila saw a clock that said half past four looming at her, receding, suddenly growing enormous again. Her eyelids hurt, she burned her eyes away from a smoking lamp. Someone was helping her off with her wet, snowy coat; she cried out in sudden pain as her arms were moved. Her hat was off; the heaviness in her head was so bad that she sustained blindly that putting up her hand, trying to rub the wet tangle of her hair away.

There was a bleak-looking, flat iron bed, its mattress showing shabby and discolored under a heap of sodden comforters. But it was standing still, at least, with a form under it, and walls steady about it, and the room was not utterly cold. Sheila kicked off her shoes, sank down, drew coverings about her. Somebody took away the lamp.

Waking was misery. Sheila had never before in her life wakened to such bewilderment and such physical discomfort; at once. Where was she? What was walls were these, and why was she asleep in her office dress?

She turned over, and her dank, sour, slipping bed covers gave forth a sickly rotting smell. She sat up and brought her feet to the floor and looked about her.

It was daytime, anyway. For although the old-fashioned wooden shutters were closed, outside the rooms four many-paned windows three was light beyond. Rotting strips of old net hung at these windows; the floor was of old, poorly matched pine boards, upon which some filthy odds and ends of carpet were flung at untidy angles. There were some broken chairs in the room a collapsing chest of drawers, lacking a foot and propped on a thick folded cardboard box. Other furniture consisted only of her bed and two other similarly shabby iron beds, with thin mattresses and foul bedding. The walls were discolored and dark; the old wooden doors sagged in their frames and curved white china knobs. Sheila had never been in a decayed, old farmhouse before, but she knew that she was in one now.

Ken was not in the room. Peter McCann was heavily asleep, almost completely dressed. Lamely, slowly Sheila walked over and studied his flushed, haggard, sleeping face for a few moments. Then she very cautiously and peeped through the shutters. Outside was unbroken snow. There was not a track upon it; not another house in view. A prolonged hum-mock might have been the fence, that outlined a road; she could not tell. Near the house she saw a barn a well-sweep, outhouses, all muffled and disguised by the white powdering of the storm. Great bare trees stretched their branches overhead. The snow had stopped for the time being, but the gentle sky was very clicking the tree-branches and blowing the gritty particles that powdered sky threatened to fall again.

Sheila turned from the window, herself was on the ground floor, the railless porch was only a step down. Peter and Ken might have been the road sloped away in a series of rounded hills, low, snow-covered, and beyond everything vanished in gritty grayness, general dimness of snow and cloud.

"Where are we?"

"I don't know."

"Been anyone this morning?"

"I just broke it on."

"This is a hot one!" said Peter, "Well, I know I'm freezing!" Sheila said. She took a pocket comb from her handbag and ran it through her hair, and then she rubbed her face with both palms, ordered her dress slightly and went to the door at the back of the room.

"Look out what you're doing!" Peter answered sharply. But Sheila had already opened the door to a great and way meeting through.

The room into which Sheila looked was unspeakably disgusting and dirty, the floor littered with old newspapers, the windows sealed. One thought about under her feet as she timidly ventured in. It had been a dining-room. It was quite unfurnished now.

At one end an open door led into the front room that flanking the bedroom and here Sheila heard voices, rumbling voices of men, and from this direction came also the smell of pipes and wood smoke. She turned to the door of the house and with sure instinct opened still another door and found herself in the kitchen.

It was deserted, but the stove was hot, and there was food. Sheila pushed a coffeepot forward; hacked rather than cut slabs about of bread, hard loaf, broke eggs.

If the men in the sitting-room heard her they did not molest her.

Presently toast and coffee and scrambled eggs were ready; she managed to extract plates, cups, from the incredible disorder of the kitchen; Peter joined her, and they cleared an end of the table and sat down together.

And never in her life, Sheila thought, had she tasted such food. It was delicious beyond anything imaginable; she felt that she could eat her weight of the sour, toasted buttered bread, the hot drink, the hot eggs. Color and courage returned with returning warmth and vitality.

An alarm clock, set down haphazard in the general confusion, said twelve o'clock.

"Peter, can it be twelve o'clock?" He looked at his wrist.

"Stopped," he said, winding his watch. "It might be."

Sheila half filled her cup, luxuriating in comfort. She went on eating with out further comment.

The old kitchen was on a level two steps below the rest of the house. It ran straight across the back of the building and had windows on both sides. From those there was the same vista: an unbroken levelled under blankets of white, trees and the dim far perspective of horizon, sky and whiten-

THE SON OF TARZAN—No. 92

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

Korak his upon a scheme. They must fool Tantor. "Pretend to go away," he called to Meriem. "Keep down wind and follow us." When she had disappeared he commanded the elephant carry him again. Off through the jungle they went, coming presently to a clearing. Here Korak ordered Tantor to lay him down and fetch him water in his trunk. A moment the beast hesitated with cocked ears and attentive trunk. Tantor by nature is suspicious.

Then he moved away in the direction of the little brook. But scarce had his great bulk been screened by the dense foliage than he wheeled about and came cautiously back to the edge of the clearing where he could see without being seen. He would just wait and assure himself that all was well. Ah! It was well that he did! There she was now dropping from the trees, running swiftly toward his Korak. And she had a long knife in her hand!

Tantor's little eyes blazed savagely. His tail was elevated stiffly. He would let her reach Korak before he charged—then this strange white monkey would have no chance of escape! Meriem was almost at Korak's side when the elephant broke from the jungle, bellowing horribly, and charged straight down upon her. Meriem turned and commanded to the huge protector in an effort to halt him; but all to no avail. Meriem raced back for the tree.

But Tantor, for all his huge bulk, drove down upon her with the rapidity of an express train. Korak lay where he could see without being seen. He would just sweat broke out upon his body and his heart seemed to have stopped its beating, for well he knew how the frightful scene must end. He wanted to close his eyes, but could not. His throat was dry and parched. Tantor was almost upon Meriem now. A dozen more strides and he would seize her.

FATHER DIES FAILS TO SAVE

Double Drowning at Stoney Lake is Tragedy

PETERBORO, August 3.—Lawrence Bohacket, 6, Rochester, N.Y., was drowned in Stoney Lake Thursday afternoon in an unsuccessful effort to save his five-year-old son, Lawrence.

The double tragedy occurred about 30 feet out from the landing on Lake-Shore, where Bohacket's cottage is situated, and was witnessed by several cottagers, who were unable to give aid on account of the heavy swell that was rolling at the time.

Father and son, with Donald Howard, 18, of Peterboro, were returning from Mccracken Landing and as the motorboat pulled into the shore, the little chap climbed up onto the bow of the boat, and in an instant fell overboard.

The father, who was in the driver's seat, immediately jumped into the water. Howard seized the taller ropes, turned the boat, shut off the engine and called to Mr. Bohacket, who was holding his son, asking if everything was all right.

He got no answer, and perceived the boy had disappeared. He immediately jumped in, but could not locate them.

Bohacket was considered a strong swimmer, and how the accident occurred is a mystery to all who knew him.

Chapman's Corners Scene of Collision Between Two Cars

Tweed, Aug. 5 (Special) — Two cars belonging to Miss A. Counter-vea and Alfred Davis, both of Tweed, collided at Chapman's Corners, about three miles south of Tweed, late Thursday afternoon.

Constable Walmsley of the town of Tweed, driving the Davis car, was returning Lalonde and Alfred Mears to Lalonde and Alfred Davis, who had driven to Belleville to take his car to attend a hearing in connection with the collision with a township road grader, which occurred on Tuesday last, when Leo Lalonde crashed into it as it was stopped on the slope of Foster's Hill. As the Davis car turned at Chapman's Corners, it collided with the Counterveas car. Miss Counterveas at the time was taking a party to a picnic at St. Edmund's Church, Bloomfield.

The occupants of the two cars were shaken up. Mr. Davis, who had been seriously injured in the previous accident sustained a badly sprained ankle and Mr. Moon a scratch on the face. No one was seriously hurt. The Counterveas car was badly damaged and later towed to Tweed. An amicable settlement was made at the scene of the accident.

ANOTHER MONTH MAY SEE CHANGE

Parasites Should Show Results in That Time

There has been no let up in the war directed at the extermination of the pest flower, which has made such ruinous inroads among the corn fields of Ontario. Entomological experts of the Dominion agricultural laboratory at Ottawa are still working as hard as they were when they announced that a few important batches of their winged allies, the corn borer parasites, were on the way here. New shipments of the parasite are also being planned for fast as received. Delicate appearing insects, many of them resembling ordinary others, flesh, house flies and small-sized specimens of insects, immature stages of the borer are blood-thirstily acting in their work of extermination by attacking grubs and immature larvae of the borer, where they lay their eggs and propagate their kind to repeat the yearly cycle. With the imported specimens more laboratory bred ones, brought to maturity in Belleville are also being released. Literally millions of the insects bred and helpful insects now cover the district of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Lennox Addington counties.

"While this is a little early yet to predict with any certainty what the results from this campaign are going to be, and how much of a licking the corn borer is getting, we should know more exactly in a month or so just how conditions are," declared Mr. A. G. Baird of the Dominion laboratory under whose direction the work is being carried out. This is an answer to scores of queries from farmers throughout the country, who are desirous of learning just what immediate results can be expected.

The fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, was a record breaking year for the U. S. Patent Office with 51,272 patents granted.

Esperto grass, which covers vast stretches of the high plateau in Algeria, is becoming increasingly popular as paper-making material.

SYLVIA SIDNEY AND FREDERIC MARCH IN "JENNY AND JOAN"

The selection of Frederic March for the leading male role in Paramount's "Jerry and Joan," which is a film dramatization of Cleo Lucas' startling novel of a year ago, is not a casual choice of the casting office, report studio officials.

The dramatic stature of Frederic March has increased materially in the eyes of the public in his latest films, "Strangers in Love" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In these pictures he reached the heights of dramatic artistry.

Today March stands almost alone in his ability for an unusually great range of dramatic roles. It is this wide versatility that led Paramount officials to assign him his present difficult role.

As Jerry, in Miss Lucas' original story, "I, Jerry Take Thee, Joan," he has a part in the dramatized version, that is similar to the one he portrayed so effectively in "My Sin" with Tallulah Bankhead playing opposite him. "This again is the part of a truly lovable man beset with a craving for liquor, a habit that brings him to the brink of a domestic tragedy, in which Sylvia Sidney as his wife is his dramatic centre-foil.

March's genius on the screen is the result of training, hard work, and an inherent dramatic talent, which with the years has come to full flower. He started life as a banker, but figures of finances proved uninteresting. He felt the lure of the stage and responded to its call. Fifteen years ago he started his dramatic career in a host of schools—a dramatic repertoire company and steadily advanced to the rank of a Broadway featured player. Then he was drafted for pictures.

For six years March has practically devoted himself to the screen. He has played many roles in pictures and early attracted the attention of Lasky. His duel role of Jekyll and Hyde is a classic portrayal of a dramatic masterpiece.

In "Jerry and Joan" which comes to the Belle Saturday and Monday, matinee daily, March for the first time co-stars with Sylvia Sidney.

New McCoy Western

Tim McCoy's latest western drama, "The Galloping Comedy," is the second feature offering on the same program. As usual Tim McCoy has been supplied with a story that is packed to the bursting point with thrilling high-lights. Fast gun-play, bronco-busting, stampeding, fist fighting and a dangerous run-in with horse thieves are among some of them.

Shirley Grey, Wallace MacDonald, Wheeler Oakman, Bud Osborne and Niles Welch are featured with the supporting cast. A funny Krazy Kat cartoon and News Events are announced for presentation on the same program.

BIG DOUBLE BILL

Free Radio

Tonight at 9 p.m. Mayor George O. Tice will present the Free Radio to some lucky patron at the Capitol Theatre. The name of the winner will be called when the filled-out coupon is drawn and, as the winner must be present several coupons will be drawn, if necessary, until the winner is in the theatre to claim the radio.

A London Male Hall

The first feature to be presented on the programme at the Capitol today and Saturday is "A Night in London. Music Hall."

This is a scintillating revue of English vaudeville headliners and will be found to be the most entertaining novelty in Belleville in months.

Two Seconds

For the first time in his screen career, Edward G. Robinson will be seen as a "heavy" when his latest starring vehicle, "Two Seconds," is flashed on the Capitol Theatre screen today for the first showing.

Heretofore associated with either lawless or baseless characters, Robinson turns to the characterization of an ordinary human being who had more than his share of extraordinary trials and difficulties in his struggle to make his way in the world. As John Allen, hero of "Two Seconds," Robinson portrays a man who has been doubly crossed by love and who, despite all his efforts to save his honor, finally is declared, at every turn, he finds himself in a thrilling climax of great dramatic intensity which is said to be one of the greatest single scenes ever enacted on the screen by any of the star's past performances.

Mervyn LeRoy, director of "Five Star Final" and "I Am a Fugitive," in both of which Robinson created a sensation, at the direction of "Two Seconds" introduced many innovations in camera and directorial technique.

The large supporting cast features Preston Foster, who plays the same part he had in the Broadway production of "Two Seconds," Vivienne Osborne, stage and screen star, and Guy Kibbee. Important roles are portrayed by Arthur Vinton, Adrienne Dore, Walter Walker, Clarence Wilson, William Janney and Edward McWade. The players were selected with special care with an eye toward the specific requirements called for by the story.

Special Monday!

Ladies will be seen literally rushing to the Capitol on Monday, both afternoon and evening because the extra performances, Manager Manos Elefteriou Dinnerware set is to be given away.

To lessen the evening rush, Manager Elefteriou announces that ladies by purchasing an evening ticket at the matinee performances on Monday will receive a ticket for the dishes.

This is particularly pleasing to ladies as Monday night is the night most leave them so attend the evening performances.

The platter will not be repeated after Monday.

GYPSUM QUEEN CLAIM FAKED

Judge Declares Senator Presented Misleading Evidence

Ottawa, Aug. 5—Strong condemnation of Senator Hamon Lalonde, Amherst, N.S., is made by Chief Justice Harvey of Alberta, in the Gypsum Queen case. The report of the Dominion government following the war over the commissions payment of $71,276.62 to Captain Freeman Hatfield, assisted enlarged sole owner of the vessel, in March 1921. Senator Logan was solicitor for Captain Hatfield.

Commissioner Harvey finds the evidence indubitably establishes the three-masted Nova Scotia vessel had not been requisitioned as alleged by German submarine action in 1918. The Chief Justice further finds the "Gypsum Queen" had been laid up through ordinary misfortune and there was not justification for any claim for compensation out of Government funds in any circumstances.

"The evidence proved to my satisfaction," Commissioner Harvey states, "that the documentary evidence put in by Senator Logan to prove ownership of the Gypsum Queen, at the time of the loss by Captain Hatfield in the form of a certificate purporting to be signed by J. S. Henderson (Parraboro, N. S.) was misleading and to the extent false, and that Senator Logan knew it to be such.

Commissioner Harvey comes to the conclusion that Senator Logan received "approximately one half of the $71,276.72 reparation payment "for his own benefit."

HISTORIC CHURCH IS PREY TO FLAMES

The Union Church, one of the most historic churches in Eastern Ontario, situated three miles north east of Bath was totally destroyed by fire Thursday. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The edifice, a frame structure with a small gallery, was noticed in flames about 7.30 o'clock by Mrs. Meagher and an alarm was given, but the fire had such a start it was impossible to save the building. The church was a landmark in that section of the country, and for many years the erection could not be learned. It was said that the building was entirely renovated thirty five years ago and that it had been used jointly by the members of the United Church and the Presbyterians in that district. Rev. Mr. Smart, of Bath, and Rev. L. M. Grant, of Milton are the ministers.

It was stated that when the building was first erected it was used as a Lutheran church.

MRS. U. E. GILLEN IS INJURED IN CRASH

TORONTO, August 5.—Mrs. U. E. Gillen, wife of the former general manager of the Ontario Terminal Railway Company, is in the Toronto General Hospital suffering from severe injuries to her spine, and back, received in an auto accident on Mt. Albert Road today in making a motor tour as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gillen's friends when their car was overturned while making a sharp turning. At the time of the accident they were a long way from a hospital or medical attention, and much good time was therefore lost. A message to Duncan McLean, assistant Chief of the Toronto Fire Department, said that it might be some days before the full extent of the injuries would be known. Mr. and Mrs. Gillen went to California to attend the Imperial Council session of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine and the Olympic Games. Mrs. Gillen is a Past Potentate of Rameses Temple, Toronto.

LARGE WHEAT POOL IS READY FOR OPERATION

New York, Aug. 5— The New York Times says the formation of a $30,000,000 pool to operate in wheat is reported to have been virtually accompanied.

The pool, whose paper says, probably will be managed by Arthur W. Cutten, Chicago, is prominent operator in the grain markets of the United States and Canada for years.

Conditions in wheat, the Times continued, are believed such that a substantial betterment in prices can be brought about, especially after hedging operations are over, which usually is around Sept. 1.

BABE DIDRICKSON HAS PLENTY FAITH

Only Reason For Not Winning More is Not Being Entered

Los Angeles, Aug. 5—Babe Didrickson, who has been operated on for neuritis burdles and javelin throw at the current Olympics, expects to take a total of three titles in the three applications for world records back in Texas. Whether or not she can see for not taking five titles—her third entrance in the high jump—is that she was not permitted to compete in the 100 metres and 800 metres.

"I expect our basketball team, the Golden Cyclones, to win the National championship," she added. "I will be the high scorer of the tournament. My mind is set on winning a National Golf Championship, not this year, but in the next two or three."

Miss Didrickson did not mention past performances or other ambitions. She dislikes people, she said who become "big-headed" over their triumphs.

Her diversion is sewing. She designs and makes her own clothes.

POLICE NIP ALLEGED PLOT TO KILL J. H. THOMAS

Assassination of J. H. Thomas Reported Object Of Dan Malone Now Held

Revolver Dropped at Ottawa This Week is First Clue

WELLAND SPOT

Delegates to Opening to Be Closely Guarded by Police

Toronto, Aug. 6—For the past few days Dominion, Provincial and city police have been unearthing a second plot to assassinate Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, and one of the leaders of the British delegation to the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa.

An attempt was made last Tuesday during a demonstration of the Worker's Economic Conference at Ottawa by a Slim Peiner to shoot Mr. Thomas. The revolver dropped from the car in which the alleged assassin was driving.

It was then planned, authorities learned, to shoot the Secretary of the Dominions today when he attended the opening of the Welland Canal.

A detachment of police raided an apartment on Queen Street East at 7.30 Friday morning, arresting Dan-iel Malone, second, aged 27.

Held as Vagrant.

Malone, a former member of the Irish Republican Army, and alleged to have been recruited to leave Ireland, is held as a vagrant. He has been in Canada four years.

Immediate authorities are planning to have him deported. Fri-

NO BAIL FOR DAN MALONE

Antecedents and Alleged Activities Will—be Studied

Toronto, Aug. 6.—A board of inquiry will be held either today or Monday to investigate the antecedents and alleged activities here of Daniel Malone, arrested here yesterday on warrants, with the R.U.M.P. probe of an alleged plot against Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, M.P., J. C. Mitchell, Immigration Officer in charge of this district said today.

"Most probably the investigation will be held on Monday, as I have been expecting some correspondence before action can be arrived," Mr. Mitchell said. "In the meantime Malone is being held in the jail without bail. Under the act I am empowered to ask whether bail can be granted or not, and Malone can appeal to the Minister regarding any decision he wishes to do so.

"I will decide from the evidence to recommend deportation, or Malone, he can of course, appeal to the minister. This will be his only recourse. In the circumstances and pending the hearing I do not intend to allow any bail in Malone's case."

Culmination of Nine Years' Effort Seen in Canal Opening

Many Prominent at Parley Will Address Gathering

Thorold, Ont., Aug. 6.—(By Ray Brown, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—Culminating nine years of effort Canada today opens her $130,000,000 Welland Canal.

While celebrated statesmen from the four corners of the far-flung British Empire look on, His Excellency the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General, will open a lever at cast lock No. 6. A simple act in itself, it ceremoniously signalizes the conclusion of years of planning, of engineering efforts, of strenuous labor.

The actual opening will be preceded by brief speeches. Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, who, like many others present, has come from himself away from inspecting discussions at Ottawa to participate, will speak. Hon. C. Malcolm, Minister of Railways and Canals, under whom the great enterprise was completed, will give a brief address, possibly. Certain of the delegation heads may also say a few words.

Second Special.

Today brought to Niagara Falls another special train carrying officials of Ontario many more delegates, advisers and officials of the Imperial Conference. The train arrived at 9 o'clock in the morning. With their already long day over, embarked on an electric train for a visit to Brock's monument and a view of the lower Niagara River. A visit to the Queenston power house of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission followed, and the party was shown how some of the might of Niagara is transformed into light and comfort for thousands of people. From the power house, the delegates were brought back to Niagara Falls for lunch, after which they left by special electric trains for the scene of the opening ceremonies near Thorold.

Elaborate precautions were taken to guard the distinguished overseas guests. Militia and police were stationed in the locality, where the opening ceremonies took place. Secret Service Men and other police officers in plain clothes were said to be on hand in case of trouble. Threats made against one of the United Kingdom's delegates were taken seriously by the police.

The party will leave St. Catharines for Ottawa tonight.

Blue Fish or Sharks Chase Fish Into New York Harbor by Thousands

New York, Aug. 6. — A well-stocked trout stream on a preserve in Canada? A tarpon run off the Florida west coast "Pooh," New Yorkers could say today.

For right in their own dirty harbour, thousands of mackerel teemed in from the sea.

It didn't take fishermen long to find out about it either. Hordes lined the bank in the vicinity of the quarantine station and pulled in fish as fast as they could throw out their lines.

Hungry bluefish chased them to some authorities said. Others blamed sharks.

CONFERENCE WILL SUCCEED SAYS COATES

Proposals Submitted by All Dominions Except Free State

NO BRITISH OFFER

Britain And Canada Not Very Far Apart Says Report

(By R. K. Carnegie, C.P. Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—Canadian circles are very optimistic as a result of the conversations which have been going on during the past two days among the delegations to the Imperial Economic Conference. Things certainly look much better than they did last week at this time, was the way one of them put it.

One proposal that seems to be well received by the British delegation is that there be free trade between Canada and the United Kingdom in automobiles. It is believed that this would provide a big market in this country for British cars, particularly of the higher-priced and the very small ones.

Wheat Preference.

In the matter of requests from Canada for preference, the New Zealand delegation is pressing for a preference on wheat and is joined in this by Canada, but Britain does not seem to be meeting with much favor. The British are said to be opposed to giving any preference, particularly to the extent of five or six cents a bushel. A quota may be offered as a substitute.

Optimistic Views.

Ottawa, Aug. 6—The Imperial Economic Conference will be a success, Hon. J. G. Coates, leader of the New Zealand delegation, said at luncheon party arranged by the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire. Similar convictions were voiced by Hon. Dowrie Stewart, New Zealand minister of finance, and Rt. Hon. L. S. Amery, former British Colonial minister.

Ottawa, Aug. 6—Great Britain now has the complete picture of Dominion offers and requests. All, with the exception of the Irish Free State, have submitted their proposals for the week-end British experts will be examining them, weighing the pros and cons. On Monday British and Canadian delegations meet again. Then, it is understood, the British will indicate what modifications they desire, what concessions they are prepared to make in return.

The task is authoritatively intimated, the British have made no coupler proposals.

RUNNERS REQUEST THAT NURMI BE ALLOWED IN

Los Angeles, Aug. 6.—Seventeen marathon runners from Australia have signed a petition asking that Paavo Nurmi, banned Finnish star be allowed to participate in the distance grind here Sunday.

The petition, regarded as a courtesy gesture for Nurmi, barred from International Amateur Athletic Federation, on grounds of professionalism.

Officials here held little hope that their request, made to J. Sigfried Edstrom, secretary of the Federation, would be granted.

Dynamite Hand Grenades Shake Towns in Germany People Narrowly Escape

Socialist Labor Head Shaken Out of Bed By Bomb Hurled From Motorcar Through Bed Room Window Early Saturday Morning

300 WINDOWS BROKEN IN BUILDING

Riotous Events Follow Announcement of Strong Measures to be Taken by Hindenburg to Quell Violence of Past Six Weeks

Berlin, Aug. 6. — Dynamite and hand grenades from the arsenals of political factions gave a new touch today to the violence which has swept through Germany for the past six weeks.

In a wave of sabotage, dynamiters damaged buildings in half a dozen places, and several persons narrowly escaped injury from bombs.

At Breslau Ernst Eckstein, head of the Socialist Labor Party, was shaken out of his bed when a bomb was thrown from a speeding automobile through his bedroom window. The room was wrecked but he was not hurt. He did police he suspected the National Socialists.

Workmen Escape.

A dynamite explosion broke 300 windows and caused extensive other damage at Brunswick. The charge was planted in a narrow street in the hands of workingmen. There were numerous injuries from flying glass, such disturbances.

Paquette, at present serving a jail sentence, will remain under the name of Blanche Hamel, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of $1,000 from the estate of Judge Couture and was sentenced to imprisonment with hard labor. She is said to have accepted $60 for the job from Blanche Hamel, sentenced to the Kingston Penitentiary in which alleged frequent substitutions was to have taken place. It is still reported that Paquette was reported to have told police that the substitution of her cot took place in the corridor of the Recorder's Court as a navy docket filed into the courtroom.

ECONOMIST SAYS SLUMP WORST PAST

London, Aug. 6.—Selling indication that "in the world generally, the steepest phases of the depression are over," the London economist, British economic and financial authority, said today it believed the crisis in the economic stress in the United States had gone by.

"It would be rash to predict that America is yet within sight of genuine economic recovery," it said, in a review. "There is reason to think that the first grant of the west has passed the crisis of his sickness.

"In the spring and summer there were grave symptoms such as the growth of unemployment, the widespread failure of banks, the drain of gold to Europe and the growth of hoarding.

"These were justifiably regarded with serious apprehension, but the period of storms seems to have passed. The process of hoarding is being checked, the drain of gold has ceased, the vaged and the psychology of the people steadied."

BRITISH DENY RUMOR PARLEY NEARING RIFT

Exultant at Progress Evident on All Sides

DOWN TO CASE

Delegates Hopeful of Reasonable Results at Ottawa

OTTAWA, August 6.—Exultant at the progress which, they say, is evident everywhere, spokesmen for the British delegation are vigorously denying rumors that the Imperial Conference is sailing into trouble.

These rumors, it is believed here, have sprung mainly from the articles appearing in British newspapers to the effect that Canada has been taking a firm attitude in opposition known, British journalists built upon this foundation a thesis that the conference was doomed.

Britons speaking for their delegation here declare themselves extremely hopeful of reasonable results. They point out that all conferences no matter what they concern, necessitate argument on each side as the various participants press home their points. It is not to be inferred, they say, that everyone will get all they ask for or that compromise will be completely satisfied but it is considered by the British that there is a reasonable expectation that "reasonable results" will be achieved.

This expectation by the British is interesting in that it definitely indicates the confidence of the delegation at this stage where all groups are down to the business. The dream garments of the opening days have been torn aside. Sterling, forceful men are down to success the conference has reached the point where everyone is weighing the value indeed of the proper destination. Once these frank conversations have established a common basis of agreement, the rest of the way is expected to be easy.

WELLAND SHIP CANAL OPENED

Empire Character is Lent Saturday Afternoon Ceremony

Thorold, Ont., Aug. 6—(By Ray Brown, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—Under a cloudless sky and sunshine greeted Imperial Conference delegates and a host of others, the canal was arrived for the opening of the new $150,000,000 Welland Canal.

With His Excellency, the Governor-General, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas and prominent delegation leaders on hand, the canal still unopened formed the proportion of an Empire celebration. The ceremonies were carried out without trouble.

Special Train.

The second special train bearing the major portion of Empire delegates arrived at Thorold early this morning. There the two parties joined for the trip down the Niagara gorge on the Canadian side to the Queenston power house of the Queen's power house of the Ontario Hydro Commission. Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Thomas did not make this trip but remained at Niagara Falls. After lunch the delegates were taken by special car to the scene of the ceremonies at Lock No. 6, about a mile from here.

Police protection was provided all along the way. Red coated mounted police drove in a motor car beside the special, electric train which carried the delegates. Plain clothesmen mingled in the crowds in the area of the settlement of militia was on hand.

1,500 Miles on a Penny Which is Not Spent is Record of Three Girls

Port Arthur, Ont., Aug. 6—Travelling more than 1,500 miles on a penny is the feat performed by a trio of girls, Helen and Evelyn Daughtery, Port Arthur, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Daughtery and Violet Mercy, Minneapolis.

The three girls started out from Boston on July 22, and leaving Miss Mercy in Minneapolis, the other two arrived in Port Arthur yesterday. Finding the show business in Boston a little slack, the girls decided they wanted a holiday. Taking only what clothes they wore and a penny each they started their long hike. And they each had their pennies when they arrived at their destination. They "bummed rides", meals and sleeping accommodations.

Five More Chances for Canada to Add to Her Point Total at Olympiad

Marathoners and Relay Teams Swing Into Action Saturday

CARR WINS 400

Alex Wilson, Montreal Finishes Third in Record Time

By ELMER DULMAGE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Los Angeles, Aug. 6.—Canada retains just five chances to add to her not impressive total of points in the Olympic track and field competition.

Today she sends three relay teams into action in preliminary heats and Saturday a trio of marathoners set out to battle the world's best over the 26 miles 385 yard course.

Alex Wilson of Montreal added four points to the unofficial Canadian total yesterday by finishing in third place in 400 metre run behind Bill Carr and Ben Eastman, United States aces.

Wilson comes back today to run the 1,600 metre relay with Phil Pearson, with the remaining members of the Canadian quartet to be announced later.

The girls' 400 metre relay squad includes Rita Stone, Mary Priestly, Mildred Pissell and Lillian Palmer. On Sunday Eva Dawes will attempt to retain for Canada the high jump title won four years ago by Ethel Catherwood McLaren of Saskatoon.

Three Americans, one Canadian, a South African and an Australian matched strides in the sensational 400 metre run today, the first away to a good start with Ben Eastman, the towering blonde from Stanford University, setting a burning pace the first 200 metres. Bill Carr, also Arkansas former, finished with a terrific burst to beat Eastman and win in the world record breaking time of 46.2. The old world record was 47 flat and the former Olympic mark 47.8.

Third By Six Inches.

Wilson, Bill Walters of South Africa, James Gordon, United States, and George Golding, Australia, staged a blanket finish with the Montreal man being awarded third place by six inches, with Walters fourth and Gordon fifth.

The Canadian, who was five yards behind Carr, also broke the old Olympic record. He was timed in 47.2.

Failure of Lieut. Godfrey Rampling, the highly rated English quarter-miler to qualify for the final was the outstanding upset of the day. He was timed in the fast qualifying place in the semi-final won by Carr in 47.2. Wilson was second in the fielding third.

The semi-final defeat of Jimmy Ball, Winnipeg who figured in the sensational finish of the quarter-mile at Vancouver in 1928, when he was just nosed out by Ray Barbuti, United States ace, came somewhat as a surprise although it was well known among the Canadians, that he was suffering from a crippled leg.

The duel between Carr and Eastman promised a thriller from the start in the 5,000 metres won by Lauri Lehtonen, Finnish distance runner in his duel with Hill, of San Francisco.

Finn Runs Wide.

The Finn staggered into the tape after a sudden attack of cramp by the American, who was forced from his path when the Finn cut back sharply.

Immediately bedlam broke loose as a shower of bottles forced to quell several minor disturbances. Looking of the Finn's disqualification coincided against the Finn and threats by

COAL DEALERS ARE WAITING

Price on Fuel Not Yet Set Though August is Here

For years coal dealers have been in the habit of fixing fuel prices for the coming winter season about the first day of August. Why this particular time should be chosen to set a price on an item which makes such a sizable indentation in the family budget has not been too clearly explained. Possibly the heat of the August sun can be definitely linked to the glowing bowl of the old-fashioned coal stove. The habit however is not confined to dealers of one town—the practice is provincial. But, while dealers of other cities have met and conferred on the price of the commodity, and have agreed on either a slightly higher rate per ton on next year's coal, or have declared themselves in favor of a stationary rate, Belleville dealers will not state positively, yes or no.

"There may be a slight drop, or yet again it may go higher," stated several when interviewed. So there you are.

Has the Imperial Conference anything to do with it?" they were asked.

"Yes—and no," came the answer. "Anyhow, we're waiting. Waiting to see," they amended.

Meanwhile Belleville consumers are keeping cool while the Aug. 1st sun gives the asphalt pavement on Front street that rubbery feeling underfoot, folks are not worrying very much.

BARRIE VISITED BY HEAVIEST STORM OF YEAR

Barrie, Ont., Aug. 6.—The entire district was in darkness for half an hour last night as electrical services were attacked by the heaviest storm of the season. Striking rain from the northwest, accompanied by thunder and lightning, flooded the streets of the town and sewers were taxed to carry away the torrents.

The storm caused no serious damage, a check-up revealed, but it brought a welcome change in cool weather after one of the hottest days this year.

Telephone lines" from Barrie to Midland and Elmvale were cut in order for some time but workmen managed to effect a restoration of services before midnight.

Policy of Love, Mercy May Damn Race Says Professor

Dr. Vaughan of Boston Tells of Man's Upward Climb

The big brown Chautauqua tent was crowded with an eager audience last evening as the second programme of this season's events was presented for the delight of the people of this district. The programme featured an address by the distinguished educationist, Professor David P. Vaughan of the Boston University, who presented in his thought-provoking talk the graphic picture of the "Challenge of the Present Day."

Previous to Dr. Vaughan's address, Fiorentino and his Venetian Strollers delighted the audience with four numbers of Italian and English music. Against a Venetian moonlit scene, the five musicians in their colourful costumes captivated the audience with the fire and beauty of their singing. Dashing Italian melodies, opened the programme which introduced many operatic and popular airs. The soft strains of "La Paloma" and the stirring Neapolitan Street Scene by Victor Herbert were two of the gems of the evening. "Kiss Me Again" as sung by the wonderful soprano, Rosa, "Dowing Home" by the talented contralto Margarita, and the rendition of "Old Mad River" by the baritone were outstanding. The little pianist, Emilia, also came in for her share of encordian.

Umberto Sorrentino, tenor and maestro di cerimonies was warmly applauded for his solo, the request number the favourite Italian folk song melody "Funiculi, Funicula" which brought this part of the programme to a close.

Prehistoric Man

Introduced by the director, Miss Helen Dodge, Dr. Vaughan began his lecture with a reference to prehistoric man who was out-distanced in every physical way by the animals, but who, through the development of his thinking powers, was able to out wit his enemies. The curiosity of man, the world's progress in science, each invention being another attempt of man to assume control.

History of Control

"The history of culture," pointed out the speaker, "is the history of control.

Four desires in human nature which from the basis for conduct were advanced by the speaker as the wish for recognition, response, new experience and security and he illustrated each phase by giving various psychological motives be, hing man's actions.

Damning the Race

Dr. Vaughan dealt with the problem of the feeble-minded stating that "in time we may discover that the policy of love and mercy may damn the race".

Referring to some of the opinions of the day, Dr. Vaughan dwelt on the effect of Russia on economic conditions in Canada, saying that the rising birth rate would necessitate her keeping home more of her wheat and that the trend of weakening her position as a competitor in the world wheat market. Bolshevism in the country was an admirable way for Russia to solve her own problems.

The Ontario Business College

The fame and name of Ontario Business College have long been widely known and have helped much in making Belleville known abroad. Perhaps one of the most gratifying and significant facts in connection with O.B.C. is the great frequency of enrollment by brothers, sisters, sons and daughters of former students. At present a young man from Montreal is at O.B.C. whose two brothers attended a few years ago. Two young ladies now attending have each two sisters who are graduates of O.B.C. Another young lady who attended this year was preceded at the College by her sister and two brothers. Every year occurrences like these signify the efficient and satisfactory training given at O.B.C.

In the interest of its patrons, the College has never closed for vacations and continues in session throughout the summer months. This is a great advantage to those who cannot attend at other seasons and to those from distant places who wish to continue their courses without interruption. Students may enter at any time and receive individual instruction from expert teachers. Now is a good time to start a course.

Those wanting commercial training (and everyone needs it) ought to attend an institution that specializes in that line. At O.B.C. they are specialists in this work and carry it on in an intensive, practical way that assures success to earnest students. The College is now better equipped than ever to provide the best in business education.

The College building, which is in a beautiful and quiet location on East Bridge Street, Belleville, is comfortable and well suited to its purpose. Most of the class rooms and the offices are on the ground floor. Other class rooms are easily reached by broad stairways and halls. The Principal and staff are always glad to welcome persons desiring to have first-hand information regarding the thorough work which is carried on. Any who cannot call will be sent the College catalogue on request.

OPENING OF CANAL

The Welland Canal has been opened by His Excellency the Governor General in the presence of noted Canadians and the delegates to the Imperial Conference from all parts of the British Empire.

The official opening of the canal came appropriately at the time of the Conference when world trade within the Empire is under discussion and the undertaking of the development of the St. Lawrence waterways has been largely decided upon.

THE WAR SPEECH

Mussolini's bold statement as to the place of war in society, even in the modern world, comes as a shock, but it is as well that he made it, if that is his belief. It has shown that some people still believe in the principle of war as a means of ending 1914, either himself or those he is addressing and that hence care must be taken not to throw a belligerent's away. There is however a large body of opinion which believes that Mussolini's speech is more political in intent than a bare statement of his personal national faith in war. Mussolini is of the stuff of the dictator class, he rules Italy with an iron hand, and is said by many to be making a good showing as far as Italy is concerned by putting people to work and getting things industriously attended to. But a modern dictator still has to trust to his ability to hold his seat even by speeches which he may never hope to see carried out in action.

The war speech of course has been accustomed to the sabre-rattling of Il Duce and he may have to rattle to battle sabre or think he has to rattle it to gain his ends.

There is room for doubt that Mussolini really wants war, great as he lauds it as the great-tester-factor in the development of national stamina.

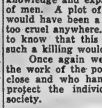
London Adveriser says of Mussolini's latest:—

The professions of peace and good will which were always on Grandi's lips, no doubt sincerely, have been contemptuously repudiated by his chief. The disarmament proposals put forward at Geneva in the name of Italy have been thrust aside and the stage set for another act in which Mussolini appears in his usual role part and his accustomed role as a swash-buckler and sabre-rattler. The smooth and smiling face which he has worn for a period of exchange of visits with the Premier has vanished. The lightning change from one mask to another is prompted by jealousy, vanity and wounded pride. Mussolini dreamed that his emergence as a champion of peace and obviously enjoyed the sensation, but he has been piqued by the world-wide publicity and applause given to MacDonald and Herriot at Lausanne, and because there and in Geneva Italy was overshadowed by Britain and France. Hence the desire to do or say something that will once more attract the spotlight and show the great man in a Napoleonic attitude again."

ENJOYING BAD TIMES

"It's smart to be poor" might be a good slogan for these times. So many have been forced to economize that to be canny is almost to be fashionable. Experts in shrewd buying boast of their skill. One young woman remarked: "I have several friends simply hamstrung and crippled by the depression, and I feel rather sorry for them. They're missing something." "Going into gingham this summer as in 1932 has proved hardly less exciting than going into khaki in 1917," writes Grace Nies Fletcher in an article on "Enjoying the Depression" in the July Forum.

Extreme adversity is a deadening thing that does nobody any good. Too many are suffering it now. But a small dose of adversity may be exhilarating. As in the case of invalids who "enjoy bad health," it is the sufferers from minor financial ailments who are getting the most of the depression. The housekeeper who dismisses the second maid and does the washing herself finds that it saves me doing my reducing exercises," The real estate broker whose business had evaporated hands over a dollar he has earned himself and sets it go to pay some tradesman to an engagement with the Detroit Civic Opera Company. One of the winners is now the leading tenor for a national network studio. Several others, both men and women, are under contract to large radio stations, and a number are succeeding in concert work.



Music lovers in every State support the contest. Walter Damrosch, Alma Gluck and a number of the great musical artists of the world have shown their approval by taking an active part in it. For the next two months contestants will be busy trying to qualify for the national audition.—New York Times.

ALLEGED PLOT

Canadians were shocked to learn that there has been a plot to assassinate the Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, British delegate to the conference of the Empire at Ottawa, according to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police announcement. The discovery and additional precautions taken to guard the imperial visitors from the hands of those who might be incited to attack them will relieve the people of the Dominion and Empire who would feel the blow were any plot of the alleged kind to be realized.

Political murder is one of those relics from the past which have not been removed with the advance in civilization, knowledge and expansion of the interests of men. A plot of this kind carried out would have been a shock to Canada and too cruel anywhere. When will men come to know that this is not the way, that such a killing can be useless.

Once again we can be thankful for the work of the police whose eyes never close and who hands are ever ready to protect the individual, and to preserve society.

Give all your heart affords!

Give hope and love and laughter

These boons on hearts that yearn

'LUNGE ARE BITING good at Hay Bay, is the glad news to Big 'Lunge Hunters, broadcast by that Game newspaper, the Deseronto Post, which reports the Napanee Express as saying that Charles Anderson and T. Y. Hess landed a 14-pound lunge, while the Picton Times has a story of four fishermen bringing home five lunge, which they say Colin Campbell landed. Also reports the catch of an eighteen-pounder, the largest to date and one man who brought home a lunge of the weight of 130 pounds, while another man caught one of seventeen pounds. Looks like 'lunge weather, but the fishermen in these parts need no bother to report. A lunge catch unless the finny fighter is over thirty pounds, eye weight. So that's tha.t

KAN-YEN-GEH DAY on the Mohawk Indian Reserve, was celebrated this year with customary Indian dignity and that quiet pride of race which distinguishes the Indian from his Anglo-Saxon neighbor. The pageant "Landing of the Mohawks" pictured the beginning of the voluntary exile of Captain Joseph Brant, War Chief of the Six Nations and his tribe, who fought for Great Britain and preferred to cast their lot in Canada with United Empire Loyalists than to enter into a pact with the Yankees to remain on their former hunting grounds in the State and Ohio. Captain Brant's descendants both in the Bay of Quinte region and in the Brantford district may well be proud of the part that they have in historic whose pride of race, vivid imagination, and clever pen, will keep alive the legends, folk lore and history of their illustrious tribe and the great leader Captain Joseph Brant, whom Kings and Queens delighted to honour — Teressa Brant, historian of the Mohawks.

WHY WE LOSE OUR TEMPERS IS EXPLAINED

Persons With Chronic Temper are Suffering From Nerves.

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

There are few persons who do not know their temper once in a while, ready for to "fly off the handle", when some vulgar balance would have it, is a kind of request to something disagreeable that has occurred or that will occur in the near future.

LOUIS E. BISCH

Psychologists speak of a "threshold", a kind of boundary line, or wall, which we leap over when we lose control. Some persons have a high threshold and others a low. In the latter case they are terribly angry at the slightest provocation, while it takes really a lot to get others to lose their self-control even the slightest bit.

With these latter unfortunate people bad temper is apt to become a usual occurrence. It is not a chronic affair, and as such it is distinctly bad. Such persons are really ill. They are suffering from a form of nervousness.

To be sure, any irritation within the body may cause, whether it be a sluggish liver, a poisoning from faulty elimination or the definite disease of the digestive organs—any of these may make a person irritable and thus lose temper. Those suffering from gout are known to be "cranky." Lack of exercise, too much monotony and consequent boredom, too much routine work, or, on the contrary, these likewise produce similar results. Lastly, faulty breathing, a lower-life, worry, unfulfilled ambitions, or disappointments with life in general—any one of these and very prone to develop more or less continual bad temper.

There is always a cause for bad temper and we can overcome it if we only are willing to "call spade a spade" and correct ourselves intelligently, unflinchingly and without bias.

But the sort of wild rage to which some individuals are subject, often quite out of proportion to provocation, is a "horse of a different color." It has its roots in deeper mental soil than the transitory, flare-ups characteristic of the temperamental nervous person.

Such incorrigible tempers may be constitutional, that is, inherited, even be psychopathic, that is, part and parcel of much more serious mental malady. These cases always present other abnormalities as well, than the bad temper.

Should you, my reader, happen to be of those who have this sad bad together too readily, or if you have developed a tendency thereto, I forward the world in general, try to analyze your own thought processes and find out exactly why you behave that way.

You may find, for instance, that every time you fly into a rage you are seeking to escape a sense of some kind, in your anger. You are really getting away from a situation that is unbearable, intolerable (if you, or that you are too sensitive to bear it, and your temper is really using your temper as a sort of escape.

Now then, fi you used the energy you wash in a "temper jag" in trying to meet and overcome the difficulties you are hiding and fleeing from, you would quickly overcome your problems and would no longer need to lose your temper any rate, think of your bad temper in this way and you will be surprised to find how easily you can banish it.

After all, too much bad temper is bad for you, as well as for those who are compelled to endure it.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

Infants often gain in weight when part of the sugar requirements of the diet is maintained by milk or cane sugar, rather than milk or cane sugar alone. This is because maltose is especially digested.

SINE FAMILY REUNION

The Sine third annual foregathering on Wednesday, August 3rd, was a unique and successful affair. Even though the rain fell in torrents, over one hundred and fifty took place in the Agricultural Building on the Stirling Fair Grounds. The chief was considerably enlarged before 2 p.m. when the programme of the day was given.

The president, Mr. Wm. Sine, acted throughout as chair. Guests on the platform were Mrs. Jane Spencer, Mrs. Mary Hamilton, Mrs. Martha Sine (these three each being over eighty years of age, are the oldest ladies present), Mr. Alex. Green, who ably presented the address to Mr. Fox and Anderson, Stirling, as being the oldest gentlemen present, Mr. Fox, Mr. Anderson and Dr. J. A. Faulkner, both of Belleville, Mr. Albert Sine, Stirling, Mr. both of Napanee.

The pleasing feature of the programme was the "In Memoriam" service conducted by Mrs. W. Sine, Mrs. Freeman Sine, Mrs. M. B. Sine gave the following address:

"Members and fellow descendants of Peter Sine and Wm. Sine

"Today we are gathered together on the old homestead for the third annual reunion since we organized and it is with pleasure indeed that we find the heedless children, the hale and hearty of the family and also the more elderly ones who are nearing the "three score."

"It behooves us all to try and live such lives as our Master did that when we leave this world it so that when the call comes we can all say with Paul:

"'Sunset and evening star, and one clear call for me!

'And may there be no moaning of the bar when I put out to sea.'

But such a tide as moving seems asleep, Too full for sound and foam,

Sunset and evening star and after that the dark

And may there be no sadness of farewell when I embark

For though from out our bourne of time and place, the tide may bear me far

I hope to see my Saviour face to face when I have crossed the bar.

"Many of our host have already crossed the Bar and passed from sight, but we know they are just over there. If we but look forward we will see them with their hands outstretched waiting for us. But a little while and we shall be with them. What a great reunion that will be! This is the one goal we are all striving for.

"In my Father's house are many mansions." Surely there is prepared a place for you. If it were not so I should have told you." Isn't this a wonderful promise?

Now during the coming year let us all do more than our business and in our leisure moments try to make and cement friendships. Saturday so that we will set such an example of peace and harmony children who are coming after us that when we do pass on the torch it may be neither lowered nor extinguished.

"Now, today, we wish to honor the memory of those of our host who have passed on:

"1. Prior to our first reunion in 1930, 11 of the following who have passed on since 1930, namely:

SOME DOUBT AS TO THE WINNER

Game Called in Seventh With College Hill Ahead 20-10

Just who did win the championship of the Thurlow League will really never be known or at least always in doubt following the final game of the play-off at Canniffon, when College Hill "Pickups" battled the Canniffon "Slingers" in the third and final game of the league play-off.

With but one man out in the seventh frame, Umpire Clapper was forced to call the game on account of some boisterous fans encroaching on the field. By the time the field was clear, which never really occurred, it was too dark to finish the game and Umpire Clapper rightfully called the game on account of darkness.

The College Hill battery of Jenkinson and Grey were far too good for their "Slugger" rivals and had the game well in hand throughout. As the game was terminated before the end of the seventh innings, there is still considerable controversy as to whether another game should be played or the College Hill boys are to be declared champions after their 20 to 10 victory. This question will be decided at an executive meeting.

The line-ups:

Canniffon—Jarrell, Phillips, Hanson, Whitlaw, White, Webb.

Carmichael, Williams and Smallhorn.

Score by innings:

College Hill ..... 402 272 3—20 runs
Canniffon ..... 112 001 x—10 runs

Shut out on visit game called on account of darkness.

MASKED MARVEL VS. LAROCQUE

Jack Corcoran Has Provided Real Battlers For Wrestling Card

The wrestling season will be officially opened in this city on Wednesday next, when an open air show will be given in Victoria Park, the promoter being Jack Corcoran, who has made a success of the enterprise in Toronto. This show will be a heavyweight card with "Cora" Laroque and the Masked Marvel providing the main bout. A number of the wrestlers to take part are now on the ground and will work out daily in this city. Larocque holds many titles and is claimant for the world's title now held jointly by Jim London and Strangler Lewis, these men belonging to different camps. The Masked Marvel is an internationally known wrestler and when defeated will take off the mask and the one guessing his correct name will be given a substantial cash prize by Mr. Corcoran. He will be in the city Thursday and Wednesday next with his manager, who has been a mask man at all times. Larocque will work out in Victoria Park every afternoon at two o'clock and anyone is privileged to watch his work and also go on the mat with him if they so desire. He is willing to teach these, with the result a few of the recognized holds of wrestling. Before the softball game tonight at the Armouries, Larocque will give an exhibition of this popular sport.

Bobby Sampson, twice welterweight champion of the Pacific Coast at 145 pounds but now weighing 160 pounds, will be pitted with Frankie Hartt in the semi windup and this should be a real battle. Earl Nelson, middleweight champion of the Pacific Coast is also in the city but will not wrestle on the card as a suitable opponent has not been found for him yet. To prove the championship, Nelson has brought his belt, emblematic of the championship, to the city and will display the same in the window of Charles J. Symons'.

"MASKED MARVEL"

"A Loving Cup with handles all round" advised Mr. Picobac

The Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa being in session, Mr. Picobac did not feel quite free to express his own views on matters sub judice.

"The Conference is in session," said he. "The case is before the courts. All I'll say at this time is this: 'We don't want any jug-handled agreement. What we want is a loving cup with handles all round.'"

The genial philosopher of Essex County thrust a straw into the stem of his pipe to improve the draught.

"Say," cried he, chuckling, "if all those Delegates smoked Picobac, they'd agree on one thing, anyway."

"And what's that?" demanded his wife.

Picobac tobacco is made from the pick of the burley crop produced in Canada's famous "tropic belt" on the shore of Lake Erie—cool . . . mild . . . sweet in your pipe. Try it.

—and don't forget, you get more tobacco for your money. Good for making cigarettes, too.

POINT ANNE ON TOP RUNG

Defeat Victorias 4 to 3 in an Intermediatt Fixture

"Phil" Lott, youthful Indian pitcher of the Point Anne intermediates, came to the front on Friday evening, when he turned back the Belleville Victorias by the score of 4 to 3.

Lott pitched masterful ball during eight of the nine innings played with the exception of the third frame, when Del Vics nicked his offerings for three hits coupled with two glaring errors to score their only three runs of the game. The other eight innings Lott fanned six excellent brand of ball using a sharp breaking curve and a fast ball to an advantage.

Lott was opposed on the hillTop by Ralph Joey, who was relieved by Archie Campbell in the seventh frame but the combined efforts of these two southpaws could not overcome the mighty efforts of their team mates. The Point Anne crew presented a well balanced ball club at all chances and played steady and consistent ball throughout the game. The two Green boys, Sonny and Murney along with Jack Shroback go to make up a high class trio of outfielders.

Ralph Joey started on the mound for the locals and the loss of the game can in no way be laid at his door except one play in the fourth innings when Joey threw to the plate with two out and allowed a run to score. Joey pitched good ball and had perfect support. Archie Campbell, who assumed the pitching duties in the seventh. There were no outstanding hitters in the game, all runs were scored after an error had been committed.

The win places the Point Anne club in complete control of first position in the league and of the second place Picton crew. These two clubs battle it out again Monday night at the Belleville Fair Grounds when the Vics expect to turn the tables on the league leaders and Champs.

The lineups:

Point Anne—C. Green rf; Gaulin 2b; J. Green cf; Gover c; Bennett 1b; Bero 3rb; Lott p; Barnett ss; Hollis lf.

Belleville Vics—Hey p; Seeney c; Blakely 1b; Hall 2b; Campbell rf; Flagler ss; Tice and Palmer cf; Ross cf; Lakeford lf. and Campbell p.

WOULD DRIVE AN AIRPLANE AT 100 MILES PER HOUR

Powerful Essex Terraplane Engine Has Particularly High Power to Weight Ratio— Christened by Amelia Earhart, Atlantic Flyer.

Because of its extremely high power to weight ratio, the highest in the automobile field, the engine of a new Essex Terraplane automobile actually would drive an average airplane, of 2,500 pounds weight at top speed of 100 miles per hour, according to engineers of the Hudson Motor Car Company.

Because of the airplane accomplishments of the new car, which was officially christened a week or so ago by Miss Amelia Earhart the only woman who has flown the Atlantic alone, the new car was given the name Terraplane, meaning land plane.

Airplane, Hudson engineers pointed out, must have a power to weight ratio of at least one horsepower per thirty-five pounds weight in order to fly. The Terraplane they said, has a power to weight ratio of thirty pounds per horsepower, which means that every thirty pounds weight, which means all the baggage and passengers and containing a passenger weighs approximately 2,500 pounds.

If placed in an airplane of the same weight and having a forty-foot wing spread and two hundred and fifty square feet of wing surface, a Terraplane engine would drive such a plane at rates ranging from 55 to as high as 100 miles per hour.

The Essex Terraplane, because of its unusual power to weight ratio, its steadiness and solid "road sense" on curves and at speed already has attracted the attention of both the aviation and automobile world. Prominent aviation and automobile engineers who were invited to Detroit two weeks before the new car was announced, expressed surprise that such a power to weight ratio could be built into an automobile. Among the engineers in Detroit at that time were Orville Wright, inventor of the airplane, and Paul Litchfield, builder of Zeppelin airships for the United States navy.

The new Essex Terraplane car, Hudson engineers said, is accurately proportioned so that its power to weight ratio can be taken advantage of at all times. Its length, height and tread are practically and mathematically correct.

Never before in automobile history did a new automobile ever have such a severe initial test as was given the new Terraplane cars in connection with the christening, when dealers drove 2,000 new Terraplanes from Detroit for distances of 50 to 1,500 miles over all kinds and sorts of roads without serious trouble.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

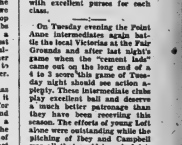
Like a bolt from the blue the executive of the Belleville and District Girls' Softball League announced last evening that the National Maids, new leaders in their league, have been declared league winners and will represent the local girls' loop in the Eastern Ontario play-downs. The league executive, which is composed of five mythical citizens, namely, Messrs. F. Deacon, L. Madden, H. VanDervoort, J. E. Shortt and W. S. Ross, first felt that the Maids having won 8 games and lost 1 game were far superior to their rival teams on the season's play, that they may all be true but the teams participating in the loop were given to understand, pre-season, that there would be some kind of a league play-off at the end of the schedule.

Whether it was the first two or the first three place teams to play off was not mentioned but the clubs were given to understand that there would be some kind of a play-off series for the league pennant. Originally it was felt that in a four teamed loop the first and second place clubs only should participate in a league play-off. If any, that how the fans will take the ruling of the executive is another question and they will have to have their views in the matter.

Now that this question has been definitely settled it would be a good suggestion for the Belleville First Class and the National Maids to play a "round robin series" for the championship of the City of Belleville. The Maids were not defeated once but all the city but of the Belleville and District league. To date the clubs are not in very good financial straights which speaks all the greater for the fans who have been having been adopted by the league executive. We are sorry to see the end of the league but the fans will have to wait for the play-off series between the winners of Kingston and the National Maids. There are only two more games in the loop to be played, the first of which is scheduled for Monday evening.

Professor Obervais, a constant attendant at the girls' softball games while the umpires' lawn, was acquainted on Friday evening of the fact that one of the executive of the Girls' Softball League of Belleville to hand the championship of the league to the National Maids without going into a play off series.

"Not so," quote the professor. "Confusion, well meant with the greatest of displeasure on the part of the loyal spectators who gather evening after evening to watch the games, and will also receive their hearty condemnation." He stated that all agree the National Maids have played consistently good ball but in two seasons out of three leading the league, they were finally eliminated in the play off. "It is never too much of the system employed in the public school and collegiate of promoting scholars without a final test," continued the professor. "If the National Maids failed in the crucial tests of two seasons they should they be handed the championship on a silver platter this year?" he concluded. "It will assuredly be a great disappointment to the fans and does no credit to the discernment of the executive."



It is worthy to note that Tom Hampson of England who established a world's record at the Olympic games on Tuesday in the eight hundred metres race is a first cousin of Mr. Samuel Hampson of Tweed.

The various men's softball loops about town are fast narrowing down their schedules with the result that the Thurlow League was won by College Hill Friday night. The men's league league are now in the final series with the Canada Cement team of Point Anne being favorites. The city league play offs will start next week. In this loop there is quite a struggle for the play off berths between the Firemen, Kiwanis and the K. of C. clubs. Their play-offs will start late this week, we understand.

The Belleville Fair is but three weeks off now and the fair board is we announced their racing card for the week. Besides having running races on opening day they are having two harness races each day, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with excellent purses for each class.

On Tuesday evening the Point Anne intermediates again battle the local Victorias at the Fair Grounds and after last night's game when the "cement lads" came out on the long end of a 4 to 3 score this game of Tuesday night should see action aplenty. These intermediate clubs play excellent ball and deserve a much better patronage than they have been receiving this season. The efforts of young Lott alone were outstanding while the pitching of Joey and Campbell was all that could be asked for. In all probability Archie Campbell will start on the mound for the Vics at their next meeting with the Point Anne, who now lead the league.

Jack Corcoran has a wrestling bout in the makito for Belleville on Wednesday evening next. The bouts are to be of the open-air nature and will be staged on Victoria Park on a raised ring which will be surrounded by some 600 ring-side chairs. Corcoran is matching "The Masked Marvel" against Rene Larocque, the rough-house Frenchman, in a final go. These two boys are heavyweights and plenty of action is assured for the fans. The other, high-class bouts will also be on the card, we hear.

Beauty.....

BY HELEN JAMIESON

Three Minute N ail Clean-up

One reason why the home gal gets discouraged about her finger nails and having time nesbe to chase round the corner to the beauty shopette—is because she hasn't got that cash ready with which to work. Two special ones are necessary, and cheap to use together with them at all unless the best set bought—the file and the curved wrecle-point scissors. Both must be of high grade steel and must be the right kind.

The file won't cost much, but scissors are an item. Neither one lever wears out. It is a purchase made once in a life time. Unless the file is flexible, bends easily, it will prove troublesome. A stiff, heavy file grinds slowly. The thin, sharp long one slips off the nail neatly and quickly.

Scissors should be treasured. If a member of the family pares them up, uses them to cut string or paper, bring out your choicest insults. Once a year that scissors should go to a barber shop supply establishment where they will be sharpened properly. If points spring apart, they can be tightened by one who understands that kind of work.

Don't take them to the hardware store, in the wood shop. They'll that won't do!

Besides scissors and file, a manicuring outfit includes an orange-stick, bevelled files of emery board, cuticle cream and polish. A nail bleach speeds up the treatment.

Filing nails is the first hand washing. That's where amateurs drip up. When nails are hard and dry they are more quickly and easily shaped. Work from sides to top, forming a point, then grind that off by producing an oval effect. The nail file leaves a thin film of inner nail, which is removed by the emery board. Then scrub with soap and warm water and a nail brush.

Next the bottle with cuticle, bound to be stubborn if hands are useful ones, attending to those numerous domestic chores that put mitts to the bad. Touch each nail with cuticle cream. Gently lift flesh around from the nail with orange wood stick. Then cream under the nail and cover, forming a trim, neat white line. If cares are around, dip the stick in lemon juice instead of cream.

Be tactful with hangnails. They have mean disposition and if you treat 'em rough they grow abrasions, invite infection. When they have been detached from the nail, snip cautiously with scissors pointing scissors from ball base to tip.

Remove the cuticle cream before polishing, which if not smeared and applied easily enough with the little brush, but care should be taken not to put them on too generously. A thin film wears better than a heavy one.

By using cuticle cream every night, each clean-up treatment will be simpler. And of course if you will slip on the old rubber gloves when cleaning window sills or polishing furniture, nail sheiding will be better protected, less likely to cause trouble. Olive oil is a substitute for a cuticle cream, and of course cold cream will act as an emollient.

Oil Beaming Skin Annoys

It does seem unreasonable of the feminine nose to demand all the beautifying attentions; but what with diligent plying of the oil powder puff, in the hope of achieving a beautiful, romantic, dull finish to the imperturbable beak, a girl doesn't have much time left for anything else in the way of pulchritudinous pursuits. Not in the summer season, when flirting is at its best, and when an ugly nose even the most ambitious and experienced cosmetic concealer could not form.

By way of throwing a cloud of gloom we will pass on hastily the news that the sebaceous glands of the body, when qualified for solve work, throw out one ounce of grease a day— but nobody is able to explain why the whole ounce must butter up the surface of the nose. That is elsewhere but we doubt it. Maybe it is that the the powder puff—inserts it. It should because it seems it comes bouncing along and scours powder into the pores. It makes sebaceous glands angry. Why not? They must their push their exudations through barriers set against them.

We suggest light powders and less powdering for severe cases of nose beam, and twice daily an application of lotion made by combining one dram of boracic acid and four ounces of distilled water. This lotion removes oil, whereas the powder pad combines oil with powder, forming a greasy smear.

Beauty waiters who complain about oily complexions should try the hot-and-cold treatment. The skin surface is cleansed first with pure bland soap and warm water. The suds is laved away with warm water then toned up with cool or steaming hot water are applied. The purpose of the hot compress is to open all its pores liquid so it won't mass up in solid formation, attract atmospheric dust, develop into blackheads, fore-runners of pimples. Thus one beauty lil leads to another. Terrible!

The moment hot packs are removed the skin is rubbed with an ice cube. Work vallantly on the nose for has a depressing effect upon oil gushers, makes them slow up.

A clay mask applied every night does triple trick—eliminates excessive oil, digs out blackheads, tones texture of skin smooth.

Take two tablespoonfuls of kaolin (refined Fuller's earth), mix with witch hazel to form paste the consistency of whipped cream. Spread over face and neck. When the mixture has dried and starts to flake, remove with tepid water.

Kaolin is also used as a bleaching and cleansing parts of powder and water substituted for witch hazel. ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—Last Christmas I received an engagement ring from a friend to be married until next year; my father thought it too early to announcement my engagement then. So I waited. Of course, I have worn my ring, and a few of my friends know that I am engaged. I think I should announce it this summer. What is your advice?

2.—Should I have an informal dinner?

Patsy.

1.—You shouldn't have worn your ring in public until you were ready to announce your engagement.... that is a very definite rule. Now that the announcement is so quickly "leaking out" it would be better if you make the formal announcement, if indeed an announcement is now necessary. You see after a girl has worn her engagement ring in public and a "few of her friends know it" (which observed the ring, a formal announcement of the engagement comes as an act of anticlimax.

2.—If you wish.

A GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Just as soon as this paper is in my hands, I turn to you column and read it. It is so interesting to me.

1.—My sister and I have been invited to a birthday party given by a lady we have met through a business deal in the city of a young man about thirty years old, whom we have met only once. It is proper that we buy for the lady or for this young man and if so what would be appropriate? This is very fine point.

2.—If a gift is proper, should we take it with us to the party and give it to the lady who is giving the party?

A. M.

What a nice considerate thing for you to say.... thank you for it..

1.—Such a gift would be all necessary, and perhaps I should advise you not to take a gift to this young man because I think it would seem so especially kind and gracious and he would be very pleased, that I can twupted to suggest that it would be a friendly gesture for you and your sister to make to take a gift to the honoring.

I'm glad that you told me that you have invited me to advise for this would give a charming reason for a gift of some sort on this interesting subject. Recently there have been several excellent biographies of musicians, and no doubt you could find one that he hasn't read. All musicians are interested in literature and there is a new biography on this present day, to be your book-shop. And while you are there look for color biographies of musicians to see if the others appeal to you more. Perhaps it would be wise to buy one with the portrait that he may exchange it if he has read it. HOW exceptionally fine.

A book as a gift so happily combines such a charming personal touch and the impression that it is practically always appropriate.

2.—Yes this is the perfect thing to do .

Magnificent Dahlia Blooms

Friday afternoon Mrs. George A. Bonisteel of the "Bon Clair" Gardens, 35 Highland Ave., left at this office some magnificent blooms of her dahlias. The collection comprised single, cactus, hybrid cactus, show and decorative varieties, in all sixteen different blooms. Interspersed with these was a bouquet of the pride of the dahlia family, the exquisite, petite, upstanding pompoms, several varieties of these delightful little blossoms making up the collection.

The dahlia bloom is, this season, making its appearance appreciably earlier than usual and the fanciers in this vicinity are looking remarkably healthy. The pests that usually attacks the young buds and green shoots has not been as much in evidence as in other years and the heavy rain of Wednesday will do much in cleaning up the pest from the plants.

Mrs. Bonisteel will be glad to have interested horticulturists and flower and beauty lovers visit her gardens at any time.

Commerce and the Squirrel

Ontario Intelligencer Lyrist Tells Touching Story of Visitor

An adventurous bushy-tailed black squirrel, having gained knowledge that green seeds thrive in tins there were nuts in the nearby vicinity of Belleville and Bridge streets decided thinking them to be the kind grown on trees and not the human development, at three o'clock this afternoon about 4 p.m. made his venturesome appearance in that locality. Being a curious goat, however, for his peace of mind and he made a dash for an old tin. This he sought in the C. P. R. Telegraph office. His little mind became most confused when he found out where he was and his sturdy little limbs carried him at top speed. He was a busy little chap for several minutes and so were the members of the staff there. He darted from one place to another with a second only at each stop. Eventually he found exit from the place where he had been seeking peace and quietude, neither of which had been found, however, for a good citizen - he headed for the Grand Junction in the distance. Since he had found, or at least he was seen last bounding down Pinnacle street as fast as his frightened little limbs could carry him.

It was a summer afternoon,—
Their work was nearly done,
And they before the idle keys
Were ready for some fun;
When to their ears upon the scene
A denisen from out the green.

They saw him enter as the door
And wildly scamper round the floor.
They saw him jump from this to that,
In frightfulness galore;
He'd come to find seclusion sweet,
From moving cars upon the street.

A bushy tail flew thru the air
As blackie leapt from off the chair
Upon the nearby desk;
Then dashed about the office there,
Disturbing sight you must agree
To peaceful equanimity.

The door was open and once more
Blackie hied forth for distant shore
As onward pilled his feet;
Deigning police rescour.
And midst the clatter of the keys
The staff gave thanks on bended knees.

"Criticism" said Dr. Johnson "is a study by which men grow important and formidable at a very small expense."

Teach Rather Than Frighten

(By Constance Cameron)

Every once in a while one sees a family whose methods with children in the daily life with them are so sane, so friendly and wholesome that it seems almost safe to broach the cast the procedure to parents to whom the management of children does not come so easily.

No Thought of Fear

The family I have in mind is right in one point where I feel that many parents go wrong and that is in teaching their children how to do things, how to meet emergencies, but never cautioning them or instilling in any child a fear of form. Result? Three well-balanced calm, poised youngsters, who know way about and are fully capable of caring for themselves, under any adverse conditions, because they've been taught how to think. They have been prepared for emergencies, with no hampering thoughts of fear built into their emotional structure. On a four-day vacation with them I saw:

The seven-year-old get carefully into a rowboat, row about a small lake for half an hour, dock her little craft expertly, and properly get out of it. She hadn't been warned to keep away from dock, but had been taught how to row. She had never been allowed to venture on the lake. She has been taught how to swim.

FINANCIAL NEWS

$12 RISE SEEN IN N.Y. SHARES

New York, Aug. 6.—A stampede of buying threw bears into a panic in today's stock market and brought one of the most spectacular upsurges of prices in months.

Prices at many prominent issues surged up 2 to 13 points to the best levels since March. There were numerous recessions of about 1 to 4 in the final dealings, however, which reached the impressive total for a two-hour session of about 3,600,000 shares.

Buying Pours In.

Buying poured into the market from many cities at home and abroad, attracted by the general buoyancy of sentiment.

At the top of the recovery, the margin had gained some 80 per cent. of March-June loss, the largest percentage recovery yet recorded after any of the several successive phases of liquidation which started in 1929.

Some conservative banking quarters were somewhat apprehensive over the violence of the rally.

The offerings were so thin in Union Pacific and Allied Chemical and had been many days in the process necessary to halt trading in those issues for a moment. The Exchange was in arrears of the transaction on the floor.

New developments influencing the market were not of particular importance.

The U. S. steel issues were particularly strong. United Steel preferred shot up 12 points to 87, and the common 2 points to a new high of Santa Fe fell back about 4, after getting up to 92 1/2. Chrysler common closed 9 higher at 78 and American Telephone up about 9 at 108. Union Pacific closed about 9 higher at 83. The number issues up 2 to 3 included Allied Chem., General Electric, American Can, Johns Manville, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, and others. Case was again sharply higher, more than 7. Sears sold up 3 and closed up 2.

STOCKS BULLED ON TORONTO BD.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—Stocks were bulled high, wide and handsome in the best Saturday's rally of the year on the Toronto stock exchange today. New highs were established in the industrial and utility groups and the advance gained momentum as the session progressed. Volume was heavy and the list of active stocks again broadened out to take in other sections.

"JERRY AND JOAN" CO-STARS SYLVIA SIDNEY AND FREDERIC MARCH

Cleo Lucas' popular novel, "I, Jerry, Take Thee, Joan," has been dramatized and now becomes the co-starring vehicle for Sylvia Sidney and Fredric March, two of Hollywood's younger favorites.

Paramount assigned to Edwin Justus Mayer the task of converting the book to screen form, which is now presented under the paradoxical title of "Jerry" and needless to say, comes in the Belle today and Monday, matinee daily.

Mayer, as newspaper scenario writer and playwright, realizing the popularity of Norman Krasna's dealing fashionable life and the scaling of modern unbreakable youth adheres closely to the trend of the original story. His professional touch is revealed powerful in the dramatic settings and forceful action he has given to the play.

In the picture, March becomes Jerry, a brilliant but irresponsible newspaper reporter, who battles daily with beverage dodgers prohibited but "speakeasily" obtainable on almost any block in most large cities.

Miss Sidney, as Joan, a daughter of wealthy parents, falls for March, who is affable and charming even when he is drunk and who finally carries him in spite of family objections. Then, when March's drinking has to check her own headstrong course to keep Jerry from utter disaddiction.

She is helped in this direction, by Jerry's father, a fine old scout, Pop Job. Sober, he writes a play which is a great success. But March can't stand success. He celebrates so disgracefully that Joan leaves and returns to her home in Chicago. A later reconciliation is utterly destroyed when March, quite "adored" is caught by Sylvia affectionately kissing Adrienne Allen, who was his former college sweetheart.

Sylvia, heart-broken, joins her friend Chalice's swimming party. Then deliberately swims out to the hoped-for forgetfulness, but —

Those who see the picture will learn what happens. It also appreciate the excellent talent of cast that can be assembled to do so realistic, yet entertaining — so dramatic, yet quite satisfying in its final climax.

"JERRY" AT CAPITOL

"The Riding Tornado," the new Tim McCoy western drama now at the Belle, entitled "Jerry and Joan" resembles a tornado in every respect so far as whirlwind excitement is concerned. Tim McCoy as Tim Tornado, the bronche-bustin' champ, blows into town and leaves a trail of thrills in his path. "The Riding Tornado" is notable for thrills, dangers, romance, adventure and speed. Cactus Cartoon and an interesting and up-to-date news reel completes the program.

"LADY PENNIFOLD'S FOLLY" HAS UNUSUAL THEME

"Taking a Chance" has Elsays been Garry Anson's guiding motto. Handsome young bachelor and racehorse owner, he is very popular but, unfortunately, is very much in love with a beautiful married woman, Wendo Pennifold.

When Anson trains the trainer the day before the Ascot Stakes that his horse, Ragamore is not certain to win, Garry, who has been losing heavily at betting, feels none too happy. The trainer suggests that Ragamore is pulled in the race, thus getting a good price of his outstanding chance in the Northumberland Plate.

Impulsively Garry agrees to do this, and on learning that Wenda has already backed Ragamore sends her a note telling her he has cancelled the bet because "My horse isn't trying. P. S. —Please burn this note unless you want to get me warned off!"

John Dory, Garry's friend and bookmaker, is shocked to learn of this proposed plan, and persuades Garry to let Ragamore try at Ascot. He then places a huge commission not on the back of a £100 note, saying "You can back Ragamore after all. It is not going to lose."

Financial and private matters become complicated when Wenda backs Ragamore loses to Silver Queen. Misunderstandings and quarrels wrongly suspects him as her lover. having learned that she spent the night with a man in a London hotel. As Garry had placed £20,000 in trust with Wenda's lawyer, he needs it badly, he asks her to return it, but she declares the money was a gift. Lord William, feeling his suspicions aroused, accuses Garry and turns him out of the house. Paunifold, Lord William's valet, later, in Garry's absence, forwards Garry's first note concerning Ragamore running to the Jockey Club and at the enquiry she denies having received his second note. On the evidence of a stewards decide to warn him off.

Not to be beaten by Garry's assistance of Dory and Hillcott, his friends, Garry arranges "Lady Jerry" Entry to the Pannifold home he easily persuades her that there they trap Wenda with her lover. With this hold Garry obtains the note which exonerates him clearing his name and stopping publication in "The Racing Calendar" of the Steward's decision. His troubles over, Garry convinces Pannifold that he is a better husband than becoming Lady Garry Anson.

"Lady Pannifold's Folly" brings Herbert Marshall and Edna Best, who were co-starred as "Garry and Mary" together again, and will be the feature attraction at the

Letters to the Editor

MR. McVICKER EXPLAINS

Lonsdale, Ont., Aug. 2.

The Editor of Ontario Intelligencer Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir:

Will you grant the person who "sees green" at the Lake of Bays meeting a few months ago some space in your paper for a few observations regarding the question about which I spoke and which seemed to be of interest to your prophetic reporter?

In the first place I possess no offer, nor apologies to make for giving utterance to my convictions as any meeting of any organization or committee of any group of men.

Secondly, the unfairness of the Assessment Act in regard to the farming community I stated and remain so today.

3. I have also carried away from the principles of Liberalism when I referred to the following facts:

I stantiate thig I submit to your consideration the following facts:

(a) That line of action at present neither party had formed any definite policy regarding this issue and thus I was at liberty to give my individual opinion as I did without detracting from my qualification as a true Liberal.

(b) The Paramount point which I raised in that discussion was that the people were confronted with sufficient public opinion behind it to demand a referendum on the question of betterment. To ask any government or any party to commit itself in the current issue, which affects many people in many ways, and thus maintain in its entirety the obligations and spirit of responsible and representative government, is not being carried away from the principles of Liberalism as I understand them.

4. Moreover when I referred to this question I was not carried away from the principles of Liberalism, today, "taxation." I would like to know who is carried away one who discusses this issue in its entirety, or one who treats certain phases of it which affect the people and then inconsistently draws the mark when it relates to a certain class of people.

Much more could be written to vindicate my attitude at that meeting but I think sufficient has been said to answer the uncalled for remarks appearing in your paper. In concluding may I however, join for a moment your staff of prophets and make the prediction that be this coming election there will not be one candidate in Ontario who will not be called upon to state his position in respect to this issue.

Sincerely yours,
JOSEPH McVICKER.

British Statesmen Relax

"Bidin' a Wee"

By Elizabeth Moore Joyce

"We'll have to 'bide a wee' Boh," Emeline Hayes, tender, starry-eyed and eighteen, smiled brave-ly up at her mother. "I cannot leave home now that Mother's gone. But father may get better and the boys will soon grow up. Anyhow, I'll be here waiting for your—return."

They were standing among the lilacs saying goodby. At Emeline's request Robert Colton had come out of her life—temporarily, she explained—and by his own desire he was going away—far away—heartsore and rebellious.

A few letters came from "out West", every postmark different. Then silence. Then little brothers grew taller and sturdier. The school bell eventually brought business men with bonnes of their own. Emeline's father grew better or worse but, before John Hayes at last went to his reward, his sons were running in and out of the old home to see their grandfather and cousin aunt.

Emeline's hair was gray now, her eyes dim and the roses had long ago faded from her cheeks, but she had proved Robert Colton when she was free she would marry him. And one day she was handed a letter with a restricted life she scarcely realized how the world had gone on without her.

Months passed but Robert Colton did not return to claim his bride. Again the lilacs bloomed and faded while Emeline waited. Then one day the train for the West bore Emeline far away from the old home. There must be her village, a stone's throw as the crow flies, but Emeline had vowed never to see it again. Even when she was free she would marry him. And now she was free. Having lost such

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

—CHAPTER 13

"You're a funny one!" Peter said watching her.

"I don't care!—Put some coal in there till you Peter! I don't care. I'm Sheila said, "there's no use wasting good food."

"You're getting a kick out of this," he said resentfully.

"I would if it wasn't for Mamma."

"Don't you believe it's all over yet," Peter muttered, ominously.

But the homely familiar work had quieted Sheila's nerves. Nothing terrible was going to happen. These cooking men in the old farm house parlor were just like other men loafing on Sunday morning or rather they were just grown-up boys like other boys. They would be hungry pretty soon and she could feed them.

A hideous face looked into the kitchen; it would have appalled her yesterday. But she was warm and fed now and busy and needed, and this filled the need of her woman's heart.

"Dinner!" this apparition said hoarsely.

"Yes. In about half an hour" Sheila responded briskly. "You tell them to keep off the grass."

The last was mere habit. Sheila's children had this to her child-dren as often as she had commanded them to a meal. No Carscaddon could say "Dinner!" without adding "Wash your hands!"

She and the villainous face stare at her oddly. The man vanished.

"You've got a heart!" Peter said, tearfully. "They might kill us for that, that!"

"Oh, shucks!" Sheila said boldly. "Give me those plates."

Impressed, Peter obeyed her meekly.

A minute later the man called Ken came into the kitchen. He had evidently just arrived, for his face was red with cold, and his gloves and coat wet. He looked curiously at Sheila and nodded to her without a smile. For a full two minutes he stood warming himself by the stove watching her work.

"I'm all right," Sheila answered briefly. She tasted the pot roast, poured in the paste that was to thick-en it.

"You seem to have fitted in all right," Ken said. He ground his cold hands together. "Something smells good" he added. And then, with the most obvious effort to a single she had ever seen in him, "I hear we have to wish our hands!"

To this Sheila made no response. She was embarrassed. She stirred the thickening stew carefully.

Mike bread was so stale that she attempted it, as she had seen her mother do and set it in the hot oven to crisp. She found some cold cooked spaghetti and set that in the oven too, with a sprinkle of butter and some crumbled cheese on it. She made more coffee and set a bowl of apples and orange on the table. There was no lack of food, although it was all tumbled together ruinously and much of it was fuzzy with decay.

"What Ma couldn't do here!" Sheila thought.

They presently sat down seven in the kitchen, on such rickety chairs and boxes as they could individually command. The three men who had been smoking in the front room had not washed their hands, Sheila assumed, unless indeed those hands had been extraordinarily dirty, but it was easy to forgive any personal neglect in this place, where there were no bathrooms and no hot water and no conveniences of any sort.

She gathered that they liked the potroast and the spaghetti. Any way, they ate quantities of it, mountains of it, with all the gravy and vegetables that she could scrape up from the big baking pan in which she had served the tremendous meal. They had put wine on the table; Peter drank some of it, but Sheila would not touch it.

The atmosphere lightened somehow, as they ate together. She had begun to feel faint and tired and drowsy but there was no more fear. It was only with a real effort that she roused herself, afterward, and began the business of clearing up.

To her surprise they all helped her; she saw the tall tablecloth into four pieces that each assistant might have his own. They carried the remains of the stew into the ice-cold pantry, piled the plates neatly drew back the chairs, and one brigand secured a wisp of broom somewhere and brushed the rough old floor.

They're just like Neely and Joe," she thought.

She could smile as she asked for a hod of coal and a bucket of water.

"There!" Sheila said in satisfaction when all this was done. She was exhausted now, and drawing a deep old rocker close to the stove, and catching up a coverless movie magazine that happened to be in the woodbox, she composed herself for a rest.

The men were trying to persuade Peter to something; Peter was unwilling.

"They're just going to bring some wood into the front room," Ken explained in his characteristically careless way. "Go along and help them!"

He and Sheila were left alone in the kitchen, with the warmth and the smells of food and fire and soap suds in the gathering dusk. It was not quite half past four o'clock, but the brief stormy day was closing in.

The last sat down, stretched his feet and stretched his legs.

"Well, you got the boys tamed," he said then.

"They were hungry. I guess."

They haven't had a meal like that in a long while."

Silence. Sheila turned a page or two yawned wearily, threw the magazine away.

"You haven't asked me when you and McCann go?" Ken said.

"Asking wouldn't make any difference."

There was another silence and then Ken repeated with a chuckle: "Yes sir, they don't know you're family tamed!

"Well," he added, as Sheila made no comment "they're all home boys, they've had good raising. People think they're different because they are in the business. They ain't any different. They like to have a girl around, and they like things clean, and like everything else. Lots of times they're sending money home. It's just a matter of how you treat them; they don't want any racket or any shooting" he said, "not if they can get out of it they don't."

Sheila not proving responsive, he lighted on his pipe, in silence, and looking at the fire. Presently he began again:

"So you thought my mother was dead, hey? No sir my little mother is very much alive. She's got chickens, she's got a garden. She drives an old Ford."

"How long since you've seen her?" the girl asked politely.

"How long since I've seen my mother? Four years."

"Oh—" Sheila said widening her eyes into their accustomed blankness. "That's too long."

"Without seeing your mother, hey? Well, that," Ken said, with his patronizing, complacent air "that's what it is."

"Maybe mothers are different," Sheila suggested. "But my mother is crazy about us. She was left a widow, you know she had to take state help, for a while. But she never would give one of us up, she just raised the roof when they wanting to take Angela and keep her in a hospital. No matter what you do, my mother'll make excuses for you. Once I was terribly saucy to Sister Regitlus—"

She fell silent. For a few minutes Ken was silent too.

Then he said, in a rectified tone: "And what makes you think my mothers' any different from yours?"

Sheila considered this.

"Well I hope she is!" she said finally with a little laugh.

"Why do you hope she is?"

"Because if she isn't—she's worried."

It was almost dark in the kitchen now, but the fading light, without, and the fire's glow within, threw an almost unearthly beauty over Sheila's face and figure. Her slim hips and rounded breasts were outlined by the plain dress she wore; a fringe of glittering copper crossed her low white forehead and the sapphire blue of her eyes seemed to be welling and pulsing with light.

"To show you how crazy she is—my mother, I mean," Ken said, "I had an old hound—listen, he didn't amount to a hill of beans, He was just naturally an old ringer. You wouldn't have fed him."

He stopped to laugh and to remember, and seemed to forget her for a minute.

"This old wreck,' he began again with relish, "would scorter hang around and finally I got so calling him 'Cap' and he stayed with us; he was my dog. Well, after I left home, darned if my mother didn't keep that old dog and take care of him, and every time she wrote me it'd be how old Cap was coming on, and how he missed me, and everything. It was a rick!"

"If Ma ever had to write a letter she gets out the ink bottle and she clears off the sad off the kitchen table—"

Sheila wondered suddenly what Ma was doing tonight, and fell silent. She suddenly wanted her mother.

"I guess my mother does about that way," Ken said, clearing his throat. "I guess a lot of dog was scorter company for her, at that," he added, in a lower tone.

"Are there other kids?"

"Nope—just me."

"Well, I can tell you something about your mother, then," Sheila said briskly, after a pause. "I don't care whether it means anything to you or not, but I know how it is, because I know how we are, with Ma.

"My mother goes into Joe Carscaddon's room every night, and kisses him, after he's gone to bed, and tucks things in around his neck. And she'll say, 'Did you say your prayers Joe?' and 'do you love Ma, Joe?' as if he was two years old.

"Sure—" Ken began. He cleared his throat again. "Sure, they're all like that!" he said with bravado.

"Your mother," Sheila continued inexorably, "never goes into church but what she prays for you, that you'll be good and that you'll come home some day. You can bet on that! Every time she meets the neighbors she tells them how well you're doing. Every time she reads something you used to like, she think 'This is the way I did it for him!'

"I know, I tell you," Sheila said, warming, "no matter how she is! She wants us with her; she doesn't care about anything else as long as we're all home.

"It would be a swell thing" Ken said in a guarded, careful tone, "to go home to your mother with your star, and without a job! You told me yesterday." he said, "that I'd got to get a job and do this kind of thing. Well, maybe I never will. I was thinking last night that swen some of the old fellers, even when they keep out of trouble, haven't got anything to show for it. There's too many in the business and there's too many down and out that come to find you and make a touch," he said. "I've not got anything. If I come in my hand on five thousand dollars it is all I could clean up in a hurry."

"Five thousand dollars!" Sheila echoed.

"What the hell kind of a business could you go into with that?" he said irritably.

"That seems to me a lot of money. I wish my brother-in-law had it," Sheila added, as Ken did not speak "When my brother had twenty-seven last year," she went on, the doctor sat Lincoln took him to get into Switzerland that he might be well and hard in—you know, with his hands. But mother said that if never seen them boys so well as they looked had to work in—"

Sheila hesitated. An unexpected sentence was coming. "You know?—" she resumed, "there'd be much less illness. Joe said that if he had a few hundred to go over to Astoria, or somewhere like that, and go into the building business—"

"A carpenter, hey?"

"Well," Sheila retorted sharply, stung by his lazily scornful tone, "Our Lord was a carpenter, too."

"That's right, too," Ken admitted. "And my father was a smith, and a day-laborer. You could get to be a contractor—"

—CHAPTER 14

Sheila's thoughts reverted to a previous day. She felt tired, relaxed sleepily but there was another feeling, an odd sense of being happy, completely at ease. It was like Joe and this stranger. Quick, sinister-looking young man were speaking to each other's souls directly, without self-consciousness, in the soft warm gloom of the old kitchen. She might not have been able to express it, or even to analyze it. But she was pleasantly, dreamily conscious of it none the less.

"I can't get over your mother tak-ing care of that old dog," she said.

Again Ken made no comment. After a moment he asked, abruptly

"Know what Monk said?"

"Monk?"

"He's one of those fellers." Ken jerked his head toward the old parlor in which the men had been gathering constantly from the cellar, with logs as the crashing and the tramp of their feet had testified. "When I left here," Ken continued, in his lazy, indifferent tone, "I was hellfrozen and starved. I asked them what the chances of selling And Monk says 'Dinner's ready. But your overcoat tells me you're going to wash our hands!'"

A new sort of terror seized Sheila's heart and shook it like a rat. Her mouth filled with salt water, her hands grew cold.

Ken seemed to sense some confusion for although it was too dark to see her face he answered her laughs do his half-contemptuous, half-amused way.

"You don't have to be afraid. Your secret is going to hurt you. You'll be back with your mother tomorrow night, as safe as ever."

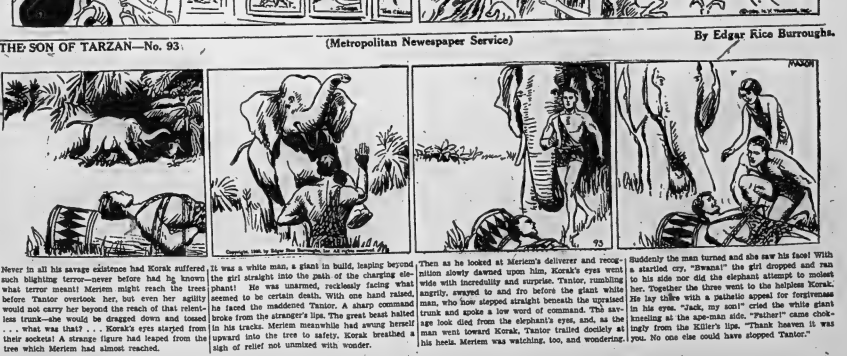
BRINGING UP FATHER



AUG 6 MR. AND MRS. — IT GOES BACK TO CAVE-MAN DAYS

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

THE SON OF TARZAN—No. 93 (Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

Never in all his savage existence had Korak suffered such blighting terror—never before had he known what terror meant! Meriem might reach the trees before Tantor overtook her, but even her agility would not carry her beyond the reach of that relentless trunk—she would be dragged down and tossed . . . what was that? . . . Korak's eyes started from their sockets! A strange figure had leaped from the tree which Meriem had almost reached.

It was a white man, a giant in build, leaping beyond the girl straight into the path of the charging elephant! He was unarmed, recklessly facing what seemed to be certain death. With one hand raised, he faced the maddened Tanior. A sharp command broke from the stranger's lips. The great beast halted in his tracks. Meriem meanwhile had swung herself upward into the tree to safety. Korak breathed a sigh of relief not unmixed with wonder.

Then as he looked at Meriem's deliverer and recognition slowly dawned upon him, Korak's eyes went wide with incredulity and surprise. Tanior, rumbling angrily, swayed to and fro before the giant white man, who now stepped straight beneath the upraised trunk and spoke a low word of command. The same age long deed from the elephant's eyes, and, as the man went toward Korak, Tantor trailed docilely at his heels. Meriem was watching, too, and wondering.

Suddenly the man turned and she saw his face! With a startled cry, "Bwana!" the girl dropped and ran to his side nor did the elephant attempt to molest her. Together the three went to the helpless Korak. He lay thilve with a pathetic appeal for forgiveness in his eyes. "Jack, my son!" cried the white giant kneeling at the ape-man side. "Father!" came chokingly from the Killer's lips. "Thank heaven it was you. No one else could have stopped Tantor."

DE VALERA IS ON ROAD TO LOSE LABOR

Leader of Party Asked For a Definite Statement of Policy

COSGRAVE WARNS

Charge President With Heading Straight For Revolution

Dublin, Aug. 6.—The Dail Friday approved President de Valera's emergency estimate of £6,900,000 to aid commerce and industry which has been dislocated by new tariff barriers between Great Britain and the Free State.

After a spirited debate, in which Opposition members declared the Free State is heading fast for revolution "accompanied by bloodshed and violence," the lower House divided 58 to 42 in favor of the government proposal and adjourned until October 19.

President de Valera rejected a suggestion advanced by Sir Thomas Inskip, the British Attorney-General in a speech at Streatrier, Scotland, yesterday, that the door still stands open for arbitration of the land annuities dispute by an imperial tribunal. "I should prefer independence" said Mr. de Valera, "to a partnership in which it I have advantages I have also responsibilities and charges."

It was perfectly impossible, he asserted, to indicate how the £6,000,000 would be spent, but even if it were possible it would be inadvisable. For the time being he admitted there was little prospect of establishing alternative markets, but this was worth while making strenuous efforts to do so.

Hon. J. Fitzgerald-Kenney, formerly Minister for Justice in the regime of Hon. William T. Cosgrave, made a bitter attack on the government's policy, predicting civil war as its inevitable result. "The country is heading fast for revolution, accompanied by bloodshed and violence," he declared.

The Free State is being side-tracked at Ottawa, while other Dominions are trying their utmost to capture the British market for their meat, bacon and butter, said Hon. Patrick McGilligan, another member of the late government.

The Labor Leader in the Dail, William Norton, also rose to join in the attack on the government, charging Mr. de Valera with lack of a definite policy in dealing with the emergency. Numerous Labor members have co-operated in keeping Mr. de Valera's party, the Fianna Fail, in power.

The former Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Patrick Hogan, called on the government for a clear statement of policy. "Let Mr. de Valera tell the Irish people straight whether he stands for secession from the British Commonwealth and then they will know where they are," he said.

In the Senate on Wednesday, one of Mr. de Valera's colleagues, Senator Joseph Connolly, stated that the government's policy is one of creating an Irish Republic, to include the six Northern counties of Ulster. And that, he declared, would remain the policy of President de Valera until it is achieved.

ASSASSINATION

day morning in police court he was remanded one week. No prisoners were sent to Toronto jail. Bail was refused.

Police had searched for Malone since the Ottawa demonstration. Yesterday morning when they forced an entrance into his apartment they found him asleep in bed. A search was made, but police are reported not to have found any weapons.

Malone is alleged to have threatened to end the life of Right Hon. J. H. Thomas. He is described as a Sinn Feiner who has been vacillating himself with the Communist movement.

Secret service men were Friday night working on information that Malone who went to Ottawa last Tuesday armed with a revolver. He is alleged to have made known his intention of killing the British delegate to the Imperial Conference.

Radicals' Meeting

When some 500 radicals, gathered from all parts of Canada, met in a meeting in Ottawa, police monitoring the meeting, and it was said by them that Malone is alleged to have been riding was pulling out of the crowd when the shooting was dropped.

Fourteen Communists were arrested by Ottawa police. Others who had been detained were released. Capital by motor, hitch-hiking and on freight trains. On Parliament Hill, R.C.M.P. and Toronto police searched the city for Malone. He failed to return to his apartment. Early yesterday morning he was known to be in his home, and the police made a surprise visit, without encountering any resistance.

Toronto police would not divulge any information concerning the arrest of Malone. Chief Constable W. Draper held a conference in his office and when seen by the press at the close of the meeting said he had nothing to give out.

It is not likely any further arrests will be made. Malone's movements have been checked by the R.C.M.P. since the days when the Sinn Feiner Brinnan belonged to the Sinn Fein army. His grievance against Mr. Thomas is said to have arisen over differences between Mr. Thomas and Malone's father. De Valera respecting recent negotiations between Britain and the Free State.

When Ottawa learned of the report that a revolver had been dropped from an automobile during the workers' parade, investigations were at once detailed to the case. It was learned from a reliable source that Mr. Thomas was marked to be killed.

A detachment of R.C.M.P. yesterday guarded the Imperial Conference delegates as they arrived by special train in Hamilton. Mr. Thomas was not in the party, and last reports were that he was still in Ottawa. A despatch from Hamilton last night said that the delegates, when they proceeded to Niagara Falls, were guarded by a detachment of police. They spent the night at Niagara. A strong police guard was placed around the area, where the formal ceremonies inaugurating the Welland Canal takes place this afternoon.

Malone was known to certain local police and had been watched during the Ottawa riots. He is said to have married in Toronto. He is also alleged to have been living on city relief.

GRIER STREET SIGNAL BEING CONSTRUCTED

City's Share of Cost is 30 Per Cent of Total Which is $700.00

BOARD'S ORDER

Maintenance to be Paid Equally by Railway And City

Work on the erection of the railway warning signal being installed at the Grier Street crossing of the Canadian National Railway was commenced early Monday morning by employees of the signal engineering men, who are now placing forms for the concrete foundations which will be poured Tuesday. The complete signal is expected to be in operation by Thursday, according to Mr. Harry Drew, supervisor of signals for the Belleville district, who is superintending the work.

On the erection of this wig-wag the work is being greatly facilitated, by the fact that the existing alarm bell and standard is already wired and can be arranged with little difficulty to the new signal which is being installed. Railway men consider this location one of the most dangerous in the city on account of the high bluffs, which border each side of the road at the crossing. It is believed, however, that only one accident has occurred recently at the location, and that was the one in which a small woman was buried to the side of the road without serious injury to horse or driver.

This signal is being placed by order of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board and due to the fact that 45 per cent. of the initial cost is borne by the grade crossing fund, the other 55 per cent. being equally divided between the C.N.R. and the city of Belleville, brings the cost of protection to a small amount. The signal will cost about $700 of which Belleville will be charged about $210. Maintenance cost will be borne equally by the railway and city and this will figure out at about $9 per month. There is a suggestion that the crossings at Geddes and St. Charles Streets should be similarly protected.

Rail Saw Operations at C. N. R. are Resumed 55 Men are Taken On

Work With Present Complement of Men Likely to Last Six Weeks—Saw Supplies Huge Territory With Trimmed Rails—Hope For Additional Orders.

After a period of idleness of nearly one year during which time all sorts of pessimistic rumors were circulated, the machines were shroud, the rail saw in the yards of the Canadian National Railways has once more resumed operations with a total complement of fifty five men who have been hired during the past few days. Mr. Jack Reid, superintendent of the locals of the department, are thought at present to keep this total number of men employed for at least six weeks, with additional possibility of more orders being received before the completion of work now detailed. Added to the work of actual cutting of rails by the saw, are the men who shoved up for work, fifty-five men were taken on. These men are nearly all old hands who had worked on the saw previously.

Employees and officials of the department are optimistic over the outlook which will probably loosen their way during the coming months, when the machines are shroud, the rail saw in the yards of the Canadian National Railways has once more resumed operations with a total complement of fifty five men who have been hired during the past few days. Mr. Jack Reid, superintendent of the locals of the department, are thought at present to keep this total number of men employed for at least six weeks, with additional possibility of more orders being received before the completion of work now detailed. Added to the work of actual cutting of rails by the saw, are the men who shoved up for work, fifty-five men were taken on. These men are nearly all old hands who had worked on the saw previously.

However, as they point out, the saw has been idle for so long that small orders which have been received for the cut and trimmed rails have been piling up to make a sizable order when put together. This machine supplies a large territory while trimmed rails which are used in replacement work of the laying of new track. Word that the saw was about to be started again brought large numbers of local men to the area during the past few days. Out of numbers of local men to the area who showed up for work, fifty-five men were taken on. These men are nearly all old hands who had worked on the saw previously.

PLANE FALLS GIRL KILLED

Flier's Clothes Aflame He Lifts Girl From Cockpit

Springhill, N.S., Aug. 8 (CP)—A coroner's jury today will investigate Nova Scotia's second fatal aeroplane crash, which resulted in the death of Miss Marjorie Horton, 18 year old daughter of Rupert Horton of this town.

Miss Horton was killed instantly last night when a Moth plane piloted by Tom Carr of Amherst, Ontario, fell at North Wallace, struck a cottage, burst into flames and crashed to the ground.

Carr was seriously injured in the crash, but he tore through the flames to lift the girl out of the cockpit and thus added to the burns to his injuries.

Clothing Afire

His cloth caught fire. Finding the girl dead in the left her on the grass, ran 300 yards to the beach and jumped into the water.

Mrs. Ruben Rubenstein rushed out of the cottage to save her sister, whom she believed to be in the house, and was burned about the face and hands when she tried to beat out the flames in the girl's clothing.

Her husband, Mr. A. Spindel, arrived in his car and treated her and Carr. Carr had a broken jaw, severe cuts and burns. He was reported as out of danger today.

Farmer Dies in Farmyard While Driving His Cows

SHERBROOKE, Que., August 8.—(By the Canadian Press)—Lightning struck two people dead in the Eastern Townships in a heavy week end electrical storm. Lightning bolts also struck a number of barns and farm buildings, setting them afire, while torrential rains flooded low field crops in several localities.

Mrs. Henri de Fontaine of St. Elie D'Orford died in the midst of a family gathering. She was sitting in her living room with Mr. and Mrs. David Trudeau and Mrs. Leech when a bolt struck a lightning flashed through the window and killed her instantly. Her two children were in the room, none of the others was injured.

Hermidas Gagnon, 55-year-old Cookshire Que., farmer, was killed in his own barnyard. He was driving his cows to shelter in the barn when a lightning bolt struck him dead.

Three tents of the Cambridge University party of physicists here to study the effects of lightning were blown down by high winds. A tool chest, weighing 600 pounds was upset by the gale.

Damages to field crops were not estimated, but were thought to be considerable in the farming districts of the townships.

LEADERS HELD CONFERENCE

Will Determine Ultimate Position of Adolf Hitler

Berlin, Aug. 8—Germany's most powerful political leaders began to gather in Berlin today for a series of conferences likely to determine the ultimate position of Adolf Hitler in the new government.

Chancellor Franz Von Papen returned yesterday from a brief holiday and Hitler himself, General Kurt Von Schleicher, Minister of Defence, Former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist leader, are due to arrive in the capital by the day's end.

President Paul Von Hindenburg will return from his estate on the Neudeck on the Constitution Day, August 11.

The National Socialists under Hitler today seemed more ready than ever to enter the government even though President Von Hindenburg insists that the Cabinet must be dominated by parties.

Dr. Bruening's Centrists, who heretofore have been opposed to participation in the government by the Nazis, seemingly are inclined to insist that Hitler's party must show, by its entry into the Cabinet, how many of its campaign promises it can fulfill.

Before the week is over Germany is likely to know how the new government will look and how the forces will line up in the Reichstag. The early morning hours today brought additional disorders, principally in Berlin, Breslau, but there were no serious injuries.

Hand grenades were thrown and there were street fights in half a dozen cities. Violence over the week end resulted in one death and numerous injuries.

LIGHTNING BRAKES CAR WITHIN YARD

"I was going about 30 miles an hour when my car was struck by lightning," Anderson said, "the engine stopped as though pole-axed and the car came to a standstill in less than a yard."

Meyersburg and Campbellford District Worked Up Over Find of Bones in Unused Gravel-Pit at Meyersburg

Conjecture Rife as to Identity of Remains of Bodies Discovered by Girl on Saturday Near Township Road off Highway

POLICE EXCAVATE IN GRAVEL PIT

Bones in Fair State of Preservation And Partially Uncovered When Found by Berry Pickers— No Burial in Pit is Known by Natives

(By Ontario Intelligencer Staff Reporter.)

Campbellford, Aug. 8.—An old gravel pit one mile from Meyersburg, four miles south of this place has produced a mystery which the provincial police are endeavoring to unravel with the finding of the skull and arm bones and part of the vertebrae of a human adult and the rib bones of a child or bones of two years of age early Saturday. The bones are now in this safe in the care of the provincial police and this afternoon Provincial Constable MacBrien of Brighton and Provincial Constable William Carey of Colborne are to examine the gravel pit where the bones were discovered two days ago.

Girl Seen Head

Dorothy Midgley aged eleven years and William Pierce left Meyersburg Saturday morning to pick berries and went down the road into a sandpit. The girl told the Ontario Intelligencer reporter today how she saw a skull on the road partly covered. She kicked it and it separated. The head was taken from home and was covered around. Dorothy walked over to the bones and was convinced that it was a skeleton. Pierce first thought the head was the skull of a calf. The two picked up the head and at once got in touch with Dr. F. F. Leslie, coroner of Campbellford and Chief O. O. Bromley of Campbellford. The provincial police were notified. The bones were taken to Campbellford and rest in an undertaking parlor here.

Up to an early hour this afternoon no official search of the sandpit had been made to see whether there were any more bones and clothing. There is no flesh on the bones. The teeth are well preserved though in places the enamel is knocked off. The search will proceed late today.

Age of Bones

Dr. Frederick, of Campbellford, has examined the bones and expresses the opinion that they have not been in the sand for more than two years, though some differ, and professional men think they may have been there for many years.

Chief Bromley has interviewed residents of Meyersburg and from what he can gather no one has any knowledge of any burial there within half a century.

Three years ago three loads of gravel were taken out of the pit but the bones were not there then or at least were not noticed if they were there.

District Aged with Views

The place where they were found was just off the township road running off the main highway from Brighton to Campbellford.

People around Meyersburg look at the bones in the hope of being able to identify something about them without result.

The case is agog over the find but, their opinions do not seem to have basis in fact.

Dr. Louis has examined the ribbones which he is certain are those of a child of four or five years.

Whether the bones of the adult are those of a man or woman does not appear to have been determined.

PROBE WATERS OF BAY FOR MISSING TRUCK

Preparations are under way for the raising and salvaging of the dump truck which crashed through the safety gates on the Bay bridge Saturday, and plunged into 30 feet of water. The truck was driven by Mr. R. Wannamaker of this city and owned by Everett Reid & Son of Bellville, early Monday afternoon Mr. Black accompanied by two assistants arrived at the bay bridge and with the use of a row boat used one pole to try and locate exactly where the truck is now lying in the south channel. After locating the truck it plans to be loaded with clay loam. Mr. Black will determine exactly what methods should be used in salvaging the truck. It is not known as yet whether tire truck will be pulled ashore or hoisted by the use of a derrick.

KILLED INSTANTLY WHEN STRUCK BY PROP

Montreal, Aug. 8—Victim of the most gruesome tragedy in this district within sight days, a noted Montreal sportsman, Thomas H. Brown, was buried here today.

Mr. Brown was instantly killed when struck on the head by a seaplane propeller near his summer cottage at Lac Ouareau on Saturday afternoon. Not understanding a mechanic's shouted warning to keep away, he stepped on the float of the machine before the pilot had given a final whirl to his engine to drain the carburetor. The pilot, F. F. Ayres, was exonerated of any blame.

A week previously a plane crashed into the Jesus River at St. Rose, carrying its owner-pilot, Arthur Darling, and two mechanics to their deaths.

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 8—Six men were burned to death when fire broke out in the Maywood Hotel Sunday.

SAWN LUMBER MART SOUGHT

Canada Seeks Vast Trade With Mother Country

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—Revival of the market for Canadian sawn lumber in the United Kingdom continued to loom large in Imperial Conference discussions. Thousands of men would be put to work throughout this country by the regaining of this large market, which has been lost to Soviet Russia through the "dumping" products of these lands.

To meet the system of "dumping" lumber into the Mother country by the Soviet Union, proposals have been put forward resulting from conferences with British importers. An increase in the British preference from 10 to 20 or 25 per cent. has been agreed upon between Canada and the United Kingdom and control of imports from Russia.

WILD UPTURN IN STOCKS ON N. Y. MARKET

Motors Forge Ahead in Most Impressive Manner

MOTORS TURN UP

Early Losses Soon Overcome in Heavy Trading

Trading proceeded in heavy volume, and numerous advances of $1 to $5 over Saturday's final prices were quickly registered as early and boosting the general level of shares to the highest since March. Losses of $2 to $3 in the first hour were quickly regained.

Motors Impressive

Motors forged ahead in the most impressive manner of months. General Motors rising $2 to above a price of $14. Chrysler advanced $1.50 to $12. Mash rose $1 to $15. Rails and farm implements were also in the lead. Santa Fe rose more than $5 to price of $46. Deere Canada rallied as early loss of more than $3 to advance $3 to $66. Moore regained a loss of nearly $2 to advance $4 to above $66. American Can rose more than $3 to well above $50. American Telephone & Telegraph rose about $2 to above $109. U. S. Steel closed $43 for a gain of about $2.

Sales Soar

It was the first emphatic upturn in the automobile shares since early in the year. While automobile production is being curtailed during August, Detroit advices to Wall Street indicated that executives were hopeful of a good pick-up in sales during the autumn. If upturns in the market may be taken as evidence of a general restoration of confidence.

The farm implement and the railroad shares were again bid up on the theory that good crops, and the measures being taken to bolster commodity prices, should improve the general agricultural situation.

The stock exchange's trading machinery was again overwhelmed, and for an hour or two minutes behind actual transactions on the floor.

Present World Order Endangered Unless Regime of Peace Established

OXFORD, Eng. Aug. 8.— Eminent lawyers from all parts of the world listened today to a warning of danger to the present world order unless a regime of peace is definitely established.

Lord Blanesborough, president of the International Law Association sounded the warning in a speech before a conference of the association.

"Blood will be upon our own heads" said he if we accept the complacent conclusion that world order as we know it will still go on unchecked or perhaps a little modified by the gradual reality of elimination the recurrence of war is dismissed as an empty dream.

Unless a new world order for peace is definitely established it is too much to say that the present world order may pass into the limbo of the past?

"World Peace" he declared, "is the only hope for the survival of civilization."

LADEN TRUCK PLUNGES TO BAY BOTTOM

Carries Load of Earth Through Barrier And Plunges Into Channel

DRIVER JUMPS

Russell Wannamaker Sustains Severe Head Injuries

Jumping from the loaded truck which he was driving Russell Wannamaker, 46½ Bridge St. E narrowly escaped death by drowning when his dump truck crashed through the safety gate at the south entrance to the bay bridge and plunged into 30 feet of water at noon on Saturday.

The swing span of the bay bridge had been opened to allow a large boat to pass through the north channel when the truck driven by Mr. Wannamaker approached from the south. The safety gate had been lowered and precautions against oncoming traffic had been taken. Wannamaker driving a dump truck from the Rossmore side of the bay when he approached the open swing. Just why Wannamaker did not stop his truck when approaching the stop sign cannot be understood as it is 120 feet from the safety gate to the channel. As soon as the driver saw that he could not stop the truck he jumped, thus saving his life. Wannamaker sustained severe bruises and lacerations and was attended to by Dr. Gibson of this city. After receiving medical attention the injured man was removed to the Belleville General Hospital for further medical attentions.

The truck, after crashing through the safety gate and plunging into the west water, sank to the bottom whence it will have to be pulled ashore. The only logical means by which to salvage the truck is by a derrick according to some, on the bottom of the bay from its settling place eastward and then pulling it ashore. Traffic Officer Frink was notified of the accident and is investigating the accident reported to headquarters. The truck was the property of Mr. E. Black of Highland Ave. The truck will most likely be retrieved by Monday.

SCOTS LIFE IN MIRTH AND SONG

The Scottish Musical Comedy Company at the Chautauqua on Saturday evening presented an episode of Scots lowland life in "The Cotter's Saturday Night." Here a story of the Saturday night of the ploughman and his family and friends was the thread on which were strung the pearls of music which have made Scotland famous. The company was remarkably fortunate in the choice of actors and actresses to fill the parts, for they possessed physical fitness for the roles as well as emotional and intellectual appreciation of the parts. Their singing voices in solo and in concert and their speaking voices were excellent. The play itself deserves merit for its wholesomeness and its wealth of emotional expression in songs. Burns songs were among the majority sung.

From the opening solo of "John Anderson, My Joe" to the final scene where the Scriptures were read and the company broke up. Music of the highest quality, fancy and imagination of the richest type, laughter and fun and a stern appreciation of reality of the quiles of life all found expression here.

TRUCK SIDESWIPED BY TOWED TRUCK

Melville Hall, 170 Windermere Rd., Toronto reported to the local police early Monday morning that his truck had been side swiped and forced into the ditch just west of Belleville on Highway No. 2 about dawn Monday morning.

Mr. Hall informed police, that while driving around a slight curve, some three or four miles west of Belleville, he had been momentarily blinded by the lights of an approaching motor vehicle during a slight fog. Mr. Hall was driving a Hoar transport truck east at the time of the accident. After being temporarily blinded Mr. Hall claims, that he saw a large twin pass him, going westward, this large truck was towing another truck behind it. Mr. Hall says that the first truck cleared his truck but the truck which was being towed, side swiped his truck with its left rear wheel, breaking his left front wheel and forcing his truck into the ditch damaging it considerably. The Hoar truck was forced into ditch where the damages were reported to be a twisted chasis, twisted rear axle and the rack broken.

Mr. Hall could not inform the officer toward what kind of a truck it was but he knew that what kind of a truck was being towed.

The police were also informed and notified to be on the look-out for a truck answering to the description of the hit and run driver. The only way of indentification was the fact that one truck was towing the other.

His View on Local Fish Stories Give Fish a Chance, Says Guide

Average Bass Caught Here Weighs One to Two Pounds

FEWER TOURISTS

Mr. Joe Goyer, licensed professional guide, who knows every inch of the bay, said surrounding waters, has this much to say about fishing: "I've heard a lot of talk about these four and five pound bass that local fishermen seem to be able to haul in every time they drop a line out of the boat, but it all the years I've been knocking around the odd corner of the Bay of Quinte, and every three years a boat can go, I can count on the fingers of one hand the number of black bass over five pounds that I've been able to catch. Most of these big bass you hear about are weighed before they get them out of the water."

Often in odd moments of leisure Joe take a few fest of No. 10, cotton, open hook and pull a or two of the slenderest pole imaginable, and goes off by himself to the back waters where he can get away from everybody else, and manages to knock off some real fishing.

"Anybody", says Joe, "can haul a bass in if he has a strong enough pole and line, but what's the fun in that?" There's only one way to fish, according to the veteran guide, and that is to let the bass take the bait without trying for him. Then when he thinks he has a chance. They're the gamest fish in the water, and Joe declares, they should be treated with more respect than they are usually accorded by inexperienced fishermen who jig and tussle to land them. Such ceremony ruins them, and they are hooked. "Let the bass do the fighting after he's hooked." Give him a chance declares Joe and see if you don't have more fun than just hauling them in by brute strength.

Bass are plentiful in the bay this year, reports the guide, but tourists are scarce. Most of them are reported to be doing their fishing in the inland lakes of the northland, however, a good many parties have been arranged down the bay and excellent catches have been made. Live bait is preferred but artificial angle worms are also rendering good service. Average weight of bass caught runs between one and two pounds.

WOMAN BITTEN BY WEASEL CHOKES IT

When traps fail use other means, is the slogan of a Kent one resident of Ivanhoe.

For weeks Mrs. W. H. Rolling had been harassed by the depredations of some bloodthirsty animal which defied snares set for its capture, and time after time raided the chicken house on her farm to emerge from a cloud of flying feathers, leaving a trail of murdered chickens and ducks behind it. Careful watch of the premises did no good, the remaining fowl still squawked at odd intervals and died suddenly. Saturday morning, however, while the last one of a previous flock of ducks ate from a pan in the yard, Mrs. Rolling spied a large weasel creeping up on it. So intent was the stalk that the animal failed to observe the nemesis behind it until it was seized by the back of the neck in her hands. During the frenzy which followed Mrs. Rollins was bitten in the hand by the wriggling weasel, but she hung on until it had kicked its last in her hands. Plans for restocking the poultry yard are going ahead.

Chairman of Distillers Company Thinks Taxation Unjust

Explanation of the tax difference given by Canada to foreign liquors will be sought by British delegates at the Imperial Conference at Ottawa according to William H. Ross, chairman of the Distillers Company, any Limited of Great Britain. In an address at the 50th annual general meeting of the company, held in Edinburgh recently, Mr. Ross said:

"It is fervently hoped that the result of this Conference will bring many benefits to the Empire in increased trade and better understanding between the various units. One of the matters closely interested in many ways and will hope to see some of the present anomalies removed. For example, in the case of Canada we will hope that delegates will receive some fresh explanation to account for the preference given to Jamaica rum and French brandy over Scotch whisky and why the Sales Tax presently in force in Canada against imports of Scotch whisky should be based upon the c.i.f. price of the goods imported plus not only the import duty but also including the value of the duty which would have been paid upon these goods in the Mother Country. This seems to us to be an unjust manner of such a tax of this nature and should open the eyes of the Mother Country to the danger of fixing duties in this country at such a high standard as exists with the Spirit Duty today."

Commenting on Mr. Ross's speech a Canadian official said today that well known brands of Scotch whisky, for which the British distiller receives 90c a bottle, are retailed in the Province of Ontario controlled at $4.25 or more, according to the purchase. The difference between what the distiller gets and the consumer pays is made up almost entirely of Dominion Government taxation and Provincial Commission profits.

DOUKBOS WILL NOT MIGRATE

Verigin Negatives Plan From His Prison Cell

Prince Albert, Sask., Aug. 8 (CP) —Canadian Doukhobors will not migrate to Mexico, it was stated definitely here yesterday. Peter Verigin, leader of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, as the Doukhobor sect is officially known, has negatived the proposal from his jail cell here. Verigin is serving an 18 months sentence following conviction on a charge of perjury.

This information was made public by Peter G. Makaroff, of Saskatoon, solicitor for the Doukhobor chieftain; and was confirmed by J. F. Hinkin, vice-president of the Doukhobor organization.

The wholesale migration of Canadian Doukhobors to Mexico has been suggested recently following dissatisfaction in the Doukhobor ranks with the conviction of Verigin, and the wholesale sentences imposed in British Columbia on members of the "nudist" branch of Freedom sect for parading in the nude. M. M. Hackney, Immigration Colonization Agent, from St. Paul, Minn., visited here recently and was reported arranging for the purchase of a tract of land in Mexico on which the Doukhobors could settle in the hope of securing greater freedom from governmental interference than they enjoy in Canada.

ATTEMPT MADE TO TAKE TRUCK

Unknown Men Drive Truck Through Garage Doors Into Ditch

Forcing their way into the garages of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, South Church Street, two unidentified young men started the company's large truck and drove it through the closed doors, smashing them to bits, and crashing into the ditch early Sunday morning.

Constable Lasard answered a call to South Church at 9.30 a.m. Sunday evening where he found the truck in a deep ditch with the motor still running. After shutting the engine off the officer was informed by citizens living nearby that two young men had been seen running away from the truck shortly after it was driven into the ditch. He investigated the case and found where the men had broken into the garage before driving the truck through the closed doors.

The local police are investigating.

WINDOW-SMASHING CONTINUES AT BERLIN

In the Berlin district Paul Schoenberg a man wanted by police barricaded himself in his home and fired wildly wounding two women passers-by. Finally he shot his wife and himself when the police were about to use tear-gas.

Seven civilians and three policemen were wounded by bullets in an affray following the festival at Froendenberg, Westphalia.

LUMBER YARD HEAP OF BLACKENED DEBRIS

Ironmine, Ont., Aug. 8 (CP) — The Flesherton Lumber Company's yard today was a heap of blackened debris, as a result of a spectacular fire which broke out Saturday night destroying the 1,000,000 feet of lumber. Officials of the company estimated the damages to be $150,000.

The burning gum of the past few days had evidently proved to be some tinderp, and it is believed a spark, coming from a rail machinery was the means of igniting the pile, which soon became a roaring inferno.

TRADE PROVES ENCOURAGING

Indices Show Retail Sales Increase During June

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Business shows signs of improvement in Canada instead of slumping down in usual mid-summer period of dullness, according to a statement issued last night by the Department of Trade and Commerce.

The statement continues: "A number of important indices of activities are shown in government reports for June, registered increases instead of decreases this summer to date.

"For the first time in four years retail sales in Canada registered an increase in June over May.

"Wholesale prices for the first time since 1929 failed to show a reduction from June to July.

"Bank debits increased by 10 per cent. from May to June after seasonal adjustment, as compared with a seasonal decrease of 10.3 per cent in the corresponding periods of 1931 and 1930 respectively.

"Construction contracts awarded during July showed a slight increase over June, contrary to the usual mid-summer decline of former years.

"Employment in manufacturing industries showed a reported decrease of only 3.1% from June to July this year, as compared to decreases of 11.304 and 11.284 in the corresponding period of 1931 and 1930.

"Shipments of Canadian wheat in the four weeks ended July 29 totalled 14,631,242 bushels, as compared with 8,814,089 in the corresponding period last year. Shipments via Canadian ports in the four weeks this year totalled 13,025,943 bushels, or 89 per cent of the total, while last year only 6,248,089 bushels, or 70 per cent. passed through Canadian ports.

"Imports of crude rubber increased from 3,171,000 lbs. in May to 6,340,000 lbs. in June, as compared to a decrease from 6,135,000 lbs. to 4,731,000 lbs. in the corresponding months last year.

"Exports of Canadian planks and boards increased from 62,900,000 feet in May to 110,600,000 feet in June, as compared with an increase from 80,600,000 feet to 86,800,000 feet in the corresponding months last year.

"Exports of Canadian canned salmon increased from 34,300 cases in May to 80,580 cases in June, as compared with a decrease from 50,890 cases to 47,400 cases in the corresponding period last year.

"Exports of Canadian cattle to the British markets this year to the end of July totalled 13,399 head, an increase of 1,750 head over the corresponding period last year.

COTTER'S SATURDAY NIGHT

The hundreds who were attracted to the Saturday evening performance of the Chautauqua when a Scottish night was given under the famous Burns' title "Cotter's Saturday Night" were given more than an evening's entertainment. They drank deeply of Scottish character and religion, they learned something of the sterling qualities which dominate and lead one of the races which has given the world philosophers, and poets of highest rank, clergymen and people, God-fearing, and yet a canny folk.

To say nothing which can produce so many lyrics dealing with the highest emotions is beyond all measure blessed. Scotland is particularly fitted for such honors as her songs fit so well into a production as that which the Chautauqua gave. Burns was the backbone of the piece as his beautifully lovely lyrics were sung in the Scots dialect, and interpreted by men and women who have deep sympathy with Scotland's heritage. The songs are vital, touching down to the roots of the rugged race.

Burns is a well of the purest water the world has ever tasted. He influences Scotland of his day and of this day and the world outside. Burns owes of course, much to the sturdy forefathers and the noble mannered grey, the rugged cottagers who lived on parritch and cheese. But he was one of them, their official singer. Burns could not have given great ideas had forbears and parents had been great. No water rises higher than its source.

STREET CORNER ATHEISM

Mayor Stewart of Toronto has voiced his disapproval of the preaching of atheism on the streets of that city, especially when the time is Sunday, and so wound the sensibilities of God-fearing citizens of any creed. He says, "I do feel strongly that these who believe in and fear God should not be liable to have their sensibilities offended and their beliefs outraged or sneered at by persons denouncing such a belief and attempting to create such a disbelief in the existence of a Supreme Being. Every one has a right to his own beliefs, even the atheists, I suppose, without listening to hear their conceptions belittled and besmirched in excessive language." A report from Deputy City Solicitor Bruce Angus, secured by the mayor stated that speakers were not molested on the streets unless interrupting traffic. According to the report, such orators could be prosecuted for blasphemous libel, but not where the "decencies of controversy were observed. In such cases, even the blasphemous of religion might be attacked without the speaker or publisher being guilty of blasphemous libel. It should be noted however that blasphemous libel cannot be pleaded against on a basis of truth of justification. It has also been held punishable or blasphemous libel to assail or ridicule in an indirect or malicious spirit the methods of Christianity or of the Scriptures, in language calculated and intended to shock the feelings and outrage the beliefs of mankind."

That men should have a right to their opinions and to voice them openly and with the proper place is generally accepted. But so many radicals in thought particularly of that kind who frequent our city street corners accompanied by their statement of belief and their attempted refutal of beliefs of the people by vicious and indecent language which acts as a boomerang also, "calculated and intended to shock the feelings and outrage the beliefs of mankind."

Beliefers should not be subjected to atheists whose language is violent. If an atheist wishes to discuss his lack of faith he should preserve something of the decorum of the minister in the pulpit. He should remember that what does not appear blasphemy to him is blasphemy and intended as blasphemy to those who hear him. Of course there are some sincere sceptics who coolly and logically uphold their principles. No one questions that they should be prevented from expression of their opinions when conveyed in decent language and in the quest of truth, even though they may be wrong.

The main complaint is the spirit in which the attack on belief is embroidered. With an open mind there is a deliberate attack on faith, not so much because it is a faith but because faith is the chief obstacle to the things they want and would like to come to pass away, such as goodwill, the right of private ownership, and so on. This blatant atheism is in most cases the hollow and insincere reverberation of a shallow, selfish nature, which hates religion because of the goodness it encourages among men. Selfish grasping men who deny the right of private ownership of property should not be listened to. Their so-called atheism is but a smokescreen for their nefarious plots.

CANADIANS who listened in on the broadcast Saturday afternoon of the formal opening ceremonies in connection with the new Welland Canal felt a thrill of pride in this great achievement, pride in the fact that they were Canadians and pride in the fact that the credit of this one of Canada's greatest achievements. The occasion was made all the more important and interesting from the fact that there were present at the opening ceremonies representatives of every part of the Empire, several of whom made brief but pointed speeches expressing congratulations and wonder at Canada's enterprise and progressiveness. Nineteen years in the building at a cost of $130,000,000 Canada now completes the first great link in the great waterways project which will make navigation possible for ocean-going ships from the sea to the head of the great lakes. It was fitting that the world's largest grain carrier, S.S. Lemoyne, owned by the Canadian Steamship Lines, world's largest inland water transportation company, should be the first craft to pass through the completed canal after the formal opening ceremonies when the lock gates were opened by the chief representative of Great Britain in Canada His Excellency the Earl of Bessborough, Governor General of Canada. Worthy of note also is the fact that the S.S. Lemoyne carried the world's largest cargo of grain, 600,000 bushels, through the world's longest lock, using the world's highest canal gate. The total length of the ship canal is twenty-five miles and its twenty-five feet. There are eight lift locks including the guard lock, the width of the locks being eight feet, and the time required to fill a lock is eight minutes.

E. F. "DADDY ALLEN," who devotes his life to the care and cure of crippled children, states that fifty per cent of the crippled children would not be crippled if they had been given early treatment or had proper precautions been taken. It is strange that the government makes no provision for the treatment of crippled children whose parents are unable to pay for the specialist treatment required to restore the children to health and happiness. The work of the Rotary Club over the years has made the cause of the crippled child their own and millions of dollars are being spent on hospitals for crippled children. The Rotary Club is doing a grand work and taken many a child from crutches and misery to enjoy the full measure of physical health and happiness. Until the state takes this matter in hand the fate of many crippled children must depend upon private philanthropy. Every body should give something to the crippled children cause.

FUNCTIONAL DISORDERS OF HEART LEGION

Difference Between Functional And Organic Trouble

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

LOUIS E. BISCH

The number of persons suffering from functional disorders of the heart is legion. Some of these are aware that everything is not as it should be with this most important organ of the body; others, however, are suspicious of the affliction. still others are suspicious and really afraid to consult a doctor and find out what really is wrong.

It is an undeniable fact that when the heart functions poorly the sufferer tends to become alarmed more readily than when any other organ is functioning badly. This is partly, because we all seem to realize the presence of the heart as it were, because it beats and we can "feel" it, while we cannot the liver, sic, we do not experience this same sort of "awareness." Indeed, heart disorders not only alarm individuals they even produce a certain chronic state of depression.

I do not wish to belittle the importance of a normal heart but I do wish to emphasize that functional troubles that befall it in contrast to the organic.

When structural changes have taken place either in the heart muscle itself, in the blood vessels, in the outside capsule covering, in the valves, during nutrition to the heart, the case may be a bad one.

But even in organic heart disease the patient need not be alarmed. For he must believe that he may drop dead any minute is a most unfortunate belief. It is necessary that he be told exactly what is going on in his heart and the way it works differently from normal in his particular case. With such knowledge the patient then knows why he may or may not do this or that, why this exhilaration ordered the regime he has.

Now then, what are functional heart disorders there are a variety of conditions. Some of this heart's action but which are not connected or which cause only changes in the heart itself or its appendages the cause coming from other sources.

Among such functional upsets palpitation is the most bothersome.

Palpitation is, in reality, a consciousness of the heart beat, for in perfect health the heart action is not drawn to it. The beat may be irregular, a sense of "fluttering" may be present, or the action accompanied by what seems to be a skipping of a beat. All of these are often, but always it is rather rapid and very deep as if the heart were to resound in the ears.

Rapid heart beat itself, is known as tachycardia. This may be more or less constant or it may come on in fits. There is also "paroxysmal tachycardia". The heart may run to as many as 250 beats to the minute. Slow heart beat is called bradycardia and is the cause of the "heart block", also of functional origin.

Then there are several other possible functional disorders including irregularity—"arrhythmia"—of one kind or another. Even the family history of heart disease is usually organic and associated with valvular trouble or of a functional character.

The nervous system undoubtedly plays the most important role in most heart upsets of functional origin. Indigestion, whether from coffee or tobacco, irregular living, lack of sleep, or other causes are all possible factors.

But these are all of them trouble scare you. Find out what is wrong, for a diagnosis. Maybe the case is functional only.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

Holding a piece of ice in the mouth often helps hiccups. Forcibly holding the breath sometimes be efficacious. If hiccoughs persists and all remedies fail it is best to consult a doctor because hiccoughs can become serious.

PAY YOUR BILLS

In a time of readjustment such as the world is going through at present, not only in Canada, it is a serious factor. A dollar owed here and a dollar owed there may not total very much, individually, but collectively a dollar will add up to a quite respectable sum. Every merchant or man in business has accounts to collect. Every man has some money to the firm from which he purchases his requirements. If he cannot collect his bills he cannot pay the money he owes, and the vicious circle strangles trade.

There must be credit for the successful conduct of business, but credit must be kept sound, and the only way it can be kept sound is to have everyone pay the debts when they become due. Prosperity is vox in some rare cases leniency is necessary, but in most cases are few.—Kincardine Review Reporter.

Other Papers' Opinions

DIDN'T PROFIT MUCH

Amelia Earhart, whose picture was published on the front page of last month's issue of Liberty, after receiving the Distinguished Flying Cross from President Hoover, for being the first of the United States, has something to add to the general discussion of "publicity." Her pictures in the newspapers have brought her many letters from people women especially should take heed—to the effect that they would also has a message about the financial end of trans-Atlantic flying.

"The costs and rewards of flying the ocean," she said in visit to Liberty's offices, "are entirely unaccurate rumor." Miss Earhart continued, "I received, can Magazine, "I doubt whether the publicity netted me $1,000, and one, has ever brought the personal any net profit."

In my own case, in my first flight, I contributed nothing. I was invited to go as a passenger recompense. I said that I did not, however, accept money from the man from a newspaper, which I turned down because of it, to the benefit ers of the flight.

Undoubtedly, I received certain benefits. I received, and accepted, certain offers for jobs which other may have considered worth while. way. I was led into fields and activities which I had not first heard of the project, had never crossed my mind. Some of these considerable, very nice, but never part of my plan."—London Post.

READ THE PAPERS

Judge Wearing, of London, has discovered in his experience that newspapers are not only purveyors of news, but they are educational institutions as well. Addressing a number of new citizens the other day, the London judge advised them to read the newspapers, for he considered perfect training for citizenship. He said: "People who read the papers are always well-balanced. In them you can find the best of the citizens."

Tributes such as these are not despised. They indicate not only the great power which is wielded by the press in this country, but also the benefit of their influence in the communities in which they are published.—Peterboro Review.

Window Signs

In one of my earlier articles, I mentioned the various types of window signs and recommended the use of small panel signs, to be used in various locations in the floor of the window. Small panel signs are signs which usually carry your name and perhaps a phrase, either cut out, embossed, or painted, which are used in your window as part of your display.

I find this type of sign being used most effectively and therefore am giving further details regarding it. There are several different types of these signs from which you may select according to your taste and inexpensive dollar.

A most effective sign for an exclusive store is by the use of individual block letters cut from blocks of wood about two by four inches, or even larger if the window is big. If the letters are to be about two inches thick and made flat on the bottom they will stand by themselves. A careful placing of these letters in the window will be an asset in attracting attention.

If the letters will fit into a space not more than 30" long they can be mounted on a piece of cardboard and will make it easier to move when the window is being changed. Have the base made in a wedge shape — a little heavier at the front than at the back. This will throw the light from window lights onto the face of the letters.

A neat little name plate can be made in the form of an electric sign lighted from the back. Cardboard and illuminated with bulb type is very effective after the main lights of the window have been turned off, a flashy plug in the window attracts the eye at night. The only difficulty with this type of sign is in making it effective for both day and night use, a plan of transparency is effective at night, but usually is not clear when the sun is shining in the window. Some stores use a small panel of bronze with raised letters.

A very serviceable sign can be made by having the name engraved on a brass plate which is then chromium plated. The letters are then mounted on a background of black velvet. This type of sign is quite shining, and the initial cost should be around ten dollars.

A number of stores are using a panel with a white or a red face. There are a number of varieties. Some have the name written in a scroll and have the sign cut from a single piece of thin wood. The supports are bent wire loops which are then individually painted a dull black and mounted on a panel background. Some cover these letters with a metallic sign which is mounted on a panel of red felt. Where a red background is usually varnished. This is not an expensive type of sign, and can often be used for other window display signs besides the name, letters which are hard to read. Avoid fancy borders. Make them simple and clear.

The painted panel sign is also a popular type of sign, and will serve the purposes for many merchants. There are various types. Some run a panel across the full length of the window with large letters. I prefer a smaller sign which is mounted in the floor of the window and is painted. It is better if the block is triangular in shape on the end. This will give a flat bottom to the sign to enable it to stand alone in the window without any support, and also give a proper slant to the face of the panel, so that standing in front of the window will not cause glare.

Some signs have a small support fastened to each end of a wooden panel, but there is the danger of this piece being broken off. Others have a support fastened to the back which does not make as steady a sign as the solid base mentioned above.

If you are using a painted sign, be careful in your choice of color schemes. Choose colors that will suit the types of goods you can display. Choose colors that will stand out at night. Choose colors that will withstand the sun. Have your signs frequently repainted. I had color schemes for your display.

It is difficult to specify any particular sizes for window name signs, as it depends largely on the length of the name to be shown. Letters used only be large enough to be clearly read from the front of the store or from passing cars on your side of the street. Your large sign on the outside identifies your store from a distance.

Generally speaking I would say that a window name sign should not be over 4½ inches in height, or more than 18 inches long.

One of the most effective of all the above types of window signs is the flexibility with which they can be made part of the display. They can be placed in any position in the window. They can be put in the front of a display, or they can be placed in the centre of a display of small articles. They show up well when put on an angle at one side of the window. If the object display is a large one such as a stove or a refrigerator, the sign can be placed immediately below, or at one corner of piece displayed. In this way your name is automatically associated with the object being displayed.

NEXT WEEK—COLOR IN YOUR WINDOWS

Canadians Win But One Event In Record Smashing Olympiad Although They Tied for Fourth

Wilson and Edwards Went Well in 400, 800 and 1500 Metres

MISS DAVIES THIRD

Relay Teams Run Well But U. S. Captures Both Events

(By Elmy Dolinger, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Los Angeles, Aug. 8— Canada counted her Olympic track spoils today, extremely thankful a young man from Vancouver jumped higher than he ever did before in his life at these games.

Duncan McNaughton's high jump triumph scored on the opening day of the Olympiad track and field programme stood as lone Canadian victory as was of United States record smashing assault, that carried many to new heights it.

This one win stands beside the victories scored in international games in 1928, when Percy Williams won both 100 and 200 metre championships and Ethel Catherwood of Saskatoon was victor in women's high jump.

Miss Davies Third

Williams and two assistants were relegates to retain speed supremacy for Canada, former double champion dropping both titles to Eddie Tolan, Detroit negro flash, while Miss Eva Dawes of Toronto, tried to keep the women's high jump championship in Canada, but had only to find two American girls who leaped at least a foot better than her pair. Jean Shiley of United States was first, Miss Dawes was third.

America climaxed its annexation of Canadian holdings by beating Dominions relay team in women's 400 metre race, as it had on Monday yesterday.

Showing in middle distance events was considerably better than in 1928. Between them Alex Wilson and Edwards in great finish four went down to defeat, all finishing others, who shattered them by a super margins. Wilson was second in 800 metres and Miss Edwards took third place in 400 and third in 1500.

Tom Hampson of England had to run 800 final in 1:49 4-5 to beat Wilson and Edwards in great finish of day race in games and Bill Carr of United States stepped along at 4:48 pace with Ben Eastman a' his heels to keep Wilson from winning the 400.

Relay Teams Senior

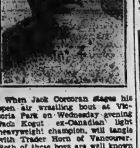
Canadian relay teams all were beaten, but showed class in starting, finishing in fourth place and 1600 metre team third, United States won both.

Hilda Strike won points by taking second in women's 100 metre final to Stella Walsh, Polish American Canadian point who was by Alda Wilson of Toronto, who came in sixth in the 80 metre hurdles.

But in the long string of record breaking performances the Canadians were left out of running in several events. The field men with the exception of McNaughton failed.

Broke Marathon Record

Juan Carlos Zabala, courageous Argentinian broke the Olympic record limit in the marathon, getting ahead of a strong field in which Cliff Bastien, Ontario twelfth, Johnny Miles, Hamilton, was fourteenth and Basil Cudworth, Toronto, eighteenth.



The number high calibre of the competitors in the long distance classic was illustrated by the fact that Zabala, Duncan Ferris, Great Britain, and A. Toivonen, Finland, (Dr. first three to finish, all surpassed the time of two hours, 33 minutes and 22 4-5 seconds made by Kolehmainen, Finland in 1920, Zabala's mark of 2:31.36 stands as the new Olympic record. Less than a lap separated the first four of finish and the rest of the 36 tallies, 385 yards.

JACK KOUT

When Jack Corcoran stages his open air wrestling bout at Victoria Park on Wednesday evening Jack Kout ex-Canadian light heavyweight champion, will tangle with Trader Horn of Vancouver. Both of these boys are well known in Belleville and should go over big in the semi-final bout of the evening.

FRANKIE HART

In the open air wrestling bout at Victoria Park on Wednesday night, Frankie Hart meets Bobby Sherman of Los Angeles. Hart was always a favourite in Belleville while Sherman is a new comer to these parts. The main event between "The Masked Marvel" and Joe LaRocque looks to be a natural, however.

on the grind, 30 crossed the finishing line. Duncan Wright, Great Britain was good fourth and 41st beat three places went to Tsuda, Japan, who was will beaten. Ilkin, Kurcari Japanese and Whitey Michelson, United States.

MAPLE LEAFS WIN SOFTBALL FIXTURE

In an exhibition softball game at the Armouries town on Saturday afternoon the Maple Leaf girls turned on the Wallbridge "Stingers" and triumphed them to the tune of 7 to 3.

The Maple Leafs seem to play their best brand of ball during the heat and have defeated almost all playing in their league games.

The line-ups for Saturday night were:

Los Angeles, Aug. 8—Jim Bausch, all-around star from Kansas, captured the Olympic decathlon championship Saturday, smashing the world and Olympic records in doing so. Bausch finished the 10 event battle with a total of 8462.23 points for the greatest all-around performance of all time.

Akilles Jarvinen, of Finland, who held the previous world record at 8235.475 points, surpassed this also but had to be satisfied with second place with a total of 8292.43 points. The former Olympic record, made by Paavo Yrjola, of Finland, was 8053.29 points, made in 1928.

UNITED STATES WINS 1ST GAME

Canada Could Not Withstand Late Challenge

Olympic Stadium, Los Angeles, Aug. 8—The United States defeated Canada by a score of 5-4 in the first of a series of three demonstrator baseball games as a part of the Olympic Games programme yesterday.

The game was interrupted late in the second half by the finish of the marathon.

The score at the half was two all but the Baltimore boys scored three goals in quick succession in the second half to pull ahead.

Just before the game was halted Canada rallied on a scoring spurt which netted two goals. Close to 75,000 people witnessed the contest.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Thanks to "Hoot" Gibson and the Cobourg Ponies the Belleville Nationals are now tied with full games ahead of the third place Peterboro ruskins in the fight for second place in the C.O.B.L. The Cobourg lads handed the Nationals back in Cobourg on Saturday by the score of 3 to 2. Thanks Cobourg boys.

O——O

"Hoot" Gibson had a day on and sent us less than 11 Peterboro hitters back to the bench on the strike out route. When Percy "Hoot" Gibson gets right in the pen and for the team that he is opposing. The loss gives the Nationals only two games left to play and they have three games left to play and a playoff here with the second place team from here on Wednesday afternoon they are assured of a playoff for second place even if they lose their remaining two games. If they beat the Petes these postponed games on the weeks ago they will have clinched second place for 1932. All in the next game, from now on will be very keenly contested.

O——O

Just who Manager Crewe will hurt against the Kingstonians on Wednesday afternoon is not known but in all probability either Carl Casey or Tommy Poirier will get the call for either one of these pitchers gave Crewe may learn "Carm" Cook in the ball park on Wednesday and if he does the fans will be treated to some real classy fielding by the Trentonians. With the return to his former self Will Cottrell is also gladden the hearts of many local fans if he continues to get the batting eye that he has for the past two or three games.

O——O

As the Bay of Quinte loop have to declare a winner by August 15th President Meagher has ordered the teams to play three games this week. The Petes also will meet the local Vics at the Fair Grounds tonight while on Wednesday the Victorias travel to Picton with the Prince Edward lads for their return game here either Friday or Saturday. The schedule will not follow the next week. Tonight's game promises to be a battle royal as the Vics will be out to keep the league running. The B.A.A.A. Juniors play host to the O.D.A.A. play-off with the Peterboro Juniors on Saturday.

O——O

Leave it to Jack Corcoran to invent something new to introduce to the sport fans. Corcoran is going to stage a battle royal all-wrestling bout ever to be held in Canada, on Victoria Park, Belleville, Wednesday evening. Jack is not leaving anything undone either. He is to let bringing heavyweight wrestlers into Belleville. Besides the usual French rough-house heavyweight, is pitted against "The Masked Marvel" who is a mystery man. The Marvel will attend Wednesday's ball game and he will un-mask when the night he is defeated, if ever. The Masked Marvel tips the scales at 21 2/10 lbs. and is a Kosher weight in at 211. Playful Bill lads, eh?

O——O

In the opening bout Bobby Sanford of Los Angeles will meet Big Frankie Hart, ex-Dutch champion at his weight. Sanford has made a good impression before a Belleville audience in the past as he gives his all he has in the ring and keeps giving or asking any quarter. Sanford, on the other hand will be a favorite in local wrestling circles as he has a few tough and tricky natures. In the semi-final go, Jack Kout, ex-Canadian champ, goes up with Trader Horn of the Pacific coast. These lads weigh in the neighborhood of 240 to 250 lbs. and know their business.

O——O

The wrestling ring will be erected on Monday and the wrestlers will work out there daily until Wednesday night. Just how this idea of an open air bout will appeal to the fans remains to be seen, there is no security that it should be cooler at the park than inside a building three warm nights.

VICTORIA HAS SLIGHT EDGE

Win First Playoff Game Against Redneravills 16-8

Redneraville, August 8.—(Special)—The first game of the playoffs for the championship of the Antellenburg softball league was played here Thursday, the local team meeting Victoria and coming out on the short end of a 16 to 8 score. The earlier part of the game was just a breathing spell but as exciting as fans had hoped it would be, but in the later stages of the game, Victoria went going on a rampage in the eighth and scoring six runs. Redneriville team seemed to lose interest and played in a rather listless manner for the remainder of the game. They did give a half hearted rally in the ninth, but failed to score.

Feeling ran high throughout the game, and certainly everyone would have enjoyed it more had fewer insulting epithets been hurled at the Victoria players by Redneriville supporters. A near riot occurred at the end of the first inning, when Thompkins for Redneriville sliding home, was tagged out by George Crelman and ruled off the field. Mr. Crelman claiming that Thompkins never in purpose as he came in. A crowd of enraged Redneriville fans immediately surrounded him, but hostilities subsided without any blows being struck. Order was soon restored, however, after a heated discussion between the two teams, however, and Redneriville started off in good sportsmanship which all true baseball fans like to see.

Walkom who has been absent from his team for some time was once more on deck, and was elected to pitch. The fans supported the old lid's more than lob them over, and at the end of the fifth inning Victoria were leading by eight tallies. The game was fast and won in the eighth inning when Victoria two on bases and George Cretney on bat, Walkom him over the fence where he wanted it, and he proceeded to run out every ball on the field for a homer. With this to start the rally Victoria scored three runs in this inning, leaving their opponents scoreless until the end of the game. In the last inning Walkom interchanged with catcher Jerry Bowen, who took over the box while he was there, being touched for only one hit.

The next game of the play-off series is to be at Victoria on Tuesday evening of next week, and certainly should be the game of the season. Victoria are carting crowds of rabid fans on hand to cheer and probably, we hope, with Redneriville determined on revenge, there will be plenty fireworks.

Lineups:

Victoria — Barber 1b; D. Cretney ss; Wannamaker p; C. Cretney c; Thompkins 2b; Allen rf; Wallbridge 3b; Allen cf; Montgomery lf.

Victoria ..... 102 012 060—16
Redneriville ..... 000 020 000—8

Spiked Heel Thickens Ankles

Will you, or will you not, you bright-eyed candidate for the snappy shape, consider the bad effects of unsightly bath beds and ponder? No? You're a bad child. But you can't stop us! We'll go on with our little hygienic-and-posture yodel, hoping that you'll read to satisfy your curiosity even if you are stubborn of will and don't want to be won over.

You can lift the heel of the foot one and three-fourths inches and the body will retain normal balance. It is willing to stand that much of a lift. Make your heel higher—and there's trouble! All kinds of trouble! The chest cavity flattens, lifts and throws forward. There's a bend in the backbone directly contrary to the way the bend should be. Tummy muscles slack up, stomach and lower intestine find livers and kidneys crowding that condition often starts up a state of indigestion with attendant discomfort.

The waist line thickens, mainly because of dislocated "inner sides" and because—with heels up on stilts—shoulders are thrown forward and flesh rolls up at the armpits where flesh should be firm flat and flexible.

And if that isn't enough, we'll tell you that spiked heels are death on pretty ankles! They thicken them, because of distortion of the muscles of the foot and legs, for high heels do not permit the firm flexing necessary for the well-being, comfort and lovely outline of limbs.

Correct Manners

A MAN'S LETTER PAPER

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

A gentleman who is a dear friend of mine will celebrate his birthday soon, and I would like to surprise the day with an appropriate gift of some kind.

What I had in mind was some stationery. I thought gray with a black monogram will be effective. Enclosed herewith are some sketch. as of Monogram I'm considering. Would it be an imposition for me to ask you to put gently which of the monograms would be most suitable? Would you advise them or yel lum?

I would also appreciate your advice as to whether or not gold-edging as a rule prefer plain stationery or don't they object to monograms?

R.

Monogram; dies are distinctly out of the question to use for stamping letterpaper for men. They never register masculinity and they are never to be used for men's letterpaper. So all the designs for monograms on the sheet that you sent me must be discarded.

You may if you wish, with taste and correctness use the two or three initials in block letters. Not slanted or inclined to be heavy, with periods between the letters.

Or you may use an address die. This goes on the sheet that you have are good, though I should prefer them somewhat heavier as they are standing. The color you have to choose.

Heavy white paper is the best choice of all, or very light gray, if you prefer, or bone-colored. The white or light gray may be stamped in black, or in a very dark gray that is almost black. Either of these is considered very fashionable now, especially with light gray paper.

Another very important thing: the paper must be of the correct size.—5 x 7 inches wide by 8 3-4 inches long is an excellent size, very serviceable. It is an excellent size to give three kinds in a box: the double sheet of this size, the single sheets in the same size, and the correspondence card of this half this size so that both sheets and cards fit into the same size envelope.

Kid finish is better than either linen or vellum, and vellum is preferable for this type of paper than is linen.

POOR TASTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckm:

Is it good taste for a young woman to be always forcing small personal gifts upon a married man several years older than she is, and expecting him to wear them?

She is a friend of the younger members of the family and that complicates matters.

Ed.

What fundamentally poor taste this young woman has! Can no one subtly show her the error of her ways and show her the inappropriateness of such ill-advised "attentions," especially those could be some humorous references to her "generosity"... that might "take the hint".

Misplaced Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A very close friend of mine informed me that she was about to give a party in my honor. She sent out invitations to about thirty guests. On the evening of the party she presented me with a gift, with the enclosed announcement her engagement, which I read to the guests. I knew nothing about this. I accepted the announcement as a surprise, and so forth, but at the same time I felt slighted.

Was this proper for her to do, or should I have been informed of this in advance?

R.

This is the strangest kind of announcement party I ever heard of, and I don't blame you for "wondering" about it and about his form. It would, I agree, have been better all around if this friend had taken you into her confidence about her plan. She probably has her own ideas about being "original." However you go too far I think to "feel slighted." Don't take this attitude about it for I am sure that never did she dream that she would make you feel this way. Just take as I am sure she meant it..... as an original way of announcing her engagement. Don't take any other attitude about this, accept one of friendliness and graciousness.

THE PROPER THING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I work for a large concern and am a stenographer to a gentleman. We are most friendly. At Christmas time he presents me with a nice gift. I have been with him for three years now. His birthday is next month, and I would like to present him with a little gift. He is sadly in need of a new leather holder for his desk blotter. Is it proper for me to give him this? He is married with two grown-up children. I will abide by your decision.

Reader

Please, please don't do it, for it would be in the worst possible taste. I realize that your thought is thoroughly direct and generous but it isn't wise for you to begin that present-giving. Such a gesture, even though very simply and generously meant, would normally needs an explanation that may cause embarrassment. Don't be given and to receiver. It lacks that grace of dignity that you feel this way. Just take as I am sure she meant it..... as an original way of announcing her engagement. Don't take any other attitude about this, accept one of friendliness and graciousness.

"UNASHAMED," ENGROSSING DRAMA WITH A BRILLIANT CAST

Mystery and the modern age, an amazing dramatic twist wherein the heroine is faced with a choice between her own home and the death of her brother, and a sensational surprise that sets a new mark for dramatic suspense, figure in "Unashamed," Bayard Veiller-Cosmo-Mayer drama which will open at the Belle, Tuesday for two days, Matinee Wednesday.

Bayard Veiller, author of "within the Law," "The Trial of Mary Dugan" and other noted stage plays of engrossing type, wrote this new and modern angles into a strange, gripping story, and Helen Trevlovelos, Robert Young, Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt, John Miljan, Marion Shilling, Robert Warwick, Gertrude Michael and Lucien Littlefield are among the stars characters under the direction of Harry Beaumont.

The story deals with a millionaire's daughter who has too much money and too intense affection for her younger brother. She becomes infatuated with a fortune hunter. Her father refuses the marriage. The romance ensues, lovers go to a hotel together and the father, in a fit of anger, shoots the lover and goes on trial. Then, in an amazing climax, the daughter sacrifices her reputation—to save him from the gallows.

The dramatic highlights include her romantic flight with her paramour, the gripping scene between the millionaire and the boyish brother, the deadly quarrel and shooting in the millionaire's study and the trial of the story's fiancee to the sister who refuses to save him, and the final amazing dramatic climax.

Spectacular settings include the first modernistic courtroom in a talking picture and many modern people take part in the action in this vivid romance.

SMELTERS AND NICKEL LEAD

Bell Telephone Makes Gain of One Point Per Share

TORONTO Aug. 8.—Profit-taking appeared in spots on the Toronto Stock Exchange today to narrow the advance, although the leaders gave a good account of themselves and there were enough gains to give the list a firm appearance. The page blackened from that of Saturday's market seems and the volume contracted. International Nickel and Smelters were again the leaders. Both advancing in active trading with the former up fractionally and the latter 3 points to 71. Bell Telephone made a gain of better than a point and Steel of Canada and Ford improved their position.

Profit taking was most noticeable in C.P.R. which sold off 1 more. Dominion Stores and Brazilian traction were other issues to ease under selling.

Implement stocks were in good demand but failed to extend the gains were practically stationary.

BULLISHNESS MAINTAINED

Have Afternoon Profit-Taking Passes Over Wall St.

New York, Aug. 8.—The stock market today showed a further moderately smashing all opposition today, in the display of bullishness which much of Wall Street had thought might not be seen for months. Securities and commodities again reacted upon each other to their mutual advantage, with leading the staples with an upward movement more than 2 points. The market was firm, but was again overshadowed by the spectacular performance of junior securities. Prices Climb.

The stock market was swept by successive waves of profit-taking but they merely served to interrupt the upsweep of prices. Declines of 1 to 3 in the first hour were quickly regained, and a similar setback at noon was followed by a severe gains of 4 to 8 points were chalked up in the afternoon session. Telephone, Dupont, American Can, Case, Consolidated Gas, Consolidated Oil, Eastman, Western Union, Norfolk and Western, Union Pacific and Case Threshing issues up 2 to 3 or more included U.S.I., Johns Manville, General Electric, Chrysler, North, American, New York Central, New Haven, Southern Pacific, Public Service of N.J., Johns Manville, Safeway, Coca Cola, American Chemical, Continental Can, Bethlehem Steel and others. Oils and coppers, however, were not conspicuous in the advance. Homestake Mining was a soft spot, off 5 points.

Bull Climb Furiously.

The rails, many of which have already more than doubled in price since their 1932 low point reached a month ago, continued to lead the furious advance.

The automobile stocks shot upward in their wake to new top levels. While automobile production has recently undergone a moderate curtailment, a number of executives now express the belief that the industry's general sentiment reflected by the security markets should soon have its own revival under way. General Motors reported July sales in the American continent of 70,000 cars, off considerably from 96,987 of June, and less than half the 1,054 of July of last year. Some quarters point out that seasonal factors to help considerably in such a the plan of relieving the market of the overhanging distress sale of millions of cotton through a credit arrangement with the Federal land banks and agricultural purchasing power and consequently new automobile buying.

The drop in Homestake Mining was interesting in view of the recent rise in sentiment toward other issues. Gold mining thrives when other industries are depressed, and general prices in terms of gold decline. But as measures by standard indices, wholesale commodity prices have now advanced for seven successive weeks.

The South African Government is paying export subsidies on many agricultural products.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saitiday afternoon it was exter'mynaul brit, making me think of Sunday, even tho I said it was play pop, wut you give me a nickel for a ice cream cone if I dont? Sure, that sounds reasonable enough, where's the ice cream cone? Say I said, I dont tho, I mean will you give me a nickel to play one with?

O, that's a slitely more one sided proposishun, but the cred rating of ice cream is if your intention to have the one decorated with? he said.

Chockilt O boy, chockilt, there's no flavor like chockilt, I said, and pop said ? can just imagine it, can't you? a smooth rich cream ball of chockilt. not soft enough to melt but not hard enough to fall off, luxuriantly, setting into a well baked crispy cone and running likely down the golden brown sides ony to be expertly licked up by a long red pink tongue, he said.

O boy, I can taist it now, it taists like the best one I'm ever tasted, and I've had more than half a dozzn, Why, you're skyedy had it, to all intents and perpose, it's a well known fact of human nature that the anticipation of a pleasure is often greater than the actual realization of it, and now that you have had such a marvelous anticipating your ice cream cone you're sure you're not going to expect me to wait 5 cents on the strength of fact realisation of it, he said.

Aw O, heck, pop, good nite holey moley, he said.

I see what you mean of corse you may be rite in a way, pop said.

And he gave me a nickel and I gave him a cone, besides ice cream place like lightning, and he confidently gave me a exter big one and thanks some people by way of injoyed the anticipation more, but not pop.

Uniformity is Sought in Standard of Empire Units

India and Britain Completes Negotiations, Pact is Near

COMMON GROUND

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—Efforts to achieve uniformity of standards as between the various Empire units are continuing. The Imperial Conference sub committee on weights and standardization met this morning and chose A. W. Street, of the British Ministry of Agriculture, chairman.

Attention was drawn to the diversity of standards in different countries. The variation was considerable, it was stated. For instance, the Irish Free State had special standards for dairy products. Canada had grades for butter, cheese and eggs.

It will be the function of the sub committee to try and find a common ground. It will report to the committee on methods of economic co-operation.

Delegates Dubbed

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—British delegates at the Empire Conference were met in Montreal today to consider Canada's offer. The Canadian delegation was chosen the British and Canadian delegations to discuss the matter on neutral place. It comes later, but the two delegations. It is intimated, were in communication. There is a general interpretation placed on the project, but it will have been informal conversations.

Offer Inadequate?

As the situation stands, the British delegation is apparently not to regard the Canadian offer adequate to justify tariff preferences on wheat, meats and other natural products. They want Canada's offer improved.

The Canadian delegation, on the other hand, merits British counter proposals, definite word from Great Britain herself is prepared to go.

It is quite likely that discussion on proposal and counter-proposal will occupy several days.

Negotiations Continue

Negotiations between Great Britain and India, the most advanced of the conference, are understood to be practically complete. Both sides are reported satisfied with the outlook. The proposals in hand include abolition of the cotton duties. Indian delegations as promising considerably increased trade without damage to local industries.

The conference sub committee on standardization is endeavouring to reach agreement on the question of packing out for fruit containers one idea in mind to check the fraudulent practices.

THE CHOIR SINGER

By ELLEN KELMONT

Kittie purred contentedly as they walked down the aisle for she loved the atmosphere of the Goodwill Church, the singer had just taken the curve of the piano; he was tall, well-set-up, and handsome, red, but obviously nervous and too large for the organ loft. Joanne blissed as they slid into their seats and the accompanist waited for quiet.

"That man can never sing; he has no resonance chamber," Kittie pet him and listen to the accompanist," she said. "What a flop. She settled herself complacently and completely, adding, "His worst look is as big as a dictionary. I hope he doesn't drop it on his toes. If he can't remember—"

Her closing sentence referred to the singer's coming Kittie had never before heard of George Bartlett; yet her morning comment abruptly ended. She had recognized Peanuts Brown all right although she had momentarily forgotten her ruffled fur as soon as usually called the attack a spell of occasional ill-humor. Now her fur lay sleekly snapped. It was useless to imagine she could detect by sight the singer's resonance chambers; Kittie thoroughly disbelieved in the psychic theory. The assumption of the possession of such powers was as much a part of Joanne as was her every grey studio with its lacquered furniture and its Chinese prints. Joanne had been brought up on mahogany and velour suites and had changed them momentarily and swiftly reverting to type.

Two or three still later arrivals bustled in. Kittie looked up at the singer and Joanne was combing out of his eyes. Just so she must have looked the day she decided she had been vanquished in her fight, since it was the day of initiation she dropped her hand-bag and crashed down the corridor further prolonging George Bartlett's agony.

The number finally began and not too badly. "Eri tu" of course. Kittie felt that the singer had had not changed her lovely lyric church soprano into a dramatic coloratura but it had taught her his principles of how he operated. Not that the knowledge gave her any pleasure this Sunday afternoon. She thought with a sneer that she might have learned that much over the radio in her own home town, thus saving her father's reluctant, hard-earned money.

She never knew whether Joanne was right about the resonance chambers for her roving blue eyes deserted the singer almost before on the accompanist—at first sullen, then with a look of interest. Surely she remembered that peculiar, thought small, star-shaped mole just in front of the ear, that the footlights picked out so vividly. Clarence Ivy, one of her old school-mails and childhood sweetheart! A glance at her profile confirmed her guess. She remembered his awkward, boyish gallantry and his family moved from Dexter.

"Goodby, Kittie. New York is a long way off so I don't suppose I'll see you again. His words ran on to be a big phrase like she wanted to be when she was young.

"Do you want to be one?" the girl had asked.

"Music's all right," the boy had answered. "But I read lots of biography and I figure I'm not cut out for a big career. I'm going into business and play the pipe organ Sundays to help out. Maybe I'll get a band up!"

"Wonderful". Kittie had been thrilled. "Then I could be soprano in your choir." Clarence had been thrilled at the time; she twelve. She still had the three post cards he had sent her from New York but he had been nearly forgotten for a dozen years. Joanne Cass from Lloyd was playing a debut in her latest conquest. Kittie must have succeeded, she mused, for every male singer has a operatic accompanist for his debut.

Kittie the remainder of the music was inaudible for she was lost in a maze of childhood memories. Cameron sitting across from her at the music lesson, at the Sunday School class; Cameron shyly praising her red curls; Cameron walking home with her also while the other boys played ball; and, once, Cameron with a bloody nose after a fight with a big bully who called her a music teacher.

There came a short intermission and some began talking to comments but Kittie cut her short.

"You say you know the accompanist, Joanne? Will you go hello for us after the concert," she asked.

Joanne looked surprised at such a request.

"They're both coming. I ran across Cameron only a week ago and he thought I told you."

In the taxi Joanne continued: "Cameron's a nice old singer but he looks rather fascinating. He's got a big home in Rosedale and only sings to please himself. He's going to be a guest soon once." Her words were caustic. "If Lloyd had his ambition!"

Kittie sat in the studio. Kittie ran up ahead to Joanne's dressing-room. Cameron was there and not far behind. When she had recovered from the embrace in which he crushed red bread above a beige lace collar, he said, "Little Kittie Brown. But she ran out and joined the taxi, group before the music. Cameron and Joanne came along side-by-side. up at Cameron Lloyd.

Kittie's head ached. "Goodbye to Joanne's amusement.

"Kittie Lloyd!" The handsome rather bored young man leaped to his feet, stumbled, fell and bet her to a couch in the farthest corner of the room.

"Where are you going in Chicago?" he demanded.

"Chicago? I'm now Calli Curci"

"Of course you're not or I would have heard it."

"I'm going back to Dexter to teach the children and to sing in the choir. Dad and Mother are lonely, Dexter has grown to quite a size and I'm a full fledged teacher."

"So do I. And this accompanying temperamental singers grows wearisome. Mother thought I was wonderful in the days of long ago and made her happy anyway but I'll never be a big success."

"You once said you'd like to play the pipe organ in Dexter", venturing a little, with a giggle.

"So I would," he laughed. Then suddenly "Let's start a conservatory there together, I think we'd make a fine team."

"That's a good plan to think about", blushed Kittie as Joanne calls her to help serve tea.

IRISH EYES

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Sheila could not speak. She swallowed, with a sort of gasp.

"I wish to God it was true!" Ken muttered, after a silence.

There was another pause. Then he chuckled suddenly.

"Poor old Monk!" he said. "He hasn't washed his hands for dinner for five years!"

Sheila was praying and made no answer. Presently Ken said:

"You're not mad at this fellow?"

"Oh Peter? He's going to be married, Sunday."

"Well, I thought you weren't."

"I was up at Tillie's Beach with some people this year," Sheila volunteered, "and I met him there. We liked each other all right. Then I didn't meet him again until last night. I—I don't know why I was that night. It seems years ago."

"And you and him made a date, hey?"

"Well, he wanted to see me. To explain."

"Explain why he threw you down? A sleeper!"

"He didn't throw me down," Sheila said mildly, ending it. "It's lost the number of my house."

"You know he's yeller, don't you?" Ken said, in dismissive tone. Sheila made no answer, and he mumbled once or twice: "Yeller, yeller," before settling down into silence again.

"You know there isn't anyone who has anything on me, I guess?"

"Has!" Sheila echoed alertly. "Hasn't."

"You mean the police?"

"There isn't one of them could pin anything on me."

Sheila pondered this.

"You mean because there isn't anything to pin or just because you're lucky?" she asked simply.

"I mean that they haven't got anything on me. I never pulled a gun on anyone," he said, "I carry one; that's all right. But I don't get into the racket. I just think up things out for the boys, and then Nemo and I talk 'em over."

"You're the brains of the organization," Sheila observed mildly, recalling another favorite phrase of young Sig, the vice president's.

"I don't know what you call it," he said, offended.

"I should think."

Sheila mused also, and presently aloud, of course I don't know. But I should think the person who made the planning would be the very one the police would want to get!"

"And what could they do to him when they did get him?" Ken asked.

"Oh leave it to them, they'd manage that! Sheila assured him with a laugh.

Shortly afterward, when the men returned, and the kitchen became suddenly filled with the odor of their drying boots, their pipes, their unwashed bodies and unwashed clothing, Sheila left suddenly, unbearably tired and stiff and sleepy. It was Ken who briefly suggested that she take possession of a very small room off the kitchen; perhaps once a servant's room, or an old grandfather's room but furnished with only a desk-chair and iron bed like those in the larger room.

"Lay down in there," Ken said curtly, warm from the stove and nobody'll bother you."

Sheila gathered some blankets, made herself as decent a bed as she could, loosened her clothing, kicked off her shoes, and gratefully succumbed to the stupor of sleep that had been grasping her all day.

She closed her door, but she could hear the voices in the kitchen, hear the shuffling of the men's feet, the creaking of the old rocker, the sounds blended and faded, loomed loud again, and were gone. Through the winter sunshine, striking through the dirty uncurtained farmhouse window onto a brilliant glitter from the snow about the clapboard walls of the little kitchen chamber.

Yesterday's experience of thawing and limping, yesterday's brief, unrefreshing toilet preceded a kitchen breakfast, but even then the bright promise of the day made Sheila's heart lighter, and when Ken said gaily, over his coffee, "Well, you folks ought to be home about eight o'clock, tonight," she felt that she could have danced for joy.

"We got to dig out of here, first," he observed. Any after the meal, when Sheila would have fallen upon her obvious task of clearing the kitchen, he said, "Let all that go, Sister, and rest here for a while. It'll do you good!"

"Think there's really any chance of our getting away from here today?" Peter was quick to take up an opportunity to ask her scorn. He looked pallid and untidy in his hair tumbled, his clothing disheveled.

"Well, certainly!" she answered brightly.

"Well, I don't," he mumbled gloom ily. Ken rejoined them with an old coat and thick gloves for Sheila, who also seized a fine shovel.

The truck that had brought them to the lonely old farmhouse in the hills was bedded deep in snow; the men were digging busily about it. Sheila and Ken began at once on a sort of track for it about the corner of the barn where it had been driven down past the house and so to the road.

Handling her shovel, flinging the snow about, breathless and laughing, the girl worked enthusiastically if with small results. She and Peter and Ken encouraged each other in the invigorating sunshine as they dug.

"You own this place?" Peter said.

"I never seen it before yesterday," Ken answered.

"Then who does own it?"

"I don't know," the man said.

"One of the boys found it a while back. They use it off and on. Monk went into the real estate of it."

"Some investment, I think I was," and asked about it once. They said the property was an old lady, and lived in Florida and sometimes her nieces used it summers. They're artists, or teachers or something, from Boston."

"But—but anyone going by—neighbors," Sheila exclaimed, "wouldn't they see smoke, and notice tracks?"

"There ain't many neighbours," Ken observed, unalarmed. When Peter has worked his way to some distance Ken said suddenly to Sheila, 'Go you think I ought to get out of this? I mean, is it worth the big thing's good, do you?"

"I think you would be lucky if you could."

"Oh, I could, all right!" Ken shrugged. Presently, He went to get her a drink of water, and she stood drinking it, laughing and panting, against the background of snowy hills and bare, barred trees and blue, chill winter sky.

The truck came duly chugging down the road, and some hours later, the men hanging on its sides, Sheila watching the track as the great toboggan tires flattened the snow.

She don't have to watch the roads—you'll never get up here again!" Ken said amusedly to Peter later, as once again seated on the floor of the car they bumped and slid on their long way.

Peter withdrew his gaze from the surrounding landscape and colored in sudden embarrassment. It was only a few minutes later that Ken said 'Stop here Monk,' indicated to Peter and Sheila that they were to descend.

To them the gently rolling snowy hills all about, the occasional distant cluster of roofs and farmhouse columns of smoke, the road deep in dry white shining powder, were exactly what they had been seeing for the past two hours. But Ken was bidding them good-by.

"Walk to the top of that hill there, and there ought to be a village about a mile below. On your way!" he said.

He did not look at Sheila. He walked about the truck in the snow and climbed up on the front seat, and she saw now of the other men got down upon the rough floor of the vehicle and roll himself in for the blankets there.

The road was a floundering walk in the snow, more like three miles than two, and a long dreary empty walk at an empty station. The sign over the station said "Capitol Junction"; there was no house near by. But toward the middle of the afternoon a rickety train did rattle up, and Sheila and Peter boarded it. The conductor sleepily informed them that they were in northern Connecticut and obliged them with tickets to New York. Sheila was to dinner on the train but when they transferred to a rearing Leviathan, farther on, they thankfully went in to a brightly lighted buffet-car and had club sandwiches and coffee.

"And so ends our adventure!" Sheila said, on a long sigh. "What we've got to tell the folks at home will last us for one while!"

Peter emboldened by food warmth and safety, answered with a contemptuous laugh. "Don't you fool yourself that our adventure is over! I'm going to send every last one of that gang to jail and don't you fool yourself!"

"I'm not fooling myself," Sheila answered with dignity. "But I'll bet that anything you never catch 'one of them!'"

"What do you suppose our families have been doing all this time? Do you suppose for one minute they haven't been raising the devil?" Peter demanded indignantly. "Why they've got the whole police department roused by this time! This Ken fellow—— by the way did you get his last name?"

She hesitated a second.

"No".

"It doesn't matter. They've got it, you bet. And I'll tell you something." Peter predicted darkly, "you think this adventure is ended. I tell you that it's only just begun!!

Music Teacher Declares Piano Training is Essential

RADIO AS HELP

Out of the blare and din of mechanized jazz which surged at you from all corners of the city, trumpeted from ten thousand dance halls, from bed rooms, parlors and the recess of the subway, the noble piano once more raises its stately head and threatens to attain a comeback in popularity rivalling or exceeding the days of drawn window curtains in the front parlor, cat-tails in the painted jug and the red velvet-covered family album. You have that statement on the authority of music teachers in Belleville, piano salesmen—there are still a few left in the country—piano tuners and the children themselves. Sheet music vendors in the city also report a pickup in the sale of old-time favorites as well as popular tunes of the day.

Piano Heads List

"Jazz, and its variants, seem to be undergoing a change for the better," declared one music teacher in the city who was questioned. She continued: "Radio, chiefly, assisted by the portable phonograph, formerly monopolized living-room entertainment. At any rate it is to these mediums of music that the decline of the piano was attributed, the young folks simply wouldn't take the trouble to learn to play a piano, when there was much "grown-up music" to be had simply by twisting a dial. The piano a year or so ago was sadly out of tune with the times, but now we believe the instrument is on its way back to its rightful place in every home. Education no matter how good, can never be complete unless one has a grounding or a grasp, of at least the fundamentals of music. There is no other medium in which the soul of young or old can be so thoroughly and completely expressed than piano, violin or organ music. With piano heading the list." "Yes," reinisced the music teacher, who refused to be quoted "one stops to listen nowadays before the house in which a piano is being well played. Around that house there gathers an atmosphere of other more graceful times. Perhaps not for the voice of some superb singer would one stop, nor the strains of some mighty symphony orchestra, but the smallest fragment of one humble performer's effort on the key board of a well toned piano is enough. I have noticed it from any front window time and again. "With all this better music that is heard over the radio, wouldn't you imagine that children would have more incentive to study and try to emulate piano players they hear over the ether," asked a reporter.

"Years ago when the whisery old parlor organ pumped out asthmatic melodies painful to hear, and most pianos resembled clavichords out of tune, there wasn't much urge for the young folks to study. Nowadays it should be different."

"It is. We look upon the better class music we are now getting over the radio as a real help. When radio first came out the world was jass mad. At any hour of the day or night you cared to tune in you could not escape it. At the present time real jass orchestras are rare; those that do survive have learned to play popular music with more rhythm and less pounding and confusion. Each year sees a stronger gain for the old melodies and slower tempo. People are once more beginning to take an interest in music, and naturally their interest has reached more favorably among the younger folk of the land." Miss Gallerich says, "you do not have to be urged to take piano lessons. Children naturally prefer ten over the idea that any kid who had the right piano lesson was a sissie. Now they all want to be Little Jack Littles or some other character they listen in to every night through their set. They have found that these piano players they hear so often are not "sissies" and are now anxious to follow in their footsteps and some day be a radio entertainer."

KNOWS HIS HORSES.

Toronto, Aug. 6 (CP)—Overseas journalists attending the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa are all agog. This week one of them came to Toronto, lodged at a first-class hostelry, tripped over to the Hamilton races—and cashed enough tickets to pay all his expenses, with $20.00 to spare.

MAKES ESCAPE BY A WINDOW

Trenton Home Prey to Flames Early Sunday Morning

Trenton, Aug. 8 (Special) — The home of Mr. Peter Wanmaaker, of College Street, was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. Mr. Wanmaaker had retired early on Saturday, evening when he was awakened by smoke in his room. He quickly arose and dressed in the same clothing crawled through his bedroom window, which is located at the back of the house, out onto the roof of the woodshed and thence to the ground. Fortunately for Mr. Wanmaaker he had left the door of his room shut for had it been open it is the opinion of the firemen that he would have been overcome by the smoke before he would have awakened to his danger. He was alone in the house at the time. The entire contents were lost but the house was only partly destroyed due to the quickness of the department in answering the alarm which Mr. Wanmaaker turned in. They had water on the fire within five minutes after the alarm had been given. The house and contents were insured. The fire is thought to have started in a cupboard down stairs.

Conference Enters Most Critical and Formative Week in Its Existence

Dominions Have Proposals of Mother Country Before Them

SEVERAL CLOUDS

Anglo-Irish Dispute is Still in Abeyance-Leaders Meet

By W. W. MURRAY.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 8. — The Imperial Conference entered its most formative week today. The immense amount of spadework necessary to clear away the obstacles littered in the path of the economic problem has been completed; the delegates are now entirely free to give undivided attention to getting their various craft in motion.

Definite matter of proposals from the producing dominions have been handed to the consuming mother country. And, at the same time, the Dominion delegates have the proposals of the United Kingdom before them. Down to actualities, the conferees have the basis for the bargain-counter.

Several clouds, no bigger than a man's hand, have appeared on horizon, however, with the uncertainty in Newfoundland and the dispute in the Irish Free State not yet dispatched. When the conference began, the Dominion of Eire and the Irish delegates encouraged the hope that one of the major questions at issue at Ottawa might be the settlement, or, at the least, the preliminary arrangement on basis for the settlement of the Anglo Irish dispute.

Hopes Not Realized.

These hopes have not yet been realized. It is known that on several occasions Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas has met with Mr. Cosgrave, head of the Free State delegation, in the interests of conciliation, and with Eamonn de Valera, but one is left only to guess what their success has been.

Bi-lateral treaties between the Free State and other countries of the —Canada and South Africa—are approaching fruition, while Australia and New Zealand have trade negotiations with Ireland in a day or two. On Thursday night, Canada was to talk trade treaties between the Free State and the United Kingdom.

On Saturday the conference delegations participated in the official opening of the Canadian National Exhibitions speeches were delivered by all the heads of the delegations, excepting for Sean T. O'Kelly who had embraced the opportunity to visit his friends in some of the United States border cities.

CANADA AFTER BACON TRADE

Request Three Cent a Pound Preference be Given

Ottawa, Aug. 8 (By R. H. Carnegie, Canadian Press)—Canada will go after the high class bacon trade of the world in a very serious manner if Great Britain grants the Dominion's request for three cents a pound preference for this commodity. Canada is asking this much of a duty and it will also be levied on foreign bacon entering the markets of the United Kingdom from countries not favored in free.

This requires three cents a pound to give Canada a net advantage of two cents a pound over Denmark, Gireland as compared with Denmark. Given this start, officials of the agricultural department are optimistic that Canada can step out and produce quality bacon that will show the way to the rest of the world. Canada has long had the best price for cheddar cheese of the available country selling in the United Kingdom market and could do as well in bacon, they expect.

CHEESEMAKERS HOLD OUTING AT OUTLET

The annual outing of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association held Sunday afternoon at the "Outlet," Prince Edward County was a most successful affair. GANGLAND HAS NO PLACE IN A COMMUNITY

C. Ray Hansen Gives Interesting Address at Chautauqua

TAKEN FOR RIDE

Tells of His Experience as Officer of Law in Fighting Hoodlums

"Let the reverence of the law be the religion of your nation," was the message left by Ex-District Attorney C. Ray Hansen of Cook County, Illinois State, U.S.A., during his graphic description of "gangster" conditions in Chicago at the Chautauqua tent in Belleville on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Hansen is a member of the American Bar Association, which has done much to bring the criminals and gangsters of Chicago to justice. "Gangsters need to belong to a member of the Hoover commission on crime in the United States, was on the commission's "Taken for ride" by gangsters and later released after suffering from a severe beating at the hands of hoodlums.

Taken for Ride

It was this incident that the speaker referred to as "taken for a gangland." He then referred to the conditions that existed before the ballots in Chicago elections had not been properly cast in many districts. Gangsters with the intimidating he pointed out that in various instances, the ballot boxes were stolen by gangsters and watchers to be stationed at a particular polling booth in order to observe the conducting of the work. Then after the polls were closed the watchers in one precinct or the Ghetto section of Chicago obtained the election in what they considered improper procedures. After the matter was taken to the courts, appointed by the County Judge, they ordered them outside into a waiting car. The speaker continued that although the Chicago policeman was in the room he made no attempt to interfere with the procedure. The watchers were then taken to an abandoned house and kept there until after the election time. The watchers had been placed on duty to see that no corrupt or bribery practices were in the election. Mr. Hansen said that others were "beaten up" and although he knew that intimidation was being

"I know that this is correct," said the speaker, "for the two watchers were Mr. Russell Sampson, of Chicago, and myself." The speaker then pointed out that it was this corrupt method that the gangsters of Chicago elected their officials in the city governing governmenta of the city. Later he had been one of the members of notes had cast votes at the instruction of gangsters, although they did not know it at the time. He also informed the audience that gangsters had been placed gangsters to have voted over 1,000 times at one single election in Chicago.

Acted as Undercover Man

The speaker then went into detail by relating experiences as acting as an undercover man for the law. He joined the gangsters in Chicago at one time posing as a Detroit confidence man hiding from the clutches of the law. During his stay in Canada he was taken on many trips which pointed out to him their workings. One of which he related. On one occasion he was invited by a noted gangster to accompany him on a trip in his car. The automobile was driven within a few hundred feet of a newly constructed building. Here the gangster's body was placed wrapped in paper on the back seat of the car. Upon arriving at the new structure the gangster got out, took the body with him, and later returning. They drove away and the body was buried later in the foundation. The next day in the newspaper the Hansen read of the building being practically destroyed by a bomb.

Much has been done because the builder had refused to join a bogus builders' association run by the gangsters at an "entrance" fee set at $2,500. After the explosion the builder readily agreed to join the association. He related a similar but more graphic instance in regard to a "Chicago Beauty Parlor Association" which was run by gangsters in the "Windy City" were forced to pay fees to operate in Al Capone. He also told the audience that "Big Bill" was one of the "rackets" which were being practised in Chicago. "The funds of these rackets went to help make the Al Capone fund," said the speaker.

Absence of Aid

Mr. Hansen spoke of the present abuse of the privileges offered by the Hoover Crime Bill, which allows gangsters constantly keep in touch with their friends in the outside world by telephone but in event of a gangster not coming to the aid of the designated time, the counsel immediately knew he was arrested and placed in the "Hole" where he remained for 24 hours. After 24 hours he was released almost immediately. The speaker at this point gave a few examples of how the gangster worked with the police.

The speaker pointed out that the citizens of Chicago very seldom saw the inside of a court room. Often times they really went looking for it. Mr. Hansen stated that he merely retort money rather than be out-lawed with their methods. He also referred to the present scientific methods of the law and how the law was today trying to combat this evasion in the United States. He referred especially to the recent "Al" Capone trial and his conviction for tax evasion. He referred to a recent statement of the Chicago police chief in which he stated that the police force of Chicago was "in the core." To illustrate this statement Mr. Hansen stated that it was possible to order beer in any restaurant in Chicago and have it delivered in the police patrol.

Mr. Hansen concluded his lecture by remarking that the gangster menace was today making its appearance in cities in Canada. He pointed out that it was only in the past few years that Canada had been free from gangsterism. He pointed out that this could be the case in Canada if methods that today were occupied in their minds. He urged that the people of Canada think along such channels. Parental education at home along these lines also will help, he declared. But the most effective method was the exercising of one's franchise at the polls, pointed out Mr. Hansen in closing.

The lecture was preceded by a short concert given by the Regent Musical Company who delighted the large audience with numerous Scotch choruses and songs.

CONFERENCE AWAITS REPLY BY BENNETT

Mailed Fist Rests on Public Disorders in German Republic

Claim British Experts Undervalue Offer Made By Canada to Britain

Discussion Resumed by British And Canadian Delegates—Difference of Opinion Does Not Mean Open Breach Between Canada and Britain

CANADA'S FURTHER OFFER LIKELY

Drafting Agreements Near Between Britain And Australia, New Zealand And India Says Ottawa Report

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 8—Premier Bennett has the last word.

With an eagerness unparalleled since the opening of the Empire Conference, delegations are anxiously awaiting his reply to the letter which Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the British delegation, wrote to him yesterday. Premier Bennett was in consultation with his cabinet colleagues until late last night. This morning, a subcommittee of the cabinet went over the Baldwin letter in all its details.

The cabinet sub-committee consists of Premier Bennett, Hon. E. J. Rhodes, Minister of Finance; Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue; Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, and Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Opinion Differs

Radical difference of opinion has developed between the British and Canadian delegations over the value of Canada's offer of preference for preference over Great Britain.

British and Canadian experts differ widely over what the offer is worth in terms of British exports to Canada. Following preliminary discussions of the offer, the figure mentioned by Canadian experts was around $60,000,000. British experts spent an English week-end over it and decided it was worth considerably less. Their figure has not been indicated but it is generally assumed to be around one-half the figure fixed by Canadian experts.

The very, moreover, is understood to be held in high Canadian circles that British experts have not studied the offer and therefore unsupervised Canada's cudgel pro que to Great Britain.

Yet, such experts, like doctors, differ—the British and Canadian delegations are making arrangements to meet again to discuss the situation, possibly later in the day. On both sides, however, is laid out the point that the difference of opinion between the two delegations does not amount to anything in the nature of an open breach, but that it is likely to be mutual give and take.

On the Canadian side, it is understood, there is a disposition to go farther in the encouragement of Canadian manufacture of iron, steel and the like as the case in the original offer.

Other Negotiations

Great Britain, in the meantime, is pushing ahead her negotiations with the other Dominions—Australia. With Australia, New Zealand and India, the negotiations are understood to have virtually reached the point of drafting agreements. British negotiations with New Zealand have been fairly simple because New Zealand is not so industrialized as Australia or Canada. Australia is understood, is insisting on a number of articles, to meet the British view-point. Canada, too, namely, that the spread of preference should be increased by reducing the margin rather than by increasing the rate on foreign goods.

Negotiations between Great Britain and Canada have been necessarily more difficult because Canada is the most highly industrialized of all the Dominions.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—(By Thomas T. Champion Canadian Press Staff Writer)—A rather sharp contrast in their treatment of the present position at Ottawa, is presented to day by the Daily Herald, an organ of Labor opinion, and the Daily Telegraph, Conservative.

The Herald, editorially draws attention to the spectacle of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett trying to pay the smallest possible price for the desired taxes on the food of the British people, while on the other hand the British leader, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, tries to squeeze a little more out of the astute Canadian.

Not Last Word

The Daily Telegraph, while admitting the Canadian goal for the Conference has not been attained, declares the whole question is one of value. In secret is made, says this paper, that the value of the Canadian proposals seems to have been very much over-estimated.

Nobody believes the Canadian proposals represented "the Government's last word," asserts the Daily Telegraph, but the question Government's desire not one will less earnestly than ours the successful outcome of the Conference. It may be hoped a solution will now be rapidly reached very different from that which produced such lowering spirits at Ottawa last week."

Technical Questions

Ottawa, Aug. 8—Certain questions of an involved and technical character will probably be undecided at the close of the Imperial Conference, it was said in official circles here by experts of the various Empire countries interested who will report on these future occasion. While the nature of these involved questions has not been definitely stated, it is understood that they are working out standards and the reconciling of them in effect in the different countries may be one. The question of the Empire content requirement in connection in order that they may receive preferential treatment may be another. These requirements vary in the different parts of the Empire.

BRINDLE PUP LAID AWAY IN ROSE GARDEN

Vancouver, Aug. 9—She stole into Stanley Park in the quiet hour of dusk, carrying a plain oblong box, and walked to the Rose Garden. There she found the spot she sought.

She did deeper and deeper and presently laid a tiny casket in its grave. Then the earth was replaced, and, as silently as she came, she left.

She had been seen, however. Police were notified and directed to the scene. They found the new-turned earth, exhumed the casket and opened it.

Within, swathed in silk, its tail-ball beside it, was the body of a brindle colored pup.

It will be given public obsequies—by the poundman.

LEAVES AFTER HOLIDAY

Montreal, Aug. 9—Cardinal Verdier, Archbishop of Paris and Emperior General of the Sulpicians, left Montreal today for Baltimore, Md., following a three weeks' visit to Quebec province. Sees in Marriage Only Hope for Girl Ill with Heart, Poor From Crash

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 9—Victim of a heart malady which according to doctors, can only be cured by marriage and a change in climate, Miss Isabella Wentworth County girl today offered herself in marriage to any suitor who could provide her with suitable surroundings and treatment for her affliction.

Twenty-two years of age and a graduate of an exclusive school, the young woman is given only four more years to live by physicians confirming themselves baffled by the mysterious cardiac disease. A complete change of interest might help her, they think, but this the girl pointed out is unable to provide. After the latter were told yesterday of the thing in the stock market, the girl took heart and decided to act herself. She has worked for quite by her heart trouble.

"I had good health until a year ago," the girl said in an interview given on condition, that she be not identified, "and I feel well less. "I could swim four miles easily, now I dare not swim a stroke. I will make a good wife, for while love is the greatest thing in the days, I think it still exists and I know I could grow to love any man who would assist in taking my mind from financial worries and new interests and in regaining my health. Of course I would not dream of marrying any man without enough money to help me. I think that might be unfair to him as well as to myself. I would like that much assurance, that he was interested in me. I think my offer is an interested in—reading, etc. because I think many others and a union would be unhappy.

GERMANY TO SWING MALLED FIST AT ONCE

Von Papen And Cabinet to Put End to Disorders

STERN MEASURES

Death Penalty May be Invoked to Stop Rioting

Berlin, Aug. 9—The German government, goaded by two months of rioting, bombing, shooting and knifing, prepared today to assert its mailed fists and "brutally wield" its authority to put an end to political disorders.

Returning from a holiday to find the local Nazi and Communist leaders still going on, Chancellor Franz Von Papen called his cabinet together to map a campaign to use the sternest measures, possibly including the death penalty, to restore peace throughout the Reich.

Meanwhile, speculation as to the part the Nazis might play in the new government was upset by the vehement editorial in the Nazi Berliner Angriff, Dr. Joseph Goebbels' paper, denouncing the Nazis be given "a decisive influence in the government's course." The article was interpreted as meaning the more radical members of the party had definitely decided to challenge Von Papen for the Chancellorship, which was contrary to Hitler's original intention.

As he prepared to go into action, Chancellor Von Papen, whose manner usually is nearer breezy than belligerent, assumed a new role. In a brief semi-official communique issued late last night after he had taken two more lives, he declared the government would take the most drastic measures and added: "our authority must be wielded brutally."

Since his government took office, June 2, well over 100 have been killed and more than 1,000 seriously injured in political battles.

Today's cabinet followed urgent pleas from every part of the Reich, seeking relief from the reign of terror. In the pleas today, however, there were complaints that the relief had come too late.

New bombings were reported from Gelsenkirchen, Silesia, the home of a communist alderman and a Socialist burgomaster. Shots also were exchanged at the Nazi headquarters in Altona and at the Nazi leaders' house at Ditterbach. A Nazi newspaper at Coblenz was confiscated today for abusing the national colors.

SUBWAY FIRE TIES UP TRAIN TRAFFIC

New York, Aug. 9—Fire in the east side subway at Williamsburg Bridge tied up underground traffic for two hours today, caused about 2,000 men, women and children passengers to leave their trains and to file in order by emergency exits or by walking through the black tunnel beside the burning car.

The fire was caused by a short circuit in the motor and traffic was halted completely for a time between the Williamsburg Bronx but after a short delay westside subway trains were started over the Manhattan bridge loop.

Some of the passengers from trains halted near the fire had to walk through the tunnel and one woman was taken to a hospital suffering from smoke and shock. Several firemen were overcome but quickly recovered and returned to work.

R. C. Church Confirmation First Holy Communion

Decrees Precede

Size of Parishes Has Prevented Bishops Getting Around Frequently to Administer Sacrament World Uniformity Sought.

Vatican City, Aug. 9.—The Congregation of Sacraments of the Catholic Church issued a decree today providing that confirmation must precede first Holy Communion, Monsignor Arturo Mazzoni, Under-Secretary of the Congregation, told the Associated Press.

Confirming what was reported yesterday, Monsignor Mazzoni said:

"This decree is designed to make the order of these Sacraments uniform throughout the world. In the major portion of Italy the custom always has been to administer confirmation before First Communion. Naples, however, has a custom of administering Confirmation just before maturity.

"In the United States, the chief difficulty heretofore has been the large size of the dioceses which has prevented the Bishop getting around frequently to the parishes to administer Confirmation."

Exchange Between Britain and Canada Soon to be Stabilized

Ottawa, Aug. 8—A proposal to steady the exchange between Canada and Great Britain and also to economize in the transfer of money between the two countries is stated to be before the Committee on Monetary and Financial Questions of the Imperial Conference.

At present a British importer pays for the Canadian purchases in Canadian dollars bought in New York and Canadian importers pay for British goods in sterling also bought in New York. With the fluctuations in exchange and the cost of thus transferring money, this makes for uncertainty and confusion.

The proposal is that the Canadian bank pay for British purchases made in Canada at a fixed rate of exchange, and British bank pay for Canadian purchases made in the United Kingdom at a corresponding rate. It is fixed periods there would be a general accounting, every six months, when difference between the total payments in the two countries would be paid and a fresh start made. The Governments would stand to protect the banks against loss in such agreements.

It is suggested that it would help the continual transfer of funds and the purchases of exchange in New York, and that in addition to economy, every importer would know just what the exchange rate between the two countries would be for a given period.

WHITE FLOUR WHITE SUGAR BIG ENEMIES

Toronto, Aug. 9—The corner candy store is a greater menace to the health than the old corner saloon, according to Dr. Martin Dewey, who said "Just a day like that I have arrest on medical times but it will not be for plenty of repetition—white flour and white sugar are the big enemies in the teeth of civilized peoples. Those are the culprits which are responsible for more ill health as far as teeth are concerned than any two articles you could mention.

"Potatoes run them a close second," said Dr. Dewey. "They are greatly over-estimated. Well overloaded with these articles result in acidosis which destroys normal health.

RAIN HALTS SEARCH FOR MORE BONES

Description of Spot on Owen Farm Where Bones Are Found

MANY OPINIONS

Moving of Sand Thought to Have Uncovered Skeletons

A deluge of rain early on Monday morning prevented the Provincial Police and many assistants from continuing the search for more bones in a segment close already found on the farm of Denis Owen, on the south side of Meyers' bay, which finding has aroused the excitement in the neighborhood. Provincial Constables W. H. Mercer (1928); P 0661674 A, series 1926; P 0660474 A series 1929; two $10 bills: C 001065 A, series 1926; A 19813539 A, series 1926; two $5 bills: E 023169 A, series 1926; D. 40796855 A, series 1926.

While the bank where the notes were deposited and police officials declined to give out this information for publication, the party who made known the serial numbers said there was no doubt as to their accuracy.

Halifax, Aug. 9—Three twenty-dollar United States bills, two tens and two fives, were definitely identified in a long distance conversation with police at Fredericton, N.B., today as bearing serial numbers corresponding to the ransom money in the Lindbergh case.

Police said they were not say whether the plate numbers, a small detail in the vast hoard some of the bills corresponded to those on the cash thrown over a cemetery

Neighborhood Excited

The finding of these human bones, including the skull, arm bones and ribs found together with the rib bones and vertebrae of a child assumed to be three to five years of age, in the sand at the interest of the entire community, the news of which was broadcast and caused excitement. Dr. Broderick of Campbellford is positive that the bones have not been in the pit more than three years and possibly may have been there a much shorter time but he is also positive the skull is that of a child, while the bones are those of a child.

Residents of the district for the past fifty years state no one to their knowledge has been buried in the pit or near there, while and has been taken from the pit no less than three years ago and no bodies were then seen.

Sand Washed Away.

It is apparent that the body at the time of burial was well covered but owing to its location in the pit, the action of the rain has caused the bodies to become partly uncovered. Dorothy Midgley, 11, who made the discovery, is positive that the skull was not there on Saturday. Mr. Pierce to have him remove the sand as he was convinced the skull was that of the child and that the bones, the other bones, said Dorothy, were only a short distance away. Last night the bodies were placed a short distance away and in accordance directions for raising price levels. It is felt that the problem is very varying and fluctuating exchanges is a very important one which demands solution if trade is to flow easily between the different parts of the Empire.

It is generally admitted that the currency and exchange conditions are involved and difficult, but there seems little difficulty in finding a solution if trade can be dealt with at length by experts. It is the case of finding the problems.

The sub-committee is headed by Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State for Canada, and the main currency committee has for its Chairman, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Why Ask Nova Scotia to Buy Canadian Car when School Won't use Their Coal

Oshawa, Ont., Aug. 9—The Oshawa Board of Education is determined to make every effort to secure Canadian coal for use in the schools of the city during the next winter. "Sydney, Nova Scotia, cannot be expected to buy Oshawa products unless they are willing to buy Nova Scotia coal," was the way in which one member of the board summed up the situation.

City and District News

CLOTHES CHEWED BY BRIDGE PIVOT

George Smeark, Walter Watson and Theodore Russell, well known local young men literally lost their shirts early Monday evening in a fruitless attempt to locate the truck thief. Street car traffic was tied up on the Bridge. They were forced to journey back to their bathing suits with only shreds of their clothing in their hands.

The boys, who had been diving in the deep water at the span on the bridge through which the truck had gone Saturday afternoon, had parked their clothing on the pivot of the bridge upon which the huge span swings. During their attempts to hook a rope or chain on the truck the span swung to allow a boat to pass and the clothing which had been left on the iron work in the path of the rollers was chewed to ribbons. Only a shoe and sock was recovered by Mr. Russell while the other boys were only slightly less lucky.

SWEEPER BARN ENTERED MONDAY

Windows and doors of the building are being further strengthened to prevent repetitions.

ANOTHER VERSION OF THE ACCIDENT

The report of an accident on the highway west of the city as given in the issue of Monday was taken from the account submitted to the police and as given by one of the participants and another version is given by the other participant, Albert Matthews, who operates the Matthews Transports out of this city. Mr. Matthews states, that he was driving west steering a truck which was being towed by a truck driven by his son, Gerfield Matthews, and that the driver of the Hoar transport truck, Melville Hall was allegedly on the wrong side of the road and apparently confused by the sight fog and lights. The Matthews truck was struck and knocked into the ditch and badly damaged and was only removed from its position by a wrecking crane. Mr. Matthews was not injured although he was shaken up from the impact. Traffic Officer Ryles was at the scene and investigated the accident.

OUTSIDE GARDENS ARE BEING RAIDED

Careful watch is being kept over garden produce by residents of the Marshall Road following several raids on outside gardens on the farms within the past few days during which time several plots have been stripped of vegetables and growing things, and great damage done to other standing crops. On the farm of Mr. John Bick, thieves stripped several plots of ripened produce, besides doing other robberies close by also report depredations of like nature. Footprints which are discovered in the soft ground early next day lead to the belief, that the miscreants are youths who entered the farms by the front road. Provincial Police are aiding in the investigation.

ROBLIN'S LAKE SCENE OF PICNIC

A very enjoyable afternoon was spent recently at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Bart Crosby, Roblin's Lake, when little Miss June Crosby was hostess to about 45 members and friends of the Liverpool Mission Band of the Tabernacle Church. The afternoon was spent in games and bathing and at five o'clock a short program of missionary work was put on after which delightful refreshments were served. The main feature was a large water melon, the gift of Mrs. Horton for which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered. Games and all joined in singing "For she's a jolly good fellow". A vote of thanks was also tendered Mr. Crosby and June for their kind invitation and gratitude to the Belleville motor boat ride on the lake was a grand finish to the afternoon's enjoyment.

With the welcoming roar of 105,000 voices in their ears the Canadian host team marched smartly attired in red jackets and white sweaters and trousers and as one section second to none at the opening ceremonies. Lou Wright of Toronto, one of Canada's outstanding carmen, carried the Canadian flag at the head of the Canadian contingent. According to reports received in the Deacon Shirt Company who supplied the red jackets worn by the Canucks, the Canadians were the best attired of any group of athletes at Los Angeles. This statement speaks well of Canada and adds considerable honor to Belleville where part of the official uniform of the Canadian athletes was manufactured.

The picture was taken last Saturday and arrived in Toronto, fully developed, by mail, on Monday morning, where it was received by Mr. Fred Deacon.

NOTED ORIENTAL VISITS IN CITY

RECORD YIELDS ARE REPORTED

Seed and produce dealers in the city, who have been buying up surplus stocks of grain from threshing in this district report favorable crops and in many instances record yield per acre. Some sections have averaged from forty to forty-five bushels per acre. Much of the wheat however, is shrunken in size, due to the fact that the heads upon which matured the wheat did not ripen across enough. This has not declared harmful except for'chicken grains, which would not grade perfect under the judges' eyes.

MERCURY AT 76 DEGREES

No marked difference has been noticed in the variation of temperatures during the past week. The mercury registered 78 high and 58 low. TRAILER LICENSES CAN BE HAD HERE

From the office of the Provincial Motor Vehicles Police was issued a warning to all private owners of small trailers that they could not purchase their license plates for trailers locally. In past years such licenses had to be purchased from the Department of Highways in Toronto, but these trailer licenses for small privately owned trailers can now be procured in Belleville. No further excuse for the non-purchasing of such licenses will be accepted by the traffic officers.

Likes Rougher North Scenery

Mr. Edwin Hirsch, Missouri, prominent newspaper grower of district of St. Louis, reached Belleville-Quinte district shortly after an extended trip through Canada, far from the beaten roads and always-busy tourists route commonly used. He registered in the visitors' book at the Chamberlain Hotel recently took time off to pay glowing tribute to the Belleville country and the courtesy which has been shown him since he crossed the border. "If circumstances permitted I'd make this trip every year," he declared. "I never saw such a friendly bunch."

Mr. Hirsch admits a fondness for the rougher country in Canada. Instead of sticking to paved roads the little roadster which he uses on his continental tour goes through the narrow roads of the northland. After marking out a route on the map in the Chamber of Commerce, which will take him by Ottawa, the Nipissing district, Mr. Hirsch continued the trip in his roadster with the top down with him which has been his companion on the trip.

AFTER ACCIDENT MEN ARRESTED

Found planked under an automobile near Solomon's curve at the eastern town limits of Brighton, Peter Murray of Belleville was rushed to a nearby doctor for medical assistance by County Constable Atkinson, who later arrested Murray.

Accompanied by George Belch of Thurlow, whose car was driving Murray and Belch left Belleville bound for Brighton early Monday afternoon. After the motor accident, which occurred just east of the Belch farm, Belch disappeared from the scene of the accident. Later he was arrested by Constable Atkinson. A quantity of liquor was found in the car in the overturned car and later Constable Atkinson brought Belch to Belleville leaving Murray in care of the doctor.

Upon their arrival in Belleville, Constable Atkinson took his prisoner in the office of the Provincial Police, who later in company with the prisoner and the officer went to the Belch farm. Mr. Belch and as the result of an investigation found a quantity of home brew beer, which was confiscated.

Charges will likely be preferred against Murray and Belch later. The injuries received by Murray were only of a minor nature.

SKUNKS HOLD RIGHT OF WAY

Motorists Near Rossmore Yield All Rights to "Pussies"

Brakes squeal and wary motorists still cede the right of way on the highways to "skips" and their kittens whenever she wishes to cross it.

Early Monday evening on the Picton road, not far from Rossmore, while several cars waited in both directions whimsied merrily along, a mother skunk took a notion to cross the road with less concern than she would exhibit in her native forest valley far back in the woods. Huddled against her side as she paused was a family of half grown, while trailing along behind in solemn fashion came three more. Mr. Fred Wickett, Amelisburg, whose car led several others, acted promptly and drew up to a halt. Others behind him also stopped to let the pussies cross. The family party ambled over the pavement with little heed, nosed through the brush in the side of the road and disappeared in the woods. Motor again accelerated and traffic continued.

L.Y.R.A. Regatta Opens at Cobourg Under Fair Auspices

Cobourg, Ont., Aug. 9 (By The Canadian Press)—Perfect sailing weather with a good stiff breeze prevailed on the Lake Ontario Racing Association three-day regatta here today. In the first race the divisions were driving before the wind around the triangular course on the west shore of Lake Ontario with finishes due in late afternoon.

Conewago, Rochester Yacht Club's winner of the Canada's Cup, and Cayuga, which trimmed her Sunday in the Toronto-Frenman Cup Race, trailed Vision of Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto, when the eight-metre craft got away. Conewago pulled away second, Quest of R.C.Y.C. third and Cayuga R.Y.C. fourth.

Off To Good Start

Though Conewago was the focal point of interest, the fleet settled out before the breeze at the start of the division 111 race it was believed that Quest was the boat to be liking.

Gardanis rim R.C.Y.C. entry got away to an excellent start in the second race, with the wind at first a comfortable margin at the end of the first leg's finish.

The fleet got away with the majority of the 11 starters in division Y favoring the windward. The first seven of the 12 divisions make two laps, ends of the three cornered course, the others one only.

TWO ARE TIED IN BANKERS

Tricky Weather Condition Hamper Marksmen on Ranges

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Connaught Ranges, Ottawa, Aug. 9—Firing in decidedly trick weather conditions, Sergeant Major Hamilton, and Corporal L. H. Vaines, of the Dominion Rifle Club, of a possible 100 to tie for first place in the Bankers' Match, shot at the Dominion Rifle Association meeting here today. The first relay of the match, 300 yards, was fired yesterday, the marksmen finishing up at 600 yards today. Both Sweet and Vaines had scored possibles at the 300 yard range and finished up with one point short of the perfect score.

Behind the leaders came nine other marksmen with 98 and eight shots out of a possible 100.

Although the weather was fine for spectators, it was not very good for shooting. A blazing sun created considerable heat waves and a wind crossed the ranges, making calculations very difficult. Despite this, however, the scoring was high. So far not a single match of the meet, which opened yesterday, has been decisively decided. In every match there are nine ties for cups and medals, with first money being divided.

FRONT LADIES HOLD MEETING

The regular meeting of the Front Road Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Mary Hall on Thursday afternoon with a splendid attendance.

After quilting two quilts for Mrs. Hall, the president, Mrs. S. Snider, called the meeting to order and opened the devotional exercises by singing "I Need Thee Every Hour" with Mrs. C. R. Leavens at the piano.

Rev. Mr. Keough, pastor of the church, who was present, then led in prayer and read the Scripture Lesson, Psalm 96.

Mrs. A. Clarke performed the duties of the secretary in the absence of Mrs. Edwards, secretary treasurer.

A few mile bones were brought in at this meeting, and the decision made to still follow this method of raising funds for the society as it has been found more profitable than bazaars or socials.

Mrs. C. Wilkinson invited the Aid to meet at her home in September and the meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Mrs. Hall served the cute, hearty lunch assisted by Mrs. W. C. MacDonald, Mrs. T. J. Brown, Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Frank Wickett.

FORMER NEIGHBORS MEET AT RE-UNION

Another happy reunion of families and friends took place at Oak Lake on Tuesday, when over one hundred people gathered to re-live in happy reminiscence the good times gone by, and renew again the close bonds of friendship between the representative families assembled. Some years ago a number of people amongst them the Hinchcliffes, Hands, Pearces, Pooley, Pells, Sprackett's, Wilson's, Hoards and Dobbs families lived together in the townships of Tudor Limerick and Dalhousie. Today they are widely scattered but year after year all together for at least one day annually. This year the meeting was held informarried until the gathering consisted of only the original charter men, but those near and dear to them. On this day they came from Belleville Trenton, Toronto, Rochester, Springbrook, Wooler, Derbyville, Milbridge and Picton.

The festivities opened with a sumptuous dinner after which the afternoon spot quickly away as races, ball games and bathing were indulged in. Those who did not participate in these events could be seen grouped about in happy family chatting together.

Mrs. Percy Wilson of Springbrook, had perhaps the distinction of being the oldest lady present that day, for she has passed the eighty mark. But she was as young as the youngest, experiencing a real pleasure in visiting with her old friends.

During the afternoon Mr. James Hinchcliffe of Milbridge was unanimously elected to the office of President of this annual assemblage and Miss Grace Pooley of Picton as secretary.

It is anticipated that the same event will take place next year on the Tuesday following Civic Holiday at Oak Lake; and among the above mentioned families it presages to be one of the happiest events of the year.

LADY PANNIFORD'S FOLLY ENDS TO-NIGHT

ARTISTS STIR CHAUTAUQUA AUDIENCES

Brilliant Performance by Musicians And Impersonator

Artists who have attained distinction and fame in the music world, brought to Belleville yesterday by the Canadian Chautauqua provided an entertainment of rare pleasure to audiences on both afternoon and evening. "The Artist Trio", as the group is known, is composed of Hugo Brandt, Polish pianist and composer, whose playing has been acclaimed in Europe and North America; Leola Aikman, a brilliant coloratura soprano, her voice a marvel of beauty and tone, and Vladimar Lenski, a violinist with the touch of a master.

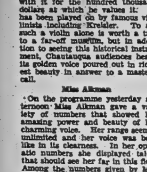
Virtuoso Appears

Of the three musicians, perhaps Vladimar Lenski excited the most interest, not alone for his superb playing but for the fact that he has in his possession a treasure in the instrument he uses. He is the owner of the oldest violin in the world; the only genuine Caspard Duiffopruggar. It is almost two hundred years older than the Stradivarius, having been made in 1516. This wonderful violin Mr. Lenski guards as the apple of his life. He has been offered fifty thousand dollars for it but would not part with it for one hundred thousand dollars at which he values it. It has been played by famous violinists including Kreisler. To see such a violin alone is worth a trip to a far-off musuffin, but in addition to seeing this historical instrument, Chautauqua audiences heard its golden voice poured out in rich-est beauty in answer to a master's call.

Miss Aikman

On the programme yesterday afternoon Miss Aikman gave a variety of numbers that showed the amazing power and beauty of her charming voice. Her range appeared unlimited and her voice was bell-like in its clearness. In her operatic numbers she displayed talent that should see her far in the field. Among the numbers given by Miss Aikman were Violetta's song from Verdi's "La Traviata", "Lucinbeau Gardens", "Love's Old Sweet Song", "The Bear", "My Lady is a Flirt-erman", "Wings of Night," "Little Star" and a group of children's songs, "Big Brown Bear," "Circus in the Sky", and "Animal Crackers." Mr. Brandt acted as accompanist for Miss Aikman and in her final numbers, "O Sole Mio" "Dusty, Maiden Fair" and "Spanish Waltz" Mr. Lenski played violin accompaniment.

Marvellous Playing



Vladimar Lenski revealed himself as a virtual genius in his offerings yesterday. The depth and richness of tone that he drew forth from his marvelous violin and his execution of movements rarely attempted in violin literature were nothing short of marvellous. As well as such favorite compositions as Schubert's "Ave Maria," Chaminade's "Serenade Espagnole" and old melodies arranged for the violin by Kreisler, Mr. Lenski played two numbers of his own composition "Scherso-Caprice" and "Chinese Lullaby."

Hugo Brandt, the pianist of the trio, held the audience spellbound with his art. Famous works were played with a keen insight into the composer's manner and his technique was perfect. His program included old Hondo, a graceful, light-hearted air, Chopin's "Waltz in C Sharp Minor," "Slavic Dance" of his own composition, "Hungarian Rhapsody" and other beautiful numbers. In the afternoon he aided the audience to mention favorite tunes and made each of these be played a medley that received an ovation.

Children's Part

The children were given a chance to take part in the programme at night when Mr. Brandt asked them to identify various airs as he played them. The perception of the children was remarkable. Mr. Brandt hardly finished the first bar of each piece before some one persons in the front rows were ready with the answer, always correct. The pianist commented on the instantaneous way in which the children responded which he asserted was most unusual in the places he visited.

The second part of the evening's programme was entertainment of all entirely different but fascinating nature. John Radio, an impersonator who is inimitable in his field gave an hour's programme that will long be remembered. With sympathetic understanding, Mr. Radio portrayed many characters, his impersonation of world famous figures being the result of long study and research in order that characteristics would be flawlessly shown. Beginning as an old time farmer, Mr. Radio became in turn, Kipling's soldier of "Gunga Din," a benevolent preacher at a rugby match, an old German violinist, broken-hearted at the loss of his violin, Lloyd George, Georges Clemenceau, Woodrow Wilson, William K. Gladstone. His dialogue was clever between acts as he gave many very amusing character studies.

A THRILL for parents

It's a lot of satisfaction to see the children eat heartily. For it's a cheery sign of well-being —of vigor, and health.

WHEAT CROP ALL GARNERED

Farmers Now Cutting Barley, Mixed Grain And Oat Harvest

Toronto, Aug. 9— Wheat harvesting in Ontario is nearly completed, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and much of the threshing of wheat is finished in the more advanced districts. Barley, mixed grain and oat harvest is now in full swing.

Continued frequent rains in Eastern Ontario are causing considerable delay in harvesting for farmers of that district. A more generous supply of rain is proving beneficial, however, to Sudbury and Timiskaming districts. Northern Ontario districts which have suffered all summer from drought. The rain is materially aiding pastures, late potatoes, roots, corn and late grain crops.

More summer fallowing is noticed throughout the province by agricultural representatives. Farmers, they state, are taking advantage of the showery days to plough and prepare for next year's sowing.

Noting the damage that is being caused to wheat fields by the Hessian Fly, the Department of Agriculture advises farmers to sow fall wheat later than usual. The Hessian Fly is much more troublesome in early sown wheat, officials state.

Natural gas reserves for the city of Edmonton have been increased greatly this summer through successful drilling of wells in the Village of Elnaella areas of eastern Alberta.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Where Too Much Was Only Enough

Who by his appetite is ruled
You'll seldom find in wisdom schooled.

—Old Mother Nature

Grandfather Frog the Bullfrog is nothing if not a glutton. Everything is gluttonous. He knows too much and does too much that is foolish. He always has been a glutton and probably always will be. When food is to be had the only time he stops trying to get more is when he can't get in half that no more can go down that big throat of his. Even then he isn't satisfied, but wants more. He may be wise in some matters but in eating he is a fool. Yes, sir, he lacks wisdom.

Just now Grandfather Frog was a sight to behold. He was sitting on a flat rock the top of which was just below the surface of the Smiling Pool and very near the edge. As he sat there he was mostly out of water. Had you happened along just then you would have wondered what strange creature you had discovered. You see Grandfather Frog had tried to swallow a fish that was bigger than himself, so that even had his stomach been stretched to its utmost he couldn't possibly have swallowed that whole fish all at one time. But his stomach was already full when he caught that fish, which had been hurt by Longlegs the Heron, and could hardly swim. That is an opportunity that Grandfather Frog simply couldn't resist, so here he was with that fish's head down his throat, and that was about all. The tail and most of the body were still projecting from his mouth.

Just now, almost any one but Grandfather Frog would have decided that enough was enough and more would be too much. They might have hidden that fact from him, but he certainly wouldn't have tried to swallow it when they knew that they took from me it. "Never have I seen such greed," exclaimed Old Mr. Toad in disgust. "I do believe that fish has stuck in his throat and that is why Grandfather Frog is not get rid of it. Serves him right, I say. Serves him right!"

Grandfather Frog kept on swimming along and when he saw Grandfather Toad he began to grin. "that", said he, "is what I call too much of a good thing." Grandfather Frog, I see you haven't gained wisdom with age. You certainly know too much this time. Shall I pull that fish out for you?"

Of course Grandfather Frog couldn't say a word but he shook his head. No, he wanted that that couldn't be mistaken. He had no intention of giving up that fish. It was his and he meant to keep it even if it was impossible for him to swallow it. He rolled his big goggly eyes and tried hard to get that fish a little further down.

"Greedy! Greedy! Greedy!" cried Redwing the Blackbird, flying down from the top of an alder bush.

"Greedy! Greedy!" echoed Jerky the Kingfisher.

At this Jerky Muskrat grinned again, appreciating how more than once he had seen Rattles bite off more than he could chew in his eagerness to get down to go down.

"This would be a good time for Longlegs the Heron to come along," remarked Jerry Muskrat-coon. "He would get a double meal, Frog and fish at the same time."

"Speaking of Longlegs, that looks like him coming up from the Big River now," said Redwing.

Sure enough Grandfather Frog rolled his goggly eyes frantically and then dived with a splash. With that fish in his way he couldn't do otherwise than splash. Down to the bottom he went where he ran a stream, still holding on to that fish. Oh Mr. Toad also related, for he had no desire to be seen by Longlegs.

It was some time later when he again saw Grandfather Frog. Just the tip of the tail of the fish was visible and even as Old Mr. Toad watched that disappeared. Grandfather Frog gulped two or three times. "There!" said he. "You thought I had too much, but you see it was only enough," said he. "Just right" exclaimed Old Mr. Toad in disgust.

Portsmouth, Eng., Aug. 9 — Mrs. Victor Bruce took off today in her third attempt to establish a new endurance flight record. In the past week two attempts ended in failure because of mechanical difficulties in her plane.

HELPING WITH THE HARVEST

President Lebrun of France arrived at the home of his brother, Gabriel, in Lorraine, in time to help cut the wheat harvest. Lebrun, a son and grandson of sturdy Lorraine farmers enjoys working in the fields when he can steal a few days away from the cares of office in Paris. Gabriell as a boy stayed on the farm while his now famous brother went to the Ecole Polytechnique at Paris and began the rise to the presidency.

Once again here is a lesson as old as the hills teaching men not to forget their first step. A farmer once led the Roman armies to victory and then returned to the farm. It is wonder these men do climb when they have the merits of stability of character and a love of the foundation industry, agriculture.

France has produced many noble men in public life who have preserved their head in the midst of clashes and temptations which might have made them rich. They have become famous but not rich. To them there are no apoils of office.

Legend tells of a man who could not be conquered while he retained his feet on the earth, but who when lifted up was slain. President Lebrun and other Frenchmen have retained their feet on mother Earth and are rooted in agriculture. They cannot be moved.

PRICELESS

Pieces of wood glued together four hundred and seventeen years ago were in Belleville yesterday—like the treasured pieces of wood in the music world, pieces for which fifty thousand dollars has been offered and whose value is set at one hundred thousand dollars, at least, by the owner.

It is a violin—a Gasparo Duiffopruggar owned by Vladimar Lenski, noted virtuoso. Those who heard it now know why almost any price is not large enough for it.

These are days when changes of values have been marked, but the value of such an instrument remains, because it has a primary value not to the money world which is subject to fluctuation, not because it is the most beautiful of wood in the world, but because it links itself most closely to the soul of man in music.

Fifty or a hundred thousand dollars is much to pay but it is worth it that men will place a figure of such magnitude on this instrument, not for the mere sense of possession for that is miserliness or mere show as in the case of shelves of unread books in peerless bindings, but because of an indissoluble tie which springs up between the artist and the instrument.

There are some things without price, the best things in life are without price, except the price of sacrifice. Even the things not spiritual and moral exist in these values such as violins and treasures which owe their worth to what they can give man and woman in the way of spiritual value.

It would be a poor paltry trashy world if such things as musical instruments did bear a great price and were not the apple of man's eye.

HANDICAPS

Handicaps in life are opportunities said Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick of New York, warning the three thousand persons in his congregation on Sunday against rebellion or self-pity and citing to them the case of Helen Keller.

Dr. Fosdick challenged his congregation to the heroism of life—"Stop looking over the fence and day dreaming what you would do with another man's field. Your limitations are also your possibilities. Remember God will never judge us by the masses. Each one of us will have a private examination," he said.

Those who are inclined to pity themselves for their setting in life were shown how the faultless Apollo who never had a handicap, who with integrated personality, fortunate circumstances, and physical health has lived untroubled by limitations and however energetic may be his active service in the world cannot do some things for us that Helen Keller can. "She is handicapped, blind, deaf, and dumb, doors shut on every side, except one door at least that every all her handicaps can never shut—her chance to be a radiant soul in a difficult situation. That does something for us that no shining Apollo can.

"You cannot get this cult out of the atheistic cults they are trying to substitute for profound religion. If there are hours when you say you hate your handicaps, I quite so. Even Christ prayed against the cross. That was a handicap. My friends, it was not the Greek Apollo, charioteer of the victorious sun, that won the world. It was the handicapped and crucified Christ."

ROYSTON SHE SNEERED

Did you ever wonder just how far you walked in a day's duties? Jack Farn, proprietor of the Orange Cafe, thought he was running up quite a mileage, in the suggestion Celestial purchased a pedometer, which like Mary's little lamb goes everywhere that Jack does. At the end of the day the instrument showed that he had walked 12½ miles from kitchen to dining-room and from dining-room to kitchen. Maybe this was a busy day, but according to Jack he is wearing out his shoes at the rate he is going, at least 12 miles a day.—Kincardine Review-Reporter.

VITAMIN D ISOLATED

After ten years of research at Columbia university a process for the extraction of pure vitamin D directly from cod liver oil has been perfected by Professor Harry T. Zucker. Hitherto this vitamin, which helps the body to stave off disease, strengthens the bones of growing children, and prevents rickets, has been produced artificially. The discovery largely of British investigators, that ten years ago a method of creating vitamin D by placing cod liver oil upon a substance known as ergosterol. But science knows no national boundaries. It is the single spade-work in the discovery of the vitamin we enjoy to-day, whether the ultimate triumph was theirs, suggesting which path to take and research the right direction came from a German chemist. Now, in the United States, the natural product has been isolated, the extract being in liquid form, perfected at last. Columbia is no more difficult than Europe for manufacturing on an artificial substance and the extract can be made a thousand times the strength of the vitamin D obtained in cod liver oil. The concentrate can be added to any food in food, so that we may expect in the near future to see the vitamin to supply the deficiencies of sunshine in the winter. Already the process has been patented by the university to prevent its exploitation. — Hamilton Spectator.

MUNICIPAL INCOME TAX

Municipal income tax has been the subject of considerable discussion in the press of this province, showing that it is a live issue in many municipalities. It appears to those who would abolish it altogether, and others who would so modify the regulations that it could be enforced uniformly in all parts of the province. There are some districts where no attempt is made to collect it. There are districts where a half-hearted attempt is made to collect it, and in a few places a serious attempt is made to enforce it.

This is the greatest point of criticism with regard to the municipal income tax, namely, the lack of uniformity in its enforcement. Cities which ignore the law are decided advantage over places where it is collected. In attracting new citizens, in fact in many of the cities which openly boast of the fact that municipal income tax is not imposed. It is true that some municipalities have made a practical strike at the present time—but nevertheless it is an undesirable thing that there should be this lack of uniformity. This journal has never definitely advocated the abolition of the tax; although we have gone so far as to say that it should either be enforced uniformly and fairly, or abolished altogether. — Chatham News.

CRASH! MOTOR SPEEDERS

Judging by the number of convictions in recent weeks, the Ontario authorities are in earnest in their determination to make the highways of that province safe for all the average motorist.

There is surely any intelligent reason for driving a car beyond a reasonable speed, except perhaps in an emergency, fast driving may be justified. For the most part it is merely crashness.

One of the most frequent causes of fatal driving is the impulse of many to pass someone on the way to nowhere in particular. Which gives point to the Chinese observer's description of Western civilization as "motion without motive." Some speed maniac might just as well be driving around an enclosed course speedway as on the public highways. Perhaps something of the kind may eventually be provided for those interested in the speed virus.—Winnipeg Tribune.

STORM DAMAGE

GRIMSBY Aug. 9.—Heavy damage to fruit and grain crops in the Grimsby-Beamsville district was caused by two hail-storms which struck this area yesterday. Government fruit inspector, using calipers measured some of the stones, the largest of which was three and one-sixteenth inches in diameter. The district affected by the storm was perhaps the heaviest sufferer from the hail-storms, which were sharp-pointed, and which not only caused damage to the fruit, grapes, pear, and grape crops, but also flattened the grain crops on the Mountain. The storm was accompanied by a high wind and lightning, disrupted the Hydro power lines for a short time. An accurate estimate of the damage to the crops will not be available for a few days.

PSYCHOLOGY UTILIZED BY EMPLOYERS

Struggle of Competition Demands Expert Knowledge

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Especially these times, when business is so bad that it should be, it would be well for employers to think of psychology and the help it may give them in carrying on their business successfully. Employer must be adept such ideas, if he is to withstand the struggle of competition and maintain his position in the business world. Nobody can sit back and adopt a policy of neck and watchful waiting. In fact, the time is propitious now for the man for the progressive man with new ideas, who is not afraid to put his theories into execution by harnessing them to scientific findings.

The employer who always wants to improve his product and its distribution, business methods, and production and the price of the manufactured article, must first accomplish these desirable things unless he considers carefully all the economic factors that affect his business, no matter how little importance it may be.

In the last analysis, the efficiency of the men and women who operate the machines. And in every organization, whether manufacturing or sales, the work of the employees determines what the profits shall be, and what success eventually will be.

Since human therefore must take so much cognizance of the psychology of the times, that psychology should enter into the question. The progressive employer must learn something of how the human mind—how best to employ it, to encourage it, to interest it further his own interests, as well as the interests of those who work with him for a common purpose.

It is noteworthy that that many business men have failed because they never mapped out a program, or really knew what they were heading for — what they wanted to accomplish. Without this thing, therefore, is to set the stake for failure. Sometimes we see it in such a way that it can remain an ever present incentive to all employees. Too often drones from the path previously outlined by the original founder of the business, going always forward, and to what? To certain definite objective.

Employers must learn how to find and develop the right leaders. The job of hiring and firing is not pleasant, and usually is delegated to subordinates. This is wrong mind, is one reason why many organizations are run on a wasteful way, and why often they go under. The object of the employer is to find the best men and women to work and through them to adopt the best possible methods. If one is careless in hiring and discharging employees, but only the greatest efficiency is maintained, but the whole human organization vital to the success of the business is undermined.

If the employer can somehow make his employees take an interest in a business, he is accomplishing a tremendous lot for himself and for the best interest of the business as a whole. Employers, who often try to gain his ends through by force and punishment. One should always watch realizes and impulsive men, for they are usually full of undue brilliance and profundity. Many times the thoughts of the tongue are yet very superficial and undigested. They impress by what they say but seldom by what they do.

Another most important item is the recognition of work well done. An employer should always be afraid to give praise when well-deserved. In fact, if we praise more and scolded less we'd all get along much better, for better.

Psychology has so much that this article cannot cover all the possibilities of which, but there are many books on this subject available in public libraries which will find out more about psychology as applied to business.

Letters to The Editor

WHY NOT A "BELLE ISLE."

To the Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir:

After an automobile trip to Orillia and the beautiful park on Lake Couchiching, one realizes what would be accomplished with Zwick's Island, so ideally situated. Firstly as a park for our citizens, and secondly a place where tourists can spend a few quiet hours. This would be made possible, by building a road to cross from the Water Front Place to the island. A driveway made to encircle the island, and connecting with the Bay Bridge road. The ground levelled, trees planted to provide shade, beautified with flowers and shrubs, buildings erected, such as boat houses (with boats for hire), bathing houses, (this has been a long felt need), band stand, booths, etc. Where gravel has been removed a splendid bathing pool could be made for smaller children. Surely it is not enough to plant a few trees, and cut some of the brush, when so much more could be done. This may be a dream, but the work could be done.

Hon. Charles McCrea Thinks Empire Conference Huge Success

Sudbury, Ont., Aug. 9.—"Be of good heart and good cheer. I believe we are on the fairway toward recovery and within the next 90 days business will take an upturn. Prosperity hops, and expectation, and promise for revival of business this fall than I have seen for years," was the optimistic message delivered last night by Hon. Mr. McCrea expressed the greatest faith in the outcome of the Imperial Conference, and said "As the whole world's economic system has been demolished," he declared, "and these Imperial statesmen are gathered together at Ottawa to start the trade channels of the Empire flowing."

DREAMS

We dream our dreams in life's brief hour
They glid the dark of each drear day,
They lead us on 'mid sun and shower,
They gladden all the weary way;
They cheer us too when friends are few.
Untold, when joy doth pass us by,
They bring us scenes we never knew
And tears of doubt and dread, defy.

Oh! lose not then life's precious dream
Lose not the hopes that stir thy breast,
If pure thy ideals glow and gleam.
Thou'lt stand the time of trial and test;
For dreams are idle not, nor vain,
They breathe of hope and faith and love,
They change our loss to richest gain
And lead from earth to Heaven above.

Saw a mocking-bird nesting,
In sun and mountain rain.

She never wrote a poem—
She couldn't hum a tune,
But she could feel a banjo thrum

Spectators Have to do Run Around at Los Angeles to View the Different Events

EIGHTS READY

Water Polo Players Attack Referee and Barred From Games

(By Elmer Dalimage, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 9—The Olympic multitudes up to now have been able to take it in at least a little of everything every day at the 10th Olympic Games. But they'll have to work harder some competitors if they plan viewing everything the great spectacle has to offer in its scattered rings today.

The only event at Olympic Stadium is the second of the three demonstrational lacrosse games, in which the Canadian All-Stars are determined to even the count with the United States who beat them in a suddenly-halted contest Sunday by 3 to 0. At Coliseum the 3-mile afternoon would make Friday's 10-mile grind look like the 220 contest.

There is swimming this morning and more swimming this afternoon at the Olympic swimming stadium, rowing out at Long Beach this afternoon and evening at the Olympic auditorium and a couple of gymnastic displays for good measure.

But the bulk of the crowd will journey to the rowing course where the heats in three sculling, four-oared shells with cox, and doubles—stake boat an all requirement for greater things to come Wednesday when eight-oared and other crews start their battles.

Pearce is Favorite

Bobby Pearce of Hamilton, Ont., Australia's hope alone of all entries in the singles sculling world, opens the ball at 10 o'clock. Pearce is racing for his native Australia's hookup up with the boulevard of sports great English oarsman, who has so far just failed of victory in the Grand Diamond Sculls, and Guillmero Douglas of Uruguay, South American "mystery man."

Canadian crews are not engaged in the other rowing events on today's card. The Mic Macs of Halifax, winners in the grueling Olympic trial at Port Dalhousie, get into action in preliminaries of the fourth eight-oared event, Wednesday while the great Leander eight from Hamilton start in one of the semi-finals of the Olympic title against some of the stiffest competition the world has ever produced including an eight from London that trimmed Cambridge over Oxford and won the grand challenge cup at Henley.

Walter Spence of Montreal, only Canadian swimmer to reach the semi-finals of the Olympics in the men's free style championship, comes back today in try and work in the finals. Dorothy Prior of Toronto, is in the women's 200 metre breast stroke finals.

Calm settled down on the Olympic pad swimming arena as the aquatic artists of the world returned to the routine of record breaking after a small riot which disturbed yesterday's events.

Three Brazilian stars were barred from further competition and that country's water polo team was disqualified as a result of their attack on Referee Kenneth Ellsworth, referee.

The wild scramble of flying fists and kicking feet came as a climax to the third game of the series and gave raw one world's record bettered for the fifth time and two new Olympic marks set up, one of them for the fifth time.

Still a Champ

Helene Madison, Seattle's 20 year old breaker of free style records, proved she is still the greatest 100 metre sprinter in the world, by winning the final in 1 minute 6.8 second, defeating Willemina (Wim) Oudeh, young Dutch girl, by two metres.

The United States as a result, took the leadership in women's team scoring with 17 points, against 5 for Holland and one for South Africa.

There is a strong chance that this lead will be lost today with only the finals of the women's 200 metre breast stroke for Clare Dennis, 19 year old Australian girl, set a new Olympic record in the semi-finals with Margaret Hoffman, Los Angeles, Pa., trailing.

The United States moved into the men's team leadership over Japan yesterday, when Clarence (Buster) Crabbe won the springboard diving title, with Harold Smith and Richard Degener, both of Yankeeland Station, second and third and Al. Philips, Toronto, fourth. The count now stands 27 for United States, 16 for Japan, 3 for Canada and 1 for Germany.

Knocks and Boosts

Wednesday's C.O.B.L. mail game looms considerable in the Belleville Nationals insofar as they have to win at least one more game to assure themselves of a play-off for second place with the Petes, that is providing the Petes win their remaining three games, while if the Nats win two of their remaining games they can coast into a play-off position with the Ponies.

The Ponies, on the other hand, are out to set up a league record this year by winning their entire six games against the Nationals. They also can establish another record by winning all of their league games against two of their foes, they don't lose another game during the league schedule. The Ponies are on the other hand, are smarting under the defeats received at the hands of the Petes so far this year and plenty of action is assured the fans Wednesday. It has to be acknowledged, however, that the locals have dropped a couple of real hard luck games to the Ponies lately.

Manager Gerow will toss either Tommy Pointer or Carl Carey in against the hard hitting Ponies and if he succeeds, as per usual, either "Peeny" Mills thumb will be called upon to do the catching or mix or not. In case Mills cannot do the receiving then Ken Chamberlain or Bob Grierson will be on the receiving end. The egotistic Yankee-baiter Jack Cochrane will be on the hilltop for the Kingstonians when Trenton, Ont., comes. We've heard that Jack Corcoran's Masked Marvel will perform in the Kingston-Belleville game in person.

Which reminds us that there are but 600 reserved seats on sale for Wednesday's game. Well folks here's a tip: we understand that there is to be a contingent of police officers on duty at the ball park and any scalper caught get into a "jam" if they try some of their "Shylock" tactics. (It's just a tip boys).

One can purchase standing room for "two bits" so why take the chance of "chance playing" fine, or scalpin' The matches all look to be of a high class nature and we believe that Corcoran will stage a real up to the minute wrestling bout as he wants to stage outstanding matches in Belleville all fair and square. The opening bout of Bobby Samson and Frankie Hart should see action aplenty as both lads are agile and can both give and take punishment. The semi-final bout between Jack Magni, ex-Canadian champ, and Trader Horn looks like a natural as both boys are of the rough and ready nature. The main bout between the Masked Marvel and Rod LaRocque, the Prince de Paris may will be the first heavyweight wrestling bout ever to be seen locally. Then, they weigh well over 200 lbs. and can hold their own with the best of them. LaRocque is classed in with wrestlers the calibre of Jim London and Ed. "Strangler" Lewis. The Frenchman has been on his way since 1928 boys, and although he came out second best against the world's champion, Ed. "Strangler" Lewis, to get one full out of the possible three, LaRocque is noted for his rough, tough tactics and is usually booed by the fans while in action.

The first game of the Men's senior softball league finals will be played at the Victoria Park ball night when the Continental Life team battle the Canada Cement club of Front Anne. The Point Anne Anglers are slight favorites to send but the "insurance lads" have their back to the wall and may pull the unexpected surprise by beating their rivals tonight.

After over two hours deliberation the executive of the Belleville and District Girls' Softball League decided to leave the managers a proposition by the league that the second placed teams are to play a three out of five series for second in the league title. The suggestion brought forward by the executive was accepted unanimously by the team managers, except by Manager Lloyd Hall in Maple Leaf, who contended that if there was to be a play-off series it should be the "round robin" type and therefore allow his team a chance.

Manager Meagher, of the National Maids, moved that the suggestion of the executive be adopted while both managers White of the Chaco, and Domenico of the Belleville Frank team, opposed the motion and the fans will now see plenty of girls softball with much interest being shown. The meeting brought to light many instances and after talking them over it was found that the managers do not love each other at all. There is nothing in the present girls softball constitution to warrant a play-off series being played. It can only be co-operated with the teams in general that the executive suggested a playoff between the first and second place clubs. There may be a tie between the first and the Belleville Frank for second place, in such a case a sudden death game will be played on Friday night to decide second position in the league.

MONTE WEAVER PRIZE ROOKIE IN BASEBALL

Has Beaten Every Team in American League at Least Once

CARDS WIN TWICE

Defeat Phillies to Shove Them Down in 2nd Division

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Walter Johnson perhaps has few rivalous now of winning an American League pennant with big Washington Senators this season but at least he has uncovered the most effective pitching rookie in the circuit.

Monte M. Weaver, who quit mathematical calculations to cast his lot with baseball, now leads both leagues in games won and lost with 18 victories and only five defeats. His first real league test this year men seems to be Lou Warneke of the Chicago Cubs.

Beats Every Club

Weaver has beaten every club in the American League at least once. He has whipped the Philadelphia Athletics five times; Boston and Chicago thrice; New York, Cleveland and St. Louis twice and Detroit once. Of his five defeats, three were handed him by St. Louis. The others are credited to New York and Chicago. What makes Weaver's record all the more remarkable is that he suffered three defeats in one five-day period and now has not lost a game since June 14.

He needed and got luck yesterday, however, to chalk up his 18th triumph at the expense of the Cleveland Indians. He was battered for ten hits and was driven to cover in the sixth inning when the Indians rallied for two runs, within one of a tie. Hildebrand, Connally and Brown held the Senators five hits but three Cleveland errors spelled defeat. The Senators counted five times in the second on six hits, two walks and errors by Averill and Burnett. The latter's second inning error was the way for two more runs in the fourth.

National League

The only other clash in action the St. Louis Cardinals and Phillies put in exactly five hours and seven minutes actual playing time as the Cards won both games, 7-6 and 6-4 in eleven innings. The Phils, as a result, dropped into fifth place in the National League standing. Three runs rallies in the eighth and ninth innings gave the Cardinals the opening game. Jimmy Collin's 18 homer with Bottomley on base won the nightcap. Pitching in a relief role, Dizzy Dean held the Phils to two hits in the last six innings of the second game.

A new light weight water proof material with dull surface and feeling of suede has been perfected.

TRADER HORN

Trader Horn is no stranger in Belleville. Last fall, when Jack Corcoran first introduced the wrestling game into Belleville at the Arena, Trader Horn was one of the favorites to defeat Jack Kogut in the semi-final bout of the evening. Kogut is the ex-Canadian champ and Horn is a young up—and—coming youngster. This bout means action.

MASKED MARVEL IS IN THE CITY

All is Ready For The Open Air Wrestling Card

Rod LaRocque is confident he can take the "Masked Marvel" in the required number of falls in the feature match on the wrestling card arranged for Wednesday night at Victoria Park. LaRocque has recently returned from a European trip, where he wrestled all the best in the different countries, including a match with London and Lewis in this side of the water. He is in perfect shape and ready to give the Marvel an interesting match. Jack Corcoran has been working out every night in the city and may since arriving in the Belleville district. The preliminary card is one of the best and the five wrestling bouts will be worth the admission. The Marvel will be in the city on Wednesday and attend the bell game and it is stated he is right ready for the tussle with Jack Corcoran.

George O. Tice has connected to act as master of ceremonies for the evening and he promised by Bonners so that all may know just what is going on. This is the first attempt at an open air show and the public of this district will no doubt put the project over. There has been very little advance ticke, which points to a large crowd.

COBOURG PULLS BIG SURPRISE

Defeat League Leaders by 9-6 With Big Six Run Rally

Kingston, Aug. 9 — Cobourg sprang a surprise here Monday afternoon when they defeated Kingston in a Central Ontario League baseball tilt. The locals were the stellar position, who have only won two games this season, got the jump on the champions with a six run splash in the fourth inning, and added their three more runs in the sixth, while Kingston contented their usual three runs were woefully scak with men on the bases.

Kingston outhit the visitors by 14 to 9, but they had it's pitchers fed on the sacks. Fournier pitched the first three innings, and allowed only one hit, no runs, while Smith, who went to the mound in the fourth, held the locals to four hits.

The Cobourg team fought back hard, and twice had the bases filled with no more than one out, but were held scoreless. In the ninth the locals looked dangerous when they got to the sacks but Elliott was caught off third and while Hall scampered home on the play on to two runs. The Cobourg team batted in the order named:

McQuade of Kingston and Hudson of Cobourg were the leading hitters, each getting four safe blows.

Sunday Trixie followed Mrs. Patrick Coughlin, mother of James, on to a ferry boat bound for Detroit. The dog became lost in the maze of traffic in the motor city. That was the last seen of the dog until yesterday when she showed up at home.

Evidently satisfied with what she saw of Detroit sights, she had swam the Detroit River, and made for the Canadian shore.

Carries Off Silver Cup And Five First Prizes in Gigantic Sports in Muskoka Regatta Attended by Hundreds of Residents

Beautiful Bala, Muskoka, held its annual Regatta on August 8th and 9th and was a beautiful summer event, attended by hundreds of the summer residents of this place one of the gems of the Muskoka Lakes.

Wonderful speed yachts, motor boats, canoes, etc., made a delightful scene, and the numerous aquatic events were warmly contested by amateurs, but particularly interesting to Belleville was the winning of the junior championship and silver cup by Master Jack Bell, who scored the highest number of points in rowing, paddling, swimming and diving, also five first prizes. Jack is the son of Rev. Dr. Bell and a student at the Collegiate and appears to be as much at home in water as on land. His friends extend hearty congratulations and wish him future successes in aquatic events.

TURN TABLES ON POINTERS

Victorias Win Smartly Played Game by 7-3 Count

Archie Campbell, left hand curve ball artist of the Belleville Victorias was much too good for the Point Anne intermediates at the Fair Grounds Monday night, when the Vics took the long end of a 6 to 3 score. Campbell hurled smashing ball throughout and was afforded air tight support except in the fifth inning, when the "Cement rockers" scored their three lone runs on two walks, an error and two hits in succession.

"Phil" Loft was manager Marcelle choice at the catching duties although the regular Indian lad helped Barnes. The Point Anne mates committed altogether too many errors, afield. This was Loft's second journey to the mound over the week end as he turned the Vics back on Saturday night last.

The Vics opened the game with a two run hit which they never took two counters in the first frame on two singles and Slater's double. Again in the third, the Vics added two more runs on the credit side of an error, two hits and a fielder's choice squeezed in. The final Vic tally came in the fifth on a home run blow by Barnes.

Kingston outhit the visitors by 14 to 9, but they had it's pitchers fed on the sacks. Fournier pitched the first three innings, and allowed only one hit, no runs, while Smith, who went to the mound in the fourth, held the locals to four hits. The Cobourg runs.

Beauty.....

BY HELEN JAMIESON

Perfumes Cast a Witching Spell

Women know what they are about when they punish the grocery allowance so as to buy perfume. Roast beef not quite so often—roast steak is pretty good when you know how to tease it to tenderness—and bimby there's that lovely bottle filled with rich fragrance sitting pretty on mama's dressing table. An intoxication for her soul! A soul ought to get something, sometime, shouldn't it?

"What, bo?" cries mama to herself, when everyone is away and the house is still. "What, ho! for clothes in the sink and a bundle of clothes to be ironed! "With fragrant breath the lilies woo me now, and softly speaks the sweet-voiced mignonette.'

"Anything that chases away the thoughts of dish washing and invites poetry is worth the money. Mama puts a drop on either shell-like ear, gives her lungs a heavenly intake and thinks maybe she'll swoon, as did Victorian "vimmin".

Getting down to brass tacks, leaving Mama in her sweet of joy, we desire to inform you that the women of the United States spend roughly million dollars a year for perfumes! Prices of scents have not declined much, because it has come to pass that there are not enough flowers grown upon the face of the earth to supply the essential oils necessary for compounding perfected odors. Synthetic oils are also costly. These synthetic oils are not as sweet as we will suffice. It must be a bouquet were enough to knock you off your heels through aromatic bias.

Every woman likes to fancy that some day her ship of fortune will bring in a load of gold, that she can indulge herself to her heart's content with costly perfumes. Flower oils from France, sweet spices from the Orient, wood scents from India! Scents for robes of every color, for different pastimes, varying moods—what a glow of richness and affluence that word brings.

Consult the orange flower for the robe of yellow chiffon. With the red rose for the moments of scorn. No subtle scent, but a lovely, reckless, pungent flavor to hit one on the nose. Conspicuous? No doubt. But there are times when even a little noise would be a Shriek.

For the white organdy there would be Jasmine, Mignonette, with the green crepe.

With the sports frock why not, a mixture of woodsy aromas—thyme, marjoram, lavender, rosemary, balsam or Peru, orris—blended together with regard for pharmaceutical rules. Nice idea, isn't it?

But as life is, with every woman exercising guardianship over the balance in the checkbook, chances are that no one ever will have perfume "will suffice. After all, that's the better method. Wardrobe, dresser scarves, hats, gloves, frilles—all impregnated with the favorite scent and no single drop of precious, priceless fluid wasted. The atomizer is an agent of economy, too. Makes a little bit go far. That's something to consider, when economy is fashionable.

BADGLEY REUNION

A family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Badgley, Sr., of Carrying Place, when fifty three and two children gathered there on Sunday, August 7, when they were served a dinner long to be remembered when everybody had a very enjoyable time, but what they didn't do to the poor lamb that Mr. Badgley had killed for the members on Monday but luckily for the hungry members Mr. Badgley had another lamb ready for the block.

The relatives gathered were:

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tift, Niagara Falls, U.S.A.; Mr. Arthur German, Albion, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Murney, Frankford, cousins of the Badgley. The Pleasure-Giver

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

Ol' Man Greystone had lived a good life. Much of his time had been devoted to helping others. He possessed one of those characters that attract people in trouble, previous that confidence. He had a trick of assuming other people's worries, appearing to fret over them even more than the person affected. He loved to do little things to make his neighbors happy. He derived his greatest pleasure from appreciation of someone else's joy.

At 70, Old Man Greystone himself an invalid. It all happened suddenly. One day he was running over to Peter Smith's house to help with the chores so Mrs. Smith could go to the movies with her "Pete". The next he found himself paralyzed—helpless—and invalid.

A kindly doctor, who had known Ol' Man Greystone for a long, long time, gravely shook his head and spoke the dread words: "The gentleman would be confined to a wheel chair for the rest of his days.

Strangely enough Ol' Man Greystone didn't pity himself or worry about his predicament in the least. His war pension made him independent, providing him with the few necessities he required. His greatest regret was that he could no longer do things for other people.

This, perhaps, may be hard to understand. But it must be remembered that Ol' Man Greystone had derived his only happiness from life by appreciating the joy of others. It is the same with a man who loves money, and enjoys making it. Take away his profits per ductive faculties, and you have the same uneasy sort person as was Ol' Man Greystone after he lost the use of his legs.

Even if Ol' Man Greystone hadn't had his pension, he wouldn't have to worry. He had been too kind, too thoughtful of others to allow them to forget. There were perhaps a dozen or so people who welcomed this opportunity to show their best friend their appreciation of all the favors he had done for them.

Heading this list was Peter Samuels and his wife. They lived next door to the old man and, as they earned the right to call him, Samuels hurried over, looked worried, swept a little, and began to think of all the little things he could do to make the old man enjoy his few remaining days. The doctor had said he wouldn't live long.

When Peter came home from work that night Mrs. Samuels talked the matter over with him. The next day a fine, bright new wheel chair arrived at Ol' Man Greystone's house. His eyes lighted.....a tear coursed down his cheek. But that night he made a part of what the Samuels wanted to do for their old friend. As the days passed they perceived the sadness in his eyes, and racked their brains for something that would help to ease the hurt. They didn't understand that the old man was sad because he no longer could help people who were troubled.

Peter finally hit upon an idea. He knew that it would be necessary to find some thing to occupy the invalid's mind before the sadness would vanish from his expression. It must be pretty monotonous and lonesome, thought Peter, just sitting there, day in and day out, with nothing to do but stare from the window.

Peter's idea was to subscribe to a number of magazines for Ol' Man Greystone. Magazines on farming and raising flowers and breeding horses, movie magazines fiction—things in which the old man had been interested.

It would, thought Peter serve to occupy the invalid's mind, provide a new interest in life, etc.

So Peter entered Ol' Man Greystone's name on the subscription books of a number of well known magazines, and that night went over to announce what he had done.

Peter himself was so taken up with the idea, his appreciation was so enthusiastic, that Ol' Man Greystone caught the spirit of the thing and thanked Peter for his kindness in a voice that sounded a trifle husky!

Three days later the first of the magazines arrived. It was a periodical devoted exclusively to flowers. When Peter came in that night he found the old man with his nose buried among the pages. Peter was happy. At last he had found something to interest his stricken friend. More magazines arrived and Peter saw that the invalid had found in their contents something comforting and satisfying. The sadness that had come to his eyes was almost gone.

There was a new gleam there, something of the old time fire, that always prevailed when Ol' Man Greystone was active and doing things to help other people.

The climax that came over Ol' Man Greystone was almost too good to be true. Peter subscribed to more magazines and, with the announcement of each new subscription, Ol' Man Greystone's face would twinkle and gleam as he felt the happiness and joy in Peter's face.

Then one day Peter came into Old Man Greystone's living room and found the old man sitting very still in his wheelchair. An expressory of the latest magazine to which Peter had subscribed lay in his lap.

Ol' Man Greystone was dead. There was a quiet smile of contentment on his face. Mrs. Samuels Mrs. Samuels saw to the funeral, and stood for a long time over the grave after the last clod had fallen. Peter was thanking what a fine and splendid friend the old man had died. There was a little happiness in Peter's heart, despite the grief for his ol' friend, because Peter knew that, in a small way, he had repaid the old man for the many things he had done for others.

But Peter still thought that Ol' Man Greystone had continued his work of doing happiness to others right up to the last. He didn't know that Mrs. Peter Smith, the recipient of the old man's last act of kindness, had

JEALOUSY AND LOVE

A little learning may be a dangerous thing but disturbances in the neighborhood are caused by one hand and wife each being talented in different lines.

Neither desires to give up the special thing to which he or she is engaged in study and cultivation.

There creeps in little jealousies over the success of one or the other partner receives on account of this gift.

This often manifests itself when visitors are present or when the couple visit the house of friends.

This condition is by no means confined to the married actors and actresses.

It is surprising how often it occurs in the commonplace accomplishments the wife being expert at bridge as an article on Saturday.

The husband may be unusually efficient in some other line.

Here the minister has been known to be jealous of his wife when she is able to talk nearly to an audience ministers being human.

But, naturally when the man is supposed to provide a living in a certain way he wants the public to think of him first in that capacity.

And the wife may object to subordinating her talents to maintaining.

It is a delicate situation but where two really love each other enough being willing on both sides to let the other shine the problem solves itself.

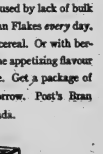
The Beauty Box

For all the laws of beautydom the nose should stay pale. When if blushes like the rest it throws the whole facial area out of form, making it look like a pinkish pumpkin. There are beauty ills that a woman can bear with a certain degree of fortitude, but the vermillion beak is not one of them. The remedy? A diet free from condiments, rich gravies, pastries or meats that are not broiled, outdoor exercise and lung airing to stimulate the circulation, plenty of cold water bathing with ointment of zinc oxide —a preparation that is healing and astringent.

Missus Rippy who would be rid of bumptious nose and replace it with sweet skinness can twist off excess fat that has accumulated round the middle. She must stand, feet far apart, hands hanging at the side of the body, and twist her hips in a circular fashion from one side to the other. "Easy" says she. But there is more yet to tell; legs must be kept rigid and chest must stay as it, frosted out. No turns except of the hips.



Then the smarty girls who are able to give themselves water waves, they prick it in with a comb, following with the cold topknot finishing by just combing and lay the hair wants to go. Make the parting, moisten the hair with a curling lotion, push forward with the comb or hairpins. After a few waves by a professional the pattern will be established. The job then is to revive the finger after each shampoo.

Don't weed the eyebrows to a thread line. That devastating crime cannot means that there will be 100

BULL DRIVE SLACKENING

Utilities Make Fair Showing But Fail to Attract Interest

New York, Aug.—The Bull campaign in the stock market found the list less responsive today, and profit taking even gave a sharp scout occasionally. Advances were not well maintained.

Trading continued in large volume, but substantially under yesterday's. A brisk advance in the utilities in the late morning failed to attract an impressive following, and the list generally balked at exceeding yesterday's highs. Early afternoon, a number of issues were pushed a net loss of 1 to 4 points at the close. A sell-off at the opening had been quickly checked.

Neon Gains

Supreme gains of 1 to 3 points were registered around noon in such issues as American Telephone, American Water Works, North American, Public Service of N.J., Stone and Webster, American Superpower, Commonwealth Power and Light, American Can, Allied Chemical, Safeway Stores, Coca Cola, and others. This advance was substantially reduced, however, when U.S. Steel Common and Eastman reacted to show losses of about 2 points during the early afternoon. Then, the Pacific, Atlantic Fruit, American Telephone slipped a point or so under yesterday's close.

Several investment houses had felt that a substantial technical reaction was overdue in a natural sequence to such a violent upturn as that of the two months. Bears readily continued play for a reaction, and met with a fair response today, but other bulls and costly efforts of the past fortnight.

Wheat Slack

A morning setback in wheat tended to lend support to the list. Bullish enthusiasm, this may have been in part due to indications that the plan proposed by Eugene Meyer to aid in financing the movement of commodities for fabrication was apparently directed toward cotton and some other lines, at the start at least, rather than wheat. Bar silver held the morn in commodity ties with the sharp advance of 1 cent an ounce to 28 cents.

Some important quarters in Wall Street turned definitely to the view that one of the next steps would be the plans of governmental and financial leaders for economic rehabilitation, envisaged better commercial relations with Russia. Such a step, it was felt, had important potentialities for manufacturers of machinery.

An announcement before the end of the week or the first day or so of a fund perhaps as much as $100,000,000 to help manufacturers of raw material purchases, was predicted in some important banking quarters.

MARKET SLOWS DOWN LITTLE

Profit Taking in Evidence in Early Hours of Trading

Toronto Aug. 9—Profit taking slowed down the advance in early trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today and the market was comparatively quiet when contrasted with sessions preceding. Selling was dictated at times by the Wall Street influence, but the list withstood this with minimum price recessions only.

G.P.R. was a weak spot on announcement of no dividende action until the end of the year. The opening was below 15 and the price showed a net loss of 1 3-4. Pond of Canada was fractionally firmer.

Steels were the one group to improve. Dominion Steel of Canada gained 1-4 and Page Hersey Tubes a point.

Nickel and Consolidated Smelters were pressed to maintain their position. Nickel dropped a quarter and Smelters dipped, recovered to show a gain of a point and then dropped back to the level of the previous day.

Oils were slightly reactionary. Implement shares steady. Bell Telephone and Montreal Power Stores steady and Brazilian down 1-8.

Iron and Steel Industry of Britain Must Have Further Concessions

Reply to Notes of Canada And Other Powers Ready Tuesday

NO DEADLOCK

Sub Committee of Cabinet Ready to Again Check List

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—The formal reply of the United Kingdom delegation to Canadian concessions, selected and offered, is a straight critique of the Canadian offer and carries with it not a single word of concession. The London is prepared to do in granting the concessions asked.

Without venturing a single concession, the United Kingdom reply insists that fuller major concessions on the iron and steel industry of Britain are Germane to the progress of the conference. Immediately on receipt of the Government did not suggest as sought also in textiles and in leather goods, but the principal contention is for more concessions on iron and steel which reflect greater normal possibilities in the United Kingdom market than that of iron and steel and their manufactures.

Within the 12 months reported upon iron and steel importations rose only to $21,000,000 and the Canadian estimate was that the United Kingdom Britain would transfer $35,000,000 of that amount to the United Kingdom. Normal imports under the same readings exceed $300,000,000 a year and the Canadian government believes the concessions offered would be well over $50,000,000 a year to the United Kingdom.

Canada Disappointed

It can be stated in unimpeachable authority in Canada was disappointed with the United King dom reply. It contained 11 evidenced and minimized the Canadian submission, but excepting 11 failed even to submit any indication of what the United Kingdom is prepared to do. There is not a word of agreement to accept in principle of the basis of the proposals outlined as essential to Canada.

In spite of what, for the moment, has the appearance of a setback the Canadian delegation is confident that the conference will be a comparative success.

The sub committee of the Canadian cabinet which met this morning consists of the Minister of Finance, Hon. E. N. Rhodes and embracing Hon. K. B. Kyckman, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Hon. H. J. Manion, spent the afternoon and evening in the study of the United Kingdom statement, and it is understood that they will be ready for submission to Mr. Baldwin, Tuesday.

For one thing, the situation developed nervous from Canada any opportunity to make a public conference procedure by withholding its proposals. They have been flat on the desk for nearly a week. The United Kingdom's are yet to come.

The bills, whose serial numbers were circulated to police some months ago, were turned in to the bank by a woman from Virginia whose identity Royal Canadian Mounted Police have refused to divulge.

The woman is spending a vacation here and turned the money in to the local branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia to have it changed into Canadian funds.

After Chief Constable David Cooke denied having broadcast the circular, Sergt. Sampson of the R.C.M.P. stated that he had sent it to a local detective sergeant. Sergt. Sampson refused to say where the circular came from except to reiterate, "it not come from Major Gen. MacBrien."

HORSES TO HAVE PLENTY OF WATER

Service Stations to Supply Free Necessary Requisite

Work horses in the city and district who plug along the dusty roads under the hot sun with dry throats have found new friends to help them combat the heat and the thirst of summer days.

A number of local gasoline filling stations, which have played no small part in driving dobbin and that cart from the roads, have issued invitations for horses to drop in and sip any time they feel the need. Courteous attendants will fill the pails full of cool water will render every service and will do so free of charge required. In other cases they will mark the horse at the curb and let them drink at will. Each filling company has impressed this on its employees.

Years ago Belleville had several watering troughs for both dogs and horses but with the advent of the only speedy motor which needs water only occasionally they have given the way of many other old fashioned things. Now marks the spot where they used to be.

Wonder what Sherman would have said about the days of peace of today?

MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE ON WAY HOME

Dr. James Ryan of Irish Free State Delegation Leaves TO REPORT

Stated Minister to go Home to Conduct Wheat Drive

OTTAWA, Aug. 9.—(CP)—Confection of farmers Monday were ill-fed in their speculations upon the departure for Dublin of Dr. James Ryan, Irish Free State Minister of Agriculture, who had been one of the delegates from that Dominion to the Imperial Economic Conference.

Coupling this with the acknowledged fact that Senn T. O'Kelly, Irish Minister here had had frequent meetings with Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, British Secretary of State for the Dominions, the "quidnuncs" saw in Dr. Ryan's sudden trip home direct inner secret discussions and President Eamonn de Valera.

Some did not hesitate to hazard the guess that the Free State minister had been recalled to Dublin for the purpose of reporting to Mr. de Valera on the progress of these confidential talks.

Nothing in this connection, other members of the Irish delegation scouted the rumor and indicated the official statement issued today at noon before interpreting the motive of Dr. Ryan's departure. That statement declared Dr. Ryan's return home had necessitated the minister's return home. Beyond that they would not comment.

Talked by Phone

It was learned that Dr. Ryan was commissioned to report on the situation to the Irish Free State executive as described by the fact that Sean T. O'Kelly has been in constant touch with de Valera by transatlantic telephone since coming to Ottawa. It is thought that the moves of the delegation have had the endorsement of the executive who is kept apprised of what is going on here.

The stagnation which has fallen upon the agricultural industry of the Free State, as a result of the strained economic relations between that country and the United Kingdom, is believed in some quarters to have been responsible for Minister Ryan's recall as supported by the fact that J. V. Merrick, his departmental secretary is accompanying him.

The DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER WANT ADS

IRISH EYES

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"You're crazy!" Sheila said laughing. "They didn't hurt us. They didn't rob us. And what we saw was only what the cops could see any day of their lives if they took the trouble to look. We'll never hear any more of this and by dinnertime we'll both be back home and it'll all be over!"

"I tell you it hasn't commenced!" the boy persisted, darkly.

And long afterward, remembering the innocence and ignorance of this trip home in the snowy sunshine, Sheila had to admit that this time Peter had been right.

CHAPTER 15

When they were finally approaching the city and the massive advertisements and the multiplying apartment houses warned them that their long trip was almost over, Sheila was conscious of a sudden tenderness, a weariness that seemed to have as much to do with the soul as the body. Wonderful as it would be to get home to Mother and Angela and Joe and have the first thrilling conversation with them, she wished that it was over. She dread ed the explanations.

It seemed odd to see the night streets bustling as usual, down under the lights, with people attended by shoppers, children racing and screaming in the dirty snow.

"I get out at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth, Peter."

He frowned himself from a sort of dream at the window.

"Hm? I'm afraid. "We've got to go home first. We've got to turn in a report to police station."

"I don't" she said. "I'm going straight home to my mother."

"I'll get out with you! It's just as near for me. But we've got to go to a station right off the bat!"

"What for?"

"To catch them. The police won't want to lose a minute."

"You don't think for one minute you can catch them?"

We know just where they started from, don't we? We can send 'em right to that fake studio where we found 'em, can't we? We'll only take a minute, and then I'll run you home in a taxi" Peter argued.

In the end she actually did find herself in the Monday evening quiet of a police station answering the questions of a kindly sergeant, with only another old officer for audience, except for a sympathetic young man who observed excitedly that he would bet it was Ollie's gang, and who, with a sort of timesaved light globe held aloft, took a snapshot of the latest victims of a gang mystery.

And then the familiar streets were rushing by Sheila's taxi, and her heart was beating harder and faster and Ma, and home, and safety were coming nearer every second.

The beloved old dirty doorway with children straggling about it in the dark, the welcoming rush of thick air from the house, air scented with cooking and living and the ominous note of carbolic, met her like familiar voices, Sheila was up the four flights like a flying squirrel, saw the flung open the kitchen door and her cry of "Ma! I'm back!" rang through the place.

Then everything took on the reeling and appearance of a nightmare.

Her mother was sitting at the kitchen table with Angela at one side of her.

"Joe's dead!" Sheila thought, and her heart failed her.

"Well, you came back," Mrs. Carsaddon presently observed out of the most terrible silence that in all the days of Sheila's life had ever existed between herself and her mother.

Sheila stood still growing pale. She swallowed with a dry throat. "What—what's the matter?" she whispered.

Neither mother nor sister spoke; they regarded her steadily with sorrowful quiet eyes. Sheila after another stammered question which was choked with sobs sat down at the table and burst into wild crying, her hands over her face.

"Oh, don't, Sis," Angela now said, whimpering.

"Joe—what's the matter!" Sheila demanded again, looking up through tear-soaked eyelids. "What's happened"

"Where's your husband?" Mrs. Carsadden demanded, steadily.

"Where—? Where's my what?" "Where's Joe, McCann, Sheila!" Angela asked, weeping.

"Peter!"

"The—the fellow you ran away with, Sheila."

Angela began so hiccup, but anger dried Sheila's tears and made her voice hard.

"You don't think I ran away with Peter McCann?"

"Oo—oo!" Angela moaned softly. "I never thought to think that one of mine, that she'd bring her good name down in sorrow and shame!" Carsadden began.

Sheila stared at her, stupefied.

"Well! I never!" she said with listless, edged laugh. "I got a fine welcome home, I must say, after being kidnapped by bootleggers and carried off nearly into Canada!"

"This apparently made no impression.

"Sheila, what have we ever done to you, that you'd do that to us?" her mother reproached her.

"That I'd do—well, I guess everyone's gone crazy!" Sheila stammered.

"We had your wire, Sheila," Angela said.

"Mama, you don't think I ran off with Peter McCann!"

"As' his mother and heart's-broke as me!" Mrs. Carsadden observed irrelevantly.

"I'm no more married to him—listen to me, Mother! I say I'm no more married to him than you are!"

A light suddenly narrowed the mother's eyes.

"Indeed I'll grant you that!" she said, bitterly. "Indada you're not married to him—you go to your church attorney or justice of the peace, or whatever! And let Peter Mcann put his head in my door as' I'll disbrice attorney Mann! Thinking a fine gen'rl that never done a mane thing in her life. Although she might need to be heart's out of set with' her nonsense.

Sheila looked, overcome. Sheila spoke patiently.

"I suppose you know what you've talking about, Mother."

"Sheila," Angela said in quick warning, "don't you talk like you to Ma!"

Sheila burst out angrily. "I her!" Sheila burst out angrily. "I come home half dead, why I'm not killed that's all, with Peter Mcann with racketing over the country in stolen cars and having me—and all night—"

"Ah," Mrs. Carsadden observed significantly, in the pause, "you'd have that!"

"Ma, don't talk like —well, like an idiot! I tell you that Peter McCann and I were kidnapped—abducted—by bootleggers and taken way up into the country—"

"You didn't send the telegram, I suppose?"

"Certainly I sent you a telegram! I didn't want you to die of fright, did I?"

"And he—and the man—he sint his folks one, too?"

"Peter? Well, of course he did! Saturday night. After we got caught in Joe library. That is, they sent them for us."

"The bootleggers sint thim for ye, was that it?"

"Well, they did, Mother. We couldn't."

"You cuddn't?"

"No, ma'am, because"—Sheila hesitated. "We were being kidnapped," she explained.

"I see," said Peter mother.

"And this morning they drove us to some placed called Orchid Junction, and we came down on the train."

"I see."

There was a silence.

"I thought you'd be glad I got home," Sheila began, childishly.

She stopped, red-cheeked, angry.

"Don't you believe me, Ma?"

Mrs. Carsadden pursed her lips. "Well, you're home again, anyway," she said noncommittally. "So take off your hat an' make yourself a cup of tea, if you're hungry. Ye've come to your senses sooner than I thought ye wud. We'll see what can be done."

Sheila did not move. She sat looking at her mother and sister blankly, the red deepening in her cheeks, her lips bitten.

Sheila, they's such lovely people, the bootleggers," Angela burst out. "Mrs. McCann came to see Ma on Saturday and she was so nice and she said such lovely things of you, and she told us all about Peter ward's—that's Gertrude —getting married to Peter now—they were happy about it! They were going to have a nuptial mass and everything!"

"Well ,what of it?" Sheila challenged her defiantly.

"Oh well, Sheila, how can they, now?"

"Why can't they?"

"You know full well,' said her mother.

"Well, I must say I think this is wonderful!" Sheila said desperately "I never heard anything like it! I wish now that I hadn't come home. I couldn't help to get her—" thought you'd be so worried—" didn't even want to stop at the police station—"

"At the police station! That's all we needed! Mrs. Carsadden exclaimed her eyes raised.

"For heaven's sake Sheila, what did you go to a police station for?"

"To report the bootleggers, of course.'

"What business was that of yours?" Mrs. Carsadden demanded unsympathetically. "You'd do better to keep out of police stations as things are."

"Well, if I don't think I'm in a bad dream" said Sheila.

"The McCanns reported it to the police," her sister said.

"The McCanns did!"

"They were so worried about Peter. He had half a dozen appointments for Saturday and he didn't keep one of them. And there was a big party Saturday night—"

"I know. The Cahills."

"Well, wherever it was. And when he didn't get home to dress for that they all got perfectly crazy and they telephoned around everywhere. And at shout ten o'clock Mr. Frank McCann came up here."

"Frank McCann did!"

"Yes. Because it seems that Peter and Will's mother and Gertrude that he had known you up at Tilly-Bea's Beach last summer and they even talked to them about you after he got home."

"And we didn't know anything, of course, except that you weren't home. Ma didn't take her clothes off that night—did you, Ma?"

"I did not," said Ma.

"Mrs. McCann talked to Ma Saturday night and another time this morning over in Astoria or somewhere, where Ma could have vegetables and everything" Angela lamented. "And now—how' they'll never want to she was to his arms crying and laughing.

"Joe, Joe, you're not against me, are you? They said you stood to me Joe! You don't think I'm bad; you believe me don't you?"

He looked worried and serious, pushed the silky tangle of hair from her forehead keeping a brotherly arm about her, but not smiling, not kissing her.

"Of course I'll stand so you, dear. Be sorry God, what you've put us through, Sheila!"

He sat down, and she dragged a chair near his still clinging to his hand.

"Frank McCann and I gave the marriage to the papers this noon, Ma," he said, sighing. "It seemed the best way. Even Judge McCann thinks so, though it broke his heart."

"Brethrot attorney and all!" the mother demanded fearfully.

"Everything. It was a justice of the peace, Ma."

"What marriage?' Sheila exclaim ed, very white.

"Yours, dear. It was the only way."

"But, Joe—Joe— we're not married!"

"We aren't married at all, Joe! We never were married! You'll have to stop the papers!"

"Now don't get excited, Missy." it was her old baby name; they had calmed her earliest tantrums with it. "It's going to be all right, dear." I just telephoned, Frank McAhh—he's been a peach," Joe interrupted himself to say. "I just telephoned him," he resumed, "and Peter McCann got home a few minutes ago and said you must be here. So it's all right. We'll fix it all up tomorrow—"

"Joe, Mamma and Angela won't believe me! But you'll believe me! Peter McCann and I didn't run away—we had no intention of running away, we never thought of it! We'd know each other at Tiller's Beach last summer—"

"I know, dear. And Angela told us that you'd fixed him and called him Peter."

"Listen, Joe! We were kidnapped. Kidnapped by bootleggers, do you see? And they took us up to Connecticut, or somewhere, we don't know where—"

"Wait a minute." Joe said, frowned in spite of himself by her desperate earnestness. "Begin at the beginning, Sheila. Where did you and Peter McCann meet on Saturday?"

Sheila's eyes pulped.

"At a law library on Broadway, Joe."

"And what'd you go there for?"

"Well, we wanted to see each other, Joe. You see, when I went to give back that blue purse—and that was the first time Peter'd seen safe, I left it home! Well, and then, Joe, when I went to the McCann's to give back the money I got myself up like a beggar, remember?—so that they'd feel sorry for me, see? Well, it seems that this Gertrude Keane, whose purse it was, is a ward of the McCanns—her father and mother died when she was little, and she grew up with the McCanns. And Peter McCann and Gertrude Keane had had a secret between him since Tiller's Beach because he had lost my address and I didn't know that—"

"Slow up, Sheila You and he liked each other at the beach?"

"Just that one day. And then we danced Cat night."

BRINGING UP FATHER

AUG 9 - MR. AND MRS. - WHEN THE WIFE'S AWAY FROM HOME

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

THE SON OF TRAZAN—No. 95

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

Lord Greystoke raised his wife's head and looked down into her eyes his own filled with the light of happiness. His voice was husky with emotion. "My dear," he said, "I have found her, and—him!" So great was Lady Greystoke's joy that she'd forgot the sad message that awaited Meriem. And so, an hour later, Korak, the Killer, rode home to his mother and together with Meriem and her eyes the love and forgiveness that he longed for.

And then the mother told Meriem that Morison Baynes had not survived his wound. The expression in Meriem's eyes was only the sorrow she genuinely felt, but it was not the pain of a woman bereft of her best beloved. "I am so sorry," she said softly. "He loved me—but I did not know what love was until I knew that Korak lived." Lady Greystoke looked quickly at her son, the son who one day would be Lord Greystoke, and gave a little cry of joy.

The love she saw there answered the question in her heart. No thought of the difference in the stations of the girl and her boy entered her mind. To her, Meriem was fit for a king. She only wanted to know that her son loved the little Arab waif. Throwing her arms about them both she kissed them again repeatedly, exclaiming: "Now I shall really have a daughter. A few days after the marriage ceremony, they all started for the coast to take passage for England.

Those days that followed were the most wonderful of Meriem's life. She had not dreamed, even vaguely, of the marvels that civilization held in store for her. The great ocean steamship filled her with awe. And then came London where the luxuries of the Greystokes town house quite took her breath away. Only one secret trouble tore at Meriem's heart. If only she knew that by birth she were worthy of her husband! Who and where were her own father and mother?

Ottawa Disappointed at Formal Answer as Major Concessions are Made

Economic And Political Factors Now Facing Delegates

AGAIN CONSIDER

Five Concessions Are Sought by Canada, Wheat Being Chief

Ottawa, Aug. 9. — The situation with which delegates to the Imperial Economic Conference find themselves face to face is one of hard facts, stubborn economic and equally stubborn political considerations.

Details of what each unit of the Empire believes is fundamental to the success of the conference have been published piecemeal but the whole picture of the Empire representatives has not been presented as a unit.

That is the picture the delegates are studying intensely and hopefully although conscious of the difficulties of preserving its detail to general satisfaction.

Canada asks mainly for five concessions. The first is a duty of six cents per bushel upon foreign wheat, with free entry for Empire wheat. The second is a duty of 25 per cent. upon foreign lumber with free entry for Empire lumber. The third is a duty upon foreign copper and base metals and free entry for Empire metals. The duty asked for copper is 2½ cents per pound. The fourth request is a preferential market in the United Kingdom for Canada's foodstuffs, which includes duties upon bacon, butter, cheese, eggs and poultry and the removal of duties upon Canadian feeder cattle, as well as the lifting of the embargo against Canadian potatoes. The fifth concession asked is elimination or strict control of hotel allowances in the Empire trade with the United Kingdom.

Australia and Canada.

Australia is a unit with Canada in regard to control of Russian competition and in the preferences asked for dairy products. In addition Australia is insistent that a preference be granted in favor of frozen and chilled meats and desires a wider market for her fruits and wines in the United Kingdom.

New Zealand wants to extend her dairy products' market via preferences and is also interested in a wider market for lamb, mutton and beef in the United Kingdom.

South Africa envisions a great dairy industry and very marked possibilities for chilled beef exports through preferences and utters a prayerful hope that the United Kingdom will get back to the gold standard as rapidly as possible.

Southern Rhodesia joins Canada in the request for a useful preference upon Empire copper and is with South Africa in favor of a preference upon chilled beef, nuts and fruits.

India is mainly concerned in securing a wider market for surplus cotton and jute and in extending the United Kingdom use of Indian tea. She has another great problem, that of silver remonetization, which the conference has no immediate hope to attack.

Then comes Great Britain. Except in general terms her delegation until late last week have been on the listening end of negotiations. They have heard from all the delegations as to the concessions they consider adequate in exchange for those they seek.

Much Wider Market.

By Canada, they have been offered a much wider market for iron and steel products, machinery, electrical equipment; in all, concessions upon 200 items that Canada imports which the Canadian advisers state will increase British exports to Canada by a minimum of $33,000,000 a year, even under existing trade conditions. Certain concessions have been offered with respect to leather goods and textiles, but, on the whole, the United Kingdom today has expressed the view that the concessions offered are quite inadequate compensation for those sought by Canada. It is understood the formal written reply of the United Kingdom restates the objection to tariffs on foodstuffs, but intimates that compromise between tariffs and quotas is possible if Canada will step up her concessions to a point considered reasonable and acceptable by Britain. Further important concessions in textiles are declared to be urged as essential.

There appears to be no insurmountable barrier between Canada and Britain as regards general objectives, preferences on wheat, lumber and base metals. The difficulties arise for Britain in taking dairy products and in controlling at fully as Canada and Australia desire the Soviet trade, while for Canada Britain is insistent upon a better market for textiles and upon elimination of customs regulations that Canada considers necessary to restrain dumping, to control fluctuating exchange and to safeguard standards of living.

ATTENDS UNDER GUARD

Haileybury, Ont., Aug. 9.—An inmate of the district jail, Herbert Southeran, Niagara Falls, left for his home last night under guard, to attend his wife's funeral. Southeran is serving a term for failure to pay a fine imposed for an admitted breach of the Liquor Control Act.

CONNFERENCE OVER AUG. 19

Ottawa, Aug. 9—The British delegation at the Imperial Conference is counting on being through by Aug. 19. It was stated Monday night Hon. J. H. Thomas had booked his passage for a week from Friday.

Mr. Baldwin also expects to go then.

A report that the United Kingdom had given notice that, on and after Nov. 15, customs tariffs would be applied against the products of any Dominion which had not entered into a new trade arrangement with Britain at this conference could not be confirmed. Premier Bennett said he had heard nothing of it, and doubted that any such notice had been given.

Mr. Bennett fully expects to reach a satisfactory agreement, not only with Mother Country, but with all other Empire countries, either to continue or extend existing preferences.

GRAVE HACKED OUT BY KNIFE

Explorer Tells of Loss of Companion in Jungle

New York, Aug. 8—Back from an Ecuadorian jungle where he buried his comrade in a thirteen in a shallow grave hacked out with a pocket knife, Harold Foard of Gramwell, W. Va., arrived today.

He told of being lost for days with Thomas J. Walsh of Chicago, who finally died of exhaustion and starvation.

"I chopped out a little grave with my knife and hit him three times," Foard told Walsh's parents, who sent him here. "It was all I could do."

Their Journey

Foard and Walsh had worked together in a Peruvian mine but after leaving that employment had started in a canoe for Monzon, Ecuador, on a scientific expedition in a canoe. On the Huallaga River the canoe was wrecked, and they started through the jungle afoot.

By July 29 they had been seven days without food and Walsh was almost delirious from fever. Foard said he shot a little bird which he had seen overhead then pushed further into the jungle in search of game. When he returned, empty handed, Walsh was dead.

At The Capitol

BUNNIE CORTEZ STARS IN DRAMA OF GREAT CITY

A new and more appealing Ricardo Cortez minus his suave villainy and subtle menace comes to the Capitol Theatre Wednesday in a remarkably realistic and human story by Fannie Hurst.

The film is Radio-Radio Pictures' "Symphony of Six Million" which co-features Cortez and Miss Dunne in a romantic drama of the splendid souls which is said to be as deeply moving and powerful as Humoresque", the epic of several years ago by the same author.

Cortez plays a sympathetic role in this vivid film. He is seen as a New York East Side doctor who wants to devote his life to curing the ills of the poor. Economic circumstances over which he has no control, forces him to leave the Ghetto and practice among the wealthy of exclusive Park Avenue.

This move causes him to forget his beloved Ghetto and the beautiful teacher of the slums, played by Miss Dunne.

In time he finds himself and renounces his smugly patronizing patients and leaves great Culture behind in a triumphant return to the people he loves.

Cortez plays his role in a sincere manner. The part will with him new friends and will give him time place him in that small catalogue of actors who can do all types of roles and do them well.

Miss Dunne, in "Symphony of Six Million", is co-featured with Cortez as a beautiful girl, the poor, a dramatic role which is invested with rare beauty and feeling. The star's intersection of the part certainly rivals her outstanding performance in "Sporting Blood" and stamps her as a character actress of unusual depth.

The picture was directed by Gregory La Cava with a skilful undercurrent of humor, the frail nuances and the human interest which distinguished Fannie Hurst's stories.

GLASSWARE GIFT

Lady patrons are in for a treat when Wednesday the gift of Glassware will be exceptionally pleasing, and as is the case with the Dressserware, can be obtained at the Capitol Theatre in the evening price of admission.

SOVIET SHORT IN WHEAT CROP

Prospects Are Poor And Peril Reduced of Low Priced Exports

Ottawa, Aug. 9—Poor crop prospects in Russia are indicated in the report by Canadian officials to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics received by cable Monday from the London correspondent.

"Grain exports" the summary declares "are dependent upon the policy of the Soviet Government and the urgency of the need of foreign currency. The country needs all its grain for food, especially in view of the continued shortage of other foodstuffs."

Since it was the food of Russian wheat on the market last Autumn that broke the prices, the Russian crop prospects are of particular interest to Canada. Last year Russia exported to July 31, 71,000,000 bus but present indications are that it will reach nothing like those proportions this year.

The summary states: "Vegetables are lacking for the winter months and at present vegetables constitute a large part of the diet as grain reserves. An accepting which the supplies from the 1930 crop, are consumed. The foregoing are the factors including a tremendous discrepancy between open market and collective prices, the freedom of peasants to sell on the open market after December and an acute shortage of manufactured goods to trade for grain, indicate unprecedented difficulties in collecting the government's share in Ottawa with Bank poorer crops than last year are indicated in the areas around export outlets."

BEWDLEY YOUTH GETS SIX MONTHS

Found Guilty of Throwing Burning Sack on Girl

Cobourg, Aug. 8.—Jack Hibbard, 18-year-old Bewdley boy was sentenced here Monday by Judge L. V. O'Connor to six months determinate, and three months indeterminate in the Reformatory, having been found guilty on a charge of assault by throwing a burning sack into a truck and seriously burning Flora Moore of Bewdley.

Charges brought against three others of having been implicated in the incident were disposed of at previous courts. Taking the stand in his own defense, Hibbard testified that another person had given him beer, and then suggested he set fire to the tent where the party was held. When he threw the sack on the truck he did not know that any person was in it, he said. He only wanted to scare the people out of the tent, he told Colonel Boggs, the crown prosecutor.

STILL MISSING

New York, Aug. 9—Aeroplane search has been carried out unsuccessfully over the sand dunes of Long Island for Frank "Dock" Tulbill, elderly corn specialist, missing from Quogue, N.Y. He left Saturday night with four revolvers strapped to his waist and $5,000 in his pockets.

"WHO GOES THERE?"

says the wise shopper

Challenge of the sentry on guard, abrupt and imperative in the dark.

"Advance and give the countersign!"

To the woman in the home, alertly watchful over her household budget, passwords are important. Everything offered for sale is subject to suspicion unless it bears the countersign — the familiar trade-mark — the name of a manufacturer or merchant whom she knows.

Every day she studies the advertising columns. From them she determines values, and decides what she will buy and where. She knows that advertised goods are safe goods, backed by the reputation of the maker and the merchant.

When she goes shopping — whether for a bottle of ketchup or for a pearl necklace—she challenges each product with a "Who goes there?" And if it has the password of advertised excellence she makes her purchase without hesitation.

The advertisements in this paper are a safe guide to buying. Read them every day. Keep in touch with the latest news of price, style and quality. Then buy with the assurance that you will get your money's worth.

Five Shots Each

Five shots each were allotted to the two men, as was customary, but they still remained tied after the bull's-eye had been fired, and it required eight more rounds, fired at.six-foot targets, before Vaines could score a bull's-eye against his opponent's last shot.

DOMINION DENIAL MADE

No Split in Canadian Cabinet is Ottawa Word

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 10—(By The Canadian Press)—Vigorous denial was made in Government Conference circles today of newspaper reports that Prime Minister R. B. Bennett is attempting to dominate the conference and also his own cabinet. It was the "one-man conference" was the emphatic statement.

The Prime Minister of Canada has only done his utmost to dedicate to his own Ministers as to the running of their Departments, but that Prime Minister R. B. Bennett is attempting to dominate the conference and also his own cabinet, it was the emphatic statement.

These denials came when a report was published being declared false that a split had occurred in the Canadian Cabinet as to the extent of preferences that should offer Great Britain. The cabinet was not united on what would result. There was no aggression of a split, and there was the assurance from Canadian authorities.

NON-SMOKER NURSE LOOKS YOU IN EYE

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 10—(By The Canadian Press)—"The ideal nurse does not have to resort to cigarettes to be popular. Her facial color will come from the inside, rather than from a box. She will look her patient directly in the eye and her confidence will inspire confidence in the patient."

Dr. John Garvin, Winnipeg, thus described the ideal dental nurse before the Ontario Dental Nurses' Association, in session here today.

Retard Child's Mental Progress by Too Many Frills and Gaudy Clothes

Chicago, Aug. 10 — Fancy frills may make Jack a dull boy. The fond parent who dresses her small son, or her little daughter with too many frills, overly conspicuous colors or ill-fitting garments, may be retarding the child's mental progress, in the opinion of Dr. Ira S. Wile, New York, who makes a study of mental diseases in children.

She expressed her belief in addressing a health meeting held under auspices of the Chicago Woman's Club.

"The child who is embarrassed because of any peculiarity in his appearance, or whose clothes are uncomfortable, has his attention distracted from constructive mental effort and is therefore unable to make progress," she said. "This is true of very young children as well as the less gifted ones."

STATES READY TO DEAL WITH RUSS SOVIETS

Washington, Aug. 10.—Federal officials are interested in reports from New York of efforts to stimulate commercial relations with Russia although they say that they have nothing of the plan.

The American government's policy, it is pointed out, is one of encouragement to private enterprise to deal with the Soviet. The government, it is said, has followed the policy enunciated by former President Coolidge and has not put obstacles in the way of such trading but cannot lend more than moral encouragement.

There is no way, officials added, in which the United States as a nation could take a hand in promoting Russian trade.

The only remedy officials here can see is for private enterprise to advance sufficient credit to Russia to induce a return to the policy of purchasing in the markets of this country.

DEATH AFTER ALTERCATION

Farm Hand Succumbs on Street Before Arrival of Physician

Quebec, Aug. 10—Georges Malenfant, 42, of Lorette, Portneuf County, is lying dead in the morgue at St. Catherine, Montmorency County, and two young men, Napoleon Mercier and Harry Verret, both of St. Gregoire, have surrendered to the police and are being held as material witnesses for the inquest.

Malenfant, who had been employed by a farmer at De Courville, was picked up unconscious on the street of St. Gregoire last night, but died before the arrival of a physician.

While definite details of the affair are still lacking, it is reported the victim had gone down to St. Gregoire after finishing his day's work and on meeting Mercier and Vermette an altercation arose.

LANCASTER "HEARD BANG"

Tells of What He Calls Suicide of Haden Clarke

Miami, Fla., Aug. 10.—Captain W. N. Lancaster, with voice steady and unemotional, today described for a jury his role in what he called the suicide of Haden Clarke, for whose murder he is on trial.

Previously he had returned a calm "yes" to the question asked by James M. Carson, Chief of Defense Counsel, as to whether he killed the young stockbroker in the apartment of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, wealthy Miami widow, some five years.

"I was awakened by a bang," Lancaster said. "I thought it was a backfire. Then I heard a shot. I investigated. I heard a gurgling noise from his bed."

He leaped from his bed, he related, to find blood streaming from Clarke's face, and a pistol lying beside the fatally wounded man.

"Haden, what have you done?" he said was his first recollection of his next words. There was no answer.

Tangled Love Affairs.

The former army pilot said he and Clarke were sitting on the latter's room at Mrs. Keith-Miller's home and talked at length over their tangled love affairs.

"Haden nearly wept when he told me how their love had grown, and about his position at that time with regard to Mrs. Keith-Miller," the defendant said.

"I told you discuss Clarke's past life?" Carson asked.

"Yes, in great detail, since it had a direct bearing on his love for Mrs. Keith-Miller. He told me during his last talk that he felt very badly about the way he had treated Lucille and he had lots of affairs but that this was the first time in his life that he had been in love," Lancaster answered. "He dwelt at considerable length on lack of finances."

For the first time, Lancaster testified, he learned that Clarke was not divorced.

Lancaster said he advised the author to tell the whole story to Mrs. Keith-Miller next day.

REBELLION IS RAMPANT AND SEVEN KILLED

Attack House of Minister of War And Prime Minister.

NO COMMUNICATION

Gov't Asks Civilians to Stand by With Cars For Mobilization

Madrid, Aug. 10—Rebellion flared in four Spanish cities today, resulting in at least seven deaths in Madrid during a surprise attack at dawn on the building, which houses the Minister of War and the office of the Premier.

Fragmentary reports from Seville in the southwest, said that a rebel force under General Sanjurgo had captured the communications building. From Algeciras, in the south near Gibraltar, reports said an army detachment had mutinied in the nearby town of Lalinea. A naval garrison at Cartagena, on the southeast coast, also was reported to have mutinied.

Causes Obscure.

The causes of the trouble were obscure. Authorities differed as to whether it was an attempt at a no-anarchist coup or was incited by Communists or labor syndicalists. Communications with military posts were impossible.

Martial law, under the command of Director of Public Safety Menendez, replaced the attack on the Minister of War, spraying the street square with machine gun bullets.

Seven were dead and about a dozen wounded on both sides during that engagement. Ninety arrests were made, but only 26 of the prisoners were civilians. Among the others were General Jose Cavalcanti, General Emilio Fernandez Pere, General Gonsalvo Carasco. They were detained because police said they had led some of the rebel groups which fired on the police.

Ask Mobilization.

This afternoon the government asked all the newspapers to publish a request that civilians with automobiles register their cars with the police so they could be needed for mobilization of troops or transportation of men to the centers of trouble.

The newspapers were forbidden to print anything else on the situation, and the Cabinet was called together to discuss matters.

The General Workers' Union warned all their members to be ready to fight in defence of the Republic.

Madrid is Calm

As the day wore on Madrid was outwardly peaceful, but prudent continued at other points.

Premier Manuel Rios, speaking for the Cabinet, confirmed the report that Lieutenant Colonel Diaz had taken control of Seville and that he also was in control of the smaller town of Jerez. Rios said he had the support of the civil guard in the south of Seville in the Province of Cadiz.

Additional reports from Algeciras said the mutinous officers of the army was involved in the mutiny there and that the Spanish Foreign Office in Gibraltar was said to be implicated in the movement.

Premier de Rios said he had received private information that General Jose Sanjurjo had proclaimed himself Captain General of Andalusia and had taken over all the public offices in Seville.

On the basis of information at hand it appeared that the movement was an uprising of Conservative and Monarchist elements against the Communists and certain extremists elements opposed to the Socialist ponderance in the Government.

Hitler Likely Choice of Hindenburg to Post of German Chancellor

President Wavers in Determination For Non Partisan Cabinet

MAY ASK HITLER

Papers Speculate on Formation of New Cabinet

Berlin, Aug. 10—Adolf Hitler, head of the powerful National Socialist party, loomed more prominently than ever today as President Von Hindenburg's choice for Chancellor of Germany.

Chancellor Franz Von Papen reported the political situation to the president this afternoon when the seething Field Marshal returned from his summer estate at Neudeck.

All those concerned in the negotiations for organization of a cabinet did their best to prevent any information from leaking out, but they did not succeed entirely and there was evidence that the president was wavering in his previous determination to maintain a non-partisan cabinet.

The facts of the situation were that Hitler had refused to Chancellor Von Papen, but also by Otto Meissner, the presidential secretary and Oskar Von Hindenburg, son of the aged president.

The evening papers, speculating on the personnel of a possible Hitler cabinet, declared that Gregor Ludwig Strasser would be Minister of Labor, Hugenberg, Count Bernhard Wilhelm Von Gayl, and Wilhelm Koerting would be Ministers of Communications. He is regarded as Hitler's right hand man.

Puppets Rebuild Fairyland for Hundreds of Local Boys and Girls

Acting dolls, puppets, or marionettes, whatever you care to call them, pleased a large crowd of youngster Belleville who with many adults filled the Chautauqua tent on Tuesday afternoon, puppets which do the will of their masters and misbehave. The actors and scenes behind and above the steel frame, backing and supporting the miniature stage on which these little folk strut their part. Donald Somers, manager with Elsie Dorsey, Peggy Gerish, William Pfeiffer and Inez Lange were the brains and hands behind these inanimate objects which acted dramas and sketches to the content and delight child world which sat below them and screamed in the glory of the scenery.

The World and Its Toys

The world must have its doll forever. Keened of listeners included a large part of adult Belleville, who saw in the little plays on this miniature stage life depicted most pleasingly and morally. Those who held the strings of those little actors, making them move according to the plan of the dramas, lent their voices and the shuffle of their feet, to the simulation which created a minute world of fantasy the seen minds of almost five hundred.

"Hansel and Gretel" was the opening play. Fairyland appeared in which little Hansel and girls danced through the glades imaginable, looked for the children lost in the wood and dreamed of those gingerbread cakes, fought with Hansel against the witch and helped Gretel to pitch the cruel witch into the oven. Scenery, actions of the human actors and the manipulation of the puppets, told an impressionable story.

Then there was Goldilocks with the three bears and her little dog and the butterfly. What a tale of the nursery and hundreds of little minds were herded in the fate of poor little Goldilocks.

Rustic Scene

"Reuben and Rachel" was a rustic scene colored so that the simplest world can be colored. What were not the laughs over the clever and Lallapaloosa (that was the name of the horse) Lallapaloosa was very wise, he was lazy, but he liked even the thought of oats, so he jumped the hurdle. Childhood had its thrill in this wee sketch.

Modern children have adopted Mickey Mouse without any possibility of the adoption being upset in the courts. Mickey Mouse and Mrs. Mickey Mouse of course had to put in an appearance at the puppet show, and the children were glad they came.

Then we must not forget Jerry, the announcer who stuck his head through the curtain. Jerry made the boys and girls yell with delight. Back to Reality

When the little dramas were completed the curtains closed and the miniature dolls folded away in their sacks, childhood was forced to step back into the limelight of reality on the green grass of the armouries lawn, while the motor traffic of modern age hummed along before them. Bus lawn, gas, oil, buildings hotels, post office, and armouries and motor cars and even the thoughts of the evening meal could not quench the romantic fires of young Belleville's imagination which had been stirred. The puppets had done their work.

True Story of Missing Keys

Motorist Finds Them in Cuffs of His Trousers

A well known resident of the city went to the garage Tuesday afternoon to get his car in which he was due to take several friends to Wellington. In taking his key ring from the pocket of his trousers he accidentally dropped it to the cement floor. He stopped to retrieve the keys and to his dismay only one of them could be find; the keys had become free from the ring and one of the three keys it held had mysteriously disappeared. A careful search failed to produce them and he was at a loss what to do. He was about to telephone to a garage service when the suggestion came to him to see if the key would fit the ignition and start the engine. This he did and to his surprise it did the trick and the engine started.

Search Unavailing

When Wellington was reached he was afraid to turn off the engine fearing that perhaps the key would not start it again—so he let it run. Finally it became so hot that he was compelled to shut it off. However, the key worked successfully the second time and the return trip was made without difficulty.

Reaching the garage he made another search for the keys and was assisted by several members of the household. Every possible hiding place was searched, but without success.

In Cuffs

Suddenly the well known citizen remembered that he had only heard one key hit the cement floor and this belonged to his third a story which he had read many years ago in which a key told how a small and valuable article had been lost and subsequently being directed at several persons. Investigation, eventually revealed the lost article in one of the cuffs of the owner's trousers—and this is why he had been unable to found one key in each cuff of the well known citizen's trousers.

Believe it or not—it is a true story.

MAY SUSPEND HOSTILITIES

Paraguay Reports Fort Attacked by Bolivians

Lapaz, Bolivia, Aug. 9—(AP)—Bolivia informed neutral nations today that she is willing to suspend hostilities pending arbitration of her dispute with Paraguay if Paraguay and the neutral powers consent to the present positions in the gran chaco as the basis for negotiations.

The neutral nations have urged suspension of hostilities tomorrow.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Aug. 9 — Foreign Minister Higinio Arbo notified Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson at Washington today that Bolivia had attacked Fort Carlos Antonio Lopez and asked him to notify the other American neutral nations.

Report Denied.

Despatches from Lapaz, Bolivia, denied the report that the fort had been taken and suggested that the Paraguayan announcements might make an intended attack.

In his note to Secretary Stimson the Paraguayan Foreign Minister said the fort's garrison "retired."

Twelve deputies introduced a resolution in the chamber of deputies yesterday urging the formation of a coalescence cabinet to enable united government action.

BOY ESCAPES FROM INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

About noon Tuesday, the local police were informed of the escape from Victoria Industrial School, of Herbert Baird. Young Baird disappeared some time during the previous night. The officials were of the opinion that the escaped youth might be headed eastward as his parents are reported as living at Clear Lake. He was described as being of fair complexion, brown hair and eyes, well built and stands 5 feet 3 inches. He wore brown trousers, a blue shirt with a white stripe. He also had a pair of blue overalls in his possession. The local police are on the lookout for him.

WANTS BLOND WITH TREESES TO HER WAIST

Montreal, Aug. 10 (CP) —Like Diogenes wandering about Athens with a lantern in the broad daylight in search of an honest man, a McGill University statistherman is searching Montreal for a blonde with golden tresses reaching to her waist.

HARVESTING IN FULL SWING IN REGINA AREA

Regina, Aug. 10—Harvesting is in full swing in most sections of Southern Saskatchewan today. Crops have ripened rapidly during the past two weeks, and lack of rain has reduced the yield to some extent.

Elevator men estimate wheat will yield from 12 to 15 bushels to the acre. Wheat-cutting is virtually completed in the Moosemin area.

Wheat already delivered to elevators has graded No. 1 Northern.

NEW WHEAT POURING IN

Grain is Good Color And Most of it Grading No. 1

Lethbridge, Alta, Aug. 10 (CP)—New wheat is pouring into Southern Alberta elevators and harvest will be in full swing by the end of the week. Yields from 18 to 22 bushels are reported. The grain is a good color and most of it is grading No. 1.

Up to the end of last week over 100,000 bushels of the new crop had been delivered to elevators on the Lethbridge Railway division. The major part of the crop is being left standing till it is fit for straight combining in order to hold harvesting costs to the minimum.

THREE SUMMERS IN ONE YEAR FOR MEMBERS

Ottawa, Aug. 10 (CP) — It's all summer and no winter for the South African delegates to the Economic Conference here. When the delegates departed from the shores of South Africa summer was in full bloom. Now it is winter time there, but the delegates are still enjoying summer scenes in Canada. By the time they arrive back to their native land summer again will be at home for them. Three summers, all in one year.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was starting to lite his cigar after supper, and I said, Hay pop, what's you going to get ma for her birthday?

By golly, that's a little matter that needs immediate attention, pop said. Get her something she wants, that's a logical general rule to go by, but hang it all how am I going to find out what she wants without actually asking her, which would rob the gift of all its sentimental charm, he said.

Well, just then ma came up from downstairs and pop said, Why ma, you're looking face, my dear. You look like a woman upon whom life has failed to shower an abundans of gifts and blessings. Can it be possible that there is some little thing somewhere in this world wich would brighten your eyes and gladden your smile? he said.

If you mean is there anything I need, that's putting it mildly, ma said. A new summer outfit is a crying necessity in my wardrobe, and yet owing to the trend of the times I've decided not even to think of it, even as a luxury. So I won't even mention it, especially since a summer outfit would be practically a waist of time without a new summer fur to go with it, and the combination at any price less than 200 dollers wouldent even be worth considering, so that's why I dont even bother to bring up the subject. But as for needing things, that's the reverse side of the picture and I could go on for hours. I need at least 4 hats, but Madame Kelly isn't making a thing for less than 20 dollers, she acts as if the depression was a thing of the passed or hadent started yet, so she can keep her hats, nothing is further from my interest than, but when you ask if there's anything I need, that's diffrent and I dont mind giving you a candid answer, ma said.

O well, better times are coming, the worm will turn, and show its silver lining pop said.

And he wrote something down in his little note book where he writes whatever he dont want to forget, and never lets her his about her to see what it was.

In case you are skeptical about TERRAPLANING here's the evidence!

Women everywhere will be interested to know that Miss Amelia Earhart, who christened the ESSEX TERRAPLANE, is herself the first woman in the world to own one of those new type cars.

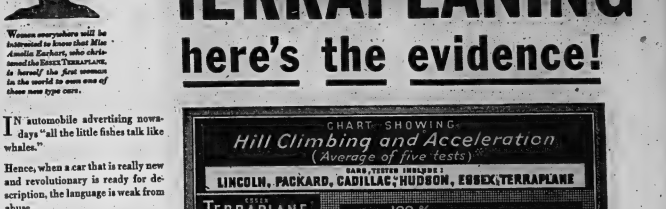
IN automobile advertising nowadays "all the little fishes talk like whales."

Hence, when a car that is really new and revolutionary is ready for description, the language is weak from abuse.

That's why it takes a new word—TERRAPLANING—to picture the joyously thrilling performance of this radically new-type car, the ESSEX.

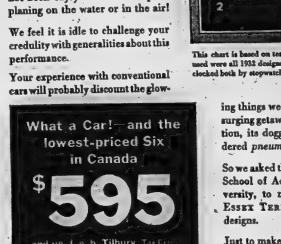
It's a totally different kind of performance — a skimming, dashing, get-there, safely close-to-the-road swift smooth motion such as has not been enjoyed before except in planing on the water or in the air!

We feel it is idle to challenge your credulity with generalities about this performance.



Your experience with conventional cars will probably discount the glowing things we might say about its nimble surging getaway, its split-second acceleration, its dogged whisper-quiet six-cylinder pneumounted power on the hills.

So we asked the scientists of Guggenheim School of Aeronautics, New York University, to measure the action of the ESSEX TERRAPLANE against earlier designs.



Just to make it interesting, we suggested it be matched not merely against cars competitively priced but against the costliest and finest mechanisms that American automotive engineering genius has devised.

Herewith, graphed on the chart, you see the results.

Look them over, see what TERRAPLANING means, and then remember you get it in the new ESSEX at a price that's actually down among and UNDER the former lowest-priced Three!

This chart is based on tests made by the scientists of Guggenheim School of Aeronautics, New York University. The cars used were all 1932 designs, stock production, none being specially fixed or tuned for the purpose. Performances were clocked both by stopwatch and Accelerometer. Tuning hill was the steepest gradient of its distance East of the Rockies

Political Terrorists in Germany to Meet Death

Berlin, Aug. 10—The Government last night invoked extraordinary powers, including the death penalty, in an effort to put a stop to outbursts of political violence, which have resulted in the killing of at least 140 persons and serious injuries to more than 1,000 since June 1.

With the approval of President Paul von Hindenburg, three emergency decrees were issued by Chancellor von Papen.

One of three extended the political truce to Sept. 1. Another set up heavy penalties, including sentences of death for acts of terrorism. The third instituted special "speed" courts to deal summarily with offenders.

The situation was considered so critical that the Government did not wait for President von Hindenburg to return from East Prussia before clothing itself with emergency authority.

The substance of the three decrees was conveyed to the President by telephone, and he approved them.

Hitler Issues Commands.

Meanwhile Adolf Hitler, whose Nazi storm troopers are held accountable for much of the violence took steps to check the political passions of his followers.

Furious because of outbursts in which storm troop detachments participated, notably in East Prussia and Schleswig-Holstein, Hitler issued most stringent orders that discipline must be maintained.

Complete statistics on the casualties since Lieut-Col. von Papen became Chancellor on June 1 are not available, but it is certain that the dead include fifty Communists, eighteen members of the Republican Reichsbanner organization, twenty seven Nazis, one member of the Steel Helmet War Veterans' organization, five policemen, and thirty five innocent bystanders, including four women.

Opposition newspapers expressed fear that the Government has moved too late to put an end to the riots and sabotage which have kept Germany in turmoil for weeks, but members of the Cabinet voiced the belief that the emergency decrees were sufficiently drastic to stamp out the reign of terror.

Special Court's Duties.

Among the offences which will be considered in the new "speed" courts are gun carrying, arson, flooding, bombing and attempts to tamper with the railways regardless of whether loss of life results.

Before the decrees were issued, Chancellor von Papen, who had hoped that the disorders would cease with the Reichstag elections on July 31, declared that "Our authority must be wielded brutally."

Two victims of violence died during the night. At Breslau a National Socialist was fatally injured when a bomb exploded prematurely in his hand, and at Heidenberg a Reichsbanner member was killed. A hand grenade was tossed into a room in a house at Marienburg, where a child six years old was sleeping and the youngster received injuries which may prove fatal.

President Returns Today.

The President returns from his summer easte tomorrow. He is reported to be as determined as ever to end party rule, and it is understood that he will abandon the Cabinet making four women.

The ladies of S. United Church W.M.S. were entertained at their August meeting at the home of Mrs. Ben Fuller on Thursday, August 4th. Mrs. Charlie Liddle presiding group leader and Mrs. S. Elliott vice president were in charge. After the opening hymn No. 182, Mrs. W. D. Robertson read the Devotional Leaflet "Jesus the Perfect Type."

Roll was then called and the minutes of last meeting were read and adopted The program for the day was to the subject of the Missionary Monthly, our magazine that contains so much that is helpful and interesting. How can we work for the missionary cause intelligently if we know nothing about it, by reading the pages of this monthly visitor we keep ourselves informed of what is going on along the line of missionary endeavour, and it is a great help to missions and leaders.

Several readings were given by the different members. Miss Helen Lorimer took up the next chapter of the Study Book and Mrs. W. B. Dies gave a talk and reading on Temperance. The meeting closed by singing hymn 223 "I Love to Tell the Story" and all repeated the Mizpah Benediction. Twenty-three adults and several children were present. Collection for flower fund was forty cents, and the regular collection amounted to two dollars and 30 cents. After the meeting the ladies served refreshments assisted by her daughters, on the shady flower bordered lawn and a very pleasant social time was spent. OTTAWA'S VIEW

News from Ottawa is very optimistic that the days are near when the conference of the Empire will have reached an agreement on economic and trade conditions which will spell return to better days. It should be more easy for the Empire's Dominions to reach a pact than it should be for the, wide world with its fewer points of contact and interest. The Empire's parts can show the way of give and take as the world would not and could not be expected to do.

If one could stop to think what failure of the parley might be which the Prince of Wales says is unthinkable, one might realize how much less likely to succeed would be a world economic conference.

Canada's reply to British criticism of her offer today is expected to clarify the outlook. It is said Canada's views and Britain's are coming into line.

When the Prince of Wales said that failure in the outcome of the Imperial Conference was unthinkable, he voiced the opinion of many. Events of the past few days, showing how the Dominions and the Motherland are negotiating earnestly for a solution of economic problems supports his contention that there can be no failure.

THE PUPPET

Those who saw the puppet show on Tuesday afternoon at the local Chautauqua (and none who saw failed to be delighted) were treated to an original form of drama which has been one of the utmost importance in civilization. Dolls of course owe their origin to primitive instincts of maternal possession and the time came when they were put to the use of the puppet.

Puppets played a large part in the Renaissance period when they were brought from village to village to delight the people. The Punch and Judy show of this present is a development. Another phase of it shows by intinerant medicine sellers who carry puppets.

The drama of the puppet or marionette became one of the great appeals of the fairs in Germany. Goethe, the German poet, writer of "Faust," was inspired to this great composition by the puppet show of Faust and Magician Mephisto. The little puppet show never left his mind from that day until as he neared his eightieth year he wrote finis to the second part of his great world drama of Faust.

Modern playwrights, and directors, many of them, prepare a miniature stage and place dolls upon them and work out the stage business upon the puppet stage even if they do not go to the full extent of presenting their plays as puppet dramas.

The puppet is no mean thing. Its origin rests deep in the past and it looks out into the undefined future. It has taught childhood, adult life and old age. It has given the language one of its most expressive words, "puppet" one of the meanings of which is that of the person who allows himself to be dominated by some sinister person in the background.

The puppet's strongest fortress will ever be the home and the child its greatest admirer, though there are large theatres where puppet dramas are presented.

COMMENT

Those who brought the Chautauqua to this city this year deserve credit for putting before people an opportunity to hear fine entertainment. The series this year marked a highwater mark of excellence and the public interest and appreciation ran high.

The old question "Does it hurt?" has been raised by the dental convention in Toronto. Dentists differ as to the meaning of the word pain in reference to an extraction and there will probably always be a difference of opinion as to what is painless extraction.

It looks as if South America is going to escape a war as Bolivia drops all hostilities. Does this mean that Bolivia and Paraguay have come to realize that war is not a solution of civilization's difficulties? that it costs money, and leaves a train of more questions than ever to solve? Is this the beginning of the new spirit among men, despite the warlike words of Mussolini? Is the League of Nations towering far higher than many people and nations give it credit for?

The older generation remembers the awful days of youthful toothaches. The rising generation has had more care taken of its teeth and does not know so much of this awful trial. Truly dental knowledge and science are progressing rapidly, because they are absolutely needed by man.

Cars are expected to become cheaper. In motoring circles, however, it is felt that this must diminish the supply of pedestrians, and therefore cannot be good for the sport.

ADVICE TO A YOUNG FARMER
By Robert P. Tristram Coffin

Build your house upon a rise,
Make friends with your arms and thighs.

Dig your spring below a pine,
Plant a morning-glory vine.

Have your bedroom face the dawn,
Have windows with no curtains on.

Though fields lie ready cleared a score,
Cut thickets down and make one more.

Sleep an hour in the sun,
Talk to your cows when milking's done.

By all that's good, be much alone,
Use no man's plow but your own.

Plow as soon as hylas peep,
Mow before the crickets cheep.

Never hope to rise in life
Until you have brought home your wife.

Never trust your corn to crow
Before you have a son or so.

There is no rain to match a mother,
Sons and seeds help on each other.

GASPARD DUIFFOPRUGGAR lived in 1516 in Europe and made violins, almost three hundred years before the first Stradivarius was made. Monday one of the violins made by Gaspard Duiffopruggar visited Belleville, the property of Vladimar Lenski, Chautauqua entertainer, after having been passed down through the ages, loved and owned by a long line of musicians including Fritz Kreisler. This violin is never sold but is handed down in the family musicians having the care of it from one generation to another. The present owner Vladimar Lenski, told the Rotary Club that he had been offered fifty thousand dollars cash for it, but valued it at one hundred thousand dollars, and it was not for sale at any price. One of the Chautauqua organization said that the ancient violin caused more anxiety than anything else pertaining to the business of presenting programs here, there and everywhere. Fear that something might happen the valuable instrument haunted every member of the organization coming in direct contact with M. Lenski. One hundred thousand dollars! For what, an old violin? No, for the soul of the violin placed there by a Great Master of Music over four hundred years ago.

LIGHTNING PLAYS QUEER PRANKS. Quite recently a motor car proceeding along the Provincial Highway west of Belleville during a thunder storm was apparently struck by a bolt of lightning. The people in the car suffered no injury.

RIGHT TO PURCHASE one hundred dollars worth of goods in Canada; a privilege extended to Yankee tourists by their government is a sensible idea. Canadians visiting the United States have no such leeway, in fact one package of cigarettes was taken from a Belleville citizen returning from Rochester and returned only when the sum of sixty cents was paid the customs agent at Cobourg. Very small potatoes at that, while many cartons of Camels were gallivanting by the lynx-eyed official. "Sure good's must be for personal or household use, or sourvenirs, or curios, and not intended for sale, or purchased on a commission for other persons, and must be acquired incidental to the trip. This exemption is allowed to the same person only once in thirty days, and each member of a family is entitled to this exemption."

CAMPAIGN STUFF

They are telling this one in New York. An Irish truck driver rounded a corner at Broad street at a fast clip and barely missed a roped-off excavation. His helper Mike, a Hebrew, didn't see the sign on the rope around that hole reading "Slow Down—Men at Work!"

"Don't be childish," retorted the Irishman. "Pay no attention to those signs. That's only Republican propaganda."

FEW PEOPLE KNOW AUGHT ABOUT NERVES

Knowledge of System is Actually Perfect Blank

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

We talk glibly about nervousness and similar conditions, but few people have a conception of what a nerve actually looks like.

The name scientists apply to a nerve as "neuron." Each of these neurons are very complicated in structure and the pattern is more or less similar throughout the body. The neuron itself is composed of a cell body and a strand with branches. The end of each neuron spreads out like a fan into smaller strands, and these interlace with a tuft of tiny nerve fibrilated at the top of each cell body.

In this way nerve energy is generated in the cell body, flows outward toward the end of the nerve and there is picked up by the next nerve, where it is reinforced by the energy produced in its cell body number two. In other words, each nerve cell is like a tiny electrical battery, which generates electricity, passes it on to the next battery, is there again reinforced, etc.

Nerve energy is probably very much like electricity, as a matter of fact, and recent experiments have shown that there are definite electrical reactions when certain fine instruments are placed upon the skull and to different parts of the nervous system.

At any rate, whether nervous energy is like electricity or is electricity itself or a modification of it, it has been estimated that impulses travelling along nerve cells from the brain at the speed of 140 feet a second. Those travelling outward are somewhat slower. That is, an impluse, let us say, originating in the brain or spinal cord must travel toward a muscle, with the intent of making the muscle operate at the rate of about 110 feet a second.

While the nervous system is extremely elaborate, it is by no means a mixed-up system, though brain or cerebrum, the heart of the chain of nerves, has to do not only with recording impulses that arise in other parts of the body, but it it also the seat of such special sensory nerve centres as hearing, sight, touch, taste and smell. In the brain, too, are nerve centres for memory, reasoning and powers of inference, etc.

Under the cerebrum is the cerebellum or "little brain" and underneath that lies the medulla which also contains highly important nerve centers. From this medulla streams a bundle of nerves known as the spinal cord, that passes down the back inside the spinal column. From the spinal cord thousands of nerves pass toward both sides, to the muscles, organs, joints, etc.

You are probably familiar with the term "neuritis" which comes from the word neuron, and the word "itis" meaning inflamation. Hence neuritis signifies an inflamation of neurons, just as appendicitis means an inflamation of the appendix.

At various points in the nerve system, many nerves are held together in a bundle and surrounded by a so-called sheath. When this sheath becomes inflamed, because of exposure or the presence of toxic substances, the sheath swells and presses on the delicate and sensitive neurons within it. This is what causes the symptoms called "neuritis."

The term "neurasthenia" is also a familiar one. Here the suffix "asthenia" means weakness, hence a weakness of nerves. In neurasthenia the patient becomes exhausted at the slightest provocation and suffers continually from that proverbial "tired feeling." In neurasthenic states there is often a depletion of nerve energy, due probably to some abnormality, interference in the production of nerve forces in the nerve centers themselves.

DURANCE NOT VILE

Oshawa, Aug. 10—The "police state" has its drawbacks, but its attention, the fumigation process, in effect to get rid of a plague of bed bugs, having ended successfully in the slaughter of millions of these unwelcomed guests. This morning the station and cells were thoroughly cleaned and sprayed, and this was necessary, for the bugs had become so free to be seen in every corner in their lens of thousands. The chemical used seemed to have been very effective, judging by the music evidence.

Joe Wright Badly Beaten in His Heat for Sculling Honors, While Pearce Comes Through

Hamilton Man Just Rows Hard Enough to Qualify

NOT THE SAME

Wright Appears as if He Has Lost All His Form

Marine Stadium, Long Beach, Calif., Aug. 10—Bobby Pearce, now a resident of Hamilton, Ont., but defending his Olympic sculling title as a representative of his native Australia, Tuesday defeated Bill Miller of the team A.C., Philadelphia, in the first heat of the Olympic single scull. Pearce crossed the finish line a length ahead of the United States champion.

Miller and Pearce, whose victory advanced him to the finals Saturday, were the only contestants in the heat.

The third entry, Herbert Bubb of Cleveland, Olympic Sculls champion, withdrew because of an infected tooth and a slight touch of influenza.

Pearce covered the 2,000 metre course in the fast time of 7 minutes, 27 seconds. Miller was clocked at 7.29 2-5.

Pearce rowing easily, had command of the race throughout, although there was never any open water between the shells. The Australian held a half-length advantage at the halfway mark, and doubled that by the finish. Miller, despite Miller's "greenness" as a sculler will be expected to get into the finals in the row-off Thursday, today's heat winners.

U. S. Crews Beaten.

It was the third straight setback of the season for the regatta for United States oarsmen. The Penn A. C. Senior four crew from Philadelphia finished second to Poland. Hungary made it a double victory by winning the preliminary heat of the pair-oared without coxswain event, with France second and the United States third.

The British pair-oared combination, Goulden and Beresford, New Zealand combination to win the second heat with clear, Holland was third, a seasoned crew back.

The Canadian eight-oared crew, defending the Olympic championship, had a light workout today in preparation for the first trials tomorrow against the Leaders of Hamilton Hunt, regarded as the strongest threat.

Wright Badly Beaten.

In the second sculling heat, last event of the day, Guillermo Douglas, Uruguay, veteran oarsman, lost a close and exciting race to Leslie Scarlett, Great Britain, by a length. The Englishman won by a length with a spurt in the last 100 metres. Joe Wright, Jr., of Canada, the favorite, was third and last, over a dozen lengths back of Douglas.

Douglas set the pace from the start, leading Scarlett by a close to three lengths after passing the halfway mark, but the South American was unable to maintain the hot pace. He faded rapidly in the last few hundred metres as the British challenged. Southwood pulled up even with him at the finish. Southwood was timed in 7.42 3-5.

Pearce is Favored.

Pearce became an overwhelming favorite by virtue of his fast and impressive victory. The big Australian, who rows for the Vesper Boat Club, appeared capable of pulling away from Miller at any time, as his form was as perfect as ever.

Tomorrow, Canada's three crews get into action. Hamilton Leander eight tackles Penn A. C. in a feature heat. They meet the United States, Germany and Great Britain in the second heat for the eight-oared crews after Great Britain, Japan, Italy and Poland have raced in the first. Winner of each heat advances to the finals, with the losers rowing off in two heats for the fifth row in the declining race.

Halifax Mermaid Feat.

Halifax Mermaid feat, without Coxswain, are grouped with those rated one of the best four boats in the race, and Vesper Boat Club, Noel de Mille, Vancouver doubles crack, Canada, from Brazil, France and Italy in their first-round heat.

FIRST GAME TO RAILROADERS

C.P.R. Pulls Surprise in Nosing Out The Shamrocks 10-9

The C.P.R. won the first game in the play offs with the Shamrocks here last night 10 to 9. The C.P.R. have had a hard time getting into the play-off and now that they are in they will be hard pressed to see the game's hard time. The Shamrocks were scheduled to take them easily according to the dope opinion, Chambers started out in the box for the Shamrocks and pitched a nice game but lacked support of the kind. Hohner was responsible for a number of the runs due to his errors also Miller behind the bat had two bad moments during the first two innings. Chambers was replaced by Fitzpatrick during the fourth, who failed to improve on his work and the game would have been further ahead to leave Chambers in, as Coughlin went in cold and they were able to score a couple of runs before he had a chance to warm up. Fowler was all in the box for the railroad men and really out did himself in the pitching record for the greater part of the season was concerned. He had the entire support of the team behind him, all the boys were working hard, but they lacked a little punch in the pinches to make the game interesting to the finish. They had the bases loaded three different times but failed to score. They had enough men on bases to have scored more runs but Shamrocks will have to go some now to win the next two games from the C.P.R. who have to win the two in order to play off with the league champions Saturday. The home run honors went to Long, Scarlett and Fowler.

Knocks and Boosts

Jack Corcoran announced yesterday that he had engaged Earl Caddock, middleweight wrestling champion of the Pacific coast, to meet Ernie Schmidt all-star wrestling boots. Nelson is an ardent student of the game and is just about ready for tough enough to throw any boys around if they start any rough stuff. Corcoran will be on the job himself tonight and the fans are assured of three excellent bouts at Victor's Park.

Rod LaRegue tapered off his training period at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday when he worked out with Bobby Samson and several fast punchers. Rod has been training in Toronto and was expected to be in shape for anything but his manager, Frankie Hart and Trader Horn will motor to Belleville with Corcoran late this afternoon. Some 3000 seats are being placed around the ring and the scene is all set for Canada's first real wrestling bout to be staged in Belleville. According to the Peterboro press some of these old wrestling veterans appearing in Belleville tonight, are going over in a big way in the Lit Lock City of late. This is the first appearance of the heavyweight wrestlers in Belleville and from what we hear these "old timers" will put on such ever around that squared circle. Peterboro is always full of fun when the Masked Marvel's opponent removes his mask to hear. He got a little peeved when a referee took off his mask in Hamilton the other night and threw his opponent right out of the ring. A result—that was the grand finale.

The other day when Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen, golf professional at the Batoon Aires, Argentine, golf champion, played a golf at the Royal York Golf Club in Toronto, both golfers used the same golf ball on each golf hole. This jacket is manufactured by the Spalding Golf Ball Company and is considered the finest in standard golf equipment for the use of golfer. The jacket is worn on golf course or rather was worn by Jacobs, who came from South America, was taken up with them and Hagen and Sarazen were also made jackets to take back to his native country. Jacobs was another in the Deacon cap, we'd say.

This afternoon the Belleville Intermediates are scheduled to play in Picton after which the Prince Edward County lads come to Belleville for an exhibition game Saturday afternoon. The Vics are in a soccer spot in their league play at present as most anything may happen and has happened league standing. If they loose today they will drop down into a tie with Picton and the latter place while if they win they will be in first place. The Vics have all of their most remaining games in order to not slip from their present position in the league. With three pitchers capable of Ed Hutton, Ralph Dey and Archie Campbell the Vics should win their league in a walk. Belleville has plenty of material on hand and with the ordinary luck they should have should go places in the O.B.A.A. play downs.

Although nothing authentic has been handed out we understand that the B.A.A.A. kids, champions of the local junior loop, go to Peterboro for the final game of the provincial play-downs on Saturday afternoon. The Association kids eliminated the Peterboro juniors last year and as they have a much better balanced team this year they should represent the "east" in the O.B.A.A. in 1932. The kids have the ability if they only receive a decent break. Peterboro has Ernie Smith, Bud Wilkins, Frank Lee and Chuck Smith to rely on the mound if necessary. The receiving duties are capably looked after by Captain Jimmy McGuire who has been acting in that capacity since the club was organized well over a year ago. The rest of the team is equally as well balanced.

The unfortunate occurrence which befell Rene Drancop at Trenday night's girls' softball game was most regrettable. Rene, who has been playing king-pin ball of late for the Belleville Fruit girls, crashed into the Armouries when attempting to catch the ball with the result that she broke the little finger on her right hand. The finger was badly crushed also and Rene's services will be lost to the Belleville Fruit for the remainder of the season. The accident was most regrettable.

The Continental Life's boys sprang a surprise in the local men's senior softball loop last evening when they trimmed the fast Canada Packers boys by the score of 16 to 6. The Point Anners won all of their league games and both games in the semi-finals to step off. But last night the dope was upset.

We just heard that J. Corcoran has added another bout to his much advertised wrestling card. To-night the night all the more popular Jack has engaged Radcliffe and Rutlan, both of Belleville in a return to an extra performance bout. Mr. Corcoran also announced that Ernie Schmidt, in case of rain or adverse weather conditions the wrestling match would be held on Thursday night at Victoria Park.

Did you see the Toronto daily papers this morning, and read about what the Kingston sport fans are doing to try and induce the Toronto Maple Leafs to train there? We think it's high time. We are sure was brought to bear along these lines in Belleville. This has just as much and perhaps a little more to offer than has the Limestone City.

REDUCTION IN MILEAGE ASKED

Unemployed Railway Employees Make This Request

Montreal, Aug. 10.—A recommendation that railway train crews, now steadily employed, accept a reduction in their mileage in order to provide work for 750 to 1,500 unemployed local engineers and trainmen was proposed at a meeting of more than 350 Jobless railway men held here last night.

Delegates were appointed to attend the annual convention of the Unemployed Railway Men's Association of Canada to be held in Toronto tomorrow.

It is proposed that during this period of depression, and as an emergency measure only, the railway brotherhoods be requested to set steadily employed train crews to accept a reduction in their mileage.

LAST MINUTE HOMERS ARE REAL FACTORS

LEAFS LOSE

Bears Win 10 Inning Tussle From Rochester Redwings

(By the Associated Press)

The long arm of coincidence frequently reaches into baseball, touching lowly assistant spots at the same time and bringing some odd results that have no logical explanation.

Coincidence, apparently is the only reason why on some days all the International League will be engaged in pitchers' battles and on another they all will be slugging. It also is the only visible explanation for yesterday's set of tough battles, two of which were decided by last-minute homers, while only single run decisive four-ply wallops occurred only a few minutes apart in such widely separated places as Baltimore and Jersey City.

The one, a clout by Harvey Walker of Montreal, cost the Orioles the decision in the first game of a double header, both games of which, coincidentally, went to extra innings. Walker's homer off Harry Smythe in the 11th put the Royals a 9 to 7 victory after Baltimore had tied the score with two runs in the ninth. The second game was purely a mound battle between Cummings and Pressnell, the former getting a 2-1 margin when Pinch Hitter Dick Coffman singled and Boyle doubled in the 10th.

Leafs Lose Again.

About the same time that Walker was winning a game for Montreal, Jimmy Jordan of Jersey City, stepped up to the platter against Toronto with the score 3 all in both and the bases empty and delivered a homer into the bleachers with seven runs in the next two to tie it up.

Newark and Rochester also fought to a 10 inning deadlock, the former won 7 to 6 without the aid of homers as Al Spohrer, batting for Lucas as a relief hurler, gave only three hits in five innings, walked six and scored the winning run himself. Weaver's single, a fielder's choice on Nemo's sacrifice and Hill's long fly produced the tally.

In a night game Buffalo won its first victory over Albany in four starts in the series, Jack Russell and Biscoe came from behind in the eighth inning to win, 5 and 3-2, when Mueller hit a homer and added another pair in the eighth for a 5-3 victory.

POINT ANNE STRUCK SNAG

Continentals Win First of Softball Playoffs 10-6

In the first game of the final play-off series between the Point Anne and the Belleville Continental Life team, the latter took the long end of a 10 to 6 score at the City Park diamond last evening.

The "Cervent lads" had previously defeated the league champs in the semi final series without losing a game. The Point Anne "Cervent lads" turned the tables last night by the way they made the most of one's final play offs. Johnnie Bawden did the hurling for the winning Continentals and the hits of the Point Anners were all scattered, Bero getting two of the safe ones and pitcher equally as well although he was not credited with the victor tight support as was Bawden. Ray Wright, Continental second baseman was the batting star of the Continental Life nine, he was the top swatsmith for the evening getting his first two of the visit twice. Sonny Tuttle collected the only other long hit of the game, Kihler at third for the "insurance" clout in the last inning. Bitter fight when he got four straight strikes and it looked as if the Anners were the best hitters for the losers, when each collected three safeties.

The second game of the play-off series will be played at the Continental Thursday night when the same teams again take the field.

The lineups:

Point Anne—Marsele, R. Green Loft, M. Green, Gaulin, Serco, Hutchings, Bennett and Sherlock.

Belleville Continental Life—Denk, Tuttle, Kihler, Fanz, Hannah, J. Wright, Bero, Wright, J. Bawden, Pointer and O'Neil.

MOLLY GRAY JUST TOO GOOD

Restricts Fruit Lassies to Two Runs in Six Innings

Showing their superiority in both the field and at bat the National Life team pushed the Belleville Fruit nine back a game in the local girls' loop last night at the Armouries dawn by the score of 17 to 5.

The Maids completely out-classed their rivals from the opening inning and were never called on for a count of darkness in the seventh frame. From the time the fracas by started from the first inning scoring two runs in the first innings and never went back to the bench until the game was over. Babe Lewis started off the first inning with a hit and it was just not her night as the Maids clouted the offerings of Molly Gray for a total of 10 hits.

Molly was the only Belleville pitcher to get a look in on the game as the Belleville Fruit are holders of second position. But if Molly was not in the best of form last night she was by no means the only one. Chico Nunn, Maids shortstop, was another who had an off night with two doubles and two singles to her credit.

The Maids meet the Clasp girls on Thursday night. If the Maids repeat the Belleville Fruit are holders of second position. But if the Clasp girls should win they jump up into a tie with the Fruit team for second spot and a play off for that position will take place on the following night.

The line-ups:

Belleville Fruit—Lewis, Cook, Gash, B. McGuire, Smith, Blaind, L. McGuire, D'Acup, Warham, Gray and Rowbotham.

National Maids—Gray, Stewart, Nunn, Hendrick, Hendrick, Fraser, Knott, Harkins, Scott, J. Kelleher, Jones and Newbrough.

Umpires—Clapper and Colling.

METCALFE BACK YARD TOO FAR IS VERDICT

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 10 (CP)—Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette College sprinter, today was declared to be the victim of a "long count" in the measurement of his starting line in the Olympic 200 metre final, won by Eddie Tolan, Detroit flyer.

Photographs came to light last night to support the contention. The pictures, taken from the stands opposite the finish line, show Metcalfe in the "staggered" markers, indicating Metcalfe's starting mark was three feet behind Tolan's, won by about two yards, while George Simpson, fellow-American, nosed out Metcalfe for second place.

PIRATES HAVE ONLY ONE HALF GAME OF LEAD

Suffer 10th Straight Defeat at Hands of Brooklyn

YANKS WINNING

Now Enjoy Nine Game Lead And Cannot be Headed

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

The St. Louis Cardinals, it would seem, finally have loosed the baleful clutch they mistaid at the close of the 1931 season.

Most of the world's champions' woes this campaign can be traced directly or indirectly to weakness at the plate but there have been many encouraging starts for Manager Gabby Street the last few days. In winning three of four games from the Giants and three from the Phillies, the Cardinals have hammered out seventy hits good for 41 runs. The best sustained offensive by the champions of any 4 days season.

Yesterday they walloped five Philly pitchers for 26 hits to gain an 18-13 victory and strengthen their hold on second place. Pitch. Bottomley and Collins collected four hits apiece, Bottomley's airing including two home runs. The Phils did some effective batting themselves, collecting 18 hits of which Dick Barrett had four.

A Half Game Lead

The Chicago Cubs moved to within a half game of the National League lead by nipping the New York Giants, Gomez and Hubbell, 4 to 2 in the night, while the Pittsburgh Pirates were rebuilding to their 10th consecutive defeat, a 4-0 shutout plastered on them by Ray Benta while the Boston Braves, Harvey Hendrick clouted a double and two singles and Cronin also tripped Brooklyn 8-8 in 10 innings.

Yankees Increase Lead

The New York Yankees added another game to their lead with an impressive American League lead by beating the St. Louis Browns 5 to 3 behind Gomez held the Browns to eight hits to win his 19th victory of the year but it took Babe Ruth's 32nd homer with two on base in the sixth frame to win by a margin.

Washington turned back the Cleveland Indians, 4-2, although Fred Marberry had to relieve Alvin Crowder in the ninth and put down a threatening Indian rally that scored one run and put the tying runs on base. Joe Cronin and Heinie Manush led the Senators attack, each with a triple and two singles.

Detroit pounded Boston pitching for an aggregate of 26 hits, including five doubles, to split a two home runs, and won both ends of a doubleheader, 9-2 and 9-7.

PERCENTAGE OF NATIVE BORN IS MUCH LESS

Ottawa, Aug. 10—The percentage of native-born making up the population of Canada has fallen from 88.06 in 1881 to 77.76 in 1931. While the foreign-born (excluding British) has grown from 2.87 per cent. in 1881 to 10.83 in 1931. QUEBEC AGREES WITH STATEMENT

Premier Taschereau Says Cosgrove Expresses Opinion Held

Montreal, Aug. 10.—The Quebec government is in complete accord with the statement made Monday night by Dr. Peter Bryce, chairman of the power authority of the State of New York, at the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., in connection with the St. Lawrence waterway, Premier L. A. Taschereau stated here yesterday.

The resolution he specifically referred to was "because of the importance of the matter and the great power cheap, the value of such huge blocks of power that the St. Lawrence Waterways would be dissipated if the projects were forced to carry navigation facilities and any effort is treat them as incidental to waterways would burden the consumers.

Beauty.....

BY HELEN JAMIESON

Beautifying Wan All-round Job

To the long-nosed cynic who closes her eyes tight when she rushes past the cosmetic counter, who purses her mouth into a knot when she sees a girl using a lipstick, beautifying is frivolous homage to vanity. It takes the feminine mind from weightier topics—as if that weren't a blessing, these sad Jean years!

Anybow, she's all wet and wrong. The standard of beauty has broadened. It has got down to first principles, health of spirit and health of body. Rouge compacts, eye shadows and butter curls are merely trimmings. Every woman of intelligence realizes that a five-hour agave in a beauty shop is total loss if she stuffs her tummy full of food that it cannot comfortably digest, or if she doesn't get a fair night's sleep. How often looks depends upon bo whole feels—and the rule works almost as well turned the other way 'round.

The campaign for the balanced diet has enlightened the sisters. Only the dumb housewife will dish up an array of starchy foods all at one meal—potatoes, macaroni, beans, biscuits. That happened often enough in the old days. Now there are green vegetables to provide vitamines, fresh green salad to supply mineral salts, milk for the good of the eye teeth and all the rest of the little, while horses. Time was when no meal was a success without pie and three kinds of cake—now contrasted foods that should be eaten sparingly, only as a top-off for the nourishing meal.

If a woman can stave off wrinkles, keep herself young, pretty animated and enthusiastic, she is a happy woman—and a happy woman makes a happy home for her family. Good looks are not the sole subject of her thoughts, just a part. In cold-creaming, shampooing, hair waving, manicuring she finds self-respect and pleasant recreation, good for her soul and her gizzard.

Fifty per cent-of all complexion ills are the result of sluggish circulation and digestive disorders. Women know it. So, to keep themselves fit and fine to look as they feel wisely enjoy outdoor life, bathe daily. It's all to the good. The whole fight has been accomplished through health and beauty departments in newspapers and magazines. So, Mrs. ——, don't curl your nose with sneers and scorns if the girl beside you in car or bus ir reading a pillar of pulchritude.

What woman has learned about dress, about line and color, has made the spectacle of femininity easier on the eye.

An appreciation of beauty, an ideal of beauty—aren't they worth while? You know it.

Beautifying notions of hygienic habits, the development of good taste in dress and manners, in soft-spoken words, in healthy activities and in courage to face whatever life hands one. That efforts are reaping a rich harvest is no casual guess. Where are the bawling, weeping women of other years? Or those who wrinkled at thirty? In these dour ones who settles down to bore their families to a state of gross flesh, by idleness and trivial gab?

Correct Manners

SIGNATURES

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

I was married not very long ago and since then have been signing my name "Mrs. Ellen V. Fisher." The "V" stands for Viola, my middle name. I don't know why I did it that, but feel somehow that that form is incorrect, and that I should sign my name Mrs. Ellen A. Fisher", and the "A" being the first initial of my maiden name. However, it appears that way on my husband's life insurance policies and on some stock which I own, and as I only had these changes recorded recently, I do not like to request another change again, especially for just one letter. Do you think it would be all right to let these appears stay as they are, and in correspondence and all other occasions hereafter use the signature with the the initial of my maiden name? I realize that with two different initials shown, there may be some difficulty at a later date in proving that there is but one person for the two signatures, and for that reason I am in doubt as to what to do in the matter. (I am referring to occasions that require my own first name).

2.—How should I sign my name in correspondence of a formal nature? Which of the following is correct?

Mrs. Bert Fisher.
Mrs. B. Fisher.
Mrs. Bert A. Fisher.
Mrs. Bert Abram Fisher.

3.— I am considering purchasing letter-paper for my personal use, and having it monogrammed in the upper left corner. Is this considered good form, or would you advise using the plain paper?

4.—I have been unofficially told that we will receive shipwreck for the year future as a belated wedding gift. If this does not have information when we receive it, would it be correct to use the initial "P" in such as it is received after the wedding?

Reader.

1.—This choice in the form of your name is entirely a matter of your own preference. While it is true that most married women do choose to use the form of the first and last names of the maiden name before the last name of the married name.... in your case, Ellen Abram Fisher.... there are many who prefer to drop the last name of the maiden name and retain the middle name of the maiden name.... Ellen Viola Fisher, and the abbreviation Ellen V. Fisher is correct, though not such common use for initials are never in such good form as the name spelled out.

I agree with you that it would be a terrific amount of trouble for you to have all those changes made, and there doesn't seem to be any great necessity for the You can sign your checks in the same form which those bonds are signed, don't you? That is important.

2.—You don't ever "sign" your name in correspondence, either formal or informal, with the title of Mrs. A formal letter, and a business or professional letter, is signed:

Very truly yours,

Ellen Viola (or V) Fisher

(Mrs. Bert Fisher)

This is the form in which you should have signed your name in the past. No other form is correct as be sure to notice this with special care.

The form of name to use in writing formal details such as visiting-cards should be either Mrs. Bert Fisher or Mrs. Bert Abram Fisher. It is not good form to use an initial on a visiting card, it is can be avoided. Either omit the middle name, or spell it in full.

3.—It is in excellent form to have your personal letter-paper monogrammed in the upper left corner, and a married woman uses the full tials of her informal name. In your case she monogram would be composed of the initials E.V.F.

4.—Yes it, would be correct to have the plate-wedding silver engraved with your married initial. F., or, if you are to use your initials as initials or designed into a monogram, you would use the same initials as those used in her monogram on your letter paper.... E. V. F.

Proves Its Power to Kill Every

Fly or Mosquito

In the Rex Research laboratory there is a small room, kept filled with flies at their most vigorous age—five days old. In this room of Fly-Tox is tested here with a spray. Unless every fly dies, and quickly, that lot of Fly-Tox is rejected.

That's why Fly-Tox is so certain, so economical to you. Rightly sprayed in a room, it causes a perfumed mist, which no fly or mosquito can escape. That mist is harmless to people, stainless to anything. But these deadly pests all perish in its touch.

Fly-Tox was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. We have spent ten years and over $100,000 to perfect it. The toxic factor comes from flowers of Japan, which scientists found to be deadly to flies.

Use Fly-Tox to protect your home. These insects carry disease germs of some 30 kinds. They contaminate all foods they touch. Their bites inject disease germs in the blood. Thousands of children every year, die from insect-borne diseases. Rid your home of these pests—at once. It's free—for the sake of all who live there.

FLY-TOX ONLY

A Rex Research Product

Use Fly-Tox only, for safety's sake. Use it because it is the latest, most scientific product for this purpose. Use it for economy's sake—only 1 cent per foot of room. Use it because this Japanese flower is the most efficient factor that we know. It is easy, pleasant, sure. It is harmless, stainless, quick. Your home protection is too important to use a lesser method. Get Fly-Tox now. Sold everywhere. Fly-Tox is made in Canada.

SHOWER FOR A NIECE

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1.—My niece is to be married and although the date of her wedding has not yet been set, I would like to know if it would be proper for me to have a shower for her, before the date has been set?

2.—I should also like to know if it is proper for her aunt to have a shower for her?

F. F.

1.—It is quite all right to give the shower before the date of the wedding is set, unless the bride might be so far away that the giving of the shower might be obviously inappropriate.

2.—It isn't supposed to be the part of form for a close relative of the bride or groom to give a shower for the bride. The reason is obvious....too much the appearance of stocking the house via the generosity of friends, rather than via the wedding-budget.

Mrs. Cornelius Beekman will be glad to answer questions on good manners submitted by readers.

WHAT'S FAIR IN LOVE

(By Beatrice Fairfax)

(An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.)

As far as other women's husbands are concerned, I hope it's a "hands off" policy. Likewise girls who take pride in a decent sense of propriety manship respect each other's rights as to engaged men.

I know about in whom other women are deeply interested, and hope some day to become engaged to? Is it to much to expect other women to stand aside until this and that love affair has crystallized? Or is there a kind of unacknowledged understanding that is perfectly legitimate, as long as no actual engagement has taken place?

I get dozens of letters asking me these questions every day in my mail. How far may a girl go without doing anything under hand? And is there any true—that all is fair in love and war?

My own feeling is that a woman of honor and delicacy carries loyalty pretty far. She can not only does not want to stand in the way of a friend's romantic projects, she does not even want to seem to be an obstacle to her plans. A woman who is desperately in love doesn't care about having the charge of cribbing any girl friend's young man said at her door.

We must admit that loyalty to friends and friends is a good deal easier, for instance, when the constant friend has a bad complexion, a dumpy figure and no art in wearing her clothes. It is for a girl whom men flock around like bees after honey-bearing flowers, or for the girl whose radical convictions who have only to walk into a room to create a small revolution.

These reflections are suggested by a letter from May W., who seems to have the perilous gift of making every man fall in love with her. She has an older sister who, I fear, is considerably less attractive. This sister was on the point of becoming engaged to a young man, when May came home from school and something immediately happened.

May's mother is furious. The sister who has been superseded weeps and goes round with red eyelids. May is held to be the culprit. Even Papa, her devoted ally, looks askance, and the young man next door really wicked she has been—because she really couldn't help the young man's falling in love.

No, my dear, you can't help being pretty and attractive, and fatal to men's peace of mind; but you could have been cool to your sister's sisters' beau, when you saw how things were going. You're not, you don't have an easy life, my dear May, but do be merciful to sisters and friends who are less well favored. Don't steal other girls' sweets when it's so easy to get your own.

FAULTS OF OTHERS

If you can't forgive the faults of a friend, you emphasize the fact that you have a greater fault than he.

Those who talks so much about the meanness of others usually have plenty of the same quality themselves.

But they put up smoke screens to hide their own frailties.

The most liberal person in overlooking the faults of others is the one who has few of his own but realizes what a struggle he has had to check his own unfavorable tendencies.

Nearly everyone has such a fight. It is human to have evil tendencies and the big job is to check them.

The person who is constantly alluding to what he presents as evil acts gets a certain satisfaction out of his detestation of these bad points.

This being true, he gives the best possible evidence of his own despicable character and that he wishes to draw others down to his level.

The person who is really fine is always sympathetic and forgiving.

He recognizes the human difficulty of preserving a high standard of conduct and thinks as a whole that the world of men and women do pretty well.

He wishes to help the one who has made a mistake and minimize his error as much as possible.

BULL DRIVE GAINS SPEED AT NEW YORK

Rails Lead Stocks Upward at Express Train Speed

BUSINESS UPTURN

New York, Aug. 10—The Bull movement in stocks rolled forward under the leadership of the rails today, the carriers showing the speed.

By early afternoon, advances ranged from 1 to more than 5 points in a wide assortment of issues. Mid-week business statistics were a shade less favorable than a week ago, but speculators were obviously willing to believe that the current lull in business will prove only a substantial upturn in autumn.

The list dipped a point or two at the start, but quickly turned upward.

Heavy Advances

Norfolk and Western was advanced more than 6, and issues up 3 to 5 included New York Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Delaware, and Hudson despite its dividend cut. U. S. Steel, common and preferred, American Can, American Telephone, International Harvester, Allied Chemical, Johns Manville, Consolidated Gas, and others, also made an exceptional advance of more than 8. Radio, Chrysler, National Dairy, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Pennsylvania, Benguet, Southern Pacific, Westinghouse Smelting and many others were up 2 points or more.

Monstration Results

Bulls evidently were hopeful of constructive results from the meetings of Carrier executives in New York this week. Fresh buying from abroad was reported in the Carrier issues. Railway traffic showed little ahead. Roads thus far reporting freight loadings for the week ending Aug. 6, however, failed to indicate any pickup.

Electric Power

The weekly report of electric power production, now regarded as one of the principal barometers of business activity, is a little disappointing, showing 1,635,986,000 kilowatt hours for the week ending August 6, against 1,640,336,000 in the previous week. The corresponding week last year was 13.1 per cent., against 12.4 per cent. in the previous week. Both weekly petroleum statistics were interpreted favorably, however; the reduction of 1,121,000 barrels of crude line in storage more than counterbalancing the gain of 24,000 barrels in daily average crude output.

Oil Statistics

U. S. Steel reported a drop in unfilled tonnage for July for the sixteenth consecutive month, but announced to only 68,468 tons, or substantially less than previous declines. Heavy buying of the farm implement issues was largely partly on the better tone of commodities, but also on reports in prominent Wall Street circles that methods of improving trade relations with Russia were under consideration. Chrysler can cut its annual dividend to $3 from $5, a somewhat larger reduction than expected.

ALFALFA IS HEAVY CROP

Milk Flow in Eastern Counties Reduced by Poor Pasturage

Toronto, Aug. 10.—Yields of Tuesday wheat were above average and the quality of the grain is splendid except in fields amounting to about 10 percent of the total acreage, which were badly lodged or damaged by the downpours, says the report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture summarizing crop conditions in Ontario to the end of July, when full wheat harvesting practically completed.

Frequent rains during the month in Central and Western Ontario delayed harvesting operations somewhat but improved crop prospects generally the report states.

Milk flow in Eastern counties has been restricted due to lack of good pasturage.

Hay, Clover and Northern Ontario hay and clover yields were light, due to drought, but quality was above average. Alfalfa yields were quite heavy and curing and cutting of alfalfa developed very favorably during the month. Grain crops have benefitted from the good growing weather and the yield will not be up to the usual standard. Many fields are patchy, on account of weather at seeding time. Corn, though backward, has made rapid growth but many fields are uneven and patchy, particularly in Eastern Ontario.

The increase in potato production is looked for as acreage is estimated at seven percent less than last year, but the condition at the end of July points below normal. Blight and late blight are fairly prevalent and will cause a reduction in yield of many fields.

Few Extra Jars Fruit Done Up Mayor Requests

Mayor Tice requested the press today to suggest to the housewives of the city that owing to the plentiful fruit this season they, in preserving time do up a little extra to preserves and so furnish for the relief work to be undertaken this winter. Many cases of belleville have been generous in their response to appeals for relief and I feel that they will be only too glad to take up this suggestion" he said. Later we shall ask for the names of those who have prepared and are prepared to give and will call for the gifts later. What I am anxious to have done at this is merely to request the women of Belleville to do their preserving of this kind, which will add very greatly our work."

ATHLETIC CLUB ENTERTAINS FOR BRIDAL COUPLE

VICTORIA—On Monday evening, July 25th, the Victoria Community held a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Weese in honor of their daughter, Geraldine (Mrs. Rosenplot). The Victoria Athletic Club also met the same evening and presented Geraldine with a beautiful electric floor lamp. The following address was read by Mr. Gerald Pope and the presentation was made by Mr. Raymond Montgomery.

Mrs. Geo. Rosenplot,
Dear Geraldine:

It is with mingled feelings that we meet tonight to wish you Bon Voyage as you set out in your matrimonial sea.

You have grown up among us as Algonquin maiden, and now to one neighbor, but now your step in life brings to us a feeling of the loss.

We congratulate Mr. Rosenplot, we realize that our loss is his gain, we wish for you a long and happy married life, and while we know the going may not always be smooth, we wish you a mutual fellowship and understanding that may enable you to weather the storms together. We ask you to accept this lamp and as it lightens your home, we trust it may continue to lighten your path of duty and reflect upon the warmth of their affections.

Signed on behalf of the V.A.C.

Gerald Pope,
Roy Brickman,
Harmon Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosenplot each responded in a few words to all for the beautiful remembrance and the beautiful lamp after all singing the "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

After the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Rosenplot, Mrs. M. B. Weese was called and an address and presentation to Mrs. Rosenplot was given her for her help toward the club.

Dear Mrs. Weese,

There is a friend like the old friend who has been tried and true. We like to greet our old friends and we wish a greeting now.

It is a well known fact that most successful societies in the world not only capable leaders but also staunch supporters who work not for fame or glory but for the pleasure they find in the service they can render. We, the officers and members of Victoria Athletic Club also think we have such a supporter and friend in you. You have at all times been willing to render service toward us with sympathy, advice, and encouragement and deeply appreciate your kindness we ask you to accept this small token of our appreciation, and hope that we may long be able to call upon you for help in our undertakings and pleasures.

Signed on behalf of the Club,

Gerald Pope,
Roy Brickman,
Harmon Montgomery.

Although taken entirely by surprise Mrs. Rosenplot thanked the club for their kind remembrance and assured them that they had a friend in any way. After which refreshments of fruit, candy and lemonade were served.

IRISH EYES

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"And then the next time you meet him it's four days before his mail rags to another girl!"

"You see, Joe?"

"But you were still in love with him?"

"Well, I sort of liked him." Sheila suddenly took a firmer tone. "But I hate him now" she said.

"Three days after you're married him?" her mother muttered in an undertone. "That's fine dohn't!"

"Wait a minute, Ma. So you and Peter said you'd meet?"

She swallowed, nodded, watching her brother's face anxiously, with drenched eyes. Then fighting back the tears she told them of her incredible adventure.

Presently Joe interrupted.

"Sheila dear, I want to believe you, and I want to get this straight. It sounds incredible, fishy. Why should those men want to drive you and Peter Mc-Cann along with them? Why shouldn't they let you go home?"

"Well, they were trying to hide something"

"Go on. What happened then?"

Then we went bumping up and up and up, to the most desolate old house you ever saw, and I was hired to do the cooking, to help with all my clothes on.

"And the next day—yesterday there we were with three terrible-looking men, only they turned out to be not so terrible. Then the first man came up and I guess he told them everything, for they were very, very nervous, we started down in the same truck——only first I cooked dinner for them. Ma, I cooked a pot-roast, only I had to thicken it with flour, because there wasn't any cornstarch—so then they brought us to this place called Capitol Junction—"

"But when were you in Boston, Sheila?"

"In Boston? Who said we were in Boston?"

"Saturday night."

"In Boston? Who said we were in Boston?"

"That's where your telegram came from."

"Why, it couldn't have been. Joe! We gave him our names on Saturday at the station, and he said he'd send the telegrams right away. He thought Peter and I were married, or were going to be, anyway."

"And so you were married. Mc-Cann—"

Sheila glanced at her, looked patiently at her brother.

"So we had to let him," she explained. "Just how it has happened that we had liked each other, and that Peter was going to be married here in New York?"

"Married! Joe, you're crazy, or else I'm going crazy. I don't know which! We never were married. We hate each other! We never thought of getting married!"

"I guess you and I don't understand each other, Joe said slowly, after a long pause. "I guess we're sort of—in the dark. Who sent this?"

He took a much folded limp oblong of yellow paper from his pocket, opened it, passed it to Sheila.

She flattened it, read it, and looked at him.

"Peter McCann and I married by justice of the peace this evening." it said. 'Very happy letter soon.

It was signed "Sheila."

For a long time Sheila sat staring at them all in silence. The color drained from her face.

"Is that what he sent?" she whispered at last.

"That came Sunday morning," Joe answered, watching her.

"Well, of course it's a lie, Joe," she said simply. "We never were in Boston, we never were married. You can go to the library and you'll find those papers on the reel where I jumped out, I suppose. They're probably still there in the snow. And you can see the police, if they'll tell you the same. And you can find Capitol Junction on the map!"

An uneasy, amazed silence followed. Joe glanced at his mother's Mrs. Carscadden rolled her eyes, pressing the five fingers of one hand against her mouth over the other.

"You all believed the worst of me," Sheila answered, getting angry. "And you can see that I'd run off to get married by a justice of the peace! All of you, Angela and Ma and even Joe!"

"All right," she stammered, choking back a sob. "All right, all right, I will run away! You'll never hear from me again! You'll have the police chasing me up and printing stories that I eloped with another girl's fiance—you've got me, between you! You'll never see me again!"

"Sheila, for heaven's sake!" Joe protested. "I'm not mad. Getting a telegram like that, what else could Ma think?"

"Ma was just as bad as the rest of you!" Sheila sobbed wildly. "Don't touch me, Joe. don't hold me! I tell you I'm going away and I'm never coming back, never!"

"Oh, blessed Saint Joseph, save us!" Angela prayed, frankly.

No heavenly intervention appeared likely. But there was an interruption, nevertheless. Frank Mc-Cann quietly opened the hall door and stepped into the kitchen.

He was confronted by Sheila, pale faced, with blazing eyes. She had thrown off her brother's detaining hand, her fingers had been on the knob when Frank turned it.

"Hello, hello!" Peter's older brother said in his pleasant voice as he took in the scene. "What's going on here?"

"What's going on." Sheila answered hotly, with a heaving chest, "is that my mother and my brother and sister dont believe me, and I've had about enough of being treated like a thief and a liar and a street-walker and I don't know what else besides!"

CHAPTER II

"Well, Sheila, you don't be in such a hurry!" Frank said, stopping her with a big, gentle hand.

"I've got to go!" Sheila told him, breathlessly.

"But wait a minute——"

"You wouldn't," she told him, "if you'd been out of your mother and sister and brother all double-crossed you!"

Gentle and dark and good-natured, he smiled down at her, no, irresisting her arm from the grip of his fingers.

"Well, I never double-crossed you, did I, Sheila?"

"Let me go!" the girl said angrily. She looked up and for the first time in her life saw really saw him, a dark, smiling young man, with Irish blue eyes.

"I never double-crossed you, did I?" Frank said.

The girl spoke dazedly, as if out of a dream.

"No ,you never doubled-crossed me."

"Sit down, then," he said.

Sheila did not move her eyes.

"Be a good girl," Frank urged.

Suddenly she sat down. She sat watched his face expectantly.

"My father is very anxious to see Sheila and you, Mrs. Carscadden," Frank said. "So that we can begin to get all this straightened out. Unfortunately—unfortunately Joe and I, here gave the thing to the papers as an 'elopement' he added with a rueful laugh.

"There was no marriage, it seems now," he said.

"No, but the evening papers have it."

Joe clicked teeth and tongue. Mrs. Carscadden began a wail but her fingers over her mouth again.

"What else could we do?" Frank asked. He had put out a big hand and gripped Sheila's fingers as they lay on the table, but he was not looking at her. "We had given the disappearance story to the police Saturday night," he said. "Then the telegrams came. The quickest way to finish the whole thing up was to let them think that you and Peter had decided to fly in your families a surprise and get married. We made it as dignified as we could, didn't we, Joe? We said that this followed up a friendship begun at Tuxedo Beach last summer—that kind of thing.

"What complicates it," he said, directly to Joe, "is that when Sheila and Pete got to town tonight they went straight to a police station and turned in the story. The bootlegger story, I mean. That's what's why we do now, it's—well, it'll cause some little embarrassment. Frank concluded, with his grave half-smile for the distressed circle.

"I'll tell the world!" Joe said.

"Pete telephoned the police station." Frank resumed, "and they had already sent a man up to the Broadway place. We'll get the dope on that, then we'll have to decide to go on. Probably the police will take it up at this point."

All the time his hand rested firmly, encouragingly, on Sheila's and it was as if his spirit had laid cooling hands up on her spirit as well as comforted it so doubly beside him, her bright eyes moving about the circle.

She did not, as a matter of fact, hear anything that they were saying. She was absorbed in a strange thrilling adventure of her own. The shabby kitchen, the flowered pots and pans, the oilcloth-covered table with the sticky sugar bowl and the dingy morning sunlight had dug up into a red glass tumbler—Sheila knew before her eyes, but she did not see them. She did not hear her mother's square indignance, under her thin, well-brushed gray hair, nor Joe's dark features, Angela's pale skin and her flowered eyes and sarcoln of gold.

Frank, too, and then she noted thoughtfully at Frank McCann, studying his face with absorbed, vague, serious eyes. He was as dark as Peter, with Peter's blue eyes. But his shoulders were squarer, and there was something definite, grained about him. He made Peter seem like a little boy. Just the twist of his square mouth, not quite smiling, all sympathetic as he occasionally glanced at her—that brought a pale blue pulses moving to it slow, rhythmic beat that seemed to be rocking the whole world as well as the heart of Sheila Carscadden.

He was so wise. Look at the way Mamma and Joe listened to him hanging on his words! And yet, the quietness of him, the simple, gentle way he suggested things, as if he had no power at all! He didn't have to make any moves to get his way.

"Be a good girl," he had said to her. And he had called her "Sheila." After she had run away from all the hatefulness, from the new, acoustic, suspicious Angela, and this reproachful Joe, and this totally unknown Ma, then she knew that she would take those magic phrases out of the very inner chamber of her soul and taste them over and over again on her tongue.

"Now, tomorrow being St. Patrick's Day, it's a holiday," Frank was saying. "And my mother wondered if you and Joe, and Sheila would come down to our house in the morning, Mrs. Carscadden, and we can talk the whole thing over. They'll probably be a report from the police department by then and we can give out a statement to the press and straighten everything out. And by this time next week," Frank said cheerfully, rising, "everyone will have forgotten all about it. You'll be down?"

Ma glanced at Joe, and Joe nodded.

THE SON OF TARZAN—No. 96

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

A week later came one General Jacot bearing a letter of introduction from their mutual friend, D'Arnot. Tarzan knew the famous soldier by reputation; knew that his family was a famous one, for Jacot was in reality the Prince de Cadrenet, though too ardent a republican to use the title. After a dozen words both men formed a mutual esteem that was to endure through life. "Admiral D'Arnot believes you can aid me," began the distinguished visitor.

"He tells me no one is better acquainted with Africa. Let me give you my story from the beginning. Many years ago my little daughter was stolen while I was serving with the Foreign Legion." Then briefly he related his long search, the huge rewards offered; the printed publicity and how they had been at last forced to give up in despair. But recently a young Arab, one Abdul Kamak, had come to him in Paris saying he knew where the girl was held captive.

It was supposedly near Tarzan's African estates. With growing impatience Lord Greystoke listened; with growing eagerness he scanned the faded clippings. Ringing a bell he said to the footman, "Ask my son's wife to please come here." A moment later Meriem entered. Jacot arose, started and shaking with suppressed emotion exclaimed: "IT IS SHE!" Meriem rushed toward him—"I know you—I know you! Oh, you remember," she cried as the old warrior folded her in his arms.

Lady Greystoke and Jack were summoned to learn the glad tidings. "You did not marry an Arab waif after all," Meriem laughed through joyous tears. "Aren't you glad?" "Meriem, my dear," said the son of Tarzan quietly, "I married YOU, for my part, I wouldn't have cared if you were an Arab—or a little white monkey," he added teasingly. "She is neither, my son," said General Armand Jacot, coming proudly to them. "Meriem, my daughter, is a princess in her own right."

Bennett Stands Pat on Value of Offer but is Ready to Revise Details

Countries Has Different Views Over The Size of Switch

EXPERTS DISAGREE

Quebec and Ontario are Highly Developed Industrially

Ottawa, Aug. 10—With spokesmen frankly admitting that the differences in figures and opinions as presented by the Canadian and British delegations were quite radical," Canadian experts under the guidance of a committee of the Bennett cabinet, sat down Tuesday to try and reach some basis on which they can meet the tariff reductions demanded by Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin and his colleagues.

It is admitted on all sides here that agreement between Canada and Great Britain will be much more difficult to reach than the present all-but-accomplished accords between the Mother Country and the other dominions. That is because Canada is so highly developed industrially. The other Dominions, largely speaking, are purely agricultural or mineral domains. Britain's factories enter into no serious competition with their own small industries. Only Canada, Quebec on the other hand, have reached a stage of industrial development which, combined with a strong protectionist opinion, it is difficult for any Canadian Government to let down the tariff bars and permit even British industries to compete here on even terms with the Canadian interests.

Perplexing Differences

The difference between the trade estimates of the British and the Canadian experts perplexed observers here today. The British set one figure—a low one—as the amount of trade which, they considered, would be diverted from foreign countries, largely the United States, to Great Britain if so-called were reached. The Canadian experts, working on the same trade conditions, produced another and much higher estimate of trade diversion. In fact, they estimated the switch in trade at several times the figure submitted by the Englishmen. The discovery of the two figures was so marked that official observers wondered if the two sets of experts were working from the same figures.

Yet while the Canadian experts wrestled with the British reply, while the Canadian Cabinet argued as to the merits of continuing the present protection on steel, rattles and hoods and shoes, and while Canadian public opinion resolved itself into two elements—and did Bennett groups, it was sincerely asserted by those in the closest touch with the negotiators that there was no rift in the conference. Both sets of experts held that their figures were "reasonably correct" and was stated at the same time there was said to be absolutely no foundation in the stories that the conference was wrecked, that the delegations were at loggerheads or that things generally were going to pot.

In ancient Rome the Vestal Virgins were no highly honored than on the highways even a casual gave them the right of way.

Wants Concession For Concession in Canada

DUMPING

Requests Answer on Sterling Stabalization Above All

Ottawa, Aug. 10—Indications today are that Canada's reply to Great Britain will, in the main, stand by the offer of preferences for preference which Canada has already made to Great Britain. On iron and steel, some concessions may be made to the British viewpoint, but the Canadian view, generally speaking, is that the offer is fair.

The Canadian minister, discussing the situation last night, was inclined to brush aside the difference between the British and Canadian experts as to the value of Canada's offer in terms of British export trade.

The important quotation of the real points at issue as four-fold:

Points at Issue

1. That Canada asks concession for concession.

2. That Great Britain has not since the conference opened indicated what she is prepared to do.

3. That Great Britain has not indicated what steps she is prepared to take to prevent the sliding up and down of sterling.

"Those," it was stated, "are the real questions at issue.

"The difference over figures is not so serious as it may seem to appear."

Both Mr. Baldwin's letter and the general terms of Mr. Bennett's reply were under consideration yesterday by a Cabinet sub-committee and later by the Cabinet itself. British and Canadian experts were also in contact in an endeavour to iron out their differing opinions as to the value to British export trade of Canada's offer.

RAILWAY MAY BE SHUT DOWN

New Tax of 1.00 Ton on Coal May be The Cause

Dublin, Aug. 10—A warning that unless the Free State changes its tariff policy the Great Northern Railway may be forced to close down, was sounded Tuesday by Sir Wm. Goulding at a special meeting of the shareholders.

Sir William's remarks on British coal came in for severe criticism. The prohibitive tariff on border ait-buited the immediate railway crisis to this tax, claiming that British coal was the cheapest for the company's engines.

"The Free State," he declared, could not submit to be blackmailed in this manner in order to help the political policy of the de Valera Government."

Sir Walter Nugent, who has occupied high office in several railway companies prior to being Deputy Governor of the Bank of Ireland, drew a gloomy picture of impending disaster The railways must be given relief by the control of freight traffic, relief from unfair road competition and relief from excessive costs of operation. Otherwise they would have to be closed down, he declared, "or to the government—which he thought would be disastrous for all concerned.

WANTS BRITAIN TO CONTROL LUMBER TRADE

Ottawa, Aug. 9—Canada is using every effort towards control in the United Kingdom of the flood of cheap lumber imports. As conversations continue, the attitude of the Dominion is understood to be that without freedom of preference would not meet the "dumped product of the Soviet union."

Under the 10 per cent preference of the United Kingdom towards Empire countries last year, Russian imports of lumber into Great Britain increased notwithstanding. State monopoly of the timber industry in Russia and the low scale of wages, it is stated, afford Soviet Russia means of meeting an increased tariff.

The path of scepticism can lead back to orthodoxy.

The robbers evidently shook the fastening of the ticket wicket loose and crawled through the wicket. Nothing else was disturbed. Entries to have been tampered with and windows were left. CONSTANCE BENNETT DISCLOSES WORLD BEHIND SCREEN IN "WHAT PRICE HOLLYWOOD"

Of its people and made by its people, Hollywood writes its own biography in "What Price Hollywood," which brings the smart vivacity of the glamorous Constance Bennett in her latest starring production coming to the Belle Thursday and Friday, matinee daily. Miss Bennett is purported to surmount the charm and elegance she displayed in her previous film success, "Lady With a Past," which won a host of new fans for the screen star.

Peers Into Hollywood Life

With a galaxy of celebrities in support, Miss Bennett unfolds the intricacies and intimacies of the inner and more notable circles of the Film Captol, Lowell Sherman, Neil Hamilton, Gregory Ratoff, Louise Beavers and others aid the star to present an authentic examination of Hollywood life. The action traverses the thoroughfare of social life coupled with a delightful tale. Malibu Beach, the swimming Derby Restaurant, glittering Hollywood Boulevard, Agua Caliente, Tijuana, Mexico, Palmdale, Arrowhead Springs and the princely estates of Beverly Hills partake of the film footage to make the picture real. Moreover, every phase of talking picture making is frankly revealed.

Absorbing Tale

The story of "What Price Hollywood" was authored by Adela Rogers Hyland, and the story even residents who consequently is enabled to cull the many familiar angles of Hollywood. Concerning itself with an ambitious girl who smashes the movie gates, the novel depicts the spectacular rise of a waitress who encounters a famed director and producer to gain acc ranking on the screen. Interwoven is an ultra-modern note of romance and whimsical comedy which will charm Bennett fans and arouse an additional list of followers.

Dramewrive Gift Tonight

An exceptional Dramewrave gift will be presented to each lady attending the Belle tonight, where "Unashamed", sensational drama of the modern age, featuring Helen Twelvetrees and Lewis Stone, provides thrills that are all the more intense because of their ultra modern aspect.

The theory of pessimism as taught by Schopenhauer was that this is the worst of all worlds and that it is the best to sleep through it, to die than to sleep.

At The Capitol

"SYMPHONY OF SIX MILLION" IS OUTSTANDING

Touching the heart strings with its deep pathos and its rendering of a sublime romance, an exceptionally fine picture opened at the Capitol Theatre today for two days.

The film is RKO-Radio Pictures' "Symphony of Six Million", co-featuring Ricardo Cortes and Irene Dunne in a story of deep human feeling by Fannie Hurst.

Like most of Miss Hurst's tales it is a sympathetic interpretation into the lives of two young people who are integral parts of a dominant, rich ground of traditions and economic strictures.

Vaguely reminiscent of "Humoresque" — one of the screen's indisputed classics—the film has the air of eminent authoress — the film paints in bold, dramatic colors as it tells the poignant story of a Ghetto Doctor's love for a daughter of the slums.

Drama of City Life

Its theme is based on the inherent idealism of man and the eternal quest for romance of woman. It is based with a boy in the slums who becomes a famous doctor despite social and economic barriers.

It shows him as a dreamer, wishing only to heal the sick, never caring whether he made a fee. He is forced by his ambitious family to move to the Park Avenue section of the rich live. There he makes money and becomes the most noted surgeon of his city. But he has lost the respect of the slums in the quest of money.

In a tragically beautiful scene he is called in an operation upon his aged father and his faith in himself wrecked, he abandons his doctorate and hides from the world, he is recalled by Jessica (Irene Dunne).

Cortes-Dunne Starred.

The film brings a changed Cortes to audiences that have seen him during the past few years in villainous roles. The doctor is a sympathetic character and Cortes plays the role with subdued shadings and a vast amount of sympathy. Indisputably, it is the finest thing that he has done to date.

Miss Dunne, similarly, plays her part of the teacher with considerable artistry and feeling.

The rest of the cast was selected with rare good judgment. Anna Appel, formerly of the Yiddish Art Theatre, plays the role of Cortes' mother; Gregory Ratoff, erstwhile star of the Moscow Art Theatre, is a sympathetic Jewish father. Others of note are Noel Madison, Ita Cheretow and Henry Armetta.

Gregory La Cava directed the picture with the sympathy and understanding required by the subject matter. It is a tribute to his work that there are no declamatory speeches, or sobby scenes and none of the artifices employed so often for the sake of punch.

Glasware Girl.

Tonight each lady will be presented with a beautiful gift of Royal Florentine Glasware with the management's compliments.

ADVERTISING

to Save . . . through Spending

Not many of us, these days, are troubled with so much money that we cannot spend it. But we ARE interested in spending the money we have, to get the most out of it.

One way—and not a new way, either—is to make a budget. Put down, week by week, the money that comes in. Put down beside it, what you spend the money that goes out. So much for food, so much for clothing, so much for rent. So much for giving, and for luxuries.

It won't always be easy, of course, to stay within the budget. That's where advertising helps you. Advertisements in this newspaper tell you how much rugs, butter, breakfast foods, dishes, homes, automobiles will cost BEFORE you go shopping! They point out ways to save money. They show you how to cut a little here, a little there. And each day, they tell about new inventions, new products, new ways of doing things, that help make this life of ours very much worth living.

CHILL IS CAST ON BIRTHDAY OF REPUBLIC

Shadows of Rising Fascism and Ghosts of Monarchy Seen

HITLER TO LEAD

Believe He Would be Better at Head Than Leader of Group

(By W. E. Brockman, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Aug. 11—Shadows of rising Fascism and resurgent ghosts of the monarchy of the Kaisers cast a chill today over the 14th birthday of the German republic.

Everywhere there was talk of Adolf Hitler, former Austrian paper-hanger, who appeared assured of heading the next government under the swastika emblem of his Fascist following.

But huddled indoors, barred from the streets, fathered the Republican groups, holding their anniversary exercises under the guise of party meetings, forbidden openly to rejoice at the republic's founding to hail it with a "hoch!"

In many smaller towns all observance of the day was banished. Military were forbidden.

President Paul Von Hindenburg planned to attend the observance of the anniversary in the Reich stag chamber tonight, but Baron Wilhelm Von Gaul, who will attend, or the principal address, was expected to devote it to plans for revision of the constitution rather than to praising it.

Ten days ago these plans were sketched in outline by Chancellor Von Papen in an interview with the Associated Press. They included curbing the power of the Reichstadt.

Chancellor Von Papen requested the leaders of the Centrist party, headed by former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, to call on him today to discuss their attitude toward turning the Chancellorship over to Hitler.

More Under Control

The Centrists are noted for their political astuteness, and there was also a feeling they might agree to tolerate Hitler's rise to power if they did not surrendered to his Nazis.

The consensus in informed circles was that the Centrists and President Von Hindenburg were agreed Hitler would be more innocuous as chief of a coalition government than as leader of the Nazi movement, without responsibility.

The newspaper Zeitoffice Hitz said this morning President Von Hindenburg and the rest of the cabinet, with the exception of General Von Schleicher, opposed turning the Chancellorship over to Hitler, insisting on the plan as "dangerous."

Alfred Hugenberg, leader of the Nationalists, also exerted marked influence against Hitler, it said.

After having slept over the situation last night, President Von Hindenburg was understood to be willing to meet Hitler just as far as possible to effect a coalition for a Chancellorship, but with a proviso so big that it might be unable or unwilling to assume the task of forming a cabinet.

The proviso was understood to cling resolutely to the idea of a "presidential cabinet," independent of party ties. On such a basis Hitler would be called in by Von Hindenburg definite assurance that if he were asked to form a cabinet he would set up a truly super-partisan government.

REBELLION IS DOWNED AFTER 24 HR. FIGHT

General Jose San Jurjo Flees After Troops Surrounded

MARTIAL LAW

Strict Censorship is Placed Around All News

By REX SMITH
(A. P. Staff Correspondent)

Madrid, Aug. 11.—Spain's twenty-four hour monarchist rebellion was smashed by the government today with the arrest at Huelva of its leading leader, General Jose San Jurjo.

The general fled from Seville shortly before 1 a.m. after his revolutionary machine, which captured Seville and other important southern city yesterday, had crumbled in front of powerful concentrations of government troops, which were converging on the rebels' main center of concentration points.

Civil Governor Guido Miranda of Huelva reported a few hours later that San Jurjo was under arrest as the executive chosen by the rebels. He said he was taken as he was about to enter the city limits of his old field officers were arrested with him.

The Governor telephoned the government from the capture and Minister of Interior Casares ordered the four planes brought to Madrid immediately.

Gave Up Fight.

The veteran monarchist leader gave up his fight at Sevilla, reports said, when his efforts to rally support ended in city failed. Troops remained in control in Seville, and there was no disorder.

Reports from the dozens of army officers who followed San Jurjo disguised themselves in civilian clothes and began to steal out of the city.

After the white flag was run up on the Government buildings a rebel delegation approached government officials to surrender. Reports in both sides are meeting together but the battle of figures is at an end. The reports are apparently working their way through tariff schedules, and removing personal and political opposition.

Sitting with his back to a pine tree while taking shelter from a severe electric storm, which passed over Combermere, 20 miles northeast of Bancroft, Wednesday afternoon during the progress of the Catholic picnic at that place, William Kelly, 30, son of William Kelly, Sr., Carlow Township, was instantly killed. His brother, Norman Kelly, and their cousin, Clifford Kennedy, were badly stunned and are now not out of danger. A team of horses hitched to a democrat close by the same tree were also struck, one of the horses being killed and the other stunned.

The lightning bolt apparently struck a pine tree in the close proximity of the tree under which Kelly was sitting and he never moved. The funeral of the deceased will be held on Friday, from White's Church at Boulter.

BATTLE ABOUT FIGURES OVER AT OTTAWA

Definite Agreements Now in Order After Analysis

RUMORS AFLOAT

Statements Grow Laconic as Agreements Hover Near

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 11—Under brighter skies, the Empire Conference has let its color towards agreement. The old controversy between British and Canadian export over value of the Canadian offer has passed into the background. Experts on both sides are meeting together but the battle of figures is at an end. The experts are apparently working their way through tariff schedules, removing personal and political opposition.

Laconic Statement

As delegations proceed with negotiations, official communiques become increasingly laconic and deadly only with the routine of committee and sub-committee meetings and rumor multiply.

According to the current today, Great Britain and India have already reached a tentative agreement, the purport of which has been cabled to the government at Simla, India. Other reports are that Great Britain is willing to consider reimposition of foreign meat imports but by means other than the imposition of tariffs; that British motor-trucks are included in the concessions which Canada is ready to make to Great Britain; that a sub-committee representing Great Britain and Australia and Canada has been appointed to study the Australian proposal.

Canada's Offer

Canada's offer, current today, Great Britain and India have already reached a tentative agreement, the purport of which has been cabled to the government at Simla, India. Other reports are that Great Britain is willing to consider reimposition of foreign meat imports but by means other than the imposition of tariffs; that British motor-trucks are included in the concessions which Canada is ready to make to Great Britain; that a sub-committee representing Great Britain and Australia and Canada has been appointed to study the Australian proposal.

WEARY MART TURNS WEAKER

Rails and Electric Stocks Turn Teeter Downward

NEW YORK, August 11. — The stock market wearied of bullish stimulation today and turned emphatically downward during the afternoon.

Successive buying waves, first in the rails, then in the farm implements, failed to keep the bull movement rolling, in face of the growing conviction that trading letters that the advance had been going too fast, and that the list was over-ripe for a technical reaction. Trading was active at the start, but fell selling developed considerable volume as the session went into the 4th hour.

Rail Losses

Union Pacific, after selling two points higher on the regular $1.50 dividend dropped to show a loss of 2. Extreme advances of 3 and 4 points in International Harvester, Deere & Co. and Allis Chalmers, and a point advance in American Telephone and Telegraph, all of like extent, U. S. Steel Common, only up a fraction at the best, receded 2 points, and the preferred, 4. American Smelting rose more than a point, but fell off again, the gain today by Dick Lavender, former compositor on the Chief.

"He frequently discussed suicide," Mrs. Lavender testified. He said they had been drinking companions. He was despondent. Coroner Clarke was employed by a newspaper.

"Clarke thought I planned to commit suicide, and told me the way to go about it was to do it in a big way. He said a pistol was the best method," Lavender said.

"The description of Clarke's body was found completion for the time at any rate. examination by the coroner's physician, and injection into the case

WALL STREET PRICES YIELD

Further Profit-Taking and Prices Settle

New York, Aug. 11.—The stock market ran into further flurries of profit taking today, after waves of buying in the rails and farm implements had boosted prices to new high levels for the recovery during the earlier hours.

Advances of 1 to 4 a share were lost after midday, when a number of issues sold at the lowest levels since yesterday's final prices. The volume of trading slackened considerably as the day wore on.

Bonds were in fair demand for the rails and public utilities, along with stocks. Some of the commodities also ran into profit taking selling, notably rubber. Silver, however, was buoyant, with bar silver in New York easing about 20 cents an ounce. Colton also was higher.

Former Chum Swears Haden Clark, Narcotic, Often Discussed Suicide

Miami, Ia.P. Aug. 11.—Testimony that Haden Clarke, for whose slaying Captain W. N. Lancaster is on trial, was a narcotic addict, that he frequently discussed suicide and that he suffered in New Orleans from an illness with which he was afflicted at the time of his death, was given today by Dick Lavender, former compositor on the Chief.

"He frequently discussed suicide," Mrs. Lavender testified. He said they had been drinking companions. He was despondent. Coroner Clarke was employed by a newspaper.

"Clarke thought I planned to commit suicide, and told me the way to go about it was to do it in a big way. He said a pistol was the best method," Lavender said.

"The description of Clarke's body was found completion for the time at any rate. examination by the coroner's physician, and injection into the case of the attitude of spectators and one state witness.

Judge H. F. Atkinson ordered the jury from the court room while he delivered a warning against any further demonstrations.

His comment was the result of applause and laughter yesterday when Mrs. Carson, chief defence counsel, apparently won a verbal tilt with State Attorney Clark of Newton Hawthorne.

Hawthorne at that time refused to a statement by Lancaster that some of the letters from Clarke and Mrs. Keith-Miller to him had disappeared.

"The state has been accused of concealing those letters," the prosecutor said. "The state has never seen them."

"The defence has made no accusation," Carson retorted, "but does the State intend to plead not guilty anyway."

It required a threat by the judge to clear the court room to restore order.

British Press Ponders Over Problems Facing Conference of Empire

Premier Bennett's Problem Says London Times is Not Personal

DOMESTIC OUTCOME

Formation of National Government Hinted at in Canada

(By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 11—Nearly every British newspaper today carried a prominent denial from its Ottawa correspondent that there are serious dissensions in the Canadian cabinet.

One Free Trade newspaper, however, added the suggestion that, in spite of such "semi-official denials" as these, any statement on the part of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to reduce the Canadian tariff would be the prompt prelude to resignation of four or five of his cabinet colleagues.

Annexed Offer

"We do not underestimate the power of the Canada-first industrialists," says the Conservative Daily Telegraph, "nor the activities of their friends in the Conservative forces of their arguments when regarded from the purely selfish interested standpoint, but the growing, fruit-growing and lumbering interests in members of Canadian consumer who take a much more open view would follow if Mr. Bennett brought forward an amended offer.

"Canada is asking a very great deal from Great Britain," comments the Daily Telegraph, "and while we deprecate a narrow spirit of appeasement, we think that a reasonable approach and an equal quid pro quo. Most conference pass through awkward and delicate moments, we can trust the larger view will speedily prevail at Ottawa."

Long View

The Morning Post, another Conservative newspaper, speaks again in an editorial for "the long view" to be taken at Ottawa. Although the Post admits perhaps impossible by perverted publicists "who delight in the idea that Canadian premium up to ridicule, odium and contempt, contrasting vividly with the obsequious deference paid to the United States and Ireland who are implacably hostile to the British connection.

Hopeful Feeling

Taken as a whole today's message from Ottawa indicates a hopeful feeling, one apparently to the general belief that Prime Minister Bennett is prepared, to make large concessions in iron and steel.

One of the obvious risks at the present stage of the conference, which, despite its a leading editorial today, is that outsiders may become involved in Canadian domestic political controversies. A danger which visiting delegates should scrupulously avoid.

Bennett's Problem

"Elsewhere," continues the Times "there is a tendency to lay an entirely false emphasis on the personal aspects of Mr. Bennett's problem. He has but little authority to do with personalities, but is interested in the fundamental conditions which have placed him, in being asked to enforce certain conclusions which have long been widely accepted population in return for substantial benefits to which other part would benefit directly."

Guardian Cautious

The Manchester Guardian, traditional organ of Independent Liberalism, strikes out along different lines.

"Ottawa," says the Guardian, "must be a bad disillusionment to those who took the Commonwealth as seriously."

Within a week of opening on which the conference should close, the guiding star of faith and hope has mysteriously disappeared; a lower level of metaphor is now in vogue, phrases' about poker-parties, horse-dealers and humbug being bandied about.

Purpose Lacking

"The common purposes have been lost in a war of recrimination about statistics, in differences between British and Canadian arithmetic. There is nothing more remarkable about Ottawa," observes the Guardian, "than the fact that alike Great Britain has ceased to be a free-trade country, and is represented by protectionist ministers. Is it still unable to strike a rapid bargain with the protectionist Dominions.

"One has only to look at the history of the Bennett offer," continues the Guardian, "to see how protectionism and protectionism are not one, how impossible it is to reconcile them with movements for freer world trade.

Annexed Offer

"We do not underestimate the power of the Canada-first industrialists," says the Conservative Daily Telegraph, "nor the activities of their friends in the Conservative forces of their arguments when regarded from the purely selfish interested standpoint, but the growing, fruit-growing and lumbering interests in members of Canadian consumer who take a much more open view would follow if Mr. Bennett brought forward an amended offer.

On that day and date he mistook a black and white striped quadruped for a species of rabbit, with awful results to all concerned save the object of his attack.

True, to his canine friend, however, the unwelcome member of the family upholds the stand taken by his pal and exhibits similar traits. It wasn't Pal's fault; he went to chase the skunk, but the skunk wouldn't run.

Delightful Outing Held by O. E. S. No. 55 At LittleLake

Sports, Ball Game And Dance Comprise Days Activities

Gleaming and sheris and shady woods of Little Lake, four miles west of Trenton, provided a perfect setting for upwards of one hundred members, friends and families of Belleville Chapter, No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star, who motored to that point from Belleville and surrounding district Wednesday afternoon to hold their annual picnic.

Unqualified success met the efforts of officials of the order when it had worked so hard on the excellent programme arranged and to Mrs. Russell Smith, chairman, and Mr. Arthur Naylor, vice-chairman and their committees go the thanks of those so fortunate as to be able to attend and to view this wonderful spot.

The afternoon and evening were spent in races, swimming, ball game and dancing.

At 6.00 o'clock an elaborate programme of races was run off, both for the children and older folk which were keenly contested and beautiful leaves presented of the lucky winners.

The swimming contest proved a great source of enjoyment for the ladies. They were given a rolling start and the idea to see who could throw it the farthest and the lucky winner was the one whose husband even went to so far as to give lessons in the art of casting in line acting as jiggs, but this was of no avail, as the lucky one proved to be a fair in the way of being hit with a rolling pin. Mrs. Fleeg Smith and Mrs. Nellie Anderson proved the best "Maggies."

The Ball Match of Bad Pitchers' race was another which created a lot of fun for the spectators. These distinguished officers were required to walk, run or dance a distance of 25 yards in two minutes. Mrs. Essie Naylor and Mr. Everett Liddle were the lucky ones at this time and received the favors.

At 8.30 all sat down to a supper, the tables of which were all strung together, in the beautiful shady grove on the water's edge of this beautiful little lake. All were together and it represented one big happy family.

Following supper a ball game, the like of which has never been witnessed at Little Lake or any other, took place. The teams, captained by Mrs. Anna Boyd, and Mr. Russell Bigelow, signed, which as they never played before and when the smoke of battle cleared away it was a question as to who won the game. Mr. George O. Tice started in as umpire in the first half, after a few innings decided that the wrestling match in the city was the place for him that night, so he hiked away and Mr. George Darrah took up his duties, with but little better success. Mrs. Boyd's team seemed better able to construe the official score that they had won, so were awarded the prize—a bottle of pop each.

To climax a day of rarest enjoyment a dance was held in the Little Lake Pavilion. Round and square dances were the order, music being supplied by Ingils Orchestra of Colborne.

The programme of sports and winners follows:

Little Tots' Race—Donald Derrah, Helen Vivian.

Boys, 5 to 6—Wilfrid Mills, Donald Darrah.

Girls, 5 to 8—Norma Smith, Betty Bolsi.

Boys, 9 to 12—Billy Bateman, Norman Washburn.

Girls, 9 to 15—Doris Washburn, Helen Smith.

Men's Open Race—Jack Redfern, George Adams (Wooler).

Necktie Race—Borden Elliott and Mrs. Elliott.

Ladies' Rolling Pin Contest—Flossie Smith, Nellie Ainsworth.

Needle and Thread Race—Nellie Rothwell and Pearl Anderson.

Ball, Married Men Past Forties'—Rose Naylor, Everett Liddle.

Committee in charge—Thomas Liddle, Basil Ainsworth.

Officers' Race—Nellie Rothwell.

EVEN CHANCE OF RECOVERY

Mrs. Cleaver's Condition After Accident at Barrie

Further details from Barrie, Ontario, Wednesday Rev. Solomon Cleaver and Mrs. Cleaver were badly injured in the ditching of their car, show that a wet pavement and an effort to avoid side-swiping a car caused the accident. The latest information states:

"In an effort to avoid sideswiping another car when his own skidded, Rev. Solomon Cleaver, retired clergyman, and former minister of Metropolitan church in this city, drove his automobile into a ditch on the eastern outskirts of this town causing serious injuries to his wife and himself.

They are both in Royal Victoria Hospital here, where though with serious injuries, Mrs. Cleaver has more than an even chance of recovery and Dr. Cleaver, the general broken ribs, a fractured shoulder and head lacerations, is recovering rapidly. He is said to have gain consciousness until after two o'clock last night, but they were both reported from the hospital as resting comfortably.

On Way to Toronto

"Both more than 70 years of age Dr. and Mrs. Cleaver were returning to Toronto from their summer home at Penetanguishene when they had celebrated their fifty-second wedding anniversary. Today was Mrs. Cleaver's birthday. Their son, Dr. E. E. Cleaver, was to have visited with them, and did not learn of the fate of his parents until he arrived in Barrie. Summoning Dr. A. O. G. McKenzie, the two surgeons made rapid their way to the hospital. Both Dr. and Mrs. Cleaver were given treatment here by Dr. H. M. Laurie.

"Late in the day Dr. Cleaver was able to tell physicians what had occurred. Coming around a descending curve on the highway, he said, he apparently applied the brakes when he met an approaching automobile. Rather than sideswipe the other car when his own began skidding on the pavement, he made a quick effort to swing his car into the ditch, which he landed on its nose and fell over on its top. Dr. Cleaver was thrown out of the car while his wife was tossed backwards into the rear seat where rescuers found her lying across as the car had settled in the ditch.

Rescuers Give Aid

"Robert King, Toronto, standing in the vicinity of Robertson's garage told the correspondent he had seen the accident as it took place in the ditch, a short distance west of the garage. As soon as he saw the car overturn, he and Mrs. Roberson ran to the scene. In a moment rescuers arrived and Mrs. Cleaver was brought unconscious from the overturned car.

"Dr. Laurie took her to the hospital, while Robert Sullivan, Orillia, who happened to be passing at the time, took the husband to the hospital. The car, which was a new one, was badly damaged on its overturn.

"Arriving at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, Mr. McKenzie and Dr. Cleaver went directly to the hospital with Dr. Laurie. Although just regaining consciousness when they arrived Mrs. Cleaver was unable to have an X-ray of her injuries. After an examination, Dr. McKenzie reported she had an even chance of recovery, and also reported Dr. Cleaver as slightly improved.

KOURI IS SENT UP FOR TRIAL

Magistrate R. Casement Finds Evidence For Committal

Leo Kouri Syrian, who recently shot Constable Preston of Tweed and was arrested last week by the Provincial police on several charges of alleged frauds, and failure to keep proper books of account, appeared in the County Police Court held in Belleville, before Magistrate R. Casement Thursday morning and was committed for trial after evidence was submitted.

Kouri was charged with but one charge, the failure to keep proper accounts, based upon which all counsel elected to be tried by the bench without a jury. Introduction. When presenting evidence on behalf of the Crown, B. C. Donnan Crown Prosecutor, called Calixte Parent, chartered accountant of Montreal, as his only witness. Mr. Parent produced a declaration of bankruptcy filed by Kouri on Monday, the 4th last. He also produced statements of affairs, which pertained to the financial status of the Kouri business at that time. It showed the liabilities to be $7,555.53, the amount of $7,553.53. The accountant stated that there was no evidence of books being kept by Kouri from May 31st, 1931, to the time of filing bankruptcy. He also produced Kouri's day or account book, which was a number of pages missing from it. These pages alleged he would have covered the time mentioned above, namely from May 31st, 1931, to the time the store was arranged being set at $15,000.00.

Later Kouri was taken before the county judge, where he was arraigned being set at $15,000.00.

Hunting in Cuff of Trousers Is New Adventure

Something will have to be done about these golfers who lose their balls or golf will have to be sewed up all around if the present epidemic of lost balls continues to increase much longer in the city. Money, loss balls in the rough, dropped in the cement sidewalk, or the woodpile or carpeted rooms of the residences.

In each instance it has seemed to vanish in thin air or the carpeted rug. Thursday morning Search was useless. Even black caddies of total blindness who were unfortunate enough to have been stationed near the golfers on Thursday time have availed them nothing. Keys, rings, small articles, all have disappeared from Thursday morning. Not long ago in one of the local theatres where a young lady fumbled in her handbag for the prices of admission to the show she accidentally dropped a key. It vanished. Search was engaged in the search, including the young man who had been standing next to her, but the key could be found. Days later, from another city, she received the key in a letter. "It had dropped in my trousers' cuff," the letter read, "and I saw the name and address on the upper part of it." More and more golfers are in a real friendship sprung up between them. There is no limit to the possibilities of the trouser pocket.

Another local man forwards his experience. He had been out of town Wednesday afternoon with his wife and it was quite late when they returned. In the darkness he looked for the key on the verandah, to get in the house, but couldn't find it. He then searched for it. No key. He tested all the windows in the lower part of the house. Not a budge. Even the cellar window failed to provide an entrance. Finally, just as he had started for the next door neighbor's to get help, something, his boy drew up to the house pulled out the key, with a flourish and let them in. "That night as I was undressing," the man relates, "I tumbled out of his trouser cuff. He had been running around with it there for hours. Imagine that!"

FRACTURE OF ARM AT PLAY

Oldest Son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Locke Falls From Slide

Bad luck has dogged the foot-steps of the two youthful sons of Mr. Merle Locke, 32 Pine Street. Just a few months ago Douglas Locke, aged 4, fell near his home and broke his left arm at the elbow. Very some time he was convalescent and it was only recently that he was able to return to the sports and games enjoyed by other children. Wednesday morning, in the East Belleville playgrounds, his older brother, Murray, aged 6, fell from the top of a slide and broke his right arm in exactly the same manner that Murray had broken his. The little fellow, in great pain, was rushed to the office of Dr. R. C. Robertson, who at once took him to the hospital where an anaesthetic was given and the arm was set in splints. Owing to the complicated fracture of the arm it will be some days before an attempt is made to set it. Today the lad is resting at home still suffering considerably with the pain but bearing up bravely under it all.

DOUBLE-TIER RAIL COACHES

Readers in Belleville which is a railway city will be interested in this try-out of the new type of railway coach of two decks on Lond Island on Saturday of this week.

The new coach is the first one of its kind ever built and the only one yet to be completed in the shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Altoona, Pa. It will be used purely as an experimental venture in an effort to determine the practicability of replacing all the cars in service with the new kind, which has no special name as yet.

If the tests prove successful the car is expected to be a long stride in the restoration of profits to commutation and short-distance railroading, for it will provide the means of carrying those passengers with fewer trains and a lessened consumption of power, since the new car weighs less than those now used.

The coaches which may be replaced have a capacity of 76 passengers, while the new ones will set 120.

"The most unusual feature of the design," Mr. Le Boutillier's announcement says, "is that the car is constructed with two tiers of seats at different levels. The limitation of clearance and height in a railroad car make it impossible to construct double-deck coaches of the type ordinarily employed in motor buses that have a two entirely separate floors. Hence, in designing these cars, a new plan of locating the seats has been adopted.

The car has a centre aisle, as in cars now used. On each side of this aisle seats are constructed facing forward, each seat roomy enough for two persons. The arrangement, thus far, is like that of rail road cars now in use. The departure from accustomed arrangement lies in the fact that the seats are made in two levels. The floor board of the lower tier of seats is fourteen inches below the aisle, so that the seats are almost flush with the aisle floor. Passengers will descend one step to the lower tier seats.

The floorboard of the upper tier seats is above the central aisle. Passengers mount two steps to the higher seats. These are not directly above the lower seats, but staggered, one lower and one pair of seats being succeeded by an upper tier pair as the passenger walks down the car.

The sunken seats in the lower tier permit the upper-tier seats to overhang, with still enough space for head room of passengers. Windows are so placed that each seat, upper and lower, has its window.

None of the new cars will be self-propelling, as many of those in use now are. If they are found successful the road will have to revert to the plan of providing a locomotive for each train. On the Long Island system the trains now run as are the subway trains, with each alternate car providing motive power.

AGRICULTURAL REVOLUTION

Farmers in the United States spent more money in wiring their buildings and buying electric labor-saving devices than ever before, according to the Department of Agriculture at Washington. They paid the power companies about forty six million dollars for electricity. Today there are one million farms about ten per cent of the total, electrified.

Nigh over a century and a half ago Thomas Gray said in his "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard": "The plowman homeward ploda his weary way." New York Times comments that the above statistics conjure up no such picture but one of an alert country couple who have time to see the latest film in town or to listen ten the radio nights at home. Brooms and washboards have started to give way to vacuum cleaners and washing machines and kerosene lamps are disappearing before the blaze of electric lights. Water is pumped by thousands of gallons to stock by the pressing of a button and feed is ground in a trice. Power saws have substituted for the chop-chop of the axe. Hens work overtime in electrically lighted fowlhouses. Chickens from incubators and brooders drink water electrically heated while an electric brooder does the work of the missing hen mother. Hay and alfalfa are dried electrically without waiting for the sun. Even the soil is sometimes heated by electricity.

From muscle to motor in ten years. The great electric revolution is working itself out on the farms, something similar to that which the introduction of the reaper brought with the abolition of hand work.

THE LOCAL NEWSPAPER

No city newspapers from outside can take the place of the local newspaper in covering the news events of its own community. True, the larger dailies may carry a greater amount of world news, but when it comes to touching on the events which record the life of the community, the intimate doings of the people of the small town or city, the big city newspapers are outclassed, because they simply cannot give attention to any one small community. They try to find space for a few brief paragraphs of news of places like Oshawa, usually culled from the local newspaper of the day before, and let it go at that.

WILD DUCK SONG
By Thomas Caldecot Chubb

Once upon a time—once in Georgia—
I saw a great horde
Of wild duck flying
Like the lightning of the Lord;

I saw wild duck flying;
I heard their wings beat
With a noise like the pistons
Of an engine running sweet;

With a sound like brooding thunder,
With a swift, sure thrum,
With a gentle but single pulse beats
Or a strong, rolled drum.

I saw them flying
Without swerve to left or right.
Their necks stretched straight
And their bellies fleshed white;

A hundred, a thousand,
In a great dark swarm
Till the sky was streaked and smoky
As before a storm.

I remember the place;
A wide, shallow lake
Gleamed in the sunlight
Like the cast skin of a snake.

There were lily pads as brown
As an old felt hat,
And tangled sedgy grasses.
The shores were low and flat.

More and more they came
And their wings beat a tune
As wild as any saga,
As weird as any rune,

Scrawled with ancient magic.
And then they had swept on.
The empty sky gulped them.
They were utterly gone.

And there followed such a stillness
You could hear your heart stop,
Or a dry leaf sound,
Or a single leaf drop.

A BELLEVILLE BUSINESS MAN who served as an officer in the C.E.F. during the Great War treasures among his recollections an incident which affords an interesting sidelight on the fortunes of war. Suffering from ulcerated tooth he was being treated by an army dentist who was operating in a shell torn warehouse in the Arras region. The dentist had about the hardest job in the army for there was always a line-up of many soldiers waiting treatment, while the German shell bombardment seemed to be trying to throw metal as near as possible to the improvised dental office, in fact nearer. So near, that shell concussion frequently fell in the small outside. One day the officer in question was unable to appear for his appointment with the dentist. He gave his time to another officer who had developed teeth trouble. The substitute for the dental chair started out with a companion at the appointed time. About a mile down the road leading to the dentist's quarters, an enemy shell burst, and the companion was instantly killed. As a matter of precaution the officer could never did go back to that dentist as his company was moved to another sector and it was some time before he was able to have his dental work finished. Incidentally it might be mentioned that the Canadian army dentist in the Arras sector who operated on aching molars while German shells fell all around, lived to practice up Cobalt way and get elected to Parliament.

FORMATION TREATMENT GALLSTONES

Stones Grow Around Germs Like Pearls in Oysters

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Personality

In cases of gallstones a man dealing not only with a complicated chemical process, but also with a problem that often makes it almost impossible to decide whether an operation is required or not.

Gallstones in way gallstones grow; why some persons develop them and not others; what they are made up of; what the best medical treatment is when one does not operate, and just when to operate are all individual questions of the highest importance that must be faced in every case.

Gallstones are found in the gall bladder, a pear-shaped membrane attached under the ribs on the right side. The function of the gall bladder is to store up gall secreted by the liver, and the ag lies in a depression on the under side of the right lobe of the liver.

Gallstones usually arise from many different causes, and the exact nature of the formation of gallstones is not altogether clear. Germs may find their way into the gall bladder and, thus, cause inflammation. Various lime waters and other chemicals sometimes get mixed in the bile itself also, undoubtedly, play an important part.

When gallstones are examined after removal it can often be noticed that germs are in the very centers of the stones, therefore it is reasonable to assume that the stones grow, around a germ as a nucleus or foundation, just as pearls grow around a grain of sand, that gets inside a living oyster. The oyster surrounds the sand with secretion to neutralize the effects of the sand upon the delicate tissue, thus forming the hard object we recognize as a pearl. When germs or other foreign substances find their way into the gall bladder, these, too, are surrounded, in order to make their effects as innocuous as possible, and hard gallstones result.

Very, very fine gallstones are known as gall-sand, and in these terms are usually found. These stones may grow to as large as five inches in diameter. When such a stone is present in the gall bladder it is usually single. More often, however, there are dozens and hundreds of smaller stones of various shapes and sizes.

People may suffer with gallstones for years and have no symptoms which would indicate their presence, but it at any time one of the stones should become lodged in one of the bile canals, either leading to the gall bladder from the liver or to the intestines from the gall bladder, then pain and other symptoms put in their appearance with a vengeance.

There can be no question but what an acute attack of gallstones is one of the most excruciatingly painful things in the whole realm of medicine. The attack may last for a few minutes, a few hours or for several days. Often the pain comes and the patient may be comparatively free from discomfort for weeks or months. During acute attack, flaxseed poultices, hot compresses or heated stones are applied to the abdomen over the region of the gall bladder often prove helpful. An enema is usually advisable, a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda to each pint of warm water. A doctor should be called without delay in every case, and the patient put to bed and kept as quiet and comfortable as possible.

If gallstones attacks occur repeatedly then the question of operation must always be considered. For this only a skilled surgeon should be consulted, but one should not rush to the operating table if other methods may be tested.

After an acute attack has passed, the diet should be restricted for several days. Milk soups are desirable and ammonium milk is better than whole milk. Later, eggs may be added.

Those who have a tendency toward the formation of gallstones should not eat eggs, pork, fatty dishes, fried meats, fish, rich dress ings or too many meats, uric acid, or spicy foods. Alcohol is absolutely prohibited in all forms, and it is always wise for a gallstone sufferer to keep himself under the supervision of a doctor.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

Bathing during the summer is often overdone. One bath a day is sufficient and if more are taken they should only be quick plunges. Too much bathing, especially with hot soap, dries the skin. A warm bath in the summer, incidentally, cools more than a cold one.

Other Papers' Opinions

WORN-OUT TIRES

A Toronto jury, investigating a tragedy which was caused by the blowing-out of a tire, has suggested that the police point out there should be periodical inspection of cars by the authorities, as there is of brakes and lighting equipment. Though the suggestion is one long in years, there are probably more dangerous ones in use on our highways today than ever before. A worn-out casing is a source of annoyance to its owner at all times, but when a car on such faulty running gear is speeded up to 40 or 50 miles an hour, it becomes a positive menace not only to the occupants of that car, but to traffic in general. A blow-out at such speed takes the car completely out of the control of the driver and the usual termination is a pile-up in the ditch or a collision with an oncoming vehicle. We do not know what method could be employed by the provincial police to determine the condition of a tire further service, but do believe that periodical inspection, should it be been organized, would result in more attention being paid to tires and to this all important equipment and more frequent replacement with consequent saving of life, limb and property.—Hamilton Spectator.

GREAT WORK COMPLETED

And now this vast work (the Welland Ship Canal), commenced and completed by Canadian energy, Canadian brains, Canadian skill, Canadian sail, the king-bolt that joins up the greatest inland water way in the world. We may perhaps be forgiven for feeling a little elevated when we look at it and when a golden spike was driven into the last lock, which spanned the highway half a century ago and gave North America its direct ocean-to-continental line. It would be hazardous to prophesy the immediate future, but it is based on our shipping or on American bulk carriers. The first cargo of merchandise ever broken at Buffalo, but we are assuredly entering into an optimism based on past performances —to believe that the story of the next fifty years will be a duplicate of that of its predecessors, a record of unsullied progress, a business pleding more and more demands upon even the tremendous capacity facilities of the new canal.—Montreal Star.

EMPIRE OPPORTUNITIES

Out of a total of imports worth some $300,000,000 which were last year brought into Malaya last year, more than $120,000,000 were goods manufactured in the countries. Evidently are few thighs which Malaya needs which cannot be supplied within the Empire sources and there is room for a very substantial increase in interest between the quantities of Empire and foreign imports in this country.—Singapore Straits Times.

ROWDY ELEMENT

The flame of a bright, young life was snuffed out by drowning at Hamilton beach on Sunday, and a coroner's jury will investigate a report that the second man rescued did not swim, was pushed from the pier by a member of a boisterous, rowdy group which frequents the beach. Whether this report be true or not, to comment on this specific case, while being quite proper, is difficult, as it does look to the Beach constabulary to be a reluctant hand on this offending element. There are enough natural hazards at the popular bathing beach without creating additional ones by horse-play. Every week-end hundreds of cars pour on a Saturday or Sunday has seen the bathers being deliberately cast in the deep waters of the canal. Many disport themselves in bathing suits the bathers being

Nats Behind Steady Hurling By Carl Casey Finally Win From Kingston Ponies by 3-1

Error by "Hap" Wilgar Gives Nats Margin of Victory

LIGHT HITTING

Barriage Played Swell Game at Red Light Corner

Heigh ho and a couple of ho hums.

A miracle has happened.

And some said that it could not be done.

But when the Nationals are clicking,

It is just too bad for the rest of the field.

Why all this rambling?

The Nationals finally won a ball game from the Kingston Ponies, even if it was the last scheduled one between these two teams before the season ends.

There is a strong possibility that the Nationals will meet the Ponies in the playoffs and don't be surprised if they knock them right off. Some will say horse feathers, but those Nationals are a pesky lot once they start to click.

How can the Nationals get in the groove, but and it is a simple matter of arithmetic. Both Peterboro and the Nationals have two games to play in the schedule and by the time of Wednesday, the week they can get in a tie if they lose both games and Peterboro wins the same number. The Nationals have to play Peterboro at home and Saturday's game will be the last they have to tackle Kingston at Peterboro and Belleville away.

Score is 3-1

Probably someone would like to know the score of the pastime on Wednesday for four innings. Suffice it was 3-1 for Belleville and they were the better team on the day's play. The diamond was not as good as usually due to the heavy rain which soaked it in the early hours of the day, but it was as good for one as the other. Credit must be bestowed on Carl Casey, who pitched much good ball went in and literally stood the Ponies on their heads. His control was perfect. A marvellous thing when one considers that he has little but practice and since Civic Holiday has not had a ball in his hand.

"Peeney" Mills also returned to the lineup after being out with a bad thumb and a charley horse and his appearance was a great influence on the rest of the team. Alex Weir started at first base. Mills may being out of play and this boy showed his class by stepping into a strong position and pulling the bag like a veteran. Morgan was sent to centre field and Gaudette moved into shortstop and the revamped lineup played headache and Casey not only he trouble in one inning and then his team-mates took him nicely. Carl won his straight ball almost exclusively but he had due to his horseshoe pitching tricks and the Ponies had but few scoot balls to do. He struck out four and did not issue a walk, but at the plate he was not a slugger. He batted three line singles in his first three trips to the platter.

Barriage a Star

"Cy" Barriage covered third base like a tom cat. His agility and fine arm is more appreciated each game by the fans. He is a good hitter and he can throw from any angle and the fans does not hesitate to move to make the play. He certainly made two beautiful pegs in the last frame to hold the lead obtained by Casey. His hit in the fifth frame scored a run, which in a fair day's work for the little man. Morgan also played a better game in centre field but his stick work seems to be a mystery. Pointer also took down a nice fly after a long run, while McQuade made a perfect throw on a long grass, barely reaching the ball. The heroine contribution of Chamberlain and Cooke clicked with a double play. Manager Chamberlain also saved the game with a marvellous stop in the eighth to cut off a run.

Herring was elected to do mound duty for Kingston but went out after the first batter was retired. The intermediate player and formalately met the eligible for the playoff role of assignment and hurled steady ball until relieved in the eighth by a pinch hitter, Jamieson finishing the contest. Morrow struck out seven in his seven innings he went on and walked two. Jamieson, who pitched the last inning was hit hard when he first went directly to some but the ball went directly to some fielder. Kingston did not get a man on base in the nine innings and this was partly due to the fine control of Casey and the able handling he received by Mills.

How Runs Scored

The Nationals scored all their runs in the first inning. Cooke opened hostilities by striking out, but Chamberlain walked and he promptly put on second through a single by Weir. Mills walked to fill the sacks and Barriage cut one through third to score Scarlett. Pointer took three lusty swings and retired to the bench. Morgan got on a life when a fly ball was dropped by Wilgar and two scored. Then Bob Elliott was partially to blame for the miscue as he failed to field after the ball had been stopped and Wilgar had not started soon enough to get to the bag.

Kingston scored their lone counter in the fourth when Wilgar singled off Barriage and McQuade clipped a single through second. Then Gaudette was retired by Barriage, McQuade moving to second. Then Casey was then ready with a hit when Weir fell but as he was going to field the ball he fortunately kept the horsehide in the infield and McQuade came home on the play. Weir ended the pastime by a long fly to Morgan, who gathered it in after a long run.

REDNERSVILLE TAKE VICS 17-2

Win Forces Playoff Into Third Game For Title

Harvest time is now on as shown Tuesday when Rednersville beat the old full house against respectable crowd to show the unrelenting Victorians that even as they were Rednersville is the champ. Rednersville winning 17 to 2.

Against the pitchings of Art Dempsey, the Victorians were lost and even a two-run lead in the second did not drive out the lowly rounders to score the only two runs for the day.

Rednersville started to a man, Dempsey and Thomson who incidentally scored on reaching to the utility role in the Victorian lineup. Dempsey on the bat and Watkons, Mills and Dempsey clouted out safeties and three baggers and Thomson and Dempsey clouted out with good hits all reaching safely on the sacks for themselves.

The Victoria team were ragged in the field and the box only Glenn's ha' dosen hits being taken off the slants of Dempsey which was slightly hampered by a slight rain. Rednersville scored in the first on the eye by a liner from Russel's bat, he stole second and might be allright if he could stand on his feet and not throw the ball backwards to second.

Rednersville got at all times well under control of the umpires, Andy Knott of Bellville behind the bat and Percy Mattis of Consecon on bases. It was a game that throughout had hundreds of fans witnessed the easiest win of the season.

The final game of the series will be played at Victoria (winning the loss) on Thursday, August 11 at 8:00 p.m.

The lineups were as follows:

Rednersville—R. Dempsey 2b; Watkons ss; C. Farley lb; T. Weese 3b; C. Thompkins 3b; P. Walkon lf; B. Dempsey lf; H. Bignell cf; and C. Sills rf.

Victoria—H. Wannamaker p; T. Crainey c; C. Barber 1b; W. Walbridge 2b; J. Wannamaker ss; R. Hall 3b; H. Montgomery lf; S. Cretney cf; M. Allen rf.

There last Scout census of Wales showed 6,622 Scouts, 153 Sea Scouts 999 Rovers, 51 Rover Sea Scouts, and 2,504 Wolf Cubs.

August Road Tours Has Had its Effect on Teams

CRUCIAL SERIES

Chicago and Pirates Meet in What May be Deciding Series

(By High S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

The August road tours in the major leagues, the time when the fittest clubs must show their fitness to endure, have ended with high honors for the New York Yankees, leaders of the American League, and few, if any, for the Pittsburgh Pirates at the head of the National.

The latter came through their trip to the Middle West with only a half game missing from the main bag they started after having won 10 out of 15 games. The Bucs, the senior head, struck a terrific slump at the end of their eastern visit and finished with a record of seven victories and 13 defeats that completely wiped out their lead. Two of the games the Chicago Cubs in a "crucial" series with a margin of two victory over the Pirates.

While Chicago was kept idle by rain yesterday, Pittsburgh found its 10-game losing streak with a 5 to 3 victory over the Boston Braves in the first half of a double header and thus kept their hold on the top rung followed it by losing a "heart breaker," 3 to 2 when home run by Spencer in the ninth gave the Braves the decision after Pittsburgh had allowed them only four hits.

The Yankees made Tyler Brooklyn, which startled the National League by the success of its White Sox, 6 to 5, after taking two games from the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 4 and 6 to 5 in the teen innings, to make it 14 victories in 15 games and a lead of seven clinch from seventh place to fourth. Frank O'Doul, coming his way in the league batting lead, slugged a pair of homers in the opener and Heen scored the winning run in the second clash.

The St. Louis Cardinals completed the downfall of the Phillies with an 11 inning onslaught that brought six runs and an 11. to 8 victory, their fourth straight over the Phils. Their lead over the Giants was cut to two games.

Philadelphia's Athletics, whose western tour was about as successful as that of the Yankees, captured second place in the American League by defeating the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 3, while their bid Washington and Cleveland idle, but dropping the Indians to third. Rube Walberg got credit for the effective-ly for the A's but batted in two runs.

Young Tommy Bridges, who pitched a one-hit game his last time out, stopped the Boston Red Sox with three hits and hurled Detroit to a 5 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Bridges was wild but fine support saved him and gave the Tigers four straight over Boston and an even break in 14 games against the east.

The won and lost record of other clubs for the inter-sectional series were: American League: Philadelphia, 8-3; Cleveland, 5-6; Washington, 8-7; St. Louis, 8-9; Chicago, 6-9; Boston, 4-13. National League: Chicago, 4-6; Brooklyn, 7-6; Philadelphia, 7-9; New York, 8-10; St. Louis, 8-11; Cincinnati, 7-18.

"Masked Marvel" takes Unfair Advantage of Opponent to Win Both Falls in Main Bout on Card

Wrestling Exhibition on Victoria Park Attracts Crowd

HART WINS

Jack Kogut Had Little Difficulty in Taming Trader Horn

Amid a series of jeers and boos the "Masked Marvel" from goodness knows where took two straight falls from Rod Larocque in the main bout of Jack Cronkah's open air wrestling bout held on Victoria Park Wednesday evening.

The unfortunate manner in which the bout was ended, when Referee Earl Nelson of Seattle penalized the "Masked Marvel" for a rocque after he had been holding on the ropes and the official had told Larocque to break his hold, called for criticism of the crowd. The "Masked Marvel" took turns and the Marvel picked the big Frenchman up bodily throwing him to the mat and later pinning his shoulders for the fall. Then The "Masked Marvel" had previously won the first fall in 19 minutes.

Although some six or eight hundred fans were present at Victoria Park on Wednesday night, the majority seated around the ringside had "One Eyed Connolloy" their way across the harbour in the ferry canoes, row boats and every available mode of water transportation was pressed into service to convey the ever-increasing crowd from the mainland, across the harbor to the scene of the battle. Hart Wins

The first bout of the eving found Frankie Hart of Toronto in the ring to tackle Jack Kogut, son of Joe Kogut, son of Los Angeles, Cal. Both of these boys are Canadians born and opened the night's entertainment with a fast and furious bout. Hart was by far the favorite with the local fans and Samson brought to the ring with him a following holds and after 21 minutes of gruelling wrestling Hart submitted to a Californian hold with a reverse body slam threw him to the mat, where he remained down for the first fall of the night. Hart is a well known local neighborhood of 160 lbs.

The second bout of the evening, when Jack Kogut, ex-Canadian light heavyweight champion, met Trader Horn, the Australian Jack out-weighed Horn considerably, although Horn's weight was given out as Kogut 191, Horn 185. There was a much greater difference in their weight from a spectator's view-point. Those two boys were willing to mix things up and Trader brought the fight to Kogut in the first round when he continually was arguing with the referee. Kogut opened with a series of damaging body slams, which had little effect on his opponent. Kogut continually used a toe hold on Horn to wear him down and finally secured the three falls in 19 minutes.

Three methods of handling Russian dumpling—Referee submitted—an embargo; limitation by quota; the establishment of a three-price tariff instead of the straight 10 per cent ad valorem duty granted by Great Britain on Empire lumber.

The method which, it is understood Great Britain is prepared to offer Canada, is the granting authority to proceed by order-in-council. The legislation would not indicate any particularly in which the Canadian Government or British government would be unwilling to take appropriate action in the case of any other country again proceeds to wreck the market for lumber.

In return, Canada, according to most observers, is prepared to make further concessions in British coal imports.

British textiles are understood to be under consideration also, and, proceeding by the path of compromise, Great Britain is further understood to be prepared to discuss preferences on wheat and other foodstuffs, now got against in Canada's offer.

A hazard of agreements" was the way one member of the British delegation jokingly summed up the expected outcome of the conference.

Knocks and Boosts

Well no matter what happened now the Nationals are assured of at least a play-off position for second place in the C.O.B.L.

Wednesday's game saw the first victory of the season chalked up by the Nationals against the Kingston Ponies and Carl Casey well deserved the win that was his. As a matter of fact he was robbed of a shutout when both he and Eddie Weir, who is substituting for Will Cretney at first base, slipped in the same inning to allow runners to advance on plays that should have been easily outs. Carl pitched creditable ball and although he lost the shut out, that should have been his, he choked up another win in his wrestle. Carl only batted a line brand of ball but was the big hitter of the day with three singles to his credit and the only three hits to his credit Casey allowed the Ponies in the game, his average batter in the league.

Out in Peterboro Ernie Holmes is on deck and the Peterboro Rec down with but one hit, that coming in the ninth frame. Ernie won 10 to 0. Holmes came within an ace of hurling a non run as he had but two runs and nine stands in the C.O.B.L. Belleville is holding back their ace Peter Fetes by exactly two full games. The Bombers are in Peterboro on Saturday to play their postponed game of a couple of weeks ago. If the Bombers win the title is assured of second place. If they lose Fetes is ordered to pitch their postponed game at Cobourg on Saturday and if they win that game, well then it's all over, as Fetes is second to none hurler. There are really so many angles to the play-off proposition that no one can figure out just how it will come how help out. But, this we do know, Belleville has to win one more game to be assured of second place and a play-off with the Kingston Ponies

Tonight sees the replay of the Calvary Hill-Canadian softball game which was called off last week. The game is to be played at the Calvary Hill diamond for the championship of the Thurlow League. The game will be the second of the local men's senior softball clash. The first was a double crossing when the Canadians Life team beat the Canada Cement team 10 to 9. The Life Insurance lads' won the first game of the series and had four scheduled tomorrow now.

Wednesday night's wrestling bouts, although they were not any too well attended ended rather abruptly when the Masked Marvel won the first fall, and as a natural advantage of his rival. The referee had previously told LaRocque to "break," the Frenchman let the Marvel up and when he was walking away the Marvel jumped on his back; break, it was all over.

With the very unsatisfactory way in which the bout ended between the Masked Marvel and Rod LaRocque it is very evident that these two boys be rematched for Belleville at an early date, it was really too bad to see so many excited sport fans coming across the harbor in canoes, motor boats and what not. If these practices of wrestling bouts are to be continued in Belleville the day of reckoning must be at hand and what not. If these practices of wrestling bouts are to be continued in Belleville the day of reckoning must be at hand and again that evening at the "Masked" bouts the "Masked Marvel" were the ones to do the most

INTRODUCTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman!

I am planning to entertain two older women some time in the very near future, and as I have never entertained these particular people of my own age, I am in doubt as to how I should proceed.

1.—I must introduce these two women to my family, consisting of my father, sisters, brother and brother-in-law. All these are all young people, with the exception of my father. I don't know just how I should proceed.

2.—When we have finished dinner, who is supposed to leave the table first?

3.—Does it make any particular difference how my guests are seated?

4.—I am going to serve chili. Should it be served in a bowl, or in an ordinary soup plate?

G.

1.—These introductions should be made with a very pleasant air of formality, since they are very important, and an introduction, charmingly and correctly done, is the first way in which we can show our breeding. It is the form

Introduce first your older sister: "Mrs. A. may I present my sister, Mary?" and Mrs. A., my sister, Mary".

Or if you prefer, "Mrs. A. this is my sister, Mary,...and my sister, Mary". Then introduce your other sister in the same way. Remember that it is the two younger sisters that you present the other person, whose name is the most important. Therefore mention first the names of the guests.

Next present your father: "Mrs. A. may I present my father.....and Mrs. B. my father." Or, "Mrs. A. this is my brother, Thomas.....and Mrs. B. my brother." Then introduce your brother-in-law and I think that you will have to use both "brother-in-law", to make clear the difference in relationship between your brother and your brother-in-law: "Mrs. B. this is my brother-in-law.....and Mrs. A. my brother-in-law".

As you mention each person's name, look very graciously and directly at him, so that he knows his names and relationships will be clear to your two guests. A mumbled introduction is a very poor affair, and embarrassing to the person who doesn't hear his name.

2.—Since you are the hostess, seat you are the one to give the signal to leave the table. Your guests will look to you for this signal, since they shouldn't move to leave until you do.

3.—Yes, it makes a great deal of difference how your guests are seated. By the plan of seating whereby you show the honor given to your guests, and if they are all men and women are, "accustomed" people, they will observe intuitively what places you honor them.

You are, as the hostess, seated at the head of the table, with your father opposite you at the foot of it. On your father's right, you plan to have one of your guests, and one who perhaps is older, or more distinguished. On your father's left, you place the other of one of the guests, and your brother-in-law on the other side of the older guest. On one side of you would be one sister, and on the other side that would not bring her next to her husband, would be the other sister. Remember that this is a formal scheme when there is not an equal number of men and women.

4—Either way.....just which is the more convenient.

DOUBLE RING CEREMONY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—Will you please advise me as to the proper procedure for a double ring ceremony? Who takes charge of the rings before the ceremony? Does the best man give the rings only the ring for the bride, or does he also produce the ring for the groom? Is this correct? The more practical ways seems to be for the best man to keep the two rings.

2.—If you have any pamphlets on weddings, will you please send me one?

Reader

1.—The best man takes charge of both rings. He has a pocket to keep them in, and the bridesmaid would find it difficult to keep this ring, especially since if she is the only attendant she will have charges of the bride's train and bouquet.

2.—A set of the wedding pamphlets have been sent to you, and I hope that you find them helpful. If you have any other questions after these pamphlets, send them to me, please, and I'll be happy to answer them.

(Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on good manners submitted by readers.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

MAKING HEADWAY

Throughout your life haven't you tried to cover too much territory in an effort to attain success?

Instead of that, haven't you have not centred all your time and attention along one line but tried to follow many lines.

It may be that you have wasted many years in a vain endeavour to make a success in a big way or through some other unthinkable line.

Had you been content to specialize on something within your ability you might have made considerably more progress.

But you have worked on the theory that success in a small way wasn't worth striving for and so you tried to step out of your class.

Perhaps you have the idea that what has meant success for some men is an open door, a thought that comes because you have a certain degree of ability along the same line.

But you may have reached a point where the whole thing is too big for you while you might have made a success if you had not attempted too much.

It is well to realize your own limitations.

You need not have an inferiority complex to sense a limit.

Just don't attempt the impossible and so make headway.

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Aiden)

A song of India is suggested by the new Autumn turbans many of which have the twist wound about with the turbans worn by Hindus—a new but cogtner line is of black velvet with the turban twist achieved by a twist of geranium and peach colored velvet ending in a loop on the right ear.

Even the fish were surprised at a very new beach outfit worn by a smart woman the other day. The white linen trousers, very wide at the hem, are trimmed up the side with white pearl buttons. The bolero consists of a white linen fish herchief in a red and white smoker pattern which is knotted around the upper part of the body and held in place at the neck with a necklace of chromium fish.

Keep cool under a wide-brimmed hat. A new and lovely model has a crown of white leghorn with only a pink velvet crown massed with tiny red velvet flowers.

Dots can be different as is evidenced by an evening frock of yellow chiffon. The skirt is made in three tiers and what looks like dots on the tiers are really, tiny gold sequins pasted on. The front is a harmless line and the shoulder is a huge long ended bow of orange and gold tulle.

ALLEGED BOY ASSAULTS GIRL

Says He Ordered Girl From Car After Leaving Dance

Sundridge, Aug. 11—Ordering his girl companion from a motor car and abandoning her on the highway late at night is the basis of a charge of assault laid against Clarence Russell, 17, Sundridge, who will be tried before Magistrate Dr. Wilson, Burke's Falls, on Thursday, Evelyn Mascall, 16, also of Sundridge, is the complainant in the case.

From information gleaned by Provincial Constable E Shephard Huntsville, it is alleged Russell and Miss Mascall, members of a party of four young men and three girls, motored from Sundridge to Pine Grove, north of Powassan, on Wednesday night last to attend a dance. During the affair Miss Mascall, it is stated, offended Russell by dancing with someone not to his liking. It is alleged he upbraided the girl for this act and signaling continued after the party had started to return home. After passing through Powassan and when near Smith's garage the argument became near violent and Russell ordered the girl to get out of the car.

She obeyed and found herself abandoned and alone on the highway a lie here, Shortly after her party moved on homeward she noticed a passing motor car and signalled the driver to take her, where she could get lodgings for the night. The upshot of the trip was that she continued on with the car driver to Kimball Lake, where she had some friends.

NOT A PAIN AT 78

She Feels Like 48

Aches and pains are not inevitable in old age. When they do come, there is always a cause for them—a cause that can be overcome. Here is a little lesson on growing old, by a woman of 78:

"For the last five years I have taken Kruschen Salts and I tell my friends that I could not live without them I am 78 years old. I have not a pain in my body, and I feel as young as I did at 48. I give the credit to Kruschen Salts. No one will believe my age."

(Mrs. C.W.)

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect the one vital need of health—the need for internal cleanliness. Eventually they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then probably for the first time in their lives, they start getting rid every day of all waste matter from the system. And almost immediately they feel their youth has returned; they feel energetic and happy. In a word, they've got that famous "Kruschen Feeling."

SOME EARLY GAINS LOST

Brisk Trading With Noranda Leading Feature

Toronto, Aug. 11—Brisk trading and strong price movements marked forenoon dealings on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange today. Some early gains lost their features were lost in profit taking towards midday but advances were practically general when the finish was taken.

Sales for the two hour session of 301,000 shares were somewhat below the corresponding period Thursday, but individual transactions numbering 543 established a new mark for the last half hour.

Noranda reported to be under accumulation in New York, moved up 43 at 19.15, Nickel 15 at 9.00 and Hudson Bay 10 at 2.90. Eight per priced golds were mixed, Holdinger advancing 10 to a new 1932 peak of 1.80. Lake Shore dropping 25 to 29.25 and Dome and Pickle Crow's 5 apiece to 11.50 and 4.15 respectively.

Silver shares continued to reflect sustained improvement in silver quotations, Beaver Consolidating 7 to 1.28. Mining Corporation a couple of points to Castle a cent to 30. Among cheaper golds Northern Canada firmed 3, Venture a cent and Jacobus adding a fraction. Oils, Sarnia and Acme Gas were a cent or so higher in a firm oil group.

ADVANCE IS SLOWED DOWN

Heavy Volume in First Hour But Later Falls Off

Toronto, Aug. 11—Profit taking slowed down the advance around midday on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, reducing early gains and leaving the price level only slightly above the previous close. Stocks continued to churn over in heavy volume in the first hour, but volume fell off later.

Smelters and Hollinger made their best prices in the early trading, but were only fractionally higher at noon. Golds firmed and managed to hold a good part of the gain.

Distillery issues were again in demand at rising prices, and chain farm implement issues, taking their cue from Wm. Bruce, continued to forge ahead.

Bell Telephone was up a point; Steel Canada, Ford A and Brazilian unchanged. Oils were irregularly higher.

Brighton Angler Lands 28 lb. Lunge on Light Fishing Tackle

Another Has One to Boat But He Sails Away

Trenton, Aug. 11 (Special)—Though to be the largest "lunge" to ever be taken on a casting line was caught at Percy Boom yesterday by Mr. Donald Shannon of Brighton. The fish weighed 28 pounds and was three feet eleven inches long, measuring 12 inches across the tail. Mr. Shannon was playing casting in the creek, when the canal comes out at Percy Boom when he smelled the big one. Due to the fact that the line he was casting was a light one, totally unsuitable for such game, he started to play the fish for nearly three hours before he succeeded in landing the lad on the shore. He was unable to bring him into the boat from where they were fishing but had to wade into the water and fling a small fish gaff and started. Shannon was accompanied by Mr. Wishart, also of Brighton, who assisted in the landing of the fish. The plug with which Mr. Shannon was practically ruined where he had chewed it in an attempt to get away, proved the one that happened to Mr. Lockwood of Brighton, who lost a lunge after a long boom on the same day, in that he had a small fish gaffer and starting to pull in he felt another strike, reeling in the line he saw a large lunge following, seeing the boat released, the perch, which was also a big one, dropped in the boat. It seems to carry out the old saying that a bird in the hand is worth more or half a perch is better than no lunge.

The waters in and around Percy Boom have yielded more lunge this year to date than it has in a number of years, as a large number have been caught.

OBSEQUIES OF MISS WEBB LARGELY ATTENDED

TRENTON August 11—(Special)—Funeral services were conducted this morning of Miss Eunice Carolyn Webb, aged 19, who lost her life by drowning in the Bay of Quinte on Sunday afternoon. Miss Webb leaves a host of friends and relatives to mourn her's as she was very popular. The funeral of Solemn Requiem Mass was held at St. Peter's church this morning by Rev. Father O'Reilly officiating. Interment taking place in the Catholic cemetery.

Mr. Wing of Shuter street, had a narrow escape from serious injury when he was making a left turn off Lorne avenue on to Dundas street when the car which he was driving was struck by a car driven by Mr. Joe E. Robinson of Rochester, N.Y. Mr. Robinson struck the car driven by Mr. Wing and turned it completely around and put it up over the curb. Both cars were badly damaged but nobody was hurt. Mr. Robinson paid a fine of $10 and costs in the police court for reckless driving and had to pay the costs of the other car.

VINNY UTRONKI TAMES TRENTON

Trenton, Aug. 11 (Special)—The local baseball team went down to defeat at the hands of Brighton's scourged here yesterday afternoon. The score was 17 to 3 at high noon. The locals had all the advantage of visitors had all the advantage of having played together during the season while several of the locals have played but three games. Utronki, who pitched a few years ago for the Belleville National seems to be a past master at baffling the passing years. The Brighton team depended on his fast ball for their support, when called on to far below par. Parks was in the box for the locals and while he pitched a nice game he was unsteady and allowed Utronki to up into a nice pitcher. He was replaced in the seventh by Bob Greene, who is also a newcomer to the ranks of pitchers.

Ramey on both sides but the fans were so pleased to see a hardball game that they forgot all else and seemed able to overlook the fact. While the box for the locals left most of the best ball players in the town they are by no means poor and play hard ball the most. giving time and energy to the cultivation of the grass and loveliness of the old diamond, which had fallen into disuse for the past few years. These boys should be given a good deal of support as they are the best team that could be put on the field or near it if they had what they wouldn't even be that type of ball, which is a great deal better than none at all.

OSPREYS INVADE HARBOR MOUTH

Soaring and dipping in widening circles with occasional plunges, mer-like dives into the water, to re-appear with some good-sized trout in their feet in their hooked talons, two ospreys invaded the Bay of Quinte on Wednesday morning and continued their majestic circling during nearly all morning. This is the first time in years that these huge birds have been seen in this district although two of them have been reported in the district of Ponbroke and several more from the Trent River near Campbellford where they have been said to be increasing in numbers year by year. Near Campbellford the birds are reported have been seen back along the river banks in the more secluded spots. Ospreys have been seen in this district and sometimes referred to as bald headed eagles, owing to one of the largest birds in Canada with the exception of the eagle. With the long two feet long and a wing spread exceeding six feet in many cases, they are a bird to be wary and veer on the currents of air in search for fish in the water below, present a pretty sight. Large quantities of fish are said to be destroyed by them.

HUNTINGDON TOWNSHIP

TWEED ARMY-NAVY VETERANS HOLD SOCIAL

Captain Gilman, M.C. is Chief Speaker at Gathering

Tweed, Aug. 5—The Tweed branch of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada held their lawn social and dance on Friday evening at Memorial Park. The weather was ideal and a large crowd was in attendance. The event was a success as it deserved to be, as it held for the purpose of raising funds to care for needy veterans in the Tweed District. The games and money [illegible] patronized and money [illegible] the treasury.

Captain Gilman, M.C., Dominion Adjutant-General of the Association, Mr. S. Hampson, local secretary and Mr. W. Hall, Provincial Rep. of Tweed took the platform at 9 p.m. Mr. Hampson officiated as chairman. Capt. Gilman was the first speaker. After tendering regrets from Mr. Ireland who had to change his plans at the last moment and was unable to be present, Capt. Gilman stated that he was proud of the Tweed branch of the N.V. because it was active; the members were working and contributing funds. They were building up a reputation to be proud of and helping their Comrades in distress. Captain Gilman said that Tweed branch can be very proud of the assistance from Head Office because it had passed it. He also related that Head Office will have in hand for the coming year $15,000 which money will be used for relief of veterans in need and naturally those branches which are working and lending every effort to help themselves will benefit mostly from this money.

This was Capt. Gilman's third visit to Tweed, and he was very emphatic in saying that he is become more and more attached to the veterans in Tweed district with every visit, for not only were they a splendid body of men, but they were always on the job. The speaker concluded by expressing his appreciation to the people of Tweed for their generous patronage and hoped that they would continue to give their support.

Secretary Hampson was the next speaker and opened by expressing great appreciation for the splendid attendance. Less than four months had elapsed since this branch was organized in Tweed. In that short time good work had been done, several men had been awarded pensions, there is a glowing tribute was paid to Capt. Gilman by Mr. Hampson for his work on pension cases. Continuing the speaker said that numerous veterans had been assisted financially and work had been obtained for unemployed veterans. How did transient veterans appeal in vain for help. Mr. Hampson went on to say that a severe winter is facing us, many veterans are going to suffer real hardships and the local branch had determined that veterans in this district shall have their needs cared for. To this end entertainments would be held occasionally and the patronage of the public was solicited.

Lunch was served following the addresses. The dance in the pavilion was a great success. Jerry Lattman's orchestra discovered the music. The door prize of five dollars was won by Mr. Harry Mouck of Tweed. The total receipts were highly pleasing.

Rev. R. S. Nicholson, pastor of Tweed United Church, and family left on Monday to spend a few weeks at Big Clear Lake at Arden.

HARD TASK TO RETAIN CROWN

Sandy Somerville Meets Real Golfer in Manitoba Champ.

(By Sam Robertson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
HAMPTON GOLF CLUB, Toronto, August 10—Sandy Somerville of London, and slim young Bobby Reith, Winnipeg, were staging Thursday battle over the hills of Lambton today for the right to continue in the hunt for the Canadian Amateur Golf Title the Londoner now holds.

After the morning half of their second round 36-hole fight, Somerville had the 17-year-old Manitoba Champion one down but he had to uncork many brilliant holes of play to sneak into the lead.

One of the three United States contenders remaining in the Chase, Francis Ryan, Detroit Stylist, was outstanding — G. McAvity, of Montreal, from the tee and through the Fairway, and at the end of the morning play the American was four up. He had taken to his game and held his 4s more closely.

In a tilt, between two of the three American contenders remaining, Dunn, of Wallingford, Penn. seamed around in even par to leave Joe Kirkwick of Buffalo, N.Y. six holes down. The young brother of the once-famed Lickman, Waldo Gunn, fired three birdies for wins, and took another two when Hodson, who was having trouble with his short game, strayed over par.

Cameron Down

Jack Cameron, sturdy Toronto veteran, and E. A. Jones, Montreal, played the best golf of the parade leaders. The Montreal star was one stroke better in the approximate medal score, having 73 against par —70, to Cameron's 74, and he finished the morning four one up.

Hunnie Bell, Vancouver, and John Nash, young Londoner who formerly held Ontario Crown, both shot near-perfect golf despite the heaviness of the course due to a two-hour rain during the morning and they went to lunch all square. Their approximate medal cards were 74 each.

The in-bunney proved difficult for young Gordon Taylor of Montreal, and the four-up margin he held over Bob Carrick, lowering Toronto player, at the turn was reduced to two holes at the 18th.

Phil Parker of Toronto, outpotted Stan Leonard of Vancouver, on the home turn after standing all square at the turn and looked headed for a comfortable margin but the young British Columbia champion improved to leave the easterner but one-up at the end of the first half of the day's chase.

PROBE CAUSE TANKER FIRE

Canadian Vickers Manager Gives Several Explanations

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 10.—Several explanations of the cause of the explosion and fire on the dry dock at Canadian Vickers here when the British oil tanker Oyneleus was being repaired and which was advanced today by the authorities at the Inquiry ordered by the Dominion Government into the disaster which took the lives of 21 men.

D. B. Carswell, general manager of Canadian Vickers, continued his testimony before S. A. Bastien, chairman of the Inquiry, when Mr. Carswell said he thought the original explosion that preceded the fire might have occurred on the dry-dock which at the time held the Cyrusfirm for repairs after the vessel had grounded in the lower St. Lawrence River.

Fall of Plate

A heavy steel plate falling from scaffolding above caused gas fumes to leak from the buoyancy tanks of the dry dock, which held about 30 tons of oil drained from the tanks of the Cyrusfirm, Mr. Carswell said. His suggestion was that a redhot rivet, or the flame of an acetylene torch used by experts now making sure that the terrible explosion.

PROGRESS AT CONFERENCE

Something Definite Aim of Delegations of Two Countries

(By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Aug. 10.—British and Canadian delegations at the Empire Economic Conference met together.

This morning, Premier Bennett again met some of the British representatives and discussed the situation. No definite conclusions were reached. The discussions are to continue this afternoon. But progress in every way is authoritatively reported. Desire was shown on both sides to accomplish something definite, to secure a result that will be satisfactory to all.

And, according to reports, even the experts are now making their differences over the value of Canada's trade with Great Britain. They held another joint meeting this morning. One suggested before them, it is understood, is that they should agree to a mutual scrapping of figures and start all over again. One authoritative explanation of differences of opinion is that they were apparently working from different years.

HEAT WAVE IN ENGLAND

London, Aug. 10—Most of southern England sweltered in a heat wave today as the temperature hovered around 90 degrees. One of the worst August fogs in years blanketed the channel, brought shipping almost to a stand still, and disrupted the plans of two swimmers who had planned to start across the channel this morning.

TONNAGE DECLINES

New York, Aug. 10—Unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation declined 46,486 tons in July to a total backlog of 1,956,520 tons on July 31.

July is generally a month of declining tonnage, and this year the tendency was accentuated by the extreme dullness of steel buying, which pulled down the company's unfilled business in the face of a record low volume of operations.

BORROWING

The pleasure of borrowing is partly spoilt by the pane of having to pay back, but people that borrow all the time properly train themselves to just look at the bright side of it.

Some people are such expert borrowers they make you feel they are doing you a favor by borrowing from you being a sensation that lies away 1000 afterwards.

If you owe somebody money, such as a cent, you always have the sensation that they are thinking of it every time you meet them, probebly, being partly a philosopheista but mostly the truth.

For this reason there is no greater relief than to pay somebody back what you owe them unless maybe is have somebody pay you back what they owe you.

The lady living next dore to people often dont know the difference between borrowing and keeping, and is libel to make a insulted face when you ring her doorbell and tell her your mother wants to know if she would mind giving you back your carpet sweeper.

People ant to take even more care of borrowed things than what they take of their own, and one of the unpolitest things you can do is to borrow somebody's brain-tool and return it with the bell missing and both tires punctured.

Books are one of the easiest things to forget to return. A cinch way to get a book for nothing would be to just go in a friend's house and pick up any book and say, Dosent this belong to me? and they would probebly say, O, do is to borrow somebody's brain-

PRINCE EDWARD

FATHER CATCHES FISH SON MISSED A WEEK AGO

CARRYING PLACE — What a voracious appetite some fish have. More than a week ago Mr. Robert Tibbs of Hamilton, fishing in the bay of Quinte near the canal, hooked a nice bass, but before he could land it his line broke and away went fish, line and hook. On Saturday his father, Mr. Fred Tibbs, also of Hamilton caught the same fish with the hook and line still stuck in the corner of its mouth; and on weighing it found that it registered four and one half pounds. The two Tibbs were here several weeks ago visiting Messrs. Jim and Jack Hendricks; and they found fishing conditions so ideal that they returned last Thursday for a week's stay. During this last visit they had no trouble at all in securing each day their quota of fish. Stories of this type told in other parts of the province may soon give the Bay a reputation as a fishing ground that will make other places look to their laurels.

In an exhibition game of softball played here on Friday evening, Hourston's of Belleville defeated the locals in a fairly close game 9-6. In the early stages the locals seemed to have their visitors at a disadvantage leading them for several innings. In fact it was not until the fourth that Houston's scored at all; but when they did they ran in five all in the one inning. The locals intend going to Belleville some night next week to play a return game.

In the drawing for opponents in the eliminations series to be held in connection with Picton Fair, the locals have been lined up against Mount Pleasant team of Picton, who are in second place in the Picton league. The Moore play a good game of ball, and have a pitcher with plenty of speed. Hence the locals are getting in as much batting practice as they can.

Raspberry picking is in full swing although several say that the crop is practically finished. The demand continued strong with several cars around looking for berries each day. Many of the growers are disposing of their fruit at Belleville market, and say that they have no trouble at all in getting rid of the fruit rapidly.

Messrs. Harold and Gordon Herrington have been Murescoting the walls and ceiling of the Junior room at the school this week, and expect to begin the painting of the woodwork very soon.

Mr. Charlie Westfall who suffered two severe heart attacks a week ago, is feeling quite well again; and hails no ill effects from the seizure.

Quite an argument has arisen among some of the local residents over an unusual "happening" or recent date. Several of the boys who claim to be total abstainers declare that a few evenings ago the sun went down in the north. Many more declare that it certainly did not. As far as can be ascertained on the evening in question the sun did set seemingly in a much more northerly direction than is usual. However whether this report be true or not old Sol seems to have once more gone back to his accustomed haunts, and is sleeping in the old familiar spot.

Mr. Eddie Quakenbush, whose preparations for an 800-mile bicycle trip to Banff Nat. Marie were reported in a recent edition has made final plans to leave one week from Wednesday morning. Carrying a supply of provisions and a small tent with him, he expects to spend the night's at tourist camps.

Cabal News

All of the cottages but two are occupied this year. The two which are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe and family of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. MacIlvaine and family of London; Mrs. Geen of Belleville; Mr. Groff of Trenton; Mrs. Mackie of Toronto; Mrs. Semple, Mrs. Rankin and Mr. and Mrs. Pepper, all of Toronto; Mrs. Lambert of Belleville; Mrs. Reid of Trenton; Mrs. Flood of Trenton; Mr. Mc Crae of Montreal; there are also a number of tents here with residents from Toronto.

EXCELLENT GRAIN CROP NOTICED

West Huntingdon, Aug. 7—Everybody around here is rejoicing in the improved condition of the crops, as a result of the wonderful rain on Tuesday. It was the best rain of the summer, and the farmers are all getting a big start in the fall ploughing. Corn, it is noticed, is the favorite crop, as some of the stands of grain are particularly fine. The excessive rain of Tuesday dashed pictures of the crop, but after days of good weather will lift them again, in most localities. Rev. Mr. Pitman and Miss Georgina Pitman went to Peterboro on Sunday. Mrs. Pitman returned on Tuesday, but Miss Pitman will spend two weeks in the city under-going medical treatment.

Shafer, a Jewish Mission, Post Seid, was read by Mrs. Fargey.

Some business was dealt with, and Mrs. Pitman, as delegate to the treasury, stated that any goods for the bale must be in her hands by the next meeting, as the bale has to be packed and sent to Napanee, during the first part of September. Hymn 37 was then sung, and the meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Melville Donnan.

A delightful tea then served and a social hour spent.

Eliminating Dolly

By Arthur R. Scott

Charley Davis knew that something was wrong, when Jack Saunders met him at the train, but it was only when the latter's wife extended a limpband in greeting that he realized how wrong things were.

"You're quite welcome," said Mrs. Saunders, stiffly, "but I hope you and Jack—"

"That's all right, Ethel," interrupted her husband. "We're going fishing in the morning, so you won't have to worry about Charley's entertainment. I'll take your bag upstairs," he added to the guest.

"What's the matter with Ethel?" asked Davis, when the host had deposited the bag in the room.

Saunder's face flushed. "Oh-er—Ethel may have just returned from a meeting. It always has a bad effect on her; makes her feel there isn't much good in anyone but herself and Dolly Swan."

"Hum! Who's Dolly Swan?"

"A widow," explained Saunders, "who settled here, right after you moved to the city. She seems to have all the women hulldosed. The way I got it, Dolly discovered some letters her dead husband had received from a woman correspondent, and decided that all men were rank poison. She's persuaded most of the feminine population in the village to hold meetings and send out prayers for their husbands' souls. There's going to be a meeting tonight."

Davis, whistling softly, began to unpack his bag. At intervals, during this process, he would stop whistling and gaze at Saunders, quizzically. Then he would resume his unpacking and whistling.

Following dinner, when the men were enjoying their cigars on the porch, the women began to assemble. One of the first to arrive was a broad-shouldered lady, whom Saunders identified as Mrs. Swan. Davis heard, the following of feminine vanities, for her hair was drawn tightly back from a face that was moonlike and completely devoid of any make-up.

Shortly afterward, the meeting was called to order in a room just off the porch. It was a warm evening and the windows were wide open, permitting the voices from the room to be heard on the porch.

"That prize package," mused the host, bitterly as a powerful voice reached them. "I mean Dolly. She can make more noise than a politician."

"How long has this business been going on?" asked Davis.

"About a year."

"And you can't break it up?"

Davis came to the conversation. Saunders looked thought fully into space, while Davis blew smoke rings toward the porch ceiling. Finally the latter spoke:

"Suppose Ethel should suddenly discover that Dolly wasn't so perfect after all?"

"Don't be silly!" Saunders said irreverently.

"But I mean it," Davis insisted. "Suppose you prove it to Ethel by making love to the widow?"

Saunders removed the cigar from his mouth and gazed at his friend in amazement. "Look here, Charley," he said, "this is no time for joking. It's a serious matter. Make love to the widow, indeed! Why every time I look at Dolly, I want to choke her! And she knows it, too!"

"I don't blame you!" Davis agreed heartily. "But you don't need to actually make love to her in order to convince Ethel. Just hold the lady's hand. Tell her you love her, in secret! And if your wife doesn't see a greater light than ever she's been about Dolly, then—Hey! Wait! It's your funeral, and perhaps you'd prefer things as they are—"

But Saunders preferred them not at all. In fact, he wanted to change them as hastily that, the following morning, when he and Davis were on their fishing excursion, he listened attentively while the latter outlined a scheme whereby the broad-shouldered lady would be eliminated from the household.

When the two men returned to the house they found Dolly on the porch, entertaining Ethel with liberal advice and herself with even more generous portions of fudge cake. Saunders immediately began a carefully rehearsed speech.

"It's great to be back again" he said, "many such refining influences as these. Fishing is a—a dirty pastime. There's no virtue in it. Stay from now on. I'm going to think of more serious things." He turned his eyes directly on the widow. "You'll help me, won't you Dolly? You're such a—a wonderful teacher!"

Mrs. Swan glanced nervously toward the hostess, who was looking suspiciously from one to the other, and answered: "Why—er—Ethel is as well—er—qualified as I am to—to—advise you. But I will be glad to help all I can."

"Thank you, Dolly," said Saunders fervently; and mindful of his fiery coaching, he took the widow's hand and pressed it warmly. aSuddenly rising to her feet, and jerking back her hand, Ethel left the porch and strode down the lawn. Hastily following the broad-shouldered form until it disappeared behind some trees. Then she turned to her husband, and asked, "Jack, have you been drinking?"

"Drinking!" repeated her husband indignantly. "I just say I was going to think of more serious things!"

Another sprawling glance followed this remark. Then Ethel entered the house and slammed the screen door behind her.

"Well," chuckled Davis, when the coast was clear, "you've given her something else to think about."

All the next day, Saunders openly praised Mrs. Swan's wisdom and beauty, his wife listening with slowly growing resentment until dinner was served, when an invitation from Davis brought the act to a sudden climax.

"I wonder," he said, "if you and Jack would be my guests for a few weeks. I'd be awfully glad to have you."

Ethel would never enjoy herself," promptly declared Saunders. She'd much rather stay home and attend the meetings."

His wife gave him a sharp look; then smiled at Davis. "On the contrary, Charley, I'd enjoy it very much. In fact, I've come to believe that too much country life narrows one and that a change is necessary. I would do us both good.

"I can't get rid of her husband decisively. "I wouldn't even think of it, unless—unless we can find Dolly along to keep our minds on the right things."

"Surely, I ought to have something to say about this," remarked Davis. "I want you to come along, Jack, but I'm afraid there won't be room for Mrs. Swan."

"So there!" exclaimed Ethel, joyfully. She rose from the table, "I'm going to telephone Dolly right now that I'm going away and won't be able to attend any meetings."

"You mean—until we get back," chimed her husband.

"I mean—never," corrected Ethel, on her way to the door. "And if you know what's best for you, you'll forget all about Dolly, too!"

This time Saunders failed to answer. He waited until his wife's voice could be heard at the telephone, talking with Dolly, and then—quite silently—reached over and shook the smiling Davis' hand.

IRISH EYES

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"I' will?" Ma then said solemnly. Frank stood looking at the mail. "My mither wants you to know that 'whatever you think is right, my brother'll do," he said.

Mrs. Carscadden shrugged at Sheila.

"It wouldn't be fair to your brother, an' him in live wit' another young lady," she said.

Sheila's heartsick eyes went from Frank's serious, handsome face to her mother's face, returned to Frank's again. Color began to stain her cheeks.

"What are you talking about?" she demanded flatly.

"Niver you mind, pulse!" her mother answered.

"We have it! You got the—the rotten end of it, Sheila, 'Frank explained, with a nervous laugh. "I might be that you and your mother—that all of us—it might be that we failed—"

He floundered; his kindly smile finished the sentence.

"There's pervits that feel they have reputations to lose!" Mrs. Carscadden contributed stingingly.

"My father—my brother—we've been through a lot together, we two," Frank said.

"Yes, it! you got the—the rotten 'end of it, Sheila, 'Frank explained, with a nervous laugh. "I might be that you and your mother—that all of us—it might be that we failed—"

He floundered; his kindly smile finished the sentence.

"There's pervits that feel they have reputations to lose!" Mrs. Carscadden contributed stingingly.

"My father—my brother—we've been through a lot together, we two," Frank said.

"Shtop—shtop!" she said mildly. Angela was still. Sheila looked at her suggested, "perhaps you'll let me decide whether I want to marry anyone or not?"

There was a dead silence. Frank broke it suddenly.

"Well, we'll get the police onto those gangsters," he commented in a standing now, with his brown sleeve and his hat in his hand. "And we'll deny that there was a marriage, or we'll—we'll settle that same way. And that's all there is to it."

"You've certainly been awfully kind about the whole thing," Sheila muttered gratefully.

"Sheila, step out here into the hall a minute," Frank said. "I want to speak to you."

Still disheveled, and pale, and with deliberately, under circles about her dark blue eyes, Sheila obeyed. It was marvellous how she liked to obey him. She looked against the dirty wall of the odorous narrow hallway and Frank addressed a few sentences to the floor.

"Sheila, I know how you feel. It's been terribly rough on you, Frank began. "But you mustn't blame your father. What could they think when those wires came, but that you and Peter had run off together?

"This Ken, whoever he is, must be a smart devil," Frank went on, as Sheila merely raised her solemn eyes to his without speaking. "He's probably the brains of the whole outfit. He saw that an elopement would shut us all up, d'you see, and give them time. It's too bad, it's a rotten as it can be; but it's not anybody's fault. You just have to keep your nerve for a few days—"

"Will the morning papers have the story that we were married?" she asked, somberly.

"Well, they may. But what do you care, I—" Frank checked the form of his words—" since it's not true?" he asked.

"I do care," she said, stubbornly.

"Can't you look on the whole thing as a sort of adventure, something that might happen in a movie, say? You will think this is a great joke, some day."

"There's only one thing Sheila began suddenly, after a troubled study of his handsome, dark face. "I want to marry Peter McCann. Not if the Church says—"

"Listen, Sheila," he said soothingly, his hand on her arm, "you don't have to get so excited about it. You don't have to. You don't have to marry anyone if you don't want to!"

"I'll become a nun, first!" Sheila whispered fiercely. She saw Frank's characteristic half-smile brighten his face.

"You won't have to go that far."

"But if his mother and father expect me to—" Sheila began, anxiously.

Frank reflected a moment.

"They don't," he told her briefly. "You're sure that's all?"

The man spoke more slowly; "why, they wouldn't want you to do anything you didn't want to do. They might think you wanted it."

"Well, she said, in an instant relief, "I don't want to."

"You know, Sheila," Frank began, and looked away, hesitating. "You know, my mother thought," he began again, "that since you and Peter had been up in Canada, a place for two nights—"

He hesitated, and Sheila took it up defiantly:

"Yes, I know. And what's more, Peter was in my room that first night, what there was left of it, that is. But I don't care! It doesn't make the slightest difference."

"It was only a question of justice to you, Sheila."

"Well, you can tell your mother that I'm perfectly satisfied!"

"Miss Kennedy—my young lady —" Frank persisted, "agreed with my mother."

"Well, then she doesn't understand the way I feel!" Sheila said boldly.

Frank was smiling, as at an angry child.

"She's a pretty wise young lady, Bernadette," he said, as if he were merely thinking aloud. Sheila stood looking at him, panting.

"You don't think I ought to marry Peter?" she challenged him.

But thought had apparently affected him in spite of himself, and he looked at her with his kindest expression. Sheila seemed small and pale, in her scant old cotton dress, with her hands drooping and bang falling on her broad forehead. Her big eyes filled and ached, but she was fighting for her life.

"I thought you would, too, Sheila," Frank said, sympathetically.

"Frank!" Suddenly she was clinging to him, her cheek against his soft and warm and sweet. "Don't let them make me!"

If he said anything to her she did not hear it. His arm was about her for a minute, his face against her hair.

Then they had drawn apart, and his fingers, that had been gripping hers, were gone. Sheila was running down the stairs.

Sheila stood, alone in the hallway. After a while she turned toward the kitchen; a strange light was in her eyes, and a dreamy smile on her lips. She moved like a sleep-walker.

When Sheila reentered the room not a head lifted. Her mother was at the part of her mother, who was alone there. Joe had gone to bed. Frank, Peter and Angela was in Sheila's place in the big bed, crying, and sobbing, feigning unconsciousness. Sheila could not tell. It was a little hard to maintain a dignified performance of disrobing and absolutions when her mother's dreamy eyes upon her, and with-the consciousness that she would presently come to bed in the same small room with her, but Sheila achieved it.

Her heart was heard, but it was ready to sail at one word, one sign of softening from her mother. It did not come. Sheila put on her nightgown, elaborately omitted her prayers, got into the bed and was instantly feigning slumber as deep as Angela's.

Angela rarely slept in the big bed. It was a tacit sign of Stella's alienation from the family that she should be there tonight.

"A lot it can't!" Sheila thought angrily. "They're all against me! She deliberately summoned Frank McCann to her mind, deliberately dwelt upon every look of his every word, his smiling remoteness from any trouble of hers; he was so cool and faultless and sure about it all! "No girl would ever get that one into trouble," Sheila thought, going off to sleep.

At eleven o'clock the next morning she and her mother and Joe presented themselves at the Mc-Cann mansion, and were shown into the library of the way they rode in a bus, following the Fifth Avenue side of the park in the holiday-morning excitement.

Crowds were already gathering for the St. Patrick's Day parade. Bands were abroad. There was snow left in the park, great stretch es of it, under the bare trees, and there were children sledding and screaming on the pond. It was a cold, sunless morning, with a sharpness in the heavy air. Sheila maintained a sulky silence all the way; her mother and brother scarcely spoke.

She was but twenty-one. And this morning her life was ruined before her. No girl alive could live down headlines like those, no girl could go to an office with this to face!

Most of the morning papers had run a conservative notice of the marriage. "Second Son of Judge McCann Surprises Family" and "Missing Pair Married in Boston" —that was the general order.

But the tabloid paper had had a picture of Sheila and Peter on the front page; Sheila looking perfectly wild in her tousled travel-crumpled clothes, and Peter like the scared, lanky boy he was. And under this the caption had been "Love Birds Fly From Bandits, Not Wedlock Claim. Assert Telegrams a Hoax."

Ma, seeing this, had eclipsed with a deep scream and had had to have smelling salts again and again. Angela wept and fanned Ma, Joe had muttered that somebody better look out or he'd get his face smashed in.

Then on Page Twelve" the thing was under the picture had been. And unfortunately the story of page twelve had been absolutely true. Miss Carscadden, a belle of the Bronx, and the dare-devil second son of the well-known judge, whose college exploits had caused his family and friends so much concern a few years ago had eloped, and at a police station early on Monday evening, and had told the following story to Police Sergeant Francis X. O'Reilley.

The tale of bootleggers, abduction, escape followed. The young couple, the newspaper continued, whose absence from home since Saturday night had been a source of thing of a mystery, denied their marriage, although they had announcement it had been made by Miss Carscadden's mother and by Judge and Mrs. Paul D. McCann.

Sheila's brother Neely was with his wife, Letitia, early at the Carscadden apartments to discuss this calamity, had exclaimed and talked about the kitchen until Sheila had felt ready to murder them both.

"What I can't understand is why you wanted to talk to Peter Mc-Cann, Sheila," Lizzie had lamented, over and over again, in her wonderful monotonous voice, "You knew he was going to marry Gertrude Keane —it was in the papers!"

"Well, he's got scads, for one thing, Neely, who was slow-witted said.

"Scads," Neely had explained, seriously.

"Oh, I see. I can sway with him because his father had lots of money!"

"Well, Sheila," Lizzie had taken it up, in her plaintive tones, "why else would you? You hardly knew him."

"There you are," Sheila had answered. "Why else would I?"

"Time to go," Joe had said abruptly, at this point. And the party had started out, anxious and silent for the Mackin house.

"Joe," Lizzie had said in the hall, in her most confidential voice, "I'll go with you gladly to the McCanns' if I could be of any use!"

"No thanks," Joe had said briefly. Usually he liked Lizzie; usually they all did. Her father had a big bakery business where Neely worked. She was a wonderful wife to Neely, and could be very funny describing the funerals of her aunts, and the way her Uncle Jim acted when he had to change his wooden leg. But today she had jarred.

"I thought maybe, on account of Father Chesterfield—" she had said, and tenderly. At which Mrs. Carscadden had blustered for herself, "Get out, Lizzie, there's a good girl!"

Lizzie had withdrawn with tears in her eyes, and Joe, Sheila and their mother had gone on their separate way.

The McCann house, when they reached it, looked very large and handsome and formidable, and the entrance hall, when the obviously excited and sympathetic Mamie admitted them, quite overwhelmed Mrs. Carscadden with its magnificence. Even Joe, who was slow-witted himself, looked around with wide eyes exploring the great curve of the stairway, with its stained glass window and its palms, the rugs and the curtained arches of the doorways, the enormous chairs that flanked the hall.

"It's 'Frank they are! she sheery ed in a whisper.

A young man sat on the marble bench in the hallway, where Sheila had sat last Friday night—a hundred years ago, she heard him say and something to Mamie about wanting to see "Mr. Frank, i'm the office," and heard Mamie tell him to come this way. But the Carscaddens were not kept waiting; they were shown at once into the pleasant sitting-room behind the big formal front parlors, where Sheila had first come upon the man of the house, playing with his little girl a few brief days.

Judge McCann was there now, with Peter. The older man came forward hospitably, with nothing recognized in his manner or voice and what Sheila did not accomplish in the way of introductions he did, saturnly and pleasantly, and they all sat down.

It was all Sheila could do to raise her frightened eyes to his face when he spoke to her; she could not look at all at Peter. She heard his gruff "Hello, Sheila," and returned some equally casual greeting as she slid into a chair.

Then Frank came in with his mother. The gracious, gentle woman of Sheila's first visit looked older today; she was pale and she had been crying. Her lips said "Mrs. Carscadden" and "Sheila," as she greeted them, but she made no sound.

"An' my boy, Joe." Sheila's mother said. Mrs. McCann looked at him steadily.

"How do you do, Joe?"

BRINGING UP FATHER

TARZAN AND THE JEWELS OF OPAR—No. 1

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

Lieutenant Albert Werper, after six months of loneliness in the Belgian Congo, was in a dangerous mood. Because he had dishonored his family name, the young man had been banished from the gay life of Brussels. Now, in this isolated section of Africa, he brooded over his monotonous existence until his hatred towards his superior officers had become a form of mania.

Tonight, he sat upon the veranda of their common quarters, glaring in silent rage at his captain, the one supreme object of his dislike. The captain was a silent man and Werper interpreted this silence as a studied attempt to ignore him. Werper imagined that his superior held him in contempt, and as he glared inwardly until now his madness became suddenly bomicidal.

Nervously fingering his revolver, Lieutenant Werper's eyes narrowed and his brows contracted. At last he spoke: "You've handled me for the last time!" He sprang to his feet as did the Captain, upon whose face was an expression of surprise as he turned towards the half-Junior, though he had only dealt with this jungle maidenas upon them, the madness of solitude and brooding.

He extended his hand to lay it soothingly on Werper's shoulder, seeking to calm him. Quiet words of counsel were upp his lips, but they were never spoken. Even before he could defend himself, the enraged Lieutenant pulled the trigger. Without a groan, the Captain sank to the floor, and, as his fell, the mists that had clouded Werper's brain lifted. He realized he was a murderer.

CONSTANCE BENNETT SPLENDID IN DISCLOSURE OF HOLLYWOOD

A vivid vignette of Hollywood and its environs, replete with the glamour and striking color of the nation's most picturesque city," is authentically presented in RKO Pathe's new Constance Bennett starrer which is the box office offering at the Belle today, Friday, matinee daily.

Miss Bennett is versatile in her splendid enaction, revealing propensities for the humorous with as much of her capabilities for the dramatic. She surmounts her portrayal of a sophisticated wit of "Lady With A Past," and embraces the humanly emotional drama of her latest successes.

Notables Highlight Swell Support.

A host of screen luminaries is responsible for splendid portrayals among the supporting cast. Lowell Sherman as a director couples a barrage of laugh provoking clever drama that is emotionally touching; Gregory Ratoff contributes sheer comedy as produced, and reveals his talents for direction; Neil Hamilton is the clean-cut lover, brilliant in his depiction of Miss Bennett's husband.

Frank Revelation of Flinsdeen.

Every phase of Hollywood life from work to play is frankly revealed in this tale relating to the meteoric rise of a waitress to the heights of success as a film star. In "What Price Hollywood?" you may dine in the Brown Derby Restaurant, loll on the sands of Malibu Beach, or attend a swank premiere at Grauman's Chinese Theatre. If you prefer, you can visit the studio to see a picture in the making, spend an afternoon at a Mack Sennett Mermaid, swim in the luxurious ultra-modern pool, ride on the bridle path promenade on Hollywood Boulevard or view a horse race at Agua Caliente.

Evidently, the authoress, Adela Rogers St. John Hyland, has put her knowledge of Hollywood life to splendid advantage. A resident of the city for several years, she imparts a true insight into the lovely existence in "What Price Hollywood." George Cukor directed with the directorial ability of his previous successes.

Great Stars Reunited.

Two great stars, William Powell and Kay Francis are reunited for the first time in three years in "Jewel Robbery," the Warner's perfect entertainment, which comes to the Belle Saturday direct from the Imperial Theatre, Toronto.

At The Capitol

"THE DARK HORSE" IS A THRILLING POLITICAL PLAY

The first political picture of the hectic political annum is due here soon.

In a General Election year in the United States, with primaries, conventions and elections spotting the nation; with candidates from poundkeeper to president engaging the voters, "The Dark Horse", a First National picture which comes to the Capitol Friday affords a most lifelike glimpse of behind-the-scenes activities of political leaders in the land of Uncle Sam.

Advance reports reaching the management of the Capitol Theatre put "The Dark Horse" in the running as one of the standout screen offerings of the year. Aside from its timeliness, the picture appeals generally as an authentic story of political machinations, highlighted by comedy and melodramatic action in which Warren William, the amazing "Man of the Mouthpiece", plays the role of a "maker of men."

The screen play written by Joseph Jackson and Courtenay Terrell, two of Hollywood's ace writers and former political reporters on metropolitan dailies.

Bette Davis, triumphant in "The Man Who Played God", starring George Arliss, "So Big" and "Three Rich Are Always With Us", Ruth Chatterton's latest success, and Richard Kibbee and Vivianne Osborne, both featured contract players of the Warner Bros.-First National Studios, all have important roles, while other well known names in the list, are Frank McHugh, Sam Hardy, Robert Warwick, Russell Hopton, Churchill and Harry Holman.

The production was made under direction of Alfred E. Green, two of whose recent pictures, "Union Depot" and "The Rich Are Always With Us", are among the sensational screen successes this year.

Warren William, given a stirring portrayal of a high powered man of action in "The Dark Horse" that even surpasses his great work in "The Mouthpiece." The character he portrays is likable, that of a reckless, devil-may-care personage, who thrives on thrills, with a magnetic personality.

Many of the scenes are laid in a convention hall, the campaign headquarters of the candidate for governor, committee rooms and debating auditorium.

The story concerns the "Maker of Governors" (William) whose personal magnetism sweeps everything before him, except in his own domestic and financial difficulties. The particular angle of this story deals with his electing a governor to candidate who is an absolute dumbbell. His domestic difficulties are tangled up between a beautiful secretary he loves and a gold digging ex-wife.

"Dynamite Denny".

Belleville is a broad town and a railroad drama is most appealing. "Dynamite Denny" is not only a railroad drama but it thriller of the first rank in which will excite old and young alike.

The whole family will enjoy this double-feature program and children will receive Mickey Mouse scribbles from the studios on Privacy and Saturday.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

Thousands who have itching, bleeding or protruding piles have not yet learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories reach the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The hemorrhoidal veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To get rid of piles internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, drive out the thick impure blood, heal and tone the parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, after years of study, found a real internal medicine. He called it Hemorrhoy HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 7000 patients. It relieved in over 900 cases, and then decided every piles sufferer on his Mother Jury studborn their case, might try his prescription with a money back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when J. S. McKeown and all good druggists invite you to try HEM-ROID tablets with guarantee of relief or money back. If they do not end your Pile misery.

Natural gas was first used as an illuminant at Fredonia, N.Y., in 1824.

JEALOUSY OF YOUTH CAUSES CONVICTION

Fined $10 And Costs For Ejecting Girl From Motor Car

WENT TO DANCE

Youth Angry Because of Attention Paid to Girl Friend

Burk's Falls, Aug. 12—Jealousy was found to be responsible for the punishment Evelyn March, 16, Sundridge, found herself in when she cast from an automobile on the highway south of Powassan a 22-year-old Wednesday morning of last week and fire which Clarence Russell, 17, also of Sundridge, was fined before Magistrate Dr. Wilson here yesterday. The charge was common assault and the court's imposition was $10 and costs. A 18 year-old Powassan girl, driver of the car, was convicted on a charge of driving without a permit and was assessed $10 and costs.

In the evidence produced it was shown Miss March and Russell, were members of a party of four young men and three girls, who motored from Sundridge to attend a dance at Fine Grove summer resort, North of Powassan. The "green-eyed monster" possessed Russell when Miss March allowed another to show her considerable attention during the dance. When about a mile and a half south on the homeward journey Russell caused the car to be halted and turning to his girl companion stated: "This is no good a place at any for you to get out and walk home."

The girl revolted but Russell forcibly ejected her from the car to have her alone on the lonely road and in the rain. Her terror was shortly dissipated when a Toronto bound motor truck hove in sight. She waved it down and when told by the driver that he was bound for Kirkland Lake she consented to a "lift" to Powassan, that is a run of 225-mile road voyage.

From the vicinity of the girl were aroused when she could not be located in the neighborhood the next morning. A neighborhood and roadside search was not successful until Sunday when the girl returned and said she had been visiting friends in the Powassan area and town. Russell's arrest followed.

IRISH ISSUE SETTLED AT BRIDGE GAME!

OTTAWA, August 12.—In his own unconventional way, "Jim" Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, has settled the Irish Land Annuities. It's not a war which de-valued pun-dits of Whitehall can be expected to appreciate. Premier de Valera will naturally turn it down, but Sean Lemass, Free State Minister of Industry and Commerce, ruefully admits it.

An English newspaper correspondent went to see Mr. Lemass. What about the two-hour private conference in a Niagara Hotel, the newspaper man excitedly questioned. What about the talks in the train. What about——

"The Land Annuities question is settled," Mr. Lemass interrupted sadly. "We have no annuities any more." Jim Thomas has won them all back at bridge."

Death Penalty Demanded For General Sanjurjo

(BY REX SMITH)
(A.P. Staff Correspondent.)

Madrid, Aug. 12—Rioting and burning bolstered much of southern Spain today as the government laid plans to bring General Jose Sanjurjo, leader of Wednesday's abortive rebellion and his fellow-conspirators to trial.

A line of guards was stationed around the building of the newspaper Provincial at Valencia to protect it from mobs and General Lequerica, exiled from Switzerland by aeroplane to take charge of a remaining district.

Mobs burned a convent at Alhacin and a church at Santiponce, near Granada, and afterwards stoned and set fire to a tile factory wounding one of the owners.

The death penalty was demanded today by pro-republican Spanish civilian leaders for General Sanjurjo, Director of Public Safety Martinez announced a special judge had been designated to preside over the trial.

"Ringer Case" at Fort Erie Investigated and Four Face Suspension From all Tracks

Owner, Trainer of Janie C and Two Others Are Cited

HORSE IDENTIFIED

Mare Now Held Has No Brand on Neck Same as Others of Sire

Fort Erie, Aug. 12 (CP) — Four turfmen today faced possible suspension by the Canadian Racing Association and the expulsion of an alleged betting coup. A four-year-old mare is held by Canadian Customs officials following investigations by the turf track authorities into the fourth race run at Fort Erie Saturday.

The horse, under the name of Janie G, won the race and paid off at $28.30 for $2 in the mutuels.

The four are: T. D. Weber, Montreal, owner of Janie G.; J. S. Flynn, trainer, and Harry Williams and George Kissinger, also running to David S. Gillies, C.R.A. steward at the Fort Erie track, operated by the Niagara Racing Association, whose official entered the first investigation. Gillies named the men individually. He added they were not considered guilty pending the recommendation to the C.R.A.

The horse, daughter of Bingchampion, N.Y., breeder of Janie G. which is a grandson of Sir Barton. Sun Briar-Mary Agnes, provided a lead for the investigators, which resulted in the startling developments. Kilmer said all Sun Briar horses are branded on the chest with a number. Janie G's number is 16. Examination of the animal, pounded by the customs officials, failed to disclose the marking.

Racing officials are of the opinion that the alleged coup is closely connected with the perpetrators of the famous Shem case and also with the attempt to "put over" Callimont at Miami last winter. In each case the identification trail was used as a ringer.

It was learned that one unnamed person had bet $400 first, $200 place and $600 show on "Janie G" at Hamilton, Mr. Gillies said.

Final Agreement at Imperial Conference One Stage Nearer

U. K. Agreement With India Has Gone Forward

(By Georgy Hamilton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)

Ottawa, Aug. 12—A morning of conversations between delegations brought final agreement at the Empire Conference one stage nearer.

The Indian problem, which for days was a morning of activity. They held their "cabinet." They discussed concessions points with the Canadian delegation. They talked things over both with the South Africans and with Newfoundland. They met the Irish Free State and South Africans this afternoon.

A draft British Agreement with India is understood to have already gone forward to Delhi for approval by the Indian Government.

A few points still remain for settlement, it is understood, between South African and Australia. A South African suggestion to meet the differences between the British and South Africans seems likely to prove acceptable to the British. The Anglo-Australian difference, it is understood, still turns on the method of limiting foreign meats on the British market.

WAVERING ON WALL STREET IS CONTINUED

No Agreement on Mart on Hoover's Speech on Liquor, Power

New York, Aug. 12.—The stock market continued to waver today evidently reflecting uncertainty in trading quarters as to whether the advance could be pressed further without the aid of more general support from the public. Speculation

President Hoover's acceptance speech was widely discussed in Wall Street, but there was no agreement as to speculative quarters as to his influence as a market factor.

Great Effects.

Some of the so-called "wet" stocks were in the lime light as were some of the power issues, possibly reflecting the President's declaration of his stand against putting the government into the power business. Closing up a point or two, after the morning setback, included Allied Chemical, U.S. Industrial Alcohol, Stone and Webster, Standard Gas, Public Service of Jersey and St. Joseph Lead. Some of the low price oils were also higher. Texas Corp. rose 1 1-8 points were largely regained. Other international issues were mixed, had dropped about 3 and 4 points. For the past week Mr. Black's issues which had been off 2 to 3 were U.S. Steel, American Telephone, Bethlehem, Anaconda, Coca Cola, American Tobacco "B", Santa Fe, Westinghouse and others.

Three Dead and Eighteen Injured at Tracy Station

FALLS UNDER WRECK

Truck Rounds Corner Upsets on Rail-way Tracks

Fredericton, N.B., Aug. 13 (CP)—A motor truck carrying berry pickers overturned on a railroad crossing three miles from South Stanley near Tracy at noon today with three reported dead and 18 others injured.

First reports gave the name of Oliver Master of McAdam, as one of the dead. It was reported Master died instantly when the truck toppled over as it bumped across the tracks with its heavy load.

The truck was taking pickers to the blueberry fields and upset after swinging around a curve on the railroad tracks, scattering the score of occupants over the right-of-way and highway.

Three doctors and three nurses from the Fredericton hospital on the scene tending first aid to the injured while ambulances rushed from Fredericton with additional medical aid and supplies.

LOBBYISTS ON WAY TO HOMES

Beginning of End of Conference at Ottawa is Looming

Ottawa, Aug. 12 by George Hamilton, Canadian Press Staff Writer).—The hosts depart. As the Empire Conference draws to a close the crowded, excited lobbies of the Chateau Laurier (the real business delegations reside) gradually lose their throng. Slowly, and in some cases, sadly, the lobbyists are wending their homeward way.

Not all the disappointment advertising from the rain under a projecting roof of the Chateau Laurier Porte-cochere. The usual knot of curious spectators gathered about the Sussex Street runs into Wellington. Arriving cars. Delegates in topcoats, carrying hurking, photographers as they cross the mysterious portal. Departing cars.

In Ottawa, a plenary opening in all the pomp of guards of honor, the clamoring broadcast; crowded public galleries, the dazzling flare of movie lights.

And above all, the lobbyists. They flooded the Chateau Laurier. Included in a British delegation for the final days were many industrial advisers. But they were only the crest, so to speak, of the tide of industrialists. Iron men and steel men, cotton men and woollen men, fuel men and chemical men, men seemingly from every industry, every sphere. Many of them were not of any official government delegation. They had their suits, and figured in knots eagerly traded story bits of information and misinformation, watched and waited for a chance to get into the recruits word in high quarters.

TRUCK STILL AT BOTTOM OF BAY

Still under water at the far span of the Bay Bridge, the motor truck it plunged last Saturday morning, with Thomas Black at the wheel, Black has so far resisted all efforts at a salvage. Although it has been repeatedly located the strong current at that point has seriously hampered the divers' work. It is attempted to attach ropes or chains to it. For the past week Mr. Black and assistants have made daily attempts at the task, but have unsuccessfully, although a more determined try is again being made today.

CRAZED MAN SLASHES "ANGELUS" BY MILLET

Paris, Aug. 13—The Angelus, famous painting by Jean Francois Millet, was slashed Thursday by a knife in the hands of a crazed engineer, Pierre Guillard.

Millet painted the canvas in 1859, and sold it for $100. The last time it was sold before going to the Louvre it brought $110,000.

Famous throughout the world and sought out by every visitor at the Louvre, the canvas shows a man and a woman, heads bowed as they stand in the fields, listening to the evening call to prayer.

Guillard told police he was under the influence of God when he painting to attract attention to his sight.

Man Beaten and Robbed on Highway Failing to Come Across with Tabac.

Robbed and beaten on the highway last east of the city, late Thursday night, when he refused to come across with tobacco, a man who accosted two other motorists, Messrs. W. James Tibbet, no home, exhibited typical signs of the badly blackened eyes to a reporter, said to have been inflicted upon him by the two men he had met on his way to Belleville from Montreal, without provocation than an explanation, that he had no tobacco to give them. The men who were driving as roughly Tibbet was on his way to Hamilton to attend the week which had been promised him.

Very hazy description of them when ordered While one held him the other one pounded him about the face and head, then rifled his pockets of a few personal effects, including $2.00 dollars in change, threw him to the road and after thus finished the attack by "dancing" on him with heavy boots. Interested stopped to his back was also torn open and clothing scattered all over the road. After throwing him to the ground they cautioned him not to move until they were out of sight, and drove away, roughly Tibbet was on his way to Hamilton to attend the week which had been promised him.

LEAD-PIERCED SKULL SHOWN TO JURYMEN

Two Bullet Holes Indicated in Head Bones of Haden Clarke

HORROR FELT

Jurymen Interested or Horrified, Prisoner is Intent

Miami, Fla., Aug. 13—The bullet-pierced skull of Haden Clarke, wrinkled and mysteriously slain fiancee of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, was brought into the court room today at the trial of Captain W. N. Lancaster for the slayer's murder.

The skull, along with slides showing parts of the head were brought before the jury and spectators by Dr. M. H. Talisman. Defence counsel and one of a combination of four specialists who conducted an autopsy on the body of the young author.

Two Holes

The two bullet holes, one marking entrance, the other exit, fatally wounded Clarke on April 21 and the other marking the exit, were pointed out by Dr. Talisman as the twelve jurors in the case leaned forward to see them. Their expression varying from acute interest to horror.

Lancaster, charged with slaying Clarke as an act of supreme retribution after the author replaced him in the affections of Mrs. Keith-Miller, peered intensely at the skull.

TOWN ORDERED TO STICK TO CUSTODIAN

TORONTO, August 12. — The Town of Barrie was ordered by Mr. Justice Raney at Osgoode Hall yesterday to return alleged fees for taxes, to the custodian of the bankrupt estate of George Hubbard, hardware merchant of that town.

Hubbard made an assignment on July 26. The town on July 9 claiming $1,100 arrears in taxes, put a bailiff in the store. They had refused to relinquish possession of the goods to the custodian, contending their claim was akin to a lien.

The Town, however, will have a preferential claim against the estate, the court ruled.

Perseid Meteors Fail to Thrill Overcast Skies Offer Explanation

Perseid failed to do their stuff. Or if they did put on their fireworks in the upper reaches of the sky Friday morning, they failed to please scores of Belleville residents who patiently camped on their back porches between the hours of twelve and one o'clock in the morning to watch the brilliant meteors fall from the heavens in fire and sparks behind them. Overcast skies and hazy hung close north of the city put a damper on the proceedings as did showers in other towns and cities report excellent observation.

Anyone who has been watching the skies after nightfall during the past few days may have noticed occasional meteors streaming across the sky, the more brilliant fire-tipped tails. The maximum point in the annual shower of Perseid meteors was reached Thursday evening, with only a slight lessening of the display Friday night and Saturday night. After August 25 the display will cease entirely, leaving them for another year.

The present display is named after the constellation Perseus which is in part of the sky from which the meteors seem to emit. The burning bits of matter which plunge from miles above the earth into the atmosphere ignite themselves with the friction through the air and attain a dazzling incandescence which leaves a glowing trail behind them. According to observers and astronomers the similar meteors are the most brilliant and entirely consume themselves in their journey through the air. Larger ones leave only a glowing trail behind them and are not so bright at the tip. The chance of damage to the earth through them is almost negligible.

Headaches are often caused by errors of vision?

Yes, but when so caused they can be relieved only by correcting the errors and preventing eye strain.

The eye strain really causes the headaches?

Yes, and eye strain comes from faulty vision, which in turn is caused by imperfect eyes. There is an important hint here for habitual sufferers from headaches.

SCHOOLS WILL OPEN SEPT. 1

No Lost Time in Re-opening of Institute For Fall Term

Dread announcement. Bad news, which will trickle to the old swimming hole, summer camps, tents in backyards, the highways and byways of cooling woods, which have been the haunts of upwards of three thousand children for the past few months. Shadows of school bells loom like a dark cloud on the horizon, but 19 days away.

School opening has been officially decreed to commence on Thursday, September 1st. This includes Separate School, Public schools and Collegiate Institute. As Monday, Sept. 5 is a holiday (Labor Day) some thought the opening might be Tuesday, Sept. 6th, while they are wrong.

Already book stores have cleared the decks and windows. New supplies are being ordered. Bright shiny pencils will vie with pliable covers of school books. Mostly assortment of school supplies will cover book bags, erasers, rulers and books of rhymes, stories and poetry that mother and father had learned by heart years before. This year there will be a little difference however. For the first time in the history of Belleville, school children will be supplied books. From the Fathers. They will be paid for by a fixed fee levied against the parents. Trustees declare that all is in readiness for the new system and that only final considerations remain.

School's calling, teachers beckon, harrowed seats are being dusted off. Holidays are mostly over. Skipping ropes are back on the shelves and pencils will soon be sharpened. New faces will appear in each class room. School's in, but three thousand children are hardly ready for it—yet.
